- Hospitality zones are areas in a city with extended hours, a high concentration of dining and entertainment businesses, active street life and a center of events and celebrations.

- Community policing in hospitality zones is a collaborative partnership among police and enforcement agencies, businesses, community organizations and residents, each with something to offer and something to take.

Building Community Partnerships

- Begun in 1993
- Structured yet decentralized
- Problem solving initiated at very local levels to address crime and disorder issues specific to that neighborhood
- 18th District - highest concentration of licensed establishments in the City
- Developed Hospitality Subcommittee to regularly bring together police and representatives of licensed establishments to discuss issues specific to those businesses and surrounding communities
- Also included resident organizations impacted by hospitality industry

Building Community Partnerships

- Cooperation with other City Departments to pro-actively address emerging crime and disorder issues

Developing and Implementing New Strategies in Hospitality Zones

- In the past ten years, new mixed use zones have emerged throughout the City

-18th District Hospitality Subcommittee laid foundation for how we look at issues related to the hospitality industry

- Working with the RHI, expanded the opportunity to involve hospitality industry in the development of new strategies

- Again, built on the center of Chicago's community policing strategy - each stakeholder - police, other City Departments, and residents and businesses - have roles and responsibilities in creating and sustaining safe neighborhoods

Developing and Implementing New Strategies in Hospitality Zones

- Hospitality Business Roundtables
- Hospitality Business Orientations
- Early Assistance Teams

Additional Public Education Initiatives

- Developed around specific crime patterns or issues
- Series of sexual assaults of women coming home from bars
- Methamphetamine use in principally GLBT establishments
