Funding/Grants Opportunities

...ing and criminal justice administration capabilities of tribal, state, and local governments, we must ... have access to additional resources. This Web site is designed to provide direct links to ... communities.

The federal government has established Grants.gov, which is THE single access point for competitive discretionary funding opportunities offered by all federal agencies. Grants.gov allows organizations to electronically find and apply for more than $400 billion in Federal grants. Specific instructions on getting started with Grants.gov is found at www.grants.gov

Specific instructions on getting started with Grants.gov with the Office of Justice Programs can be found at www.ojp.usdoj.gov/funding/

Government-to-Government Relationship	<h2>Training and Technical Assistance</h2> One way for Indian country to improve the crime fighting and criminal justice administration capabilities of state, tribal, and local governments is to help tribes and communities achieve effective grant management. In fact, one of the five goals of the agenda is improved financial management. Tribal communities have asked for additional training and them in their efforts to implement community-based strategies to address tribal justice and safety Community Efforts Corrections and Aftercare Global Justice Information Sharing Juvenile Justice Law Enforcement Substance Abuse and Crime Tribal Justice Systems Victims of Crime Training & Technical Assistance Organizations Current DOJ funding/grants opportunities are highlighted on this Web site and can be accessed on the left menu on this page.
