HOGSETT ANNOUNCES CHARGES AGAINST FOUR MEN IN INTERNATIONAL CHILD EXPLOITATION CONSPIRACY

Pair traveled worldwide to orchestrate abuse, videos of which were trafficked in Indiana

PRESS RELEASE

INDIANAPOLIS – Joseph H. Hogsett, the United States Attorney, announced this afternoon the conviction of two men who sexually exploited a young boy in a scheme that stretched across three continents. Court documents unsealed today reveal that Mark J. Newton, age 42, an American citizen living in Australia, and Peter Truong, age 36, an Australian citizen, also living in Australia, orchestrated the abuse of the young child at the hands of a number of other men around the world. In addition, charges unsealed today allege that John R. Powell, age 41, a resident of Florida, and Jason Bettuo, age 36, a resident of Illinois, were also participants in this scheme. In a hearing this afternoon before U.S. District Judge Sarah Evans Barker, Newton was sentenced to 40 years in prison.

“For more than one year and across three continents, these men submitted this young child to some of the most heinous acts of exploitation that this Office has ever seen,” Hogsett said. “Thanks to the tireless work of our Project Safe Childhood team, these men will all face justice here in Indiana, and that young child’s nightmare has thankfully been brought to an end.”

Newton and Truong, who were living in Queensland, Australia, were the legal parents of a boy (“Victim 1”) who was five to six years of age during the events described in the federal charges. Between 2010 and 2011, Newton and Truong traveled to the United States, and elsewhere, with Victim 1 to meet with other men, allegedly including Powell and Bettuo, so that these persons could use high definition digital cameras to record the sexual abuse of Victim 1.

These instances allegedly included a September 2010 meeting with Powell, in which Newton and Truong allowed him to engage in sexual conduct with Victim 1 and produce child pornography of the encounter. In April 2011, they traveled with Victim 1 to San Francisco, at which time Powell and Bettuo allegedly engaged in sexual conduct with the child and produced additional child pornography.

On one occasion, Newton and Truong allowed a man, allegedly Powell, to travel to Australia and visit them at their home. During this visit, Powell was given access to Victim 1 and would allegedly sexually exploit the child and create child pornography. Court documents also indicate that Newton and Truong traveled to France for a “vacation” on at least one occasion, inviting Powell to meet with them who then engaged in sexual conduct with Victim 1, which was again video recorded. The resulting child pornography was then allegedly brought back to the United States.

Over the course of this scheme to sexually exploit Victim 1, Newton and Truong were also found to have engaged in a conspiracy to transport the child pornography produced during these encounters to individuals around the world, including individuals in Anderson, Indiana, and Arlington, Virginia. Powell is alleged to have participated in this scheme. It was this trafficking of materials that alerted United States Postal Inspectors and Indiana investigators to the case, launching the two year investigation of Newton, Truong, Powell, Bettuo, and others.

This case is the result of the investigative efforts of the United States Postal Inspection Service to target individuals who use the US Mail and the Internet to sexually exploit children. They were assisted locally by the Indiana Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force, and received significant help from the Queensland Police Service, Task Force Argos in Australia. Over the last year, the U.S. Postal Inspection Service has completed enforcement actions on over 125 subjects who are sex offenders, teachers, youth sport league volunteers, firefighters, police officers, and doctors. These efforts have led to the identification of over 131 previously unknown child victims of sexual exploitation.

“With today’s announcement, we are exposing one of the most heinous crimes involving children; the transportation of a child around the world for the sole purpose of sexually exploiting them,” Deputy Chief Inspector Shawn Tiller stated. “This case illustrates the Postal Inspection Service’s dedication to investigating and identifying those individuals who use the U.S. Mail and the Internet to sexually exploit children.”

According to Senior Litigation Counsel Steven D. DeBrotta and Assistant U.S. Attorney A. Brant Cook, who along with the Criminal Division’s Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section Trial Attorney Michael Grant are prosecuting these cases for the government, Newton was also sentenced to lifetime supervised release and was ordered to pay $400,000 in restitution to Victim 1.

Prosecutors said that defendant Truong has pleaded guilty and is awaiting sentencing on charges of conspiring to sexually exploit a child, as well as charges of possessing child pornography. Bettuo has filed a petition in federal court expressing his intent to enter a plea of guilty, and Powell’s case is still pending as he awaits trial.

This case was brought as part of Project Safe Childhood, a nationwide initiative to combat the growing epidemic of child sexual exploitation and abuse launched in May 2006 by the Department of Justice. Hogsett pointed out that in the last Project Safe Childhood reporting year, the U.S. Attorney’s Office prosecuted 52 defendants in Indiana, an increase of 37% over the prior year, and 49 defendants were convicted and sentenced. These are all-time records for the Office, which maintained a 100% conviction rate for PSC cases.

The greatest measure of the PSC program's impact, however, is the identification and rescue of child victims of sexual exploitation and abuse. Over the last year, the U.S. Attorney's Office successfully identified more than 120 child victims, including minors in Indiana, numerous places in the United States, Canada, Switzerland, and other countries around the world.

Led nationally by United States Attorneys' Offices and the Criminal Division's Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section, Project Safe Childhood marshals federal, state and local resources to better locate, apprehend and prosecute individuals who exploit children via the Internet, as well as to identify and rescue victims. For more information about Project Safe Childhood, please visit www.projectsafechildhood.gov.

An Information or Indictment is only a charge and is not evidence of guilt. A defendant is presumed innocent and is entitled to a fair trial at which the government must prove guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.
