ORDER

COPY

Having carefully reviewed the parties' submissions relating to discovery and scheduling of the above-entitled action, and having reviewed the relevant law, the Court ORDERS

1. That the defendants make available to the Government, for copying by the Government or at the Government's expense, non-privileged, responsive documents on CD-Rom;¹
2. In light of the Government's recent proposals to the defendants that the Government would revise and limit its outstanding document requests, that the Government provide a revised and more limited set of document demands to defendants;
3. That document discovery be completed by the currently ordered date of June 18, 1999; and
4. That the Government and the defendants shall, on or before June 23, 1999, inform the Court in writing what, if any, document discovery remains outstanding.

The parties are directed to appear before the Court for a status and scheduling conference on June 25, 1999, at 4:00 p.m., in Courtroom 905, the United States Courthouse, 40 Foley Square, New York, New York 10007.
