Hi --

The U.S. House of Representatives Judiciary Committee, the Department of Justice Antitrust Division, and a coalition of state attorney generals have launched three separate investigations of Google's search and advertising products. In particular, these government bodies are investigating alleged anticompetitive conduct pursuant to their respective authorities.

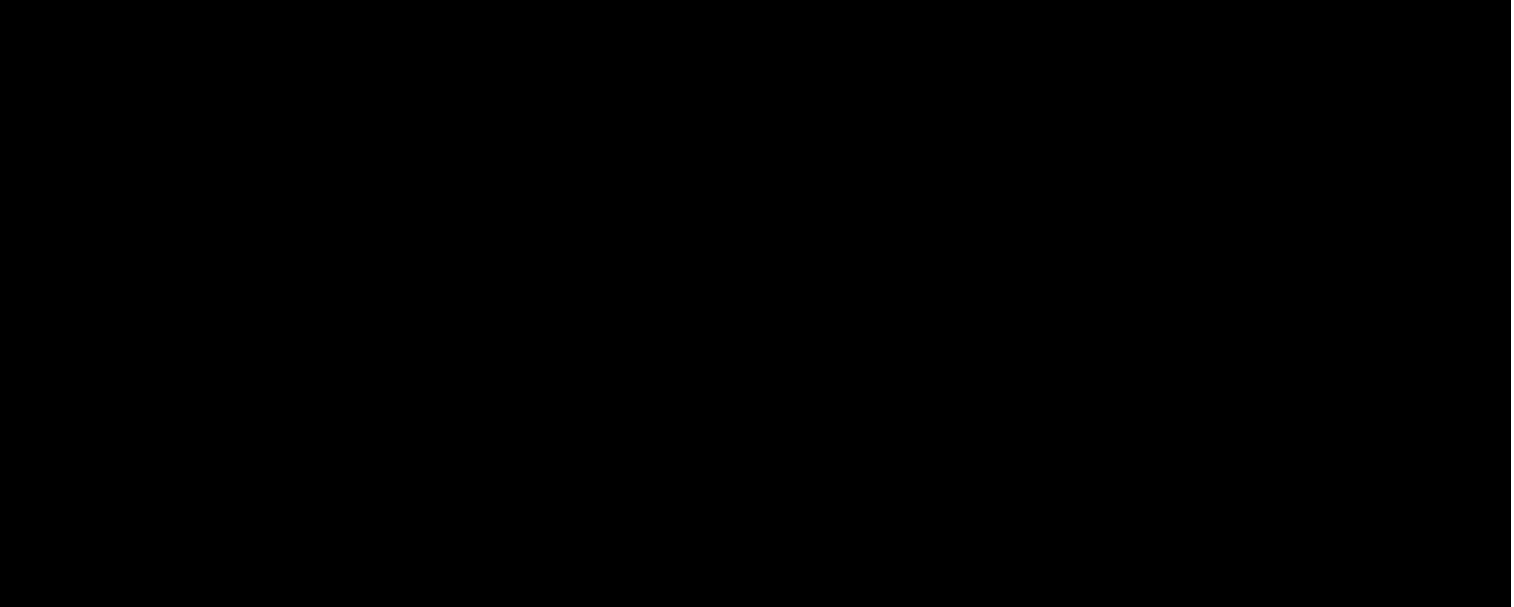

You have been identified as someone who might have information that is relevant to this matter and you are being placed on “legal hold.” This means you must keep (and not delete!) all relevant information as explained below.

Please do not use the following tools or messaging apps to discuss any topics covered by this legal hold:
