AP: US disrupts North Korean hackers that targeted hospitals, Eric Tucker, July 19, 2022, 3:30 PM

The FBI and Justice Department recently disrupted the activities of a hacking group that was sponsored by the North Korean government and that targeted U.S. hospitals with ransomware, ultimately recovering half a million dollars in ransom payments, Deputy Attorney General Lisa Monaco said Tuesday. Monaco revealed new details of the attacks during a speech in which she encouraged organizations hit by ransomware to report the crime to law enforcement, both so that officials can investigate and so that they can help victim companies try to get ransom payments back. In this case, Monaco said, a Kansas hospital that paid a ransom last year after being attacked by ransomware also contacted the FBI, which traced the payment and identified Chinabased money launderers who assisted the North Korean hackers in cashing out the illicit proceeds. USA Today: A.G. Merrick Garland memo suggests no federal indictment of Donald Trump before November election, David Jackson, July 19, 2022, 7:11 PM Don't expect a federal indictment of Donald Trump over the Jan. 6, 2021, insurrection before the November election, legal analysts say a newly revealed Justice Department memo suggests. Attorney General Merrick Garland reminded U.S. Department of Justice officials that extra steps are required before action can be taken in politically sensitive cases during the fall election season and unprecedented charges against a former president would certainly seem to qualify. Bloomberg: DOJ Says Probe of Trump's Jan. 6 Role Will Continue If He Declares 2024 Run, Chris Strohm, July 19, 2022, 10:14 PM

The Justice Department's investigation into efforts by Donald Trump and his allies to overturn the 2020 election results won't be deterred if the former president declares his intention to run again, Deputy Attorney General Lisa Monaco said. "We're going to continue to do our job, to follow the facts wherever they go, no matter where they lead, no matter to what level," Monaco said Tuesday at a cybersecurity conference in New York. "We're going to continue to investigate what was fundamentally an attack on our democracy." [Continue Reading] See also: The Hill, Rolling Stone, Washington Examiner

MSNBC: [VIDEO] Justice Department offers assurances on investigation of Trump and Big Lie cohort, Adam Lidgett, July 20, 2022, 1:00 AM

Deputy Attorney General Lisa Monaco said that the Justice Department's investigation of efforts by Donald Trump and his supporters to overturn Trump's 2020 election loss will not be altered if Trump declares his candidacy for 2024, after Rachel Maddow shared a Justice Department memo outlining policies regarding candidates for office. Joyce Vance, former U.S. attorney, offers her perspective. [Watch]

Washington Times: [OPINION] Biden's DOJ increases power and rewards political allies, Zack Smith, Paul J. Larkin, July 19, 2022, 6:30 PM

Bad news doesn't get better with age, and neither does a bad legal argument. Unfortunately, the Biden Justice Department recently proposed resurrecting a bad and illegal practice that let left-wing operatives control a slush fund to reward their political allies with the public's money. And they want to do it without even making any effort to persuade Congress to authorize the giveaway. [Continue Reading]

The Hill: DOJ pitches Senate on use of anti-mafia laws to seize Russian assets, Tobias Burns, July 19, 2022, 4:48 PM

The Department of Justice (DOJ) asked Congress for permission on Tuesday to use a sweeping set of laws originally designed to break up the mafia as part of their efforts to pursue the assets of the Russian elite following the country's war in Ukraine. The DOJ wants to include violations of sanctions and export controls in its definition of racketeering under the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act, or RICO Act, which allowed federal prosecutors in the 1980s and 1990s to go after organized crime rings on charges of extortion and murder for hire. AP: Biden order aims to punish captors of Americans held abroad, Eric Tucker, July 19, 2022, 8:30 AM

President Joe Biden signed an executive order Tuesday aimed at increasing the flow of information to families of Americans detained abroad and at imposing sanctions on the criminals, terrorists or government officials who hold them captive. It is unclear if the new order will result in bringing home more Americans jailed in foreign countries, but senior Biden administration officials who previewed the action to reporters said they regard it as an important way to raise the cost of hostage-taking and to punish captors. NYT: Intelligence Agencies Say Russia Election Threat Persists Amid Ukraine War, Adam Goldman, July 19, 2022, 5:00 PM

Top national security officials warned on Tuesday about the continuing threat of election interference from abroad, emphasizing that Russia could still seek to meddle or promote disinformation during the 2022 midterm races even as it wages war in Ukraine. "I am quite confident the Russians can walk and chew gum," Christopher A. Wray, the F.B.I. director, said during a cybersecurity conference in Manhattan, where he spoke alongside Gen. Paul M. Nakasone, the head of the National Security Agency and U.S. Cyber Command. [Continue Reading] See also: CNN, WSJ

NYT: ISIS Fighters' Children Are Growing Up in a Desert Camp. What Will They Become?, Charlie Savage, July 19, 2022, 4:30 PM

Viewed from a helicopter, this enormous camp that holds the wives and children of dead or captured Islamic State fighters was a sea of white tents against the desolate landscape of drought-stricken northeastern Syria. From the ground, the human dimension of this tragedy came into focus. As a convoy of armored vehicles made its way up a dusty road, children emerged to stand at the fence amid garbage. Some waved. One boy, in a faded "Star Wars" shirt, stood with hands clasped behind his back. Another, in an oversize polo shirt, held aloft a star folded from paper. ABC: Man arrested after attempting to access closed roadway near first lady's motorcade, Pierre Thomas and Ben Gittleson, July 19, 2022, 6:24 AM

A man was arrested on Monday after allegedly attempting to access a roadway closed off for Jill Biden's motorcade, according to the United States Secret Service. The man was charged with assault on police, failure to obey, crossing a police line and resisting arrest, officials said. "The individual struggled with uniform division officers and was ultimately placed into custody," the Secret Service told ABC News. "Two officers were sent to an area hospital for evaluation following the minor physical confrontation." The first lady's office declined to comment on Tuesday. [Continue Reading]

CNN: Biden administration pushes to close the growing cybersecurity workforce gap, Brian Fung, July 19, 2022, 2:57 PM

The Biden administration is pushing to fill hundreds of thousands of cybersecurity jobs in the United States as part of a bid to close a talent shortage US officials describe as both a national security challenge and an economic opportunity. On Tuesday, the administration announced a multi-agency plan to create hundreds of registered apprenticeship programs with the private sector to flesh out the nation's cybersecurity workforce and defend against a rising tide of data breaches, ransomware attacks and other hacking incidents. Roll Call: Senate support builds to seize, liquidate Russian oligarch assets, Rachel Oswald, July 19, 2022, 6:14 PM

Senators are making headway on a potentially significant piece of bipartisan legislation that would give the Justice Department new authorities to seize and liquidate ill-gotten assets of Russian oligarchs and use the proceeds to benefit the people of Ukraine. At a Senate Judiciary Committee hearing on Tuesday, Democrats and Republicans debated the pros and cons of the legislation from Sens. Sheldon Whitehouse, D-R.I., and Lindsey Graham, R-S.C., which would create a narrow and expiring authority for the Justice Department to open civil forfeiture proceedings against the frozen assets of Russian individuals found to be tied to criminal activities and to redirect the proceeds of forfeitures to humanitarian and economic aid for Ukraine.

Reuters: Trump ex-adviser Bannon felt he was 'above the law,' prosecution tells jury, Sarah N. Lynch, July 19, 2022, 8:30 AM

Federal prosecutors are due to start presenting their case on Tuesday in the trial of Steve Bannon, a prominent former presidential adviser to Donald Trump, on charges of contempt of Congress for defying a subpoena from the committee investigating last year's attack on the U.S. Capitol. Bannon, 68, is facing two misdemeanor counts after he declined last year to provide testimony or documents to the Democratic-led House of Representatives select committee.

Prosecutors and Bannon's defense are set to present opening statements in the trial once jury selection is completed. U.S. District Judge Carl Nichols is presiding. LAT: [OPINION] There is a gap in the evidence we've seen against Trump. We have to rely on the DOJ to fill it, Harry Litman, July 20, 2022, 6:00 AM

The criticism of the Department of Justice continues to grow: Detractors see the department as too far behind the Jan. 6 committee. They want to know why Atty. Gen. Merrick Garland and the Justice Department have yet to come forward with a serious criminal charge against Donald Trump. These gloomy observations miss at least one crucial point: There is a gap in the committee's development of the Jan. 6 evidence for the most serious yet fitting charge against Trump. And it seems likely that only the Justice Department can fill it. [Continue Reading]

MARIJUANA LEGALIZATION

Marijuana Moment: Senate Schedules Marijuana Hearing In Committee Chaired By Cory Booker, With Legalization Bill Set To Drop Any Day, Kyle Jaeger, July 19, 2022, 9:00 PM With a Senate bill to federally legalize marijuana expected to be introduced imminently, a key subcommittee chaired by one of the measure's prime sponsors has scheduled a hearing for next week on cannabis reform and the harms of criminalization. The Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Crime and Terrorism, chaired by Sen. Cory Booker (D-NJ), will meet on July 26 for a meeting titled "Decriminalizing Cannabis at the Federal Level: Necessary Steps to Address Past Harms."

Washington Times: Congress brokering deal to help legal marijuana industry by easing banking rules, Susan Ferrechio, July 19, 2022, 10:00 PM

The Senate agenda has gone to pot. Senate Majority Leader Charles E. Schumer, New York Democrat, promised to introduce a bill to legalize marijuana ahead of the August recess, and he has more time to take up the cause now that a miniature "Build Back Better" bill has been largely scrapped. Democratic senators are drafting legislation that would pair decriminalization of marijuana at the federal level with criminal justice reforms, and they plan to introduce it as early as this week. OPIOID CRISIS

Law360: J&J Wants Opioid Claims From NY Towns, Cities Tossed, Adam Lidgett, July 19, 2022, 7:04 PM

Johnson & Johnson wants an Ohio federal court to toss opioid claims made against the company by a host of New York municipalities, saying a change to an Empire State law bars those allegations. As part of sprawling multidistrict litigation over the opioid crisis in Ohio federal court, J&J and its Janssen Pharmaceuticals unit said in a motion Monday that it shouldn't have to face opioid cases that have been filed by dozens of New York cities, towns, villages and even fire and water districts. Law Street Media: DOJ Announces Resolution to Opioid Kickbacks Case Involving Purdue, Guy DeMarco, July 19, 2022, 3:00 PM

On Monday, the Department of Justice announced via a press release that a California pain specialist paid to resolve allegations he violated the False Claims Act. According to the press release, the allegations against Dr. Gerald M. Sacks, the pain specialist, concern the prescription of specific pain medications to Medicare beneficiaries in exchange for payment from those medication's manufacturer, the now-notorious Purdue Pharma LP and Depomed Inc. Reuters: Biden to announce executive actions on climate, Unattributed, July 20, 2022, 4:41 AM

President Joe Biden will announce a set of executive actions aimed at addressing climate change on Wednesday in a visit to the site of a former coal-fired plant in Massachusetts that is playing a role in supporting the state's offshore wind industry. Democratic lawmakers and environmental groups have been calling for the White House to take aggressive measures on climate change after Democratic Senator Joe Manchin said last week he was not ready to support key climate provisions in Congress, a critical loss in the evenly divided Senate. [Continue Reading]

CONGRESS

AP: House passes same-sex marriage bill in retort to high court, Lisa Mascaro, July 19, 2022, 7:00 PM

The U.S. House overwhelmingly approved legislation Tuesday to protect same-sex and interracial marriages amid concerns that the Supreme Court ruling overturning Roe v. Wade abortion access could jeopardize other rights criticized by many conservatives. In a robust but lopsided debate, Democrats argued intensely and often personally in favor of enshrining marriage equality in federal law, while Republicans steered clear of openly rejecting gay marriage. Instead leading Republicans portrayed the bill as unnecessary amid other issues facing the nation. [Continue Reading] See also: ABC, Bloomberg, CNBC, NBC, NYT, Reuters, USA Today, WaPo, WSJ

Washington Times: Democrats roll out wish list of climate change executive orders for Biden, Ramsey Touchberry, July 19, 2022, 7:18 PM

Democratic lawmakers and their environmentalist allies have a laundry list of executive actions on climate change that they want President Biden to take because Congress can't get the job done. [...] Direct the Department of Justice to get involved in ongoing local and state climate litigation against the fossil fuel industry. [Continue Reading]

WSJ: DOJ's Criminal Chief Places Prevention at Forefront of Agency's White-Collar Crime Efforts, Dylan Tokar, July 12, 2022, 5:30 AM

A key figure in the Justice Department's campaign to crack down on white-collar crime is looking to use a tool he brought to bear both as a prosecutor fighting gang violence in New Orleans and as a lawyer for the city's sole Fortune 500 company. Stopping crime before it happens should be a central goal of the more than 1,150 employees of the department's criminal division, said Assistant Attorney General Kenneth Polite, who took charge of it last year. Washington Examiner: Pressure grows on DOJ to stop Supreme Court justice 'bounties' and harassment, Kaelan Deese, July 11, 2022, 2:52 PM

A group offering bounty payments for sightings of conservative Supreme Court justices is the latest harassment campaign prompting Republican lawmakers to call for immediate action by the Justice Department. Piling on top of recent protests outside the homes of Supreme Court justices, the activist group known as ShutDownDC tweeted July 8 that it would offer to pay bounties of up to $200 for anyone who reports the whereabouts of Justices Amy Coney Barrett, Brett Kavanaugh, Neil Gorsuch, Clarence Thomas, and Chief Justice John Roberts, part of a pressure campaign against the court's members who voted to overturn Roe v. Wade last month. [Washington Examiner] See also: WaPo has urged Biden to press Jordan, a close US ally, to send Ahlam al-Tamimi to the US for trial. [Continue Reading]

Washington Times: Indictment reveals new details of Chinese targeting of dissidents, Bill Gertz, July 11, 2022, 5:00 PM

China's government used American private investigators to harass dissidents in the United States, according to a federal indictment of five people made public last week. The indictment identified five men who are charged with acting as foreign agents of China in a scheme to monitor and harass three dissidents who were not identified by name. Breon Peace, U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of New York, said the case involves "a multifaceted campaign to silence, harass, discredit and spy on U.S. residents for exercising their freedom of speech. While the Internet offers a convenient means of communication, it also exposes every individual and business organization to an alarming variety of potential criminal activity. The confidential data and financial security of every substantial business, private organization, and government entity is under a persistent and relentless attack by cyber criminals searching for vulnerabilities in their most essential business systems. These criminals use sophisticated tools to find technical flaws in an organization's computer system. They also test every employee with access to a computer with ingenious deceptions seeking passwords or other entry points to business computer systems. [Continue Reading]

AP: Jan. 6 panel probes Trump's 'siren call' to extremists, Lisa Mascaro, July 11, 2022,

The Jan. 6 committee is preparing to highlight the way violent far-right extremists answered Donald Trump's "siren call" to come to Washington for a big rally, as some now facing rare sedition charges over the deadly U.S. Capitol attack to overturn the presidential election. The panel investigating the Jan. 6, 2021, Capitol siege is set to convene Tuesday for a public hearing probing what it calls the final phase of Trump's multi-pronged effort to halt Joe Biden's victory. As dozens of lawsuits and false claims of voter fraud fizzled, Trump tweeted the rally invitation, a pivotal moment, the committee said. The far-right Proud Boys, Oath Keepers and others now facing criminal charges readily answered. [Continue Reading] See also: ABC, CNN, CNN-2, Insider, NBC, NPR, USA Today, WVIT-NBC (New Britain, CT)

AP: Judge won't delay trial for Trump ex-adviser Steve Bannon, Nomaan Merchant, July 11, 2022, 2:00 PM

A federal judge on Monday declined to delay the upcoming trial of Steve Bannon, a one-time adviser to former President Donald Trump who faces contempt of Congress charges after refusing for months to cooperate with the House committee investigating the Jan. 6 Capitol insurrection. Bannon is still scheduled to go on trial next week despite telling the House committee late Saturday that he is now prepared to testify. It's unclear whether Bannon will again decline to appear before the committee with the trial pending. WaPo: Jan. 6 hearing expected to focus on link between militants, White House, Jacqueline Alemany and Hannah Allam, July 11, 2022, 7:44 PM

The House select committee investigating the Jan. 6, 2021, insurrection plans to hold its seventh public hearing on Tuesday, with an expected focus on the ways in which former president Donald Trump and his allies summoned far-right militant groups to Washington as he grew increasingly desperate to hold on to power. The hearing is likely to drill down on the period after states cast their electoral college votes on Dec. 14, 2020, action that confirmed Joe Biden's victory. Trump, the committee is expected to argue, then shifted his focus to using the date of the congressional counting of the votes, Jan. 6, 2021, to block a peaceful transfer of power. NYT: Raskin Brings Expertise on Right-Wing Extremism to Jan. 6 Inquiry, Luke Broadwater, July 11, 2022, 6:00 PM

When Representative Jamie Raskin enters a Capitol Hill hearing room on Tuesday to lay out what the House committee investigating the Jan. 6 attack has uncovered about the role of domestic extremists in the riot, it will be his latest and potentially most important step in a five-year effort to crush a dangerous movement. Long before the Jan. 6, 2021, assault, Mr. Raskin, Democrat of Maryland, had thrown himself into stamping out the rise of white nationalism and domestic extremism in America. [Continue Reading]

NYT: Hutchinson Testimony Jolts Justice Dept. to Discuss Trump's Conduct More Openly, Katie Benner and Glenn Thrush, July 11, 2022, 3:26 PM

For the past year and a half, the Justice Department has approached former President Donald J. Trump's effort to overturn the 2020 election results with a follow-the-evidence strategy that to critics appeared to border on paralysis and that limited discussions of his role, even inside the department. Then came Cassidy Hutchinson. The electrifying public testimony delivered last month to the House Jan. 6 panel by Ms. Hutchinson, a former White House aide who was witness to many key moments, jolted top Justice Department officials into discussing the topic of Mr. Trump more directly, at times in the presence of Attorney General Merrick B. Garland and Deputy Attorney General Lisa O. Monaco. In conversations at the department the day after Ms. [Continue Reading] See also: Fox

LAT: Connecting Trumpworld to extremist groups could be Jan. 6 committee's biggest moment, Sarah D. Wire, July 11, 2022, 2:16 PM

The committee investigating the Capitol insurrection will focus for the first time this week on the relationship between people in former President Trump's orbit and the extremist groups that planned and orchestrated the violence on Jan. 6, 2021. The hearing could be one of the most consequential held by the panel, potentially answering the long unresolved question of whether Trump knew that far right extremist groups such as the Proud Boys and Oath Keepers would storm the Capitol, and whether the president was in contact through intermediaries with the groups' leaders, who have since been indicted for seditious conspiracy. MSNBC: Bannon's offered Jan. 6 testimony is designed to provide chaos, not clarity, Hayes Brown, July 11, 2022, 6:09 PM

I think it's safe to say that Steve Bannon thinks of himself as a very clever person. The former White House adviser and Breitbart executive chairman has been throwing bombs and dodging consequences fairly successfully for years now. So how, then, to respond to Bannon's offer over the weekend to finally testify before the House Jan. 6 committee after refusing to cooperate? AP: Another US appeals court upholds right to record police, Colleen Slevin, July 11, 2022, 5:00 PM

People have a right protected by the First Amendment to film police while they work, a Western U.S. appeals court ruled Monday in a decision that concurs with decisions made by six of the nation's other 12 appeals court. The 10th Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver ruling came in the case of a YouTube journalist and blogger who claimed that a suburban Denver officer blocked him from recording a 2019 traffic stop. Citing decisions from the other courts over about two decades as well as First Amendment principles, the 10th Circuit said the right to record police was clearly established at the time and reinstated the lawsuit of the blogger, Abade Irizarry.

Law360: 56 Tribes, Fishers Wade Into Alaska Fishing Dispute, Clark Mindock, July 11, 2022, 5:58 PM

Subsistence fishers and an alliance of 56 tribes say a state order that would have opened a stretch of Alaskan river to gill net fishing would directly harm them and other rural residents. In an intervenor complaint filed with an Alaska federal court Friday, the Association of Village Council Presidents and several subsistence fishers backed the U. S. government in its suit filed earlier this year against the state over its order related to the Kuskokwim River. [Continue Reading]

AP: Biden admin: Docs must offer abortion if mom's life at risk, Zeke Miller, July 11, 2022, 9:00 PM

The Biden administration on Monday told hospitals that they "must" provide abortion services if the life of the mother is at risk, saying federal law on emergency treatment guidelines preempts state laws in jurisdictions that w ban the procedure without any exceptions following the Supreme Court's decision to end a constitutional right to abortion. The Department of Health and Human Services cited requirements on medical facilities in the Emergency Medical Treatment and Labor Act, or EMTALA. The law requires medical facilities to determine whether a person seeking treatment may be in labor or whether they face an emergency health situation or one that could develop into an emergency and to provide treatment. More proof there's no scientific way to predict a defendant's future dangerousness. The Texas justice system trusted psychiatrist Edward Gripon 16 years ago when he predicted that convicted murderer Ramiro Gonzales would pose a threat to others if he did not get the death penalty. Will the Texas justice system trust Gripon now that he says that Gonzales should not be executed this week because he has so transformed himself behind bars? The case highlights Texas's particularly harsh capital sentencing standard that requires an estimate of future dangerousness to dictate a defendant's fate. NYT: [OPINION] Merrick Garland Should Investigate Trump's 2020 Election Schemes as a 'Hub and Spoke' Conspiracy, April Fisher, Emilia Cardona, July 11, 2022, 5:00 AM The tenacious work of the Jan. 6 committee has transformed how we think about the Jan. 6 rebellion. It should also transform the Justice Department's investigation into efforts to overturn the 2020 election. Before the hearings, federal agents and prosecutors were performing a classic "bottom up" criminal investigation of the Jan. 6 rioters, which means prosecuting the lowest-ranking members of a conspiracy, flipping people as it proceeds and following the evidence as high as it goes. Reuters: Oath Keeper brought explosives to D.C. ahead of Jan. 6 attack, prosecutor says, David Morgan, July 11, 2022, 5:47 AM

A member of the Oath Keepers extremist group brought explosives to the Washington, D.C., area ahead of the Jan. 6, 2021, attack on the U.S. Capitol by supporters of former President Donald Trump, according to the U.S. Justice Department. In a court filing, federal prosecutors alleged that Jeremy Brown, an Oath Keepers member from Florida, drove explosives to a Virginia hotel in his recreational vehicle on Jan. 6. A second member of the group, Thomas Caldwell, was later found in possession of a "death list" that included the name of a Georgia election official, according to the document. [Continue Reading]

A West Virginia man has been arrested on charges that he participated in violence during the breach of the U.S. Capitol in January 2021. John Thomas Gordon, 47, of Bayard, is accused of repeatedly throwing a hard object at a Capitol door as police officers tried to secure the building on the other side of the glass window, according to court documents. Gordon allegedly also kicked the door in order to gain entry and yelled obscenities at officers. [Continue Reading]

NYT: Defense Firm Said U.S. Spies Backed Its Bid for Pegasus Spyware Maker, Mark Mazzetti and Ronen Bergman, July 10, 2022, 9:00 PM

A team of executives from an American military contractor quietly visited Israel numerous times in recent months to try to carry out a bold but risky plan: purchasing NSO Group, the cyber hacking firm that is as notorious as it is technologically accomplished. The impediments were substantial for the team from the American company, L3Harris, which also had experience with spyware technology. They started with the uncomfortable fact that the United States government had put NSO on a blacklist just months earlier because the Israeli firm's spyware, called Pegasus, had been used by other governments to penetrate the phones of political leaders, human rights activists and journalists. NYT: [OPINION] Children Should Not Have to Suffer the State's Injustice, Margaret Renkl, July 11, 2022, 8:28 AM

Last year, two families in Wilson County, Tenn., signed on as plaintiffs in a federal civil rights lawsuit challenging Tennessee legislation that prohibits transgender students from using bathrooms that align with their gender identities. But as WPLN News reported last week, both families have since left the state, believing their children would not be safe here long enough to see the lawsuit through. Now that the plaintiffs have moved away, a district judge has dismissed the suit. In many ways, this development tells us more about the state of human rights in the red states than either the lawsuit or the law it challenges. [Continue Reading]

Fox: Arizona Gov. Doug Ducey signs law banning video recording within 8 feet of 'police activity', Anders Hagstrom, July 10, 2022, 1:41 PM

Republican Arizona Gov. Doug Ducey signed legislation banning residents from recording video within eight feet of "police activity" on Sunday. The law classifies knowingly filming within eight feet of officers as a class 3 misdemeanor, which is punishable by up to 30 days in jail, $500 in fines and up to a year in probation, according to Arizona law. The law says officers must warn anyone filming at least once before they can be charged with a crime. [...] "One of the highest priorities of the Civil Rights Division is to ensure that every person in this country benefits from policing that is lawful, effective, transparent, and free from discrimination," Assistant Attorney General Kristen Clarke said at the time. "Police officers across the country must use their authority in a manner that adheres to the Constitution, complies with federal civil rights laws, and respects human dignity." [Continue Reading]

Florida Politics: Judge allows challenge to Stop WOKE Act to move forward, Jacob Ogles, July 10, 2022, 11:00 PM

A federal judge will allow a case challenging Florida's "Stop WOKE Act." to proceed. While U.S. District Judge Mark Walker last month declined to stop the enforcement of the law, he denied a motion to dismiss the case entirely. A group of teachers has sued the state law (HB 7), which went into effect at the beginning of July, as an infringement of their First Amendment rights in the classroom. Walker's order makes clear the First Amendment does protect classroom discussion to a degree. [Continue Reading]

NYT, The Daily: On Abortion Laws, It All Goes Back to 2010, July 11, 2022, 6:00 AM When the Supreme Court overturned Roe v. Wade, the court's conservative majority argued it was simply handing the question of abortion to the states and their voters to decide for themselves. But in reality, the court was ensuring that many states, from Arizona to Ohio, would immediately ban the procedure without much debate, because their legislatures are now dominated by hard-line Republicans. Today, we tell the story of how those Republican legislators achieved that dominance. [Listen]

WSJ: Doctors Struggle With State Abortion Restrictions at Odds With Federal Law, Melanie Evans, July 10, 2022, 10:22 PM

Doctors and hospitals are rushing to reconcile laws in their states barring abortion with a federal law that may require the procedure as part of emergency treatment. Since the Supreme Court overturned Roe v. Wade, laws have taken effect, or soon will, in several states that prohibit abortions except when necessary to save a pregnant women's life. Yet under federal law, doctors and hospitals may need to perform the procedure in other medical emergencies, such as for women at risk of kidney failure from an infection. [Continue Reading]

Burlington Free Press (Vermont): 10 of Vermont's immigrant farmworkers petition ICE to stop their deportations, April Fisher and Emilia Cardona, July 11, 2022, 5:25 AM

Ten of Vermont's immigrant farmworkers filed a joint petition on June 20 for Immigration and Customs Enforcement to stop their deportations. The 10 farmworkers are all men from Mexico who have lived in Vermont for years. Some arrived to U.S. on the H-2A visa for temporary agricultural workers, but those visas have since expired, and the workers are now unable to obtain legal permission to live in the country. The 10 workers are also active members of Migrant Justice, a Burlington-based nonprofit that works for the human rights of Vermont's immigrant communities.

WSJ: [EDITORIAL] Pete Buttigieg's Climate Toll Road, Editorial Board, July 10, 2022, 5:53 PM

To adapt what Stalin said of the Pope, how many divisions does the Supreme Court have? That seems to be the implicit slogan of Transportation Secretary Pete Buttigieg, who on Thursday ignored the High Court's recent ruling with a proposed rule requiring states to reduce CO2 emissions on highways—that is, banish gas-powered vehicles. In West Virginia v. EPA, the Court ruled that regulatory agencies can't impose costly new regulations without a clear direction from Congress. The feds had interpreted an obscure corner of the Clean Air Act to impose costly climate rules on power plants. [Continue Reading]

The Hill: Is federal government dooming efforts to address climate change?, Morgan Chalfant and Zack Budryk, July 10, 2022, 5:00 PM

A 6-3 ruling by the Supreme Court restricting the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) authority to limit power plant emissions is the latest blow to U.S. efforts to fight climate change, contributing to a renewed sense of pessimism that the U.S. political system will address the issue at the federal level. While the decision backed by the new conservative majority on the court does not negate efforts by state governments to take action for the planet, it puts a new limitation on the EPA. WaPo: Domestic terror cases increasingly cross borders, FBI director says, Devlin Barrett, July 8, 2022, 3:20 PM

Many domestic terrorism cases now have an international component, as would-be killers are "egging each other on" and drawing inspiration from racist or neo-Nazi attacks overseas, the head of the FBI and his British counterpart said Friday. FBI Director Christopher A. Wray, speaking to reporters alongside Ken McCallum, director general of the British domestic security agency MI5, said their agencies have spent decades developing tip-sharing systems to handle international terrorism cases, but that "muscle memory" is now being applied to domestic terrorism investigations. NYT: Florida Man Sentenced to 20 Years for Uploading Bomb-Making Video, Vimal Matel, July 9, 2022, 9:25 AM

A Florida man who had pledged support to ISIS was sentenced on Thursday to 20 years in prison for uploading a video he believed would help the terrorist group make bombs, the federal authorities said on Thursday. The man, Romeo Xavier Langhorne, 32, of St. Augustine, Fla., pleaded guilty in March 2021 to one count of providing material support to ISIS, according to a statement from the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Middle District of Florida. The sentence, handed down in U.S. District Court in Jacksonville, also included an additional 15 years of supervised release, the statement said. [Continue Reading]

Reuters: Oath Keeper brought explosives to D.C. ahead of Jan. 6 attack, prosecutor

says, David Morgan, July 9, 2022, 11:57 AM

A member of the Oath Keepers extremist group brought explosives to the Washington, D.C., area ahead of the Jan. 6, 2021, attack on the U.S. Capitol by supporters of former President Donald Trump, according to the U.S. Justice Department. In a court filing, federal prosecutors alleged that Jeremy Brown, an Oath Keepers member from Florida, drove explosives to a Virginia hotel in his recreational vehicle on Jan. 6. A second member of the group, Thomas Caldwell, was later found in possession of a "death list" that included the name of a Georgia election official, according to the document. Bloomberg: Oath Keepers Founder Offers Jan. 6 Testimony If Hearing Public, Billy House, July 8, 2022, 4:02 PM

The founder of the Oath Keepers militia group, Elmer Stewart Rhodes, is willing to testify to the House Committee investigating the Jan. 6 assault on the US Capitol, his attorney said, but only if it is during a public session. "He's willing to waive his Fifth Amendment rights, he wants to testify in public, and he wants to testify live," James Lee Bright said in a telephone interview. "I don't think they'll go along with that." [Continue Reading]

WABE-NPR (Atlanta, GA): DOJ: Oath Keeper's 'death list' targeted Georgia elections official, Patrick Saunders, July 9, 2022, 2:26 PM

Federal prosecutors on Friday released new details about several Oath Keepers charged with seditious conspiracy in the Jan. 6 attack on the U.S. Capitol, saying one co-defendant kept a "death list" that included the name of a Georgia elections official and their family member. The Justice Department cited the list in a previous filing in Feb. 2021, but did not reveal that it included a Georgia official until Friday. [Continue Reading]

Bloomberg: Jan. 6 Committee Is Considering a Prime-Time Hearing for Next Week, Billy House, July 8, 2022, 9:58 AM

The House committee investigating the insurrection at the US Capitol is considering a second televised hearing next week, this one in prime time on Thursday, people familiar with the planning said. Those people did not provide a specific topic, or say whether the tentative hearing, which would be the committee's eighth since June, would be its last one until a late August or September presentation of a report on its findings. WaPo: Evidence of firearms in Jan. 6 crowd grows as arrests and trials mount, Tom Jackman, Rachel Weiner and Spencer S. Hsu, July 8, 2022, 9:40 AM

Some of the startling revelations of the recent blockbuster Jan. 6 House committee hearing came in snippets of police radio traffic captured during President Donald Trump's rally on the Ellipse and from Trump's purported response to being told there were armed protesters just outside a secured area. The chatter included reports of a man with an AR-15 in a tree on Constitution Avenue who was accompanied by two men with pistols on their hips. [Continue Reading]

LAT: [OPINION] Prosecute Trump? Merrick Garland is investigating aggressively but prosecuting cautiously, Doyle McManus, July 10, 2022, 7:00 AM

The House committee on the Jan. 6, 2021, insurgency, whose hearings resume this week, has produced impressive evidence that could allow prosecutors to argue that former President Trump committed crimes as he tried to overturn the 2020 election. Thanks to the hearings, we now know more clearly that Trump tried to bully Vice President Mike Pence into blocking Congress' count of electoral votes, tried to bully Justice Department officials into declaring the election fraudulent even though they knew it wasn't and stood by with seeming approval while his armed supporters sacked the Capitol. NYT: [OPINION] Why Does Is It Take Federal Intervention to Fix the N.Y.P.D.?, Mara Gay, July 9, 2022, 11:00 AM

The saga of the Special Victims Division is the latest illustration of the extraordinary measures required to meaningfully reform the nation's largest police department. When the N.Y.P.D. conducted sweeping surveillance of Muslim communities in the years after the Sept. 11 attacks, class-action litigation was needed to put an end to the practice. When the department violated the civil rights of millions of innocent Black and Latino men by targeting them for unconstitutional police searches, years of lawsuits were needed to curb the tactic. WaPo: [ANALYSIS] The new threat to good schooling for minority Americans, Rann Miller, July 10, 2022, 6:00 AM

The school shooting in Uvalde, Tex., generated international attention to the vulnerability of children, particularly children of color, in a state with few gun regulations. But gun violence is not the only threat students of color are facing in the classroom. Shortly after the May leak of the Supreme Court's majority opinion in Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, the case that overturned Roe v. Wade, Gov. Greg Abbott (R-Tex.) wondered whether Plyler v. Doe — the landmark decision that requires states to offer public education free of charge to all children, including children of undocumented migrants — could be next. [Continue Reading]

USA Today: Prison guards forced a Black inmate to chop off his dreadlocks. Now he's suing, Tami Abdollah, July 10, 2022, 5:46 AM

The House committee on the Jan. 6, 2021, insurgency, whose hearings resume this week, has produced impressive evidence that could allow prosecutors to argue that former President Trump committed crimes as he tried to overturn the 2020 election. Thanks to the hearings, we now know more clearly that Trump tried to bully Vice President Mike Pence into blocking Congress' count of electoral votes, tried to bully Justice Department officials into declaring the election fraudulent even though they knew it wasn't and stood by with seeming approval while his armed supporters sacked the Capitol. Epoch Times: Hawaii Veteran Pleads With 9th Circuit to Comply With Supreme Court's Second Amendment Ruling, Matthew Vadum, July 10, 2022, 7:00 AM

A 72-year-old Vietnam War veteran is asking an appeals court to speed up processing of a gun permit he first sought 11 years ago now that the Supreme Court has ruled Hawaii's gun-permitting system is unconstitutional. The Supreme Court determined June 23 that there is a constitutional right to carry firearms in public for self-defense. On June 30 it found Hawaii's burdensome permitting process violates the Second Amendment and ordered the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals to review the man's case, but it has not wrapped up the case and it is unclear when it will do so. Daily Caller: 'Empty Promises': Border Patrol Agents Lose Faith In Biden Admin After Debunked Whipping Allegations, Brianna Lyman, July 9, 2022, 10:49 PM

The Daily Caller News Foundation's (DCNF) Jennie Taer said border patrol agents do not believe the Biden administration has their backs after the DCNF reported that the agents accused of whipping migrants will still be punished even after the allegations were proven false. Speaking Friday on NewsNation, Taer was asked how border patrol agents are feeling in light of the disciplinary measures and whether agents feel the Biden Administration has their back. [Continue Reading]

Florida PhoenixNews (Tallahassee, FL): Courts take the lead role as U.S. immigration policy remains in limbo, Ariana Figueroa, July 10, 2022, 7:00 AM

Eighteen months into the Biden administration, immigration reform has stalled despite campaign promises to reform the system, with the most recent movement on immigration policy doled out by the U.S. Supreme Court and in lower federal courts. The Supreme Court ruled in favor of the Biden administration in a 5-4 decision on June 30 that the U.S. Department of Homeland Security did not violate federal immigration law when it moved to end the Trump administration's "Remain in Mexico" policy, known as the Migrant Protection Protocols. Arkansas Democrat-Gazette: Michigan seeks details on pipeline plan, Rann Miller, July 10, 2022, 1:00 AM

A Michigan regulatory panel said Thursday that it needs more information about safety risks before it can rule on Enbridge Energy's plan to extend an oil pipeline through a tunnel beneath a waterway linking two of the Great Lakes. [...] Enbridge is defying Michigan Gov. Gretchen Whitmer's 2020 order to shut down the line, a move long sought by environmental groups and Native American tribes who fear a rupture would devastate the lakes. The company says the line is in good condition and contends in a federal lawsuit that the Democratic governor doesn't have the jurisdiction to shut it down. [Continue Reading]

WaPo: Saudi trip captures competing demands of rights agenda, 'great power' contest Image without a caption, Missy Ryan, July 10, 2022, 7:00 AM

The Biden administration faces an intensifying reckoning over its record on human rights as the emergence of a bellicose Russia and an increasingly powerful China places new, often discordant demands on President Biden's promise to place American ideals at the center of U.S. dealings with the world. Biden's talks with Middle Eastern leaders this week will offer a vivid demonstration of the competing considerations between that pledge and what officials describe as an existential 'great power' contest — most starkly in the president's encounter with Saudi Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman, whom the U.S. government blamed for the brutal 2018 killing of journalist and U.S. resident Jamal Khashoggi. NYT: The Fight Over Truth Also Has a Red State-Blue State Divide, Steven Lee Myers and Cecilia Kang, July 10, 2022, 5:00 AM

To fight disinformation, California lawmakers are advancing a bill that would force social media companies to divulge their process for removing false, hateful or extremist material from their platforms. Texas lawmakers, by contrast, want to ban the largest of the companies — Facebook, Twitter and YouTube — from removing posts because of political points of view. [Continue Reading]

The Hill: Durbin says its 'not realistic' to consider impeaching Clarence Thomas, Brad Dress, July 10, 2022, 10:51 AM

Sen. Dick Durbin (D-III.), the chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said on Sunday said it would be "a mistake" to impeach Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas, who has drawn national scorn for suggesting the court reconsider case precedents that affirmed the constitutional right to same-sex marriage, contraception and the right to privacy in the bedroom. "I don't think it's realistic," Durbin told "Fox News Sunday" anchor Mike Emanuel. [Continue Reading]

LAT: [OPINION] Prosecute Trump? Merrick Garland is investigating aggressively but prosecuting cautiously, Doyle McManus, July 10, 2022, 7:00 AM

The House committee on the Jan. 6, 2021, insurgency, whose hearings resume this week, has produced impressive evidence that could allow prosecutors to argue that former President Trump committed crimes as he tried to overturn the 2020 election. Thanks to the hearings, we now know more clearly that Trump tried to bully Vice President Mike Pence into blocking Congress' count of electoral votes, tried to bully Justice Department officials into declaring the election fraudulent even though they knew it wasn't and stood by with seeming approval while his armed supporters sacked the Capitol. NYT: Jan. 6 Panel Questions Cipollone on Pardons and Trump's Election Claims, Luke Broadwater and Maggie Haberman, July 9, 2022, 3:46 PM

Pat A. Cipollone, who served as White House counsel for President Donald J. Trump, was asked detailed questions on Friday about pardons, false election fraud claims and the former president's pressure campaign against Vice President Mike Pence, according to three people familiar with his testimony before the House committee investigating the Jan. 6 attack on the Capitol. The panel did not press him to either corroborate or contradict some specific details of explosive testimony by Cassidy Hutchinson, a former White House aide who captivated the country late last month with her account of an out-of-control president willing to embrace violence and stop at nothing to stay in power, the people said. [Continue Reading]

CBS: Raskin says Cipollone gave "valuable" testimony to Jan. 6 committee, Melissa Quinn, July 10, 2022, 1:15 PM

Rep. Jamie Raskin, a member of the House select committee probing the Jan. 6 assault on the U.S. Capitol, said Sunday that former White House counsel Pat Cipollone provided the panel with "valuable" testimony during a closed-door interview last week. "We're going to get to use a lot of Mr. Cipollone's testimony to corroborate other things we've learned along the way," Raskin told "Face the Nation" of the panel's upcoming hearings. WaPo: [ANALYSIS] The new threat to good schooling for minority Americans, Rann Miller, July 10, 2022, 6:00 AM particularly children of color, in a state with few gun regulations. But gun violence is not the only threat students of color are facing in the classroom. Shortly after the May leak of the Supreme Court's majority opinion in Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, the case that overturned Roe v. Wade, Gov. Greg Abbott (R-Tex.) wondered whether Plyler v. Doe the landmark decision that requires states to offer public education free of charge to all children, including children of undocumented migrants could be next. [Continue Reading]

Vallejo Times-Herald (Vallejo, CA): Two men charged for alleged federal bribery, conspiracy with Vallejo official, Thomas Gase, July 9, 2022, 6:18 PM (EDT)

The City of Vallejo announced that it assisted the Federal Bureau of Investigation in an investigation that led to two men being charged with federal bribery and conspiracy after allegedly paying a city building inspector to look the other way concerning the growth of illegal marijuana. According to a Friday news release, in early to mid-2020, the city contacted the FBI to report an attempted bribe of city officials. As a result, the city and city employees assisted the FBI in an investigation into an illegal marijuana grow operation within the Vallejo city limits. [Continue Reading]

NYT: [OPINION] What a Reckoning at the Supreme Court Could Look Like, Ezra Klein, July 10, 2022, 6:00 AM

Late in the lead-up to the 2020 presidential election, as Mitch McConnell rushed to replace Ruth Bader Ginsburg with Amy Coney Barrett, the left began pushing Joe Biden to endorse adding seats to the Supreme Court. Biden, in response, did what politicians do when faced with an issue they don't want to think about: He promised to create a commission to study the issue. [Continue Reading]

The Supreme Court has just concluded what will most likely be remembered as one of the most consequential terms in modern history. The Supreme Court's 6-3 conservative majority delivered major victories for the right's agenda on abortion, guns, and environmental regulations that were in many ways at odds with the American public's own views. WaPo: Saudi trip captures competing demands of rights agenda, 'great power' contest Image without a caption, Missy Ryan, July 10, 2022, 7:00 AM

The Biden administration faces an intensifying reckoning over its record on human rights as the emergence of a bellicose Russia and an increasingly powerful China places new, often discordant demands on President Biden's promise to place American ideals at the center of U.S. dealings with the world. Biden's talks with Middle Eastern leaders this week will offer a vivid demonstration of the competing considerations between that pledge and what officials describe as an existential 'great power' contest most starkly in the president's encounter with Saudi Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman, whom the U.S. government blamed for the brutal 2018 killing of journalist and U.S. resident Jamal Khashoggi.  $\textbf{Good Friday afternoon.}\ \textit{Today's PM}-\textit{edited by Justin Green}-\textit{is 582 words, a 2-minute read}.$

1 big thing: New homebuyer math

Data: Fredd e Mac; Chart: S mran Parwan / Ax os

Get ready for a crazy ride: The era of ludicrously cheap and uncomplicated mortgages is over, my Axios business colleagues tell me.

Why it matters: Strategy is now back in the picture, with real differences in rates and costs based on your decisions.

- There are fixed rates and adjustables. 30 years, 20s and 10s. The 5/1, 7/1 and 10/1. Conventionals or jumbos?
- Axios' Emily Peck notes that rates on a 5/1 ARM (adjustable, meaning a fixed rate now that resets to market rates after five years) are more than a point lower than a 30-year fixed rate right now.

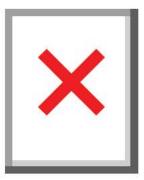

Some people are paying big for predictability, Bloomberg reports.

- The typical mortgage "rate lock" where your rate today is the same as when you close is being stretched out from 45 to 60 days to as long as 180.
- That's great if you're scared of rates going from 5% through the roof. But most locks won't let you unlock into a lower rate.
- These extended locks can cost up to 1% of the total loan value.

The bottom line: All that money that would have been spent on a rate lock could instead be put toward refinancing expenses instead, if/when rates come back down, Axios' Felix Salmon tells me.

Moments before he was shot from behind, former Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe was doing what he'd done for decades getting close to the crowd as he stumped for a local candidate, Reuters reports.

Abe, 67, spoke at an intersection outside a train station in the western city of Nara.

The setting: Members of Japan's version of the Secret Service, the elite Security Police, stood at Abe's right and just behind him in dark suits as he lauded a candidate for Sunday's upper house election.

- "During the pandemic, he heard everyone's concerns," Abe said, as the younger politician bowed and waved. "He was the type of person who didn't look for reasons not to do something."
- Those were Abe's last public words.

Border Patrol agents on horseback behaved inappropriately in Texas case but did not strike migrants, internal inquiry finds

The confrontation along the Rio Grande sparked angry denunciations from President Biden and many Democrats after images showed U.S. agents swinging reins and pushing Haitian migrants back into the river. An internal investigation blamed leadership failures and a lack of clear guidelines about the use of reins by agents on horseback. The findings have been sent to a review board that will consider punishment for four agents who were reassigned after the incident last September in Del Rio.

Reuters: U.S. charges two Homeland Security workers in Chinese spying scheme, Unattributed, July 7, 2022, 5:39 PM

U.S. prosecutors charged two men tied to the U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS) as part of what federal law enforcement officials have called a "transnational repression scheme" on behalf of the Chinese government to spy on and harass dissidents living in the United States. Asked for comment, aspokesman for China's embassy in Washington said it was "not aware of the specific situation" but that Beijing "firmly opposes acts by the U.S. that groundlessly malign and smear China." CNN: Justice Department closes in on documents subpoenaed from GOP operatives connected to Trump fake electors plan, Katelyn Polantz, Sara Murray and Holmes Lybrand, July 7, 2022, 2:51 PM

Republican operatives connected to the plan to put forward "alternate" electors for Donald Trump are set to turn over information to the Justice Department as soon as this week -- as criminal investigations examining efforts to overturn the 2020 election pick up pace. The DOJ issued numerous subpoenas in the past few weeks and is seeking information in all seven battleground states where Trump's campaign convened the false electors as part of the effort to subvert the Electoral College. Some of the subpoenas called for Republicans connected to the scheme to provide documents by Friday, sources familiar with the investigation told CNN. [Continue Reading]

USA Today: Facing DOJ lawsuit, Arizona could be model for states to require proof of citizenship to vote, Rick Rouan, July 8, 2022, 5:01 AM

Lawmakers in as many as one in five states have considered legislation to require voters show proof of citizenship – a requirement that drew a federal lawsuit this week and that voting access advocates worry could disenfranchise millions of voters. A new Arizona law that Gov. Doug Ducey hailed as a victory for "election integrity" – and that could be a model for similar restrictions across the country – now is being challenged as a "textbook violation" of federal law. The Justice Department on Tuesday sued the state to stop the law requiring voters to provide documented proof of citizenship from going into effect in January 2023, saying it could disenfranchise thousands of voters. MARIJUANA LEGALIZATION

Washington Times: Democratic senators urge Biden to move faster on marijuana policy, Tom Howell Jr., July 7, 2022, 5:59 PM

Six liberal senators are prodding President Biden to pardon prior cannabis offenders and compel the Department of Justice to reclassify the drug, a sign that members of the president's own party are disappointed by a lack of progress on the issue. "The administration's failure to coordinate a timely review of its cannabis policy is harming thousands of Americans, slowing research, and depriving Americans of their ability to use marijuana for medical or other purposes," wrote Sens. Elizabeth Warren of Massachusetts, Cory Booker of New Jersey, Kirsten Gillibrand of New York, Ed Markey of Massachusetts Ron Wyden of Oregon and Bernard Sanders, Vermont independent. OPIOID CRISIS

WaPo: American Cartel: Inside the battle to bring down the opioid industry, Scott Higham and Sadi Horwitz, July 7, 2022, 7:00 AM

Late on his last day as a DEA agent, Joe Rannazzisi grabbed a mailroom cart to wheel a few boxes of personal belongings to his Ford Excursion. He had turned in his badge earlier that day — one without a formal goodbye lunch that was now an evening without farewell drinks. Almost everyone had already cleared out of the Drug Enforcement Administration's sleek office complex in Arlington, and the silent corridor was a numbing coda to a career that for all its accolades seemed to have ended in defeat. It was an unusual feeling for the muscled.

CNN: Justice Department closes in on documents subpoenaed from GOP operatives connected to Trump fake electors plan, Katelyn Polantz, Sara Murray and Holmes Lybrand, July 7, 2022, 2:51 PM

Republican operatives connected to the plan to put forward "alternate" electors for Donald Trump are set to turn over information to the Justice Department as soon as this week -- as criminal investigations examining efforts to overturn the 2020 election pick up pace. The DOJ issued numerous subpoenas in the past few weeks and is seeking information in all seven battleground states where Trump's campaign convened the false electors as part of the effort to subvert the Electoral College. Some of the subpoenas called for Republicans connected to the scheme to provide documents by Friday, sources familiar with the investigation told CNN. [Continue Reading]

USA Today: Facing DOJ lawsuit, Arizona could be model for states to require proof of citizenship to vote, Rick Rouan, July 8, 2022, 5:01 AM

Lawmakers in as many as one in five states have considered legislation to require voters show proof of citizenship a requirement that drew a federal lawsuit this week and that voting access advocates worry could disenfranchise millions of voters. A new Arizona law that Gov. Doug Ducey hailed as a victory for "election integrity" and that could be a model for similar restrictions across the country now is being challenged as a "textbook violation" of federal law. The Justice Department on Tuesday sued the state to stop the law requiring voters to provide documented proof of citizenship from going into effect in January 2023, saying it could disenfranchise thousands of voters. 01570-000356

On the heels of groundbreaking decisions on Roe v. Wade and gun rights, the US Supreme Court appears poised to take up another case with the potential to profoundly reshape American life — this time at the ballot box. The case in the upcoming Court session could make it easier for political incumbents to entrench themselves in office and could even put the 2024 election in peril. After already making it harder for voting rights advocates to secure protection for the right to vote through restrictive rulings that defer to state legislatures, the Court now seems poised to cut off protection from state courts as well. JUDICIAL NOMINEES & APPOINTMENTS

Reuters: Biden's planned anti-abortion judicial nominee 'strong' conservative, ex-boss wrote, Nate Raymond, July 7, 2022, 5:40 PM

A Republican lawyer considered by President Joe Biden for a Kentucky federal judgeship despite his opposition to abortion would be a "strong and dependable conservative" voice on the bench for decades, his ex-boss said in a letter released Thursday. That assessment came in a 2018 letter from former Republican Kentucky Governor Matt Bevin's general counsel recommending that now-Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell support Chad Meredith becoming a federal district court judge.. Louisiana Illuminator: Federal judge vacancies present ticking clock for Democrats, Weslley Muller, July 7, 2022, 9:26 PM

Louisiana has three judicial vacancies on its federal courts two of which are considered "judicial emergencies" yet the Biden administration has not submitted any nominees to fill the seats. The situation is similar nationwide with more than 80 federal court vacancies that have no nominees, and Senate Democrats so far have no plans to expedite appointments. At the current pace, dozens of judgeships could still be open by year's end with the possibility that Republicans gain control of the chamber. [Continue Reading]

Law360: Feds Look To Ax Suit Over Fort Sill Apache Tribe's Casino, Joyce Hanson, July 7,

2022, 8:09 PM

The federal government has urged an Oklahoma federal court to toss the Kiowa Tribe and Comanche Nation's suit claiming that the Fort Sill Apache Tribe unlawfully acquired land to build a casino, arguing that they knew about the gambling facility long before it opened. The Kiowa and Comanche tribes wrongly claim that the U. S. Department of the Interior violated the Administrative Procedure Act when it transferred to the Fort Sill Apache Tribe an original 160-acre Kiowa allotment taken into trust on behalf of George Tsalote in May 1901, the government said Thursday in its motion to dismiss the suit. MARIJUANA LEGALIZATION

Washington Times: Democratic senators urge Biden to move faster on marijuana policy, Tom Howell Jr., July 7, 2022, 5:59 PM

Six liberal senators are prodding President Biden to pardon prior cannabis offenders and compel the Department of Justice to reclassify the drug, a sign that members of the president's own party are disappointed by a lack of progress on the issue. "The administration's failure to coordinate a timely review of its cannabis policy is harming thousands of Americans, slowing research, and depriving Americans of their ability to use marijuana for medical or other purposes," wrote Sens. Elizabeth Warren of Massachusetts, Cory Booker of New Jersey, Kirsten Gillibrand of New York, Ed Markey of Massachusetts Ron Wyden of Oregon and Bernard Sanders, Vermont independent. OPIOID CRISIS

WaPo: American Cartel: Inside the battle to bring down the opioid industry, Scott Higham

and Sadi Horwitz, July 7, 2022, 7:00 AM

Late on his last day as a DEA agent, Joe Rannazzisi grabbed a mailroom cart to wheel a few boxes of personal belongings to his Ford Excursion. He had turned in his badge earlier that day one without a formal goodbye lunch that was now an evening without farewell drinks. Almost everyone had already cleared out of the Drug Enforcement Administration's sleek office complex in Arlington, and the silent corridor was a numbing coda to a career that for all its accolades seemed to have ended in defeat. It was an unusual feeling for the muscled, tough-talking New Yorker who'd spent 30 years bringing down bad guys. [Continue Reading]

US DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE NEWS

WaPo: [OPINION] A question for Garland: Do you know how it feels for POTUS to target you?, Jennifer Rubin, June 22, 2022, 12:00 PM

Attorney General Merrick Garland is surely familiar with Republicans' indifference to (if not encouragement of) threats of violence directed at government officials. When he vowed to investigate threats against local officials such as school board members, Senate Republicans harangued him, falsely accusing him of labeling parents as "domestic terrorists." Republicans also objected when he vowed to look into passengers assailing airline personnel over mask rules. [Continue Reading]

Fox: Republicans push DOJ to protect pro-life centers from 'assault' by violent activists, Kelly Laco, June 23, 2022, 6:24 AM

House Republicans are putting pressure on the Department of Justice to take action against violent activists who have targeted crisis pregnancy centers and places of worship in an attempt to intimidate pro-life Americans and justices. Rep. Ken Buck, R-Colo., who sits on the House Judiciary Committee, is leading Republicans in this charge, telling Fox News Digital that it is a "shame" that DOJ "will not act" and protect Supreme Court justices and pro-life centers. AP: Decades later, 'Torso Killer' charged in killing at NY mall, Michael Balsamo, June 22, 2022, 2:59 PM

More than five decades after Diane Cusick's lifeless body was discovered in the parking lot of a mall on New York's Long Island, authorities have linked her death to the so-called "Torso Killer," a serial killer already convicted in 11 other killings. The suspect, Richard Cottingham — believed to be one of America's most prolific serial killers — was arraigned Wednesday on a second-degree murder charge in connection with Cusick's 1968 killing. From a hospital bed in New Jersey, where he's already serving a life sentence for other killings, Cottingham pleaded not guilty. [Continue Reading]

Reuters: U.S. judge agrees to postpone Proud Boys trial amid Jan. 6 Capitol riot hearings, Sarah N. Lynch, June 22, 2022, 2:33 PM

A federal judge on Wednesday postponed the trial for leaders of the Proud Boys facing seditious conspiracy charges for their role in storming the U.S. Capitol, amid fears that revelations during recent congressional hearings could taint the jury pool.

U.S. District Judge Timothy Kelly set a new trial date of Dec. 12, after prosecutors and attorneys for three of the Proud Boys defendants requested a delay. [Continue Reading] See also: Guardian, NBC, USA Today, WaPo, WSJ

Reuters: U.S. seeks probe of Trump-allied lawyer's funding of Oath Keepers defense, Sarah N. Lynch, June 22, 2022, 1:24 PM

U.S. prosecutors asked a judge on Wednesday to launch an ethics inquiry into whether defense lawyers for prominent members of the right-week Oath Keepers are improperly allowing an attorney closely allied with former President Donald Trump to help pay their legal fees. The Justice Department's court filing cited media reports alleging that the legal fees for Oath Keepers leader Stewart Rhodes are being paid by Defending the Republic, an entity controlled by Sidney Powell, an attorney who played a key role in Trump's attempt to overturn his election defeat. The group is also paying fees for Oath Keeper defendants Kelly Meggs, Connie Meggs and Kenneth Harrelson, it said. [Continue Reading] See also: Courthouse News, The Hill, National Law Journal, WaPo

JAN. 6 COMMITTEE

AP: 1/6 panel to hear of Trump's pressure on Justice Department, Eric Tucker, June 23, 2022, 5:46 AM

The Jan. 6 committee will hear from former Justice Department officials who faced down a relentless pressure campaign from Donald Trump over the 2020 presidential election results while suppressing a bizarre challenge from within their own ranks. The hearing Thursday will bring attention to a memorably turbulent stretch at the department as Trump in his final days in office sought to bend to his will a law enforcement agency that has long cherished its independence from the White House. WaPo: Justice Dept. expands Jan. 6 probe with fresh subpoenas, Spencer S. Hsu, Josh Dawsey and Devlin Barrett, June 22, 2022, 2:59 PM

The Justice Department's investigation of the Jan. 6 attack ratcheted up Wednesday as federal agents dropped subpoenas on people in at least two states, in what appeared to be a widening probe of how political activists supporting President Donald Trump tried to use invalid electors to thwart Joe Biden's 2020 electoral victory. FBI officials confirmed to The Washington Post that agents conducted court authorized law enforcement activity Wednesday morning at two locations — one the address of Brad Carver, a Georgia lawyer who allegedly signed a document claiming to be a Trump elector, and another the Virginia home of Thomas Lane, who worked on the Trump campaign's efforts in Arizona and New Mexico. The FBI officials did not identify the people associated with those addresses, but public records list each of the locations as the home addresses of the men. A federal court ruling last week vindicated crucial First Amendment rights and upheld the use of one of the only effective means of holding prosecutors accountable for misconduct — public exposure. A U.S. district court in Manhattan held on June 13 that a group of six law professors can freely call attention to misconduct and unaccountability in district attorneys' offices by publishing online their disciplinary complaints against prosecutors. Reuters: California urges court to maintain ban on private immigrant detention, Daniel Wiessner, June 22, 2022, 4:12 PM

California and a coalition of advocacy groups urged a U.S. appeals court on Tuesday to uphold the state's ban on privately run immigrant detention centers, but some of the judges seemed skeptical of their claim that the law only regulates businesses and not the federal government. Aimee Feinberg of the California Solicitor General's Office told an 11-member panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that the 2019 law's incidental impact on government contracting does not render it invalid. Forbes: Revelations Show Trump Immigration Policy Was Supposed To Be Harsher, Stuart Anderson, June 23, 2022, 12:22 AM

While Donald Trump was president, reporters published shocking revelations about his administration's conduct of U.S. immigration policy. It turns out reporters missed a few items. Former Cabinet officials and others have revealed immigration policy during the Trump administration was intended to be much harsher, including placing a quarter-million soldiers on the U.S.-Mexico border, enacting crueler measures to separate families and targeting children for deportation at American schools. Reuters: U.S. consumer watchdog to review 'excessive' credit card late payment fees, Katanga Johnson, June 22, 2022, 4:30 PM

The top U.S. consumer watchdog on Wednesday said it had begun a review of "excessive" credit card fees and asked card issuers for data on revenue and expenses in a bid to stamp out abuses and boost competition. The advanced notice of proposed rulemaking issued by the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) confirms a Reuters April report that the agency would scrutinize credit card fees as part of a broader crackdown on what it calls "junk fees," a catch-all for overdraft, credit card late-payment fees, bounced check fees, and other charges. Roll Call: Gun bill expands school safety spending beyond security, Michael Macagnone, June 23, 2022, 5:00 AM

Mill Creek Township School District in Pennsylvania plans to upgrade its surveillance cameras, radios and a door monitoring system with a $500,000 federal grant, one of hundreds awarded across the country over the past four years as part of a $1 billion program Congress passed to address school violence. But Superintendent Ian Roberts said the grant won't cover upgrades like security vestibules on its more than 40 entrances at 10 schools, and the district can't afford that immediately. "From an infrastructure standpoint, there's still some things that are lacking in this and other districts," Roberts said. [Continue Reading]

WaPo: [OPINION] A question for Garland: Do you know how it feels for POTUS to target you?, Jennifer Rubin, June 22, 2022, 12:00 PM

Attorney General Merrick Garland is surely familiar with Republicans' indifference to (if not encouragement of) threats of violence directed at government officials. When he vowed to investigate threats against local officials such as school board members, Senate Republicans harangued him, falsely accusing him of labeling parents as "domestic terrorists." Republicans also objected when he vowed to look into passengers assailing airline personnel over mask rules. Continue Reading

WaPo: Justice Dept. expands Jan. 6 probe with fresh subpoenas, Spencer S. Hsu, Josh Dawsey and Devlin Barrett, June 22, 2022, 2:59 PM

The Justice Department's investigation of the Jan. 6 attack ratcheted up Wednesday as federal agents dropped subpoenas on people in at least two states, in what appeared to be a widening probe of how political activists supporting President Donald Trump tried to use invalid electors to thwart Joe Biden's 2020 electoral victory. FBI officials confirmed to The Washington Post that agents conducted court authorized law enforcement activity Wednesday morning at two locations one the address of Brad Carver, a Georgia lawyer who allegedly signed a document claiming to be a Trump elector, and another the Virginia home of Thomas Lane, who worked on the Trump campaign's efforts in Arizona and New Mexico. The FBI officials did not identify the people associated with those addresses, but public records list each of the locations as the home addresses of the men. NBC: Q&A: Justice reporter Ryan Reilly breaks down what we've learned from the January 6th hearings, Benjy Sarlin, June 22, 2022, 3:19 PM

Before the smoke even settled on the January 6th attack, NBC News Justice Reporter Ryan Reilly set out covering the legal aftermath, which has since grown to encompass hundreds of arrests, investigations, and prosecutions. He's also followed the extensive effort by online amateur sleuths to identify suspects and gather evidence alongside the official effort. With the country now taking a fresh look at the attack via the House Select Committee's hearings, we asked Reilly to help put their findings in perspective. Here's our conversation, edited for length and clarity. [Continue Reading]

Guardian: January 6 panel to focus on Trump's relentless pressure on justice department, Hugo Lowell, June 22, 2022, 7:01 PM

Donald Trump pressured top justice department officials to falsely declare that the 2020 election was corrupt and launch investigations into discredited claims of fraud as part of an effort to return him to office, the House January 6 select committee will say on Thursday. The panel investigating the Capitol attack is expected at its fifth hearing to focus on how Trump abused the power of the presidency to twist the justice department into endorsing false election claims and potentially how the Republican congressman Scott Perry sought a pardon for his involvement. KPVI-NBC (Pocatello, ID): Patriot Front members could face overlapping federal, state prosecution, Betsy Russell, June 22, 2022, 11:00 PM

Both of Idaho's last two U.S. attorneys say the June 11 arrests of 31 members of a white nationalist group for conspiracy to riot at a gay pride event in Coeur d'Alene is the type of thing that federal prosecutors should look into and likely are examining. Bart Davis, a Trump appointee who served as U.S. attorney for Idaho from 2017 to 2021, said, "All I know are what the news accounts are. ... I don't know what actually occurred. But I do believe that these are the kinds of matters that the federal government has some role in." [Continue Reading]

KFSM-CBS (Fort Smith, AR): Lawsuit filed against Arkansas officers for using alleged excessive force against woman, Kathryn Gilker, June 22, 2022, 7:34 PM We first told you the story of a woman who says she was mistreated by River Valley officers back in February. Now, a federal civil rights lawsuit has been filed against Sebastian County deputies and Greenwood police officers who the suit says mistreated her after a car accident back in May of 2020. "Now that the wait is over, I feel relieved," said Tyler "Unique" McClain. It was in the early morning hours of May 14, 2020, when 19-year-old McClain, who goes by Unique, veered off the road at Highway 10 and Highway 71 south near Greenwood. [Continue Reading]

Reuters: California urges court to maintain ban on private immigrant detention, Daniel

Wiessner, June 22, 2022, 4:12 PM

California and a coalition of advocacy groups urged a U.S. appeals court on Tuesday to uphold the state's ban on privately run immigrant detention centers, but some of the judges seemed skeptical of their claim that the law only regulates businesses and not the federal government. Aimee Feinberg of the California Solicitor General's Office told an 11-member panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that the 2019 law's incidental impact on government contracting does not render it invalid. KTEN-NBC (Ada, OK): Stitt hoping for clarity from Supreme Court on tribal jurisdiction, Molly O'Brien, June 22, 2022, 4:00 PM

Gov. Kevin Stitt and the State of Oklahoma are still waiting for a U.S. Supreme Court ruling in the Oklahoma v. Castro-Huerta case that's related to the landmark McGirt decision. The Supreme Court heard arguments in the Castro-Huerta case in April. The state argued it has the authority to prosecute non-native Oklahomans for crimes against Native Americans on tribal land. Then in

May, the FBI director asked lawmakers for $22.5 million to support the increased case load the agency has faced since the McGirt decision. [Continue Reading]

Law360: Wash. Pot Regulator Had Power To Pull License Application, Sam Reisman, June 22, 2022, 9:16 PM

Washington state's cannabis regulator was within its authority to cancel a would-be marijuana retailer's license application, a state appeals court ruled on Wednesday. The Washington State Court of Appeals said in a unanimous, unpublished decision that the state's Liquor and Cannabis Board had statutory authority to withdraw pending applications for cannabis retailers, including one from plaintiff Vision Research Group LLC. "The [Liquor and Cannabis Board] cancelled all pending applications, apparently without consideration or discrimination," the court found. [Continue Reading]

Marijuana Moment: 23 State Attorneys General Call On Congress To Address Marijuana Copycat Products That Resemble Common Food Brands, Kyle Jaeger, June 22, 2022, 2:00 PM

A bipartisan coalition of 23 state attorneys general sent a letter to congressional leaders on Wednesday, demanding action to prevent the sale of copycat marijuana products that resemble popular food brands. The letter, led by Virginia Attorney General Jason Miyares (R) and Nevada Attorney General Aaron Ford (D), says that the top state prosecutors are "gravely concerned about the dangers of copycat tetrahydrocannabinol (THC) edibles in our communities, particularly the risk they pose to our children." Reuters: Biden asks Congress for gas tax holiday to lower record pump prices, Jarrett Renshaw and Nandita Bose, June 23, 2022, 3:47 AM

U.S. President Joe Biden on Wednesday called for a three-month suspension of the federal gasoline tax to combat record prices, but opposition from lawmakers within his own party suggests the request may never be met. American families paying much more for gasoline deserve some financial relief, Biden said as he pushed Congress to act, while commenting that a suspension of the 18.4 cents per gallon tax was not enough. Reuters: U.S. Senate poised to step forward on rare bipartisan gun legislation, David Morgan, June 23, 2022, 5:03 AM

The U.S. Senate is poised on Thursday for a vote to advance a bipartisan gun control bill that supporters hope will help curb the mass shootings that have rocked the country, in what could be Congress's first new limits on guns in decades. The 80-page Bipartisan Safer Communities Act would encourage states to keep guns out of the hands of those deemed to be dangerous and tighten background checks for would-be gun purchasers convicted of domestic violence or significant crimes as juveniles. NYT: Gun Bill's Progress Reflects Political Shift, but G.O.P. Support Is Fragile, Emily Cochrane, June 22, 2022, 7:00 PM

As Senator Joni Ernst, Republican of Iowa, weighed whether she should vote to take up a bipartisan gun reform measure, the phone lines in her offices were being flooded by constituents hoping to sway her. The calls were coming in roughly six to one, she estimated, with an urgent message: "Please do something." On Tuesday, Ms. Ernst became one of 14 Republicans to break with her party to support moving ahead with the legislation, propelling it past a Republican blockade that has thwarted years of efforts to overhaul the nation's gun laws. WSJ: Congress Unlikely to Heed Biden's Call for Three-Month Suspension of Gas Tax, Tarini Parti, Amara Omeokwe and Lindsay Wise, June 22, 2022, 3:39 PM President Biden called for a three-month suspension of federal gasoline and diesel taxes a move that is unlikely to have the support needed to pass in Congress and one economists and business leaders say would do little to address record-high gas prices. "I fully understand that the gas tax holiday alone is not going to fix the problem, but it will provide families some immediate relief," Mr. Biden said at the White House on Wednesday. "Just a little bit of breathing room."

Washington Examiner: Senate bill would imprison Supreme Court leakers and impose $10K fine, Kaelan Deese, June 23, 2022, 6:00 AM

Sen. Bill Cassidy (R-LA) unveiled new legislation Thursday that would hold future Supreme Court leakers accountable with a $10,000 fine and 10 years in prison for releasing information about pending decisions in response to last month's unprecedented leaked draft opinion that signaled the overturning of Roe v. Wade. In an exclusive interview, Cassidy told the Washington Examiner that if the legislation, titled the Stop Supreme Court Leakers Act of 2022, becomes law, it would not be able to imprison or fine anyone responsible for leaking the draft opinion of Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, though it could be used to confiscate any possible profits received by the person or people who leaked the draft. [Continue Reading]

Roll Call: Gun bill expands school safety spending beyond security, Michael Macagnone,

June 23, 2022, 5:00 AM

Mill Creek Township School District in Pennsylvania plans to upgrade its surveillance cameras, radios and a door monitoring system with a $500,000 federal grant, one of hundreds awarded across the country over the past four years as part of a $1 billion program Congress passed to address school violence. But Superintendent Ian Roberts said the grant won't cover upgrades like security vestibules on its more than 40 entrances at 10 schools, and the district can't afford that immediately. "From an infrastructure standpoint, there's still some things that are lacking in this and other districts," Roberts said. [Continue Reading]

AP: Facebook and US sign deal to end discriminatory housing ads, Larry Neumeister, June 21, 2022, 4:00 PM

Facebook will change its algorithms to prevent discriminatory housing advertising and its parent company will subject itself to court oversight to settle a lawsuit brought by the U.S. Department of Justice on Tuesday. In a release, U.S. government officials said it had reached agreement with Meta Platforms Inc., formerly known as Facebook Inc., to settle the lawsuit filed simultaneously in Manhattan federal court. According to the release, it was the Justice Department's first case challenging algorithmic discrimination under the Fair Housing Act. Facebook will now be subject to Justice Department approval and court oversight for its ad targeting and delivery system.

Fox: DOJ allowing illegal protests outside SCOTUS justices' homes despite federal law, former officials say, Timothy H.J. Nerozzi, June 21, 2022, 4:27 PM

The Department of Justice has failed to enforce a federal statute which prohibits protests, pickets, and other forms of intimidation outside the home of judges. It is illegal under federal law to attempt to influence a judge's ruling or interfere with the discharge of their duty. However, the Department of Justice has thus far refused to interfere with demonstrators outside the homes of several Supreme Court justices, including Justices Clarence Thomas, Amy Coney Barrett, and Brett Kavanaugh. While the DOJ has provided security at the justices' homes, they have allowed protests and picketing to continue unimpeded. [Continue Reading]

AP: Phone call between WNBA's Griner and wife being rescheduled, Eric Tucker, June 21,

A phone call between jailed WNBA star Brittney Griner and her wife is being rescheduled after an earlier attempt to connect on the couple's anniversary failed because of an "unfortunate mistake," Biden administration officials said Tuesday. White House press secretary Karine Jean-Pierre told reporters that the State Department was working to arrange a new call but did not say when that would be. State Department spokesman Ned Price said the call could not be completed because of a "logistical error" that officials have worked quickly to fix so that a new call can take place. Griner was to have spoken with her wife Cherelle on Saturday, the couple's fourth anniversary, for the first time since her arrest in Russia in mid-February. [Continue Reading]

WaPo: [OPINION] How Russia's vaunted cyber capabilities were frustrated in Ukraine, David Ignatius, June 21, 2022, 6:48 PM

A quiet partnership of the world's biggest technology companies, U.S. and NATO intelligence agencies, and Ukraine's own nimble army of hackers has pulled off one of the surprises of the war with Russia, largely foiling the Kremlin's brazen internet hacking operations. Russia's cyberreversals haven't resulted from lack of trying. Microsoft counts nearly 40 Russian destructive attacks between Feb. 23 and April 8, and Rob Joyce, the National Security Agency's cybersecurity director, said the Russians had attempted an "enormous" cyber offensive.

NYT: Companies Brace for Impact of New Forced Labor Law, Ana Swanson, June 22, 2022, 12:00 AM

A sweeping new law aimed at cracking down on Chinese forced labor could have significant and unanticipated ramifications for American companies and consumers. The law, which went into effect on Tuesday, bars products from entering the United States if they have any links to Xinjiang, the far-western region where the Chinese authorities have carried out an extensive crackdown on Uyghur Muslims and other ethnic minorities. That could affect a wide range of products, including those using any raw materials from Xinjiang or with a connection to the type of Chinese labor and poverty alleviation programs the U.S. government has deemed coercive even if the finished product used just a tiny amount of material from Xinjiang somewhere along its journey. MarketWatch: [OPINION] Stagflation will be the Fed's biggest worry, Peter Morici, June 22, 2022, 6:30 AM

The Federal Reserve's biggest long-term concern should be stagflation—a combination of persistent and unacceptably-high inflation coupled with nonplus growth. As this column has argued, short of a punishing recession Americans will be lucky to see inflation at 4%, never mind the Federal Reserve's official target of 2%. [...] As demand for fossil fuels recedes, profits should be returned to shareholders so that capital may be redeployed to new, more-productive activities including green energy—rather than forcing Big Oil to do things it knows nothing about. Looking at how a few money managers can bully large corporations to foolish decisions, maybe Justice Department antitrust chief Jonathan Kanter should stop harassing Frank Perdue's legacy and set his sights on BlackRock's Larry Fink. AP: Judge keeps execution for inmate who sought pastor's touch, Juan Lozano, June 21, 2022, 4:00 PM

A Texas judge on Tuesday denied a request by a district attorney who called capital punishment "unethical" to withdraw the execution date of a death row inmate whose case had raised legal questions about the role of spiritual advisers in the death chamber. On April 12, an order was signed setting John Henry Ramirez's execution for Oct. 5. Ramirez's execution had been put on hold several times, most recently after the U.S. Supreme Court agreed to review his challenge of state rules that would have prevented his pastor from touching him and praying aloud during his execution. AP: Supreme Court limits reach of federal gun crime law, Jessica Gresko, June 21, 2022, 4:00 PM

The Supreme Court on Tuesday limited the reach of a federal statute that requires stiff penalties for crimes involving a gun. The 7-2 decision united both conservative and liberal justices, though one dissenting justice compared the result to "Alice in Wonderland." The justices said the law can't be used to lengthen the sentences of criminals convicted of a specific attempted robbery offense. The case before the justices involved Justin Taylor, who in the early 2000s was a marijuana dealer in the area of Richmond, Virginia. [Continue Reading] See also: Bloomberg Law, CNN, WaPo

Reuters: U.S. Supreme Court strikes down Washington workers' comp law for nuclear site, Daniel Wiessner, June 21, 2022, 3:42 PM

The U.S. Supreme Court on Tuesday said the state of Washington could not in a 2018 law lower the bar for federal contractors who work at a decomissioned nuclear weapons plant to receive workers' compensation benefits. Justice Stephen Breyer wrote for the unanimous court that the state could not single out the Hanford, Washington facility in the law because the federal government had not explicitly waived its typical immunity from discriminatory state laws with respect to workers' compensation. AP: Justices rule religious schools must get Maine tuition aid, Mark Sherman, June 21, 2022, 2:00 PM

The Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that Maine can't exclude religious schools from a program that offers tuition aid for private education, a decision that could ease religious organizations' access to taxpayer money. The 6-3 outcome could fuel a renewed push for school choice programs in some of the 18 states that have so far not directed taxpayer money to private, religious education. The most immediate effect of the court's ruling beyond Maine probably will be felt next door in Vermont, which has a similar program. USA Today: Supreme Court justices don't have a code of ethics. Hundreds of judges say that's a problem, Tami Abdollah, June 22, 2022, 5:57 AM

Hundreds of judges across the United States said U.S. Supreme Court justices should be bound by a code of ethics—and many said they were shocked to find out that wasn't already the case. The National Judicial College surveyed judges across the nation on whether the Supreme Court should be held to a higher standard. The survey came amid a contentious and high-profile U.S. Supreme Court calendar that has involved questions of bias, as well as investigations into Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas' family ties to the Jan. 6, 2021 insurrection at the U.S. Capitol. WaPo: The Supreme Court Has Just Eroded First Amendment Law, Noah Feldman, June 21, 2022, 4:45 PM

In an extremely important church-and-state decision, the Supreme Court has held that if the state of Maine decides to pay for a child's private education in lieu of a public one, it must allow its tuition money to be used at religious schools. The 6-3 decision, Carson v. Makin, profoundly undermines existing First Amendment law. It represents the end of the centuries-old constitutional ban on direct state aid to the teaching of religion. And remarkably, it does all this in the name of religious liberty, giving the free-exercise clause of the First Amendment primacy over the establishment clause found in the exact same amendment. Trump. The court's public approval ratings have been dropping, and its new configuration has raised questions about whether it is out of step with public opinion. [Continue Reading]

CNN: [ANALYSIS] John Roberts played the long game on state funding of religious schools, Joan Biskupic, June 22, 2022, 5:30 AM

Chief Justice John Roberts has been laying the groundwork for years for Tuesday's sweeping decision requiring states to fund religious education. But he always tried to signal some caution. Five years ago, in a financing dispute involving a church school in Missouri, he even added a footnote that said the Supreme Court decision applied only to money for playground resurfacing. Fellow conservatives called him out and suggested the caveat was preposterous because the decision would, of course, reach other religious funding cases. [Continue Reading]

Compliance officers are worried that a new Justice Department policy, aimed at raising their stature within companies, will actually make their jobs harder—and even leave them open to criminal prosecution. The policy, previewed by a senior Justice Department official in March, is meant to give compliance officers a voice and provide them with access to information and resources needed to guarantee that their company's compliance program is effective. It was applied for the first time last month in a settlement agreement with commodities giant Glencore PLC. [Continue Reading]

Guardian: Outrage at pay hike for Phoenix police under investigation over use of force, Ian Lopez, Allie Reed, June 17, 2022, 4:35 AM

A bumper pay hike for Phoenix police has been condemned by community advocates who argue the money should be spent tackling the city's extreme heat, homelessness and mental health crises. At a heated city council meeting on Wednesday, several public speakers questioned the $19.8m salary windfall given the continuing Department of Justice investigation into the city police department over allegations of excessive use of force, retaliation against Black Lives Matter protesters, discriminatory policing and inappropriate treatment of homeless and disabled people.

Reuters: Nebraska man pleads guilty to making threats against election official, Sarah N. Lynch, June 16, 2022, 3:42 PM

A Nebraska man pleaded guilty on Thursday to making threats against an election official, marking the third federal case brought by a U.S. Justice Department task force formed last year to address the rising tide of such threats. The Justice Department said that Travis Ford, 42, of Lincoln, wrote threatening posts on Instagram in August 2021 to an unnamed election official, asking: "Do you feel safe? You shouldn't... Your security detail is far too thin and incompetent to protect you." Threats against election workers and volunteers drastically increased before and after the November 2020 presidential election, spurred by former Republican President Donald Trump's repeated false claims that the election was stolen from him, which he continues to do without any evidence. Reuters published a series of investigative reports that documented more than 850 threats and menacing messages to U.S. election workers. NBC: Number of migrants crossing border hits another record, with surges in migration by nationalities once rarely seen, Julia Ainsley, June 16, 2022, 6:16 PM

The number of undocumented immigrant crossings at the southwest border once again broke record highs in May, prompted in large part by surges in migration by nationalities that were previously rarely found at the U.S.-Mexico border, according to Customs and Border Protection data obtained by NBC News. CBP stopped migrants at the Southwest border of the U.S. more than 239,000 times in May, though some migrants attempted to cross more than once. The number of individual migrants who attempted to cross the border was 157,555, still up by 2 percent over April's previous record high. The number of border crossers from India, Turkey, Russia, Haiti, Brazil, Colombia and Nicaragua increased in part because it is harder for border agents to subject some of those nationalities to the Covid-19 border restrictions known as Title 42 that let the U.S. quickly send migrants back to their home countries or into Mexico. WIBW-AM (Topeka, KS): FBI Chicago warns of increase in sextortion schemes targeting young boys, Kasey Chronis, June 16, 2022, 4:56 PM

The FBI is warning parents of an increase in sextortion schemes targeting teenage boys. In Chicago and nationwide, officials have seen an alarming rise in cases where adults are posing as girls and young women online, and coercing young boys to engage in sexually explicit activity via video chat. In some cases, predators are using trafficking victims to lure teenage boys into producing sexual content. [Continue Reading]

WOIO-CBS (Cleveland, OH): U.S. Marshals, SWAT arrest accused robber who pepper-sprayed employees, Julia Bingel, June 16, 2022, 4:03 PM

A robbery suspect wanted by multiple police agencies for robberies, thefts, shoplifting and fraud was arrested after a more than a three hour stand-off on Cleveland's East Side Thursday. U.S.

Marshals and Cleveland SWAT located Sheldon Payne, 29, in the 9600 block of Nelson Ave. According to the U.S. Marshals, Payne barricaded himself inside with a woman and small child. [Continue Reading]

US SUPREME COURT

Reuters: Liberal Justice Sotomayor says U.S. Supreme Court 'mistakes' can be fixed, Lawrence Hurley, June 16, 2022, 8:17 PM

Liberal Justice Sonia Sotomayor said on Thursday the U.S. Supreme Court's "mistakes" in high-profile cases can be corrected over time as she adopted a positive tone ahead of a decision in which its conservative majority is expected to curtail abortion rights. Sotomayor, speaking in Washington at the annual meeting of a liberal legal group, did not directly address last month's publication of a leaked draft opinion in the abortion case or any of the court's other current cases. But Sotomayor said she believes the court can help people "regain the public's confidence" in government institutions. [Continue Reading] See also: Bloomberg, CNN, Guardian, NYT

NYT: Bracing for the End of Roe v. Wade, the White House Weighs Executive Actions, Charlie Savage, June 16, 2022, 5:00 AM

President Biden's top aides are weighing whether he can or should take a series of executive actions to help women in Republican-controlled states obtain abortions if the Supreme Court eliminates a woman's right to end her pregnancy, according to senior administration officials. Some of the ideas under consideration include declaring a national public health emergency, readying the Justice Department to fight any attempt by states to criminalize travel for the purpose of obtaining an abortion, and asserting that Food and Drug Administration regulations granting approval to abortion medications pre-empt any state bans, the officials said. Bloomberg Law: Low-Income Drug Discount Fight Looms in HHS's Supreme Court Loss, Ian Lopez, Allie Reed, June 17, 2022, 4:35 AM

A US Supreme Court loss for the HHS in a Medicare case gives the agency ammunition in a broader battle over drugmaker discounts for low-income Americans. All nine Supreme Court justices agreed that the Department of Health and Human Services wrongly slashed $1 billion a year in drug reimbursements to hospitals through a 30-year-old government program designed to help at-need populations. The HHS and hospitals are now on the same side in another courtroom conflict over that program whether the HHS can require that drugmakers offer discounts to certain pharmacies. [Continue Reading]

Law360: [ANALYSIS] Chevron Deference Still Feels Heat After High Court Reprieve, Jeff Overley, June 16, 2022, 10:56 PM

The U.S. Supreme Court's landmark doctrine requiring judicial deference to federal regulators survived a major health care case at the high court Wednesday, but the controversial bedrock of administrative law barely escaped the conservative justices' frying pan and is heading right back into their fire, experts say. E&E News: Supreme Court under pressure to punt climate case, Pamela King, June 16, 2022, 1:13 PM

In a one-sentence, unsigned opinion yesterday, the Supreme Court disposed of a legal fight related to the Biden administration's change of course on a Trump-era rule that made it harder for immigrants to obtain green cards. Some lawmakers and legal observers have urged the justices to bestow the same fate on the West Virginia v. EPA battle over a climate regulation that after two administration changes, years of legal wrangling and a transformation of the power sector does not currently exist. [Continue Reading]

SCOTUSblog: [OPINION] Supreme Court, once again, rejects California treatment of arbitration, Ronald Land, June 16, 2022, 12:10 PM

The holding of Wednesday's decision in Viking River Cruises v. Moriana will surprise nobody. As it has so many times before, the Supreme Court rejected California's treatment of arbitration under California law, in this case California's Private Attorneys General Act. The most surprising thing about the decision is how close it came to unanimity. Eight of the nine justices agreed in the result, with the lone dissent coming from Justice Clarence Thomas, who long has held that the relevant federal statute (the Federal Arbitration Act) does not apply to cases in state courts. JUDICIAL NOMINEES & APPOINTMENTS

The Hill: Biden nominates Derek Chauvin prosecutor as federal judge, Zach Schonfeld, June 16, 2022, 4:33 PM

President Biden nominated one of the attorneys who prosecuted former Minneapolis police officer Derek Chauvin for the murder of George Floyd as a federal judge on Wednesday. Biden nominated Jerry Blackwell to the U.S. District Court for the District of Minnesota. The White House did not mention Blackwell's role in the Chauvin case in the announcement of the nomination. [Continue Reading]

NATIVE AMERICAN AFFAIRS

WaPo: Man illegally excavated Native American site, took artifacts, officials say, Jaclyn Peiser, June 16, 2022, 7:12 AM

A peninsula on the Harry S. Truman Lake in Henry County, Mo., houses a trove of Native American artifacts dating back thousands of years. The site is protected by federal law, and unauthorized excavation is forbidden. Johnny Lee Brown dug for treasure anyway, federal prosecutors say. In an 11-count indictment made public on Tuesday, prosecutors allege the 71-year-old Clinton, Mo., resident caused more than $300,000 in damage during excavation trips spanning over five years. Brown's charges include felony counts for conspiracy, causing damage and defacing archaeological resources and government property. [Continue Reading]

MARIJUANA LEGALIZATION

Marijuana Moment: Congressional Lawmakers Seek Broad Marijuana Protections For Legal States In Key Spending Bill Coming Next Week, Kyle Jaeger, June 16, 2022, 12:00 PM

Congressional lawmakers are urging House leaders to include broad protections for states, territories and tribes that choose to legalize marijuana as part of a key spending bill that's expected to be introduced next week. Reps. Earl Blumenauer (D-OR), Tom McClintock (R-CA), Eleanor Holmes Norton (D-DC) and Barbara Lee (D-CA), along with 44 of their colleagues, recently sent a letter calling on the chairman and ranking member of an appropriations subcommittee to address the issue through the must-pass legislation. AP: Biden signs bill to protect Supreme Court justices into law, Unattributed, June 16, 2022, 10:00 PM

President Joe Biden signed a bill Thursday that will give around-the-clock security protection to the families of Supreme Court justices. The new law, which passed the House this week and the Senate last month, comes eight days after a man carrying a gun, knife and zip ties was arrested near Justice Brett Kavanaugh's house after threatening to kill the justice. The bill calling for the expansion of security protections was approved unanimously by the Senate and passed shortly after the leak of a draft court opinion that would overrule Roe v. Wade and sharply curtail abortion rights in roughly half the states. [Continue Reading]

CNN: Kamala Harris launches new national task force on preventing online harassment and abuse, Sam Fassum, June 16, 2022, 2:00 PM

Vice President Kamala Harris on Thursday launched a new national task force aimed at helping to prevent and address online harassment and abuse. Ahead of the meeting, President Joe Biden signed a memorandum establishing the initiative, the White House Task Force to Address Online Harassment and Abuse. The interagency effort will particularly focus on online harassment and abuse of women and LGBTQ Americans, as one senior administration official ahead of the meeting noted how such harassment "disproportionately targets" those communities. WSJ: Gun Talks Stall on Red-Flag Laws, Domestic Abuser Rules, Natalie Andrews, Lindsay Wise and Teresa Mettela, June 16, 2022, 6:03 PM

Senators drafting gun-control legislation failed to overcome sticking points before breaking for the weekend, putting in jeopardy a historic bipartisan deal to reduce gun violence. Negotiators said they were stuck on language for two provisions. One would provide federal grants to states to enforce red-flag laws that allow authorities to remove guns temporarily from people threatening violence. The other would close the "boyfriend loophole" that allows convicted domestic abusers to buy guns if they aren't married to their partner. [Continue Reading] See also: NYT, WaPo

WSJ: Charges Against Accused Buffalo Shooter Point to Alleged Act of Domestic Terrorism, Government Says, Sadie Gurman and Aruna Viswanatha, June 16, 2022, 6:29 PM Senior Justice Department officials said they viewed the killing of 10 people in a racist massacre at a Buffalo supermarket as an act of domestic terrorism after federal hate-crimes charges were brought against the suspect, saying they were relying on existing statutes amid a broader debate about whether new tools are needed to combat violent extremism. Payton Gendron, 18 years old, made his first appearance in federal court Thursday to face 26 counts of hate crimes and firearms offenses, including one that carries the potential penalty of death. The federal judge in the case urged prosecutors to decide promptly whether they intend to pursue a capital sentence. [Continue Reading]

WSJ: A New Policy Is Making Corporate Compliance Chiefs Uneasy, Dylan Tokar, June 16, 2022, 2:34 PM

Compliance officers are worried that a new Justice Department policy, aimed at raising their stature within companies, will actually make their jobs harder—and even leave them open to criminal prosecution. The policy, previewed by a senior Justice Department official in March, is meant to give compliance officers a voice and provide them with access to information and resources needed to guarantee that their company's compliance program is effective. It was applied for the first time last month in a settlement agreement with commodities giant Glencore PLC. [Continue Reading]

Guardian: Outrage at pay hike for Phoenix police under investigation over use of force, lan Lopez, Allie Reed, June 17, 2022, 4:35 AM

A bumper pay hike for Phoenix police has been condemned by community advocates who argue the money should be spent tackling the city's extreme heat, homelessness and mental health crises. At a heated city council meeting on Wednesday, several public speakers questioned the $19.8m salary windfall given the continuing Department of Justice investigation into the city police department over allegations of excessive use of force, retaliation against Black Lives Matter protesters, discriminatory policing and inappropriate treatment of homeless and disabled people. Reuters: Nebraska man pleads guilty to making threats against election official, Sarah N. Lynch, June 16, 2022, 3:42 PM

A Nebraska man pleaded guilty on Thursday to making threats against an election official, marking the third federal case brought by a U.S. Justice Department task force formed last year to address the rising tide of such threats. The Justice Department said that Travis Ford, 42, of Lincoln, wrote threatening posts on Instagram in August 2021 to an unnamed election official, asking: "Do you feel safe? You shouldn't... Your security detail is far too thin and incompetent to protect you." Threats against election workers and volunteers drastically increased before and after the November 2020 presidential election, spurred by former Republican President Donald Trump's repeated false claims that the election was stolen from him, which he continues to do without any evidence. Reuters published a series of investigative reports that documented more than 850 threats and menacing messages to U.S. election workers. NYT: YouTube deleted a Jan. 6 committee video that included Trump's election lies, Nico Grant, June 16, 2022, 7:00 PM

The House select committee investigating the Jan. 6 riot has been trying to draw more eyes to its televised hearings by uploading clips of the proceedings online. But YouTube has removed one of those videos from its platform, saying the committee was advancing election misinformation. The excerpt, which was uploaded June 14, included recorded testimony from former Attorney General William P. Barr. But the problem for YouTube was that the video also included a clip of former President Donald J. Trump sharing lies about the election on the Fox Business channel. [Continue Reading]

NYT: Justice Department accuses Jan. 6 committee of refusing to share transcripts., Katie Benner, June 16, 2022, 3:30 PM

The Justice Department accused the House committee investigating Jan. 6 of hampering the federal criminal investigation into the attack by refusing to share interview transcripts with prosecutors, according to a person familiar with the matter. The person, who was not authorized to speak on the record, said the Justice Department sent a two-page letter to the committee on Wednesday that renewed its request for transcripts of the committee's more than 1,000 witness interviews related to actions undertaken by former President Donald J. Trump and his allies to unlawfully overturn the 2020 election results as well as the attack on Congress by a pro-Trump mob. The letter was earlier reported by Insider. The committee conducted the interviews for this month's public hearings on the matter, but it has no authority to charge anyone involved in the attack on Congress. CNN: Charging Trump for fundraising off election lies would face high bar, experts say, Katelyn Polantz and Kara Scannell, June 16, 2022, 11:30 AM

While the House January 6 committee is making its case to the American public that then-President Donald Trump ripped off donors with false fundraising pitches after the 2020 election, prosecutors would face higher hurdles if they were to pursue a criminal fraud case in court. "Is it a grift? Yeah, it's a grift. But is a grift always illegal? Not necessarily," said Paul Pelletier, a former federal prosecutor who previously led the Justice Department's fraud section. One state attorney general, New York's Letitia James, has already said she will investigate the committee's allegations of fraud and potential misconduct. [Continue Reading]

The Hill: Post-Watergate reforms may frame DOJ decision over prosecuting Trump, John Kruzel, June 17, 2022, 6:00 AM

The break-in at the Watergate complex 50 years ago this week led to a sweeping government ethics overhaul that included a push to insulate the Department of Justice (DOJ) from politics. In a historical twist, this nearly half-century-old corrective may help frame the DOJ's fraught decision over whether to criminally charge former President Trump for his effort to overturn the 2020 election results. Reuters: N.Y. leaves disabled to 'languish' in institutions, new lawsuit claims, Brendan Pierson, June 16, 2022, 1:00 PM

New York state is facing a proposed class action accusing it of allowing people with developmental disabilities who qualify for community-based services through Medicaid to remain in restricted institutional settings. The lawsuit, filed Wednesday in Manhattan federal court by the legal non-profit Disability Rights New York (DRNY) and Kasowitz Benson Torres, accuses the state Department of Health (DOH) and its Office for People with Developmental Disability (OPWDD) of shirking their legal obligation to arrange for community-based services when possible. WaPo: [EDITORIAL] Impunity for unwarranted police killings is still a default, Editorial Board, June 16, 2022, 1:03 PM

After a legal odyssey of nearly five years, the Justice Department decided last week not to reopen the federal criminal civil rights investigation of two hotheaded U.S. Park Police officers who shot to death Bijan Ghaisar, an unarmed 25-year-old accountant. By declining to prosecute them for a killing that stemmed from a fender bender in suburban Virginia, Attorney General Merrick Garland's department has effectively shrugged at an apparently unjustified killing. Reuters: Mississippi prosecutor ducks lawsuit claiming racial bias in jury selection, Nate Raymond, June 16, 2022, 2:01 PM

A divided federal appeals court on Thursday dismissed a lawsuit accusing a long-serving district attorney in Mississippi of regularly discriminating against Black people by striking them from juries due to their race. The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled 2-1 that four Black Mississippi residents eligible for jury service and a local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People lacked standing to sue Montgomery County District Attorney Doug Evans. WSJ: Illegal Border Crossings Hit Record in May, Alicia A. Caldwell, June 16, 2022, 3:32 PM Arrests of migrants illegally crossing the U.S. border with Mexico hit a record high in May, according to new data released by the Department of Homeland Security. U.S. Border Patrol agents made 222,656 arrests of people crossing the border illegally, a nearly 10% increase compared with April. The agency said about 25% of arrests in May involved repeated border crossers, with agents arresting 177,793 unique people. Border Patrol agents have been dealing with record numbers of illegal border crossings for almost two years, with drastic increases recorded in the past several months as pandemic-era travel restrictions have eased. NBC: Number of migrants crossing border hits another record, with surges in migration by nationalities once rarely seen, Julia Ainsley, June 16, 2022, 6:16 PM

The number of undocumented immigrant crossings at the southwest border once again broke record highs in May, prompted in large part by surges in migration by nationalities that were previously rarely found at the U.S.-Mexico border, according to Customs and Border Protection data obtained by NBC News. CBP stopped migrants at the Southwest border of the U.S. more than 239,000 times in May, though some migrants attempted to cross more than once. The number of individual migrants who attempted to cross the border was 157,555, still up by 2 percent over April's previous record high. The number of border crossers from India, Turkey, Russia, Haiti, Brazil, Colombia and Nicaragua increased in part because it is harder for border agents to subject some of those nationalities to the Covid-19 border restrictions known as Title 42 that let the U.S. quickly send migrants back to their home countries or into Mexico. No place for a child. One of every three migrants held in overcrowded, freezing Border Patrol detention cells between February 2017 to June 2021 was a minor — far more than previously known, according to a new data analysis by The Marshall Project. Federal hate crimes charges for the Buffalo gunman. Federal prosecutors charged 18-year-old Payton Gendron with 26 counts of hate crimes and weapons violations on Wednesday, making the avowed white supremacist eligible for the federal death penalty. CBS: Attorney General Garland to visit Buffalo mass shooting site and meet with victims' families and survivors, Robert Legare, June 15, 2022, 5:22 AM

Just over a month after an 18-year-old White man opened fire inside a Buffalo Tops supermarket, killing 10 and wounding three others, Attorney General Merrick Garland is traveling to the site of the massacre to pay his respects to the victims' families. In the wake of the massacre, Garland announced the Justice Department would investigate the matter as a hate crime and an act of racially-motivated violent extremism. Investigators allege the suspect detailed his plans and his racist motivation for the violence in hundreds of pages of writings he posted online shortly before the shooting. According to authorities, 11 of the 13 individuals who were shot were Black. Reuters: Antitrust cops' quixotic PE warning, Unattributed, June 14, 2022, 6:04 PM U.S. Federal Trade Commission boss Lina Khan says private equity is in the crosshairs. While Blackstone (BX.N) and Apollo Global Management (APO.N) may well be on notice, it's unclear whether she's really going to do more than just make threats. [Continue Reading]

Bloomberg: Senate Passes State Venue Antitrust Bill That Google Opposed, Leah Nylen, June 14, 2022, 8:07 PM

The Senate passed legislation Tuesday evening to allow state attorneys general to pick the location where their federal antitrust suits are heard, a blow to Alphabet Inc.'s Google, which had opposed the bill. The chamber passed the measure by unanimous consent. An amendment removed a provision that would have applied the measure retroactively to a 2020 antitrust suit filed by Texas and 14 other states and territories against the operator of the world's largest search engine. WSJ: Antitrust Authorities Take Aim at Private-Equity Healthcare Deals, Chris Cumming, June 14, 2022. 5:56 PM

U.S. antitrust enforcers on Monday took action against a private-equity firm they say sought to stifle competition, in what regulators suggest could be the first strike against allegedly anticompetitive behavior by buyout firms in the healthcare sector. [Continue Reading]

The Hill: [OPINION] Abandoning decades of antitrust precedent won't reduce inflation, Richard J. Pierce, Jr., June 14, 2022, 4:30 PM

The inflation rate is now 8.6 percent — the highest rate in 40 years. President Biden says that reducing the level of inflation is his top domestic priority. Yet, the chair of the Federal Trade Commission and the head of the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice are obsessed with the need to throw consumers under the bus and force sellers to increase the prices they charge for goods and services. Both FTC Chair Lina Khan and the head of the Antitrust Division, Jonathan Kanter, have made it a high priority to eliminate the consumer welfare standard that the Supreme Court and most antitrust scholars have embraced for 50 years. AP: In a boost, McConnell backs Senate bipartisan gun deal, Alan Fram, June 14, 2022, 5:00 PM Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell announced his support Tuesday for his chamber's emerging bipartisan gun agreement, boosting momentum for modest but notable election-year action by Congress on an issue that's deadlocked lawmakers for three decades. The Kentucky Republican said he hoped an outline of the accord, released Sunday by 10 Democrats and 10 Republicans, would be translated into legislation and enacted. McConnell's backing was the latest indication that last month's gun massacres in Buffalo, New York, and Uvalde, Texas, had reconfigured the political calculations for some in the GOP after years of steadfastly opposing even incremental tightening of firearms curbs. USA Today: What is the 'boyfriend loophole' in the bipartisan gun deal announced by senators?, Merdie Nzanga, June 15, 2022, 5:00 AM

In response to mass shootings, a bipartisan group of senators tentatively reached a deal on a gun bill that would expand "red flag" laws, spend more on mental health and close the "boyfriend loophole" that allows some domestic abusers to buy firearms. Gun control activists have tried to close the loophole for years, but like most gun legislation, the efforts fizzled out. After massacres in Buffalo, New York, and Uvalde, Texas, as well as other mass shootings, there is fresh momentum for gun control, including ensuring that all domestic abusers are barred from acquiring guns.
