CBRE [formerly Coldwell Banker Richard Ellis], the world's largest commercial real estate services firm and a trusted barometer of where capital, companies, and executive talent are headed, reports that Texas has attracted 209 corporate headquarters relocations since 2018.[1]

Within Texas, the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex has become the state's leading destination, and America's premier destination, for corporate headquarters relocations, according to CBRE's 2026 report. Since 2018, that region has logged more than 100 headquarters relocations, including 11 net interstate or international HQ moves in 2025.[2]

That is the good news.

The bad news is that many of those 209 headquarters came from Democratic strongholds, such as Los Angeles, the San Francisco Bay Area, New York, and Chicago. The threat is not that blue-state refugees arrive. The threat is that they come for Texas' freedom, limited government, lower taxes, unbridled prosperity, and ethos of personal responsibility, only to vote and govern in ways that slowly destroy the very conditions that drew them here in the first place.

Nicholas 'Nick' J. Freitas [born 1979], the conservative former member of the Virginia House of Delegates, U.S. Army Special Forces veteran, and media host, warned last week that any red state is fooling itself when claiming that what happened to Virginia over the last 10 years can't or won't happen to them.[3]

Less than 10 years ago, Republicans held 64 seats in Virginia's 100-member House of Delegates and controlled 7 of the Commonwealth's 11 congressional districts. But political strength erodes when cultural decline is ignored. Since politics is downstream from culture, states that neglect moral and cultural decay long enough eventually discover that political collapse is only a matter of time.

The present fight for the soul of America against cultural Marxism cannot be dismissed as ordinary partisan bickering. It is not. It is a battle over whether a culture lives, dies, or becomes something else. And any state unwilling to act with urgency may soon discover that what happened in Virginia can also happen in Texas.

Yet, thankfully, as A.W. Pink observed in his classic The Life of David, "Man's extremity is God's opportunity." But God does not always or even usually act immediately when His people are brought low. No, "He waits to be gracious" [Isa. 30:18], so that our helplessness may be more fully realized, His delivering hand more clearly seen, and His merciful intervention more deeply appreciated.

In God's Providence, He always has a Gideon or a Rahab in the wings, in training. Impotence comes when people put themselves out of communion with God.

Consider 1 Samuel 16:16. Saul's servants, uneasy over the king's condition and recognizing that an evil spirit from God was tormenting him, suggested that a skilled harpist be found: "And it shall come to pass, when the evil spirit from God is upon thee, that he shall play with his hand, and thou shalt be well."

Such, Pink noted, is the best counsel poor worldlings can offer to those in trouble. Their remedies offer no more than symptom relief. But God was doing something much deeper than soothing Saul. He was bringing David into the palace.

And in David, we see the wondrous working of Providence again. He had been anointed by Samuel for future service, called in time to reign over Israel, but the hour had not yet come for him to occupy the throne. The unsophisticated shepherd boy needed training. So the Providence of God ordered that, for a season, he should dwell in the royal court, where he would have full opportunity to observe its ways, note its corruptions, and discover its needs.

And mark it well: this came about without scheming, manipulation, or self-promotion, either by David himself or by any of his friends.

Joseph followed the same pattern. Pastor Keith Krell notes that Joseph's brothers sold him into slavery, and the Midianites took him down to Egypt and sold him to Potiphar, the chief executioner in Pharaoh's service. However, Joseph's placement there was no accident. The Lord sent him into Potiphar's house to prepare him for the greater assignment that lay ahead: to serve as second in command in Egypt.

Before that could happen, Joseph had to learn the language, culture, business, and politics of Egypt. What looked like betrayal and bondage was, in fact, preparation by Providence.

So it is still. For the Gideons and Rahabs in America who remain in communion with Jehovah God, there is no panic in Heaven. God always has a plan, always has His servants in training, and always knows how to place them in the room before the hour of need arrives.

As for Texas, the real issue is not 2026, but 2030, 2032, 2034, and beyond. Most alarming is the absence of spiritual men and women - Gideons and Rahabs - seated on school boards, city councils, county commissions, state legislatures, courts, and election administration bodies: leaders "who understand the times and know what America should do." [1 Chronicles 12:32]

For if Biblical men and women are not in those rooms, then who will be? Who will shape what kind of people we are to become? Who will help determine what kind of society we will build? Who will form the conduct that conforms to the Biblical standards of right and wrong for our children and grandchildren?

Somebody's values will reign supreme in the public square. Somebody will occupy the seats of influence. Somebody will write the rules, shape the schools, order the courts, administer the elections, and define the moral boundaries of the next generation. The only question is whether the Gideons and Rahabs of this hour will step forward before the ground is lost beneath our feet.

The issue before Texas is not whether it will continue to grow, but whether it will remain Texas. If Biblical men and women do not rise now, if they do not enter the rooms where decisions are made, where laws are framed, where children are formed, and where a culture is either preserved or surrendered, then the state's prosperity will become the instrument of its own undoing.

It bears repeating that somebody's values will reign supreme in the public square. And if the Church will not send her Gideons and Rahabs into the battle, the nation may yet be handed over not by conquest from without, but by abdication from within.

Thankfully, Gideons and Rahabs have begun to rise.

Subject: [EXTERNAL] Religious Accommodation in the workplace

Date: Wed, 29 Apr 2026 13:18:16 -0400

Importance: Normal

My name is [redacted] and I am employed with [redacted] at [redacted]. I am writing to respectfully share a concern regarding my workplace and to seek your guidance or support in addressing the matter.

As a person of faith, observing Sundays for worship with my family and church community is a deeply held and consistent part of my life. In previous summers, I have been required to work Sundays as part of a seven-day operational schedule, even during periods when patron demand appeared to be low the demand on staff is very high creating high turnover and employee burnout. Last year, I submitted a Religious Accommodation request, which resulted in being granted every other Sunday off. While I appreciated that consideration, this arrangement does not fully allow me to observe my faith as I attend and participate in worship every Sunday not every other.

I have recently submitted another Religious Accommodation request in advance of the upcoming summer season. My hope is to reach a solution that allows me to continue fulfilling my job responsibilities during mu regular full-time hours as it stands Tuesday through Saturday 9am-5pm while also honoring my religious commitments. The response given again was only permitting myself and another coworker every other Sunday.

I would be happy to provide copies of my accommodation requests and any supporting documentation if that would be helpful. I appreciate your time and any assistance or direction you may be able to offer if there be any.

Respectfully

Allegations of illegal verbal coercion, deprivation of rights, and gross negligence by law enforcement are severe matters that may constitute police misconduct or civil rights violations. Victims of such actions have legal avenues for recourse, including filing complaints, seeking internal affairs investigations, or pursuing federal civil rights lawsuits.

Steps for Addressing Police Misconduct
Document Everything: Immediately write down a detailed, chronological account of the incident, including the date, time, location, officer names, badge numbers, and any witnesses.
Seek Medical Attention: If you were injured or subjected to physical/mental torture, seek immediate medical care and document all injuries with photographs.
File Formal Complaints: Report the incident to the police department's internal affairs division or a civilian review board.
Contact Federal Authorities: For violations of constitutional rights, you can file a complaint with the FBI (responsible for investigating criminal civil rights violations) or the Department of Justice's Civil Rights Division.
Consult an Attorney: An attorney specializing in civil rights or police brutality can help you evaluate your options, including a Section 1983 lawsuit, which allows you to sue for violations of constitutional rights.

Legal Definitions and Options
Coercion by Police: Police coercion is defined as the use of pressure or intimidation (e.g., threats, physical abuse, or severe psychological techniques) to compel an individual to confess to a crime or act against their will.
Deprivation of Rights: Actions by officers acting "under color of law" (using their authority) that violate your rights, such as illegal searches or false arrest, are violations of Section 1983.
Negligence/Abuse of Process: If a complaint is deliberately ignored or mishandled (gross negligence), it may be possible to pursue a tort claim for misconduct.

Dear AG Blanche,

I have emailed you about some of this and these people and officials before and I doing it again because there is some new developments and fed up with the double standards and hypocrisy.

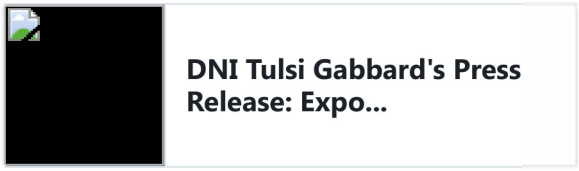

First I'm all for exposing the Deep State and cleaning to the corruption so this is no way in support of the Deep State and corruption.

I recently came across these articles regarding Tulsi Gabbard and it made think about what the FBI / DOJ and others including yourself have been hiding about Tulsi Gabbard instead of telling the public the truth about her and who helped build her Democrat Congressional Career and what they do to Christians which has been well documented by the US State Department / USCIRF and many others including myself.

DNI Tulsi Gabbard Breaks Down the Facts Showing How Democrats and Intelligence Officials Built the Trump Impeachment on HEARSAY | The Gateway Pundit | by Jim Hoft

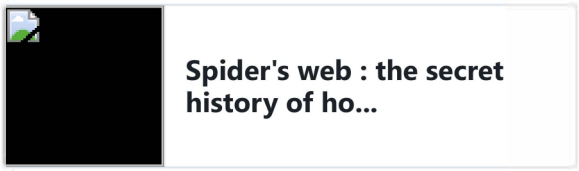

DNI Tulsi Gabbard's Press Release: Exposing Conspiracy Used by Congress to Impeach President Trump - Joe Hoft

I never fell for any of the hoaxes / false allegations against President Trump regarding Russia, Ukraine and etc just to let you know and in fact I contacted some of his other attorneys to try and help him with the Russia / Trump Collusion Hoax because Robert Mueller had been involved with other corruption which is mentioned in this book which I brought to the attention of President Trumps another attorneys and wrote the Trump 45 Administration about. After writing President Trumps other attorney President Trump nominated Bill Barr as AG and he is also mentioned the book and was involved in corruption which is mentioned in the book and had a negative impact on my life after serving in Desert Storm / Gulf War and being exposed to all kinds of crap / toxins which the VA denied for years.

Back To Tulsi Gabbard .

Its totally DISHONEST, shows a great lack on INTEGRITY, high level of HYPOCRISY and STUPIDITY to even have Tulsi has DNI and to even consider any of her recommendations especially what the FBI / DOJ and You know about her being a Hindu and Hindutva helping build her Democrat Congressional Career including with the help of the Overseas Friends of the BJP before they registered as a Foreign Agent after being reported for illegally operating in the US as a Unregistered Foreign Agent and meddling / interfering in our politics / elections but have never been held accountable.

'INNOCENTS IMPRISONED' - Kandhamal's Travesty of Justice #antoakkara

Statements from American Brannon Michael the guy in the video and made during some of our emails exchanges but its appears they have been covered up by the FBI / DOJ and others including yourself instead of holding Tulsi Gabbard and Hindutva accountable.

I had several angry email exchanges with Ram Madhav and said they turned my books look and format into a kind of Communist style agitprop. This really upset Ram Madhav. In the end a truncated version was made that included the work of others called Kandhamal - a fact file (I think)

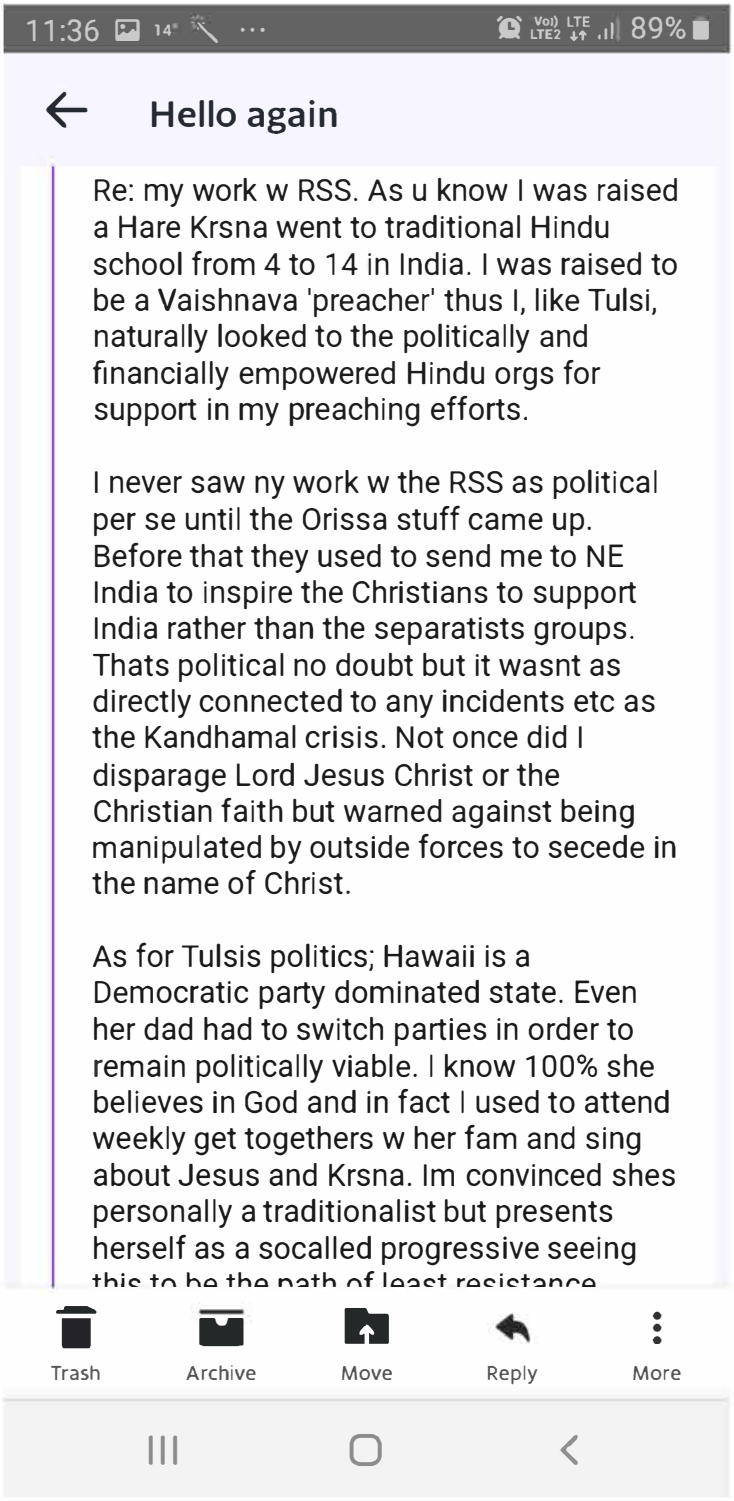

I then selfpublished the report as I had finalized it calling it Orissa in the Crossfire - Kandhamal Burning.

Then in 2011 I finally went to Kandhamal itself and interviewed as many people I could on behalf of the RSS. This report was never made and I eventually uploaded all the interviews to youtube to make it available to the public or any researchers authorities etc.

After I accepted the invitation of a breakaway RSS faction to do a similar report on the Bangladeshi Hindus Ram Madhav and the RSS basically excommunicated me. Thus my 2nd report never made.

Coincidentally I have known Tulsi Gabbard since she was a kid and used to work for her dad. I therefore spent 2 years trying to convince the RSS to take her seriously. They finally did and when she won the 2012 election Ram Madhav called me from India to congratulate me and that was pretty much thenlast time ive heard from him or anyone in the RSS.

I wrote u again because I really was impressed with my Ram Madhav emails. (RM and I also talked on the phone about it by the way and we made up and fell out again in 2011 when I told an American philanthropist in India that the RSS. identified her as a CIA agent. Then we made up again when Tulsi was elected to congress. I intentionally retired from activism in 2015 and havent had any connection since)

Hello again
Re: my work w RSS. As u know I was raised a Hare Krsna went to traditional Hindu school from 4 to 14 in India. I was raised to be a Vaishnava 'preacher' thus I, like Tulsi, naturally looked to the politically and financially empowered Hindu orgs for support in my preaching efforts.
I never saw ny work w the RSS as political per se until the Orissa stuff came up. Before that they used to send me to NE India to inspire the Christians to support India rather than the separatists groups. Thats political no doubt but it wasnt as directly connected to any incidents etc as the Kandhamal crisis. Not once did I disparage Lord Jesus Christ or the Christian faith but warned against being manipulated by outside forces to secede in the name of Christ.
As for Tulsis politics; Hawaii is a Democratic party dominated state. Even her dad had to switch parties in order to remain politically viable. I know 100% she believes in God and in fact I used to attend weekly get togethers w her fam and sing about Jesus and Krsna. Im convinced shes personally a traditionalist but presents herself as a socalled progressive seeing

I then spent about 2 months in India at various RSS branches using their computers to research news articles online. CoincidentallyI arrived in Bombay 4 hrs before the terror attack so was stuck there for about 2 weeks but continued to research Kandhamal.

I then returned to my former home near Seattle and spent about 5 months researching and writing the report. Once completed I submitted it to Ram Madhav.

So the idea I was some kind of phony fromtman for an RSS propaganda anti christian hit piece is incorrect and demeaning of my efforts. It was a genuine and sincere attempt on my part to investigate the truth regarding Kandhamal and the related crisis.

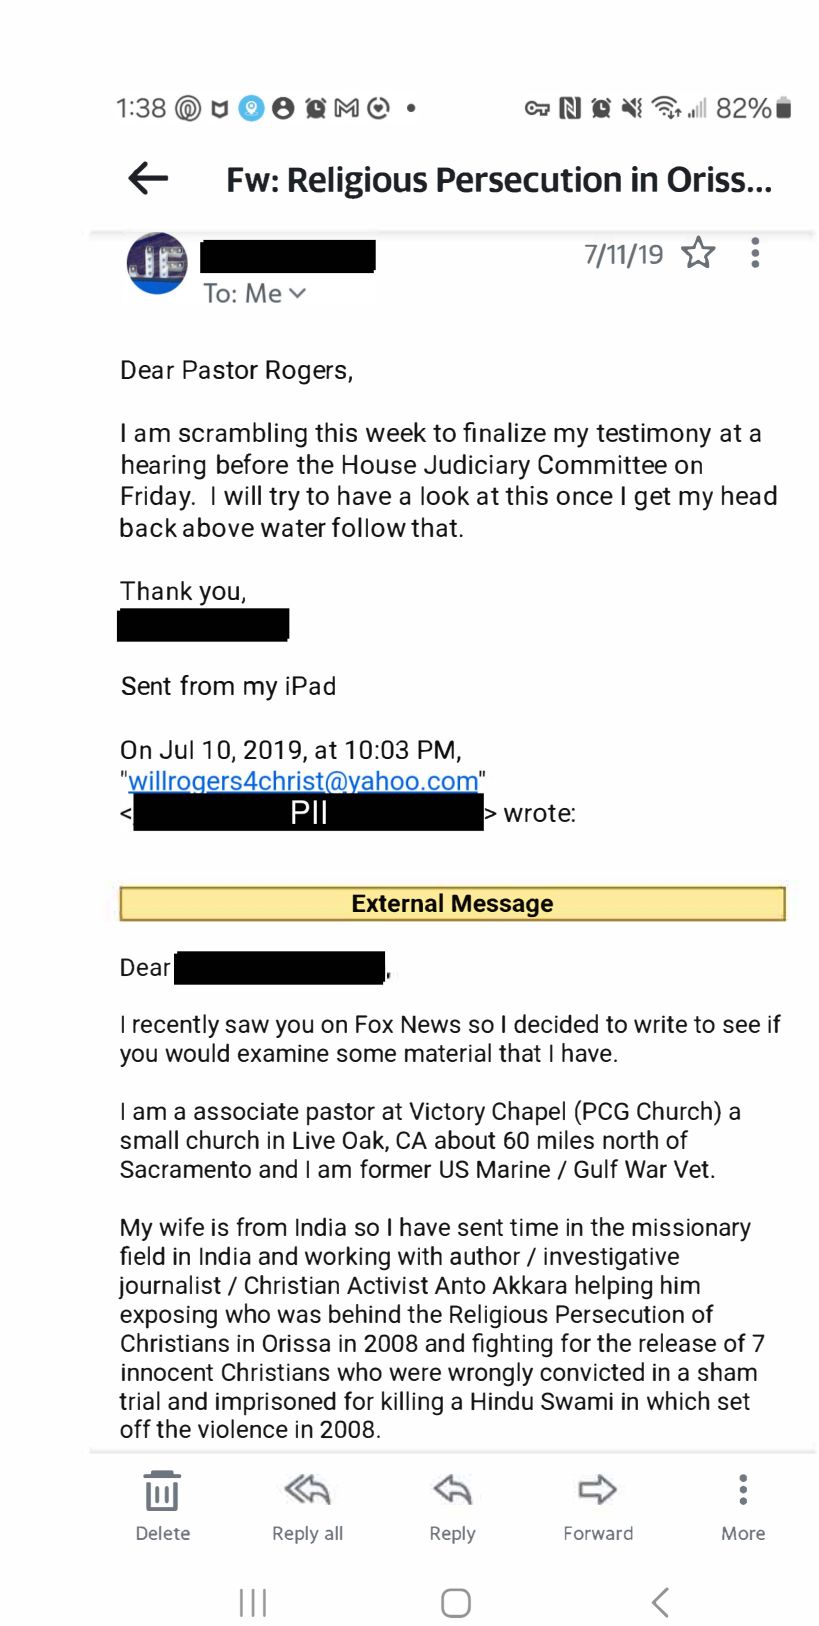

There were indeed some issues with the way the RSS dealt with me and my effort but they are the typical kind of things that happen when dealing with large institutions.

1. The measly $500 I was paid for nealry a years work. Even then all my travel room board food was paid for by people connected to the RSS.

2. Upon receiving the final draft of my report the RSS made many changes without consulting me. I was specifically outraged by the title of Harvest of Hate. Their choice of pictures appaled me as well. Removal of chapter headings yet I didnt find any extreme changes to the actual report. I did not agree with the style they presented and demanded that they revoke the book from public distribution. Ram Madhav immediately complied and their version was removed from the public.

I had several angry email exchanges with Ram

I am a associate pastor at Victory Chapel (PCG Church) a small church in Live Oak, CA about 60 miles north of Sacramento and I am former US Marine / Gulf War Vet.
My wife is from India so I have sent time in the missionary field in India and working with author / investigative journalist / Christian Activist Anto Akkara helping him exposing who was behind the Religious Persecution of Christians in Orissa in 2008 and fighting for the release of 7 innocent Christians who were wrongly convicted in a sham trial and imprisoned for killing a Hindu Swami in which set off the violence in 2008.

Fw: Religious Persecution in Oriss...

Please watch the short documentary on YouTube: "Innocents Imprisoned Kandhamal Travesty of Justice"

Before the swami was killed he made a delusional video accusing the U.S. , the Pope, Sonia Gandhi and others of a conspiracy against him to remove him from Orissa so they could basically carry out their foreign agenda to convert Orissa into a Christian Land so we suspect the video might have had something to do with his death such as the Hindus killing him so they could accuse the Christians of killing him.

Shortly after I started working with Anto I contacted the Family Research Council / Tony Perkins and started sharing material with Religious Freedom Advocate Travis Weber so they started working with the ADF Attorneys representing the 7 Innocents and they posted two blogs regarding Religious Freedom in India and the 7 Innocents.

1. India's Opportunity for Religious Freedom

2. Christians Under Fire in India

I discovered some ties which made me suspect the Republican Party's loyalty to Evangelical Christians so I asked FRC about the ties and then they stopped responding to my emails.

We originally suspected that the RSS, RSS Ex Ram Madhav, the India Foundation, present Finance Minister Sitharaman and National Security Adviser Doval used U.S. Names Michael Parker and Brannon Parker and Ghost Writers for a report "Harvest of Hate" that they wrote, prepared, published and submitted to the US State Department to help cover up Religious Persecution in Orissa because we could not find any contact information for the Parker's.

But in late 2018 I returned to the US to try and get political attention to the 7 Innocents and search for the Parker's which I did for about two weeks until I discovered some Hindu material he posted online, videos he made in Orissa and a email address he was using with an alias so I reached out to him and started a dialogue with him which has been ongoing.

The recordings he made in Orissa was interviews he made with victims, witnesses, suspects, police officers, Hindu Tribal Leaders, advocates, politicians, justices and others linked to the violence in Orissa.

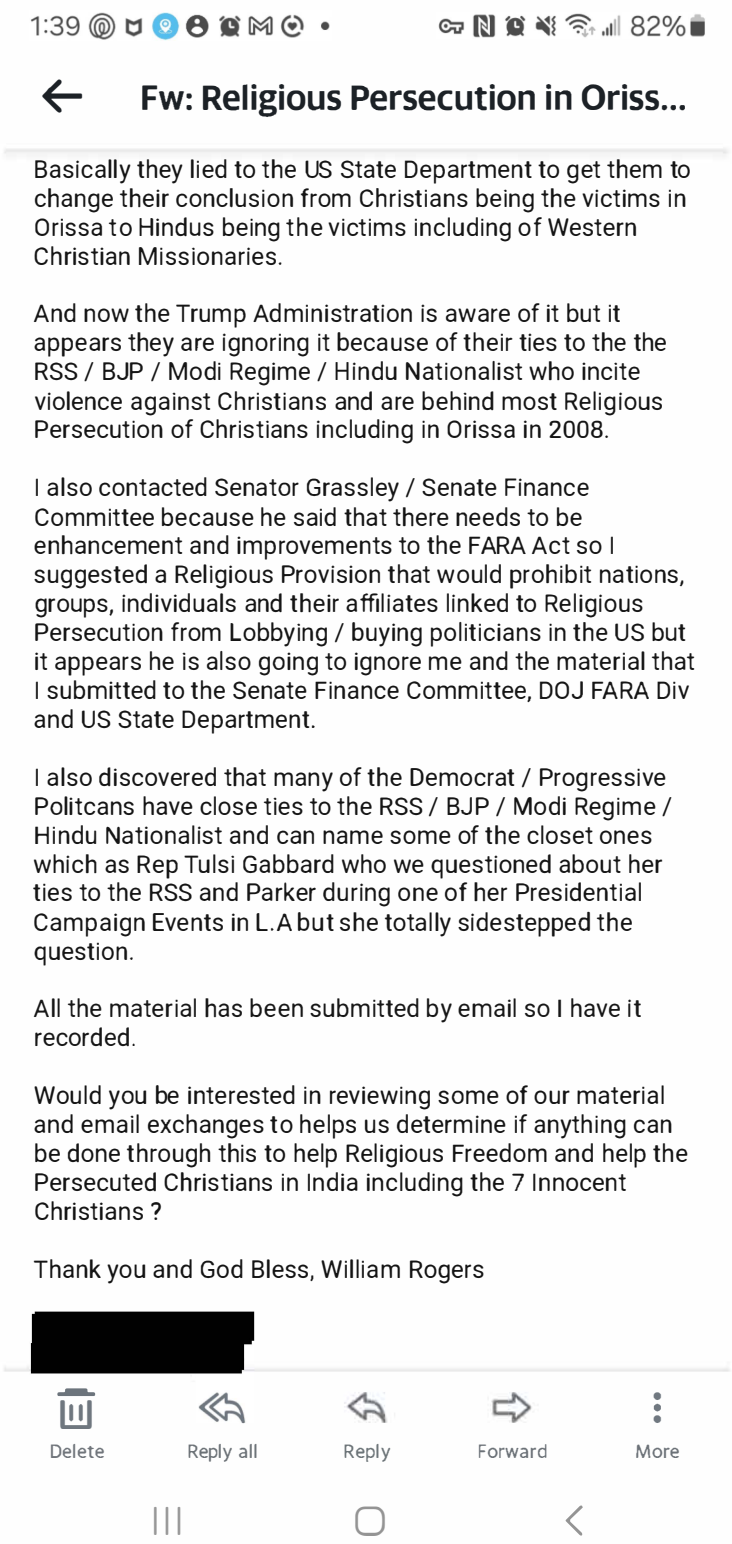

The recordings basically help prove that they lied to the US State Department to help cover up Religious Persecution , Christians were the victims and not Hindus as they claim, the best murder suspects are those closest to swami who took leave and left their post and that the 7 Christian are innocent.

Parker has confessed to working with / for the RSS and etc and he basically confessed to initiating RSS / Foreign Influence into Tulsi Gabbard congressional campaign which appears to be ongoing into her Presidential Campaign.

I have been a Trump supporter because I believed that he was pro-Christian and pro-Religious so I contacted the Trump Administration, DOJ FARA Div., Federal Election Committee and the US State Department including Ambassador Brownback but I did not get a pro-Christian and pro-Religious Freedom reply back which made me suspicious and dig deeper until I discovered the Republican Party and the Trump Organization'se, Trump Campaign and Trump Administration has close ties to the RSS / BJP / Modi Regimee/ Hindu Nationalist including through Republican Hindu Coalition Chairman Kumar and US India PAC Sanjay Puri.

The Trump Campaign including Ivanka Trump and her husband Jared Kushner and the Trump Administration including Sec Pompeo who claims to be a Christian have close ties to Finance Minister Sitharaman and National Security Adviser Doval who are linked to the Religious Persecution of Christians in Orissa, falsely accusing the Christians for the problems in Orissa , falsely accusing Christians of the swami's murder while ignoring those closest to him as the most likely suspects.

Basically they lied to the US State Department to get them to

Some evidence that helps support my allegations about Tulsi Gabbard and Hindutva and makes it undeniable they helped build her Democrat Congressional Career.

"We're talking now to Afghanistan, and we want it back and we want it back soon, right away. And if they don't do it — if they don't, you're going to find out what I'm gonna do." ~ Donald J. Trump.

So, THIS 👇is what Americans support:
✔️ 880+ military bases abroad — still growing
✔️ Threats, terror, bombings, mass slaughters
✔️ Lies, propaganda, media manipulation
✔️ Coups, regime changes, and place puppet rulers
✔️ Theft/access of gold, oil, minerals, strategic resources
✔️ Endless wars as policy
✔️ Smear campaigns to silence dissent

Now the peace-bubblehead Trump talks of taking back Bagram by hook or by crook. OR ELSE...
➡️ More violence.
➡️ More slaughters.
➡️ More wars.
➡️ More blood.
➡️ More conflicts.
➡️ More civilian deaths.

Egotistic, arrogant, venomous Donald J. Trump and his MAGA mob fear brown Hindu Indians. His own ancestors arrived penniless — Frederick Trump, his great-grandfather, a 16-year-old barber and miner, entered the U.S. as an unskilled laborer. His "qualification"? White & Christian. Poor Mary MacLeod, his mother, a house servant and maid from Scotland, came with almost nothing. Her qualification? White & Christian. Meanwhile, his current wife somehow snagged a genius visa. What kinda genius did she bring from Slovenia?

Yet today, Trump slaps $100,000 H1B fees on skilled immigrants while selling "gold" and "platinum" cards for millions.

The irony is sharp: the family that clawed its way from humble background now trembles at the success of brown Hindu Indians.

Egotistic, arrogant, venomous Donald J. Trump and his MAGA mob fear brown Hindu Indians. His own ancestors arrived penniless — Frederick Trump, his great-grandfather, a 16-year-old barber and miner, entered the U.S. as an unskilled laborer. His "qualification"? White & Christian. Poor Mary MacLeod, his mother, a house servant and maid from Scotland, came with almost nothing. Her qualification? White & Christian. Meanwhile, his current wife somehow snagged a genius visa. What kinda genius did she bring from Slovenia?

Yet today, Trump slaps $100,000 H1B fees on skilled immigrants while selling "gold" and "platinum" cards for millions.

The irony is sharp: the family that clawed its way from humble background now trembles at the success of brown Hindu Indians.

Isn't it staggering—though utterly horrifying—how white Christian nationalists and far-right radicals "self-indigenise" themselves, strutting about with a self-proclaimed licence to murder, plunder, and seize the land of others?

Their so-called justification is laughably simple:

"Native Americans are immigrants; therefore, European settlers had the right to 'conquer' their land."

The mindset is as brazen as it is vile: God gave this land to white European Christians who arrived a mere century or two ago, not to the Indigenous peoples who have inhabited it for 15,000 years. Apparently, this is all part of His 'divine' plan. 😊

These people wrap colonisation and conquest in the cloak of divine favour, claiming moral superiority as cover for theft and slaughter. Sound familiar? It is eerily similar to historical religious conquests—take 7th-century Islam, for instance—where the world had to be converted or conquered in the name of heaven.

The pattern is depressingly clear: dehumanise, claim divine mandate, and commit atrocities with moral impunity.

'INNOCENTS IMPRISONED' - Kandhamal's Travesty of Justice #antoakkara

I had several angry email exchanges with Ram Madhav and said they turned my books look and format into a kind of Communist style agitprop. This really upset Ram Madhav. In the end a truncated version was made that included the work of others called Kandhamal - a fact file (I think)

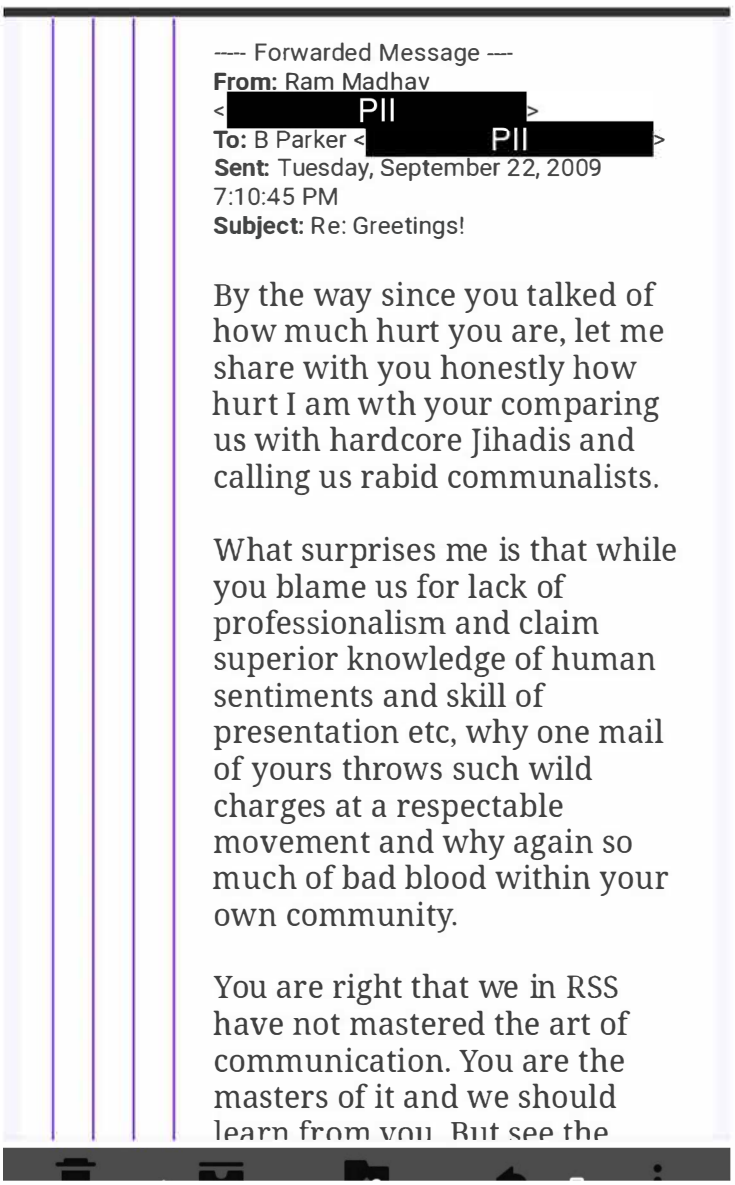

I then selfpublished the report as I had finalized it calling it Orissa in the Crossfire - Kandhamal Burning.

Then in 2011 I finally went to Kandhamal itself and interviewed as many people I could on behalf of the RSS. This report was never made and I eventually uploaded all the interviews to youtube to make it available to the public or any researchers authorities etc.

After I accepted the invitation of a breakaway RSS faction to do a similar report on the Bangladeshi Hindus Ram Madhav and the RSS basically excommunicated me. Thus my 2nd report never made.

Coincidentally I have known Tulsi Gabbard since she was a kid and used to work for her dad. I therefore spent 2 years trying to convince the RSS to take her seriously. They finally did and when she won the 2012 election Ram Madhav called me from India to congratulate me and that was pretty much thenlast time ive heard from him or anyone in the RSS.

'Harvest of Hate' is an example of straight up communist style idealogically driven juvenile agit-prop. When I first saw the book my first instinct was one of rejection. This was based upon the title. What sane person wants anything to do with hate? It is ugly and unattractive and goes against every rule of successful propoganda and effective media promotion. It wins no hearts and convinces none. At best it adds to the many dust collecting publications that are read by none beyond those already convinced or those duty bound to read them.

Executive Summary: Compromised by Foreign Influence

Introduction

Critical National Security Role: The Director of National Intelligence (DNI) must prioritize U.S. national security above all else. Tulsi Gabbard's deep ties to foreign nationalist movements compromise her ability to do so.

Proven Risk of Foreign Influence: Gabbard's associations with India's Hindu nationalist (Hindutva) movement, including Prime Minister Narendra Modi, the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) paramilitary, and the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), raise concerns about her allegiance to America's interests.

Background on the RSS and Modi

RSS Overview: The RSS is a Hindu nationalist paramilitary organization in India that promotes the establishment of a Hindu nation through the oppression and extermination of Christians and Muslims.

Modi's Record: Modi, a lifelong member of the RSS and India's Prime Minister since 2014, has been implicated in grave human rights violations, including the 2002 Gujarat massacre of 2,000 Muslims. This earned him a U.S. travel ban from 2005-2014.

Gabbard's Hindutva Ties

Financial Backing: Gabbard has accepted substantial campaign donations from RSS and BJP-affiliated donors, including the Hindu Swayamsevak Sangh (HSS) and the Overseas Friends of BJP, a registered Foreign Agent in the U.S. Many of these donors worked to get Modi elected, even traveling from America to India to campaign for him. In exchange, Gabbard has opposed U.S. efforts to hold Hindutva accountable for human rights abuses.

Advocacy and Influence: She has spoken at numerous RSS-linked events (including in India), hosted RSS-BJP representatives at her wedding, and even worn the BJP logo at OFBJP events.

Defender of Hindutva Ideology: Gabbard has publicly defended Hindu nationalism as "pride in one's religion," despite its documented role in violence and oppression.

DOJ-RLC Comment-005359

Executive Summary: Compromised by Foreign Influence

Threat to America First Policies

India's Authoritarian Shift: Under Modi, India has become increasingly autocratic, with rampant violence against religious minorities, bans on religious conversion, and systemic oppression of dissidents.

Transnational Repression: India has exported its oppressive practices, including the assassination of a Canadian citizen on Canadian soil and an attempted assassination of a U.S. citizen. Such actions blatantly violate North American sovereignty.

Gabbard's Complicit Silence: Her refusal to condemn these acts raises concerns that, as DNI, she would shield Modi's regime and block investigations into foreign interference.

National Security Implications

Compromised Leadership: Gabbard's close ties to a foreign nationalist movement make her unfit to lead the intelligence community, which must remain independent of foreign influence.

Risk to Sovereignty: Allowing someone with such connections to serve as DNI could jeopardize U.S. sovereignty and endanger American citizens.

Call to Action

Protect U.S. Interests: Congress must prioritize national security by opposing Gabbard's appointment.

Safeguard American Sovereignty: Rejecting this nomination sends a clear message that foreign influence in U.S. leadership will not be tolerated.

Conclusion

Unfit for the Role: Tulsi Gabbard's record of prioritizing foreign interests, participating in events promoting a Hindu supremacist political movement, and defending oppressive ideologies disqualifies her for the position of DNI. Congress must act to ensure that U.S. intelligence leadership serves the American people — not foreign agendas.

DOJ-RLC Comment-005360

Intro: Gabbard's Hindu Nationalist Ties

Tulsi Gabbard, the former U.S. Representative from Hawaii and 2020 Democratic presidential candidate, is a controversial and nebulous figure in American politics. From endorsing U.S. Senator Bernie Sanders as the progressive choice in 2016 to endorsing Donald Trump in 2020, Gabbard has proven a political chameleon whose principles and allegiances are malleable.

Tis can be explained. by the greatest influence on Gabbard's political career: her connections to the family of Hindu nationalist organizations known as the "Sangh Parivar" and her support for Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

This dossier examines those ties and how they have shaped — and even made — her political career. These ties have NOTHING to do with religion but are explicitly and specifically about a particular ideology (Hindu nationalism) and interconnected organizations in both India and the U.S. which promote it.

The length and depth of Tulsi Gabbard's relationship with the Hindu nationalist movement suggests that she is politically compromised. As detailed in this dossier, Gabbard's oldest, largest, and most faithful campaign donors and allies 1) belong to American affiliates of the Sangh Parivar; 2) maintain intimate ties with Sangh Parivar parent groups in India; and 3) worked to get Modi elected in India as well as to promote him in America.

This also has nothing to do with U.S. political parties. As one of Gabbard's most faithful Hindu nationalist supporters, Bharat Barai, put it when questioned about backing her: "It doesn't matter to me whether it is a Republican or Democrat." As one of the U.S.'s chief champions of Modi, Barai's implicit message seems to be he doesn't care about partisanship but only about who will side with Modi's global agenda. Tulsi Gabbard has been that person.

Will Gabbard put American interests before those of Hindu nationalists, particularly as the Modi regime is recently accused of attempting to assassinate its critics in North America? Due to her Hindutva ties, which explicitly mean having ties to a foreign government, confirming Tulsi Gabbard as Director of National Intelligence is a threat to U.S. national security.

DOJ-RLC Comment-005361

Background on Hindu Nationalism

Hindu nationalism, also known as Hindutva, is a political ideology that seeks to define Indian culture and identity in terms of Hindu supremacist values and beliefs. The primary organization promoting this ideology is the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS), founded in 1925. The RSS and its affiliated organizations, collectively known as the Sangh Parivar, advocate for the primacy of Hinduism in India and often promote discrimination and organize violence against religious minorities, particularly Muslims and Christians.

The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), currently led by Prime Minister Narendra Modi, is the political wing of the Sangh Parivar. Modi himself has a long history with the RSS, having been a full-time worker (pracharak) for the organization before entering politics. Other major Sangh Parivar affiliates include the Vishwa Hindu Parishad (VHP, the religious wing) and Sewa Bharati (the charitable wing).

DOJ-RLC Comment-005362

Sangh Parivar Violence

The Sangh Parivar is implicated in many acts of communal violence in India, particularly targeting religious minorities such as Christians and Muslims.

1992 Babri Masjid Demolition and Subsequent Massacre
One of the most significant events associated with the Sangh Parivar was the mob demolition of the Babri Masjid in Ayodhya on December 6, 1992. The VHP, along with other Sangh organizations, claimed the mosque was built on the birthplace of the Hindu god Ram.

A large group of activists, including members of the VHP, RSS, and BJP, demolished the 16th-century mosque, sparking widespread communal violence across India, resulting in the deaths of at least 2,000 people, mostly Muslims. The demolition was allegedly planned months in advance by top Sangh leaders.

DOJ-RLC Comment-005363

2002 Gujarat Massacre

The 2002 Gujarat Massacre was the largest-scale anti-minority violence by the Sangh Parivar. The massacre, which lasted for several months, resulted in the deaths of up to 2,000 Indian Muslims.

Widespread allegations of state complicity in the violence included Modi, who was then Chief Minister of Gujarat. Modi was accused of condoning the violence and allowing police and government officials to direct attackers and provide them with lists of Muslim-owned properties. After the massacre, Modi was banned from the U.S., the U.K., and other Western nations.

2008 Odisha Massacre

In 2008, the state of Odisha (formerly Orissa) witnessed a series of attacks against Christians, primarily in the Kandhamal district. These attacks were led by the Sangh Parivar, including elected officials from the BJP. The violence resulted in the deaths of nearly 100 Christians, the destruction of hundreds of churches and homes, and the displacement of tens of thousands of people.

DOJ-RLC Comment-005364

Sangh Parivar Violence

The Sangh Parivar is implicated in numerous other instances of communal violence across India. These include:

- The 1992-1993 Bombay riots, which followed the Babri Masjid demolition and claimed over 700 lives, mostly Muslims.
- The 1989 Bhagalpur violence in Bihar, where over 1,000 people were killed in riots allegedly instigated by VHP processions.
- Attacks on Christians in Gujarat and other parts of India, which intensified after the BJP came to power at the national level in 1998 and again in 2014.

Sangh Parivar organizations use communal violence to strengthen their political power base. Human Rights Watch, for instance classifies violence against Indian Christians and Muslims as a tactic used by the Sangh to encourage and exploit communal tensions for political ends.

The violence often follows a similar pattern: the use of hate speech and propaganda to inflame communal tensions, followed by coordinated attacks on minority communities. In most cases, there is evidence of state complicity, with police and local authorities either failing to intervene or actively participating in the violence.

Such violence occurs at a large-scale level every few years, but it also occurs on a daily basis via mob attacks on Church services, vigilante violence against people accused of not being "Hindu enough," lynchings in the streets, and more.

The impact of this violence extends beyond the immediate loss of life and property. It has led to the displacement of hundreds of thousands of people, the destruction of places of worship and cultural heritage, and has deepened the divisions between religious communities in India.

Despite numerous investigations and commissions, most of those responsible for orchestrating and carrying out these acts of violence have not been brought to justice, contributing to a culture of impunity.

DOJ-RLC Comment-005365

American Sangh Parivar Outfits

The Sangh Parivar has many international wings which are directly linked to the parent groups in India. These include:

Hindu Swayamsevak Sangh (HSS, the U.S. wing of the RSS)
Vishwa Hindu Parishad of America (VHPA, the U.S. wing of the VHP)
Overseas Friends of the BJP (OFBJP, the U.S. wing of the BJP)
Sewa International (SI, the U.S. wing of Sewa Bharati)
Ekal Vidyalaya (an organization founded in the U.S. to provide "single-teacher" schools in India for indoctrinating schoolchildren in RSS ideology

The corollaries are clear. The RSS is at the heart. The HSS is the international — and, in America, the U.S. — wing. Everything else in the Sangh Parivar (the family of Hindu nationalist organizations) springs from the RSS-HSS. Inside India, most Sangh Parivar groups openly adopt a supremacist ideology and overtly embrace the Hindutva idea of excluding non-Hindus from public life. Outside of India, most Sangh groups use a politically expedient approach of "multiculturalism" and "minority rights" to gain power in their adopted countries while implicitly supporting persecution of minorities in India itself.

DOJ-RLC Comment-005366

American Sangh Parivar Outfits

These American "wings" of the Sangh Parivar are affiliated with their Indian counterparts in ways such as:

- American Sangh Parivar outfits like the HSS and VHPA were founded by emigrants who were originally members of the RSS and VHP in India.
- HSS and VHPA leaders often travel to India to receive training at camps hosted by the RSS and VHP.
- American Sangh Parivar outfits raise money in the U.S. before sending millions of dollars to their counterparts in India.
- Sangh Parivar leaders are frequently brought from India to tour and inspect units of the American Sangh Parivar.
- American Sangh Parivar leaders organize activities in the U.S., and also travel to India, to support election of the BJP.

Leaders of American Sangh Parivar typically hold over-lapping leadership positions with multiple organizations. Cross-pollinated leadership is common.

For example, Ramesh Bhutada is both the vice-president of HSS-USA and the chair of Sewa International — and he has also worked with OFBJP.

Overview: Gabbard's Hindutva Ties

Tulsi Gabbard wearing the BJP scarf at a June 2014 OFBJP gathering in Los Angeles

Three major pillars prove Tulsi Gabbard's extensive ties to Hindu nationalism:

1. Campaign Donations: According to analysis of Federal Election Commission records, at least 105 current and former officers and members of American Sangh affiliates (including the HSS, VHPA, and OFBJP), and their families, have donated hundreds of thousands of dollars to Gabbard's campaigns since 2011.
2. Event Attendance and Personal Relationships: Gabbard attended and keynoted a minimum of 12 Sangh Parivar events from 2012 to 2015, including in India. These include events for the HSS, the VHPA, and the OFBJP (the OFBJP is now registered as a Foreign Agent in America as it is directly controlled by India's BJP). She has additionally cultivated personal relationships with key Hindutva leaders.
3. Rhetoric/Policy: Gabbard repeatedly used her official position to 1) roadblock attempts to criticize Hindu nationalist violence and 2) offer apologetics for Modi and Hindu nationalism in general. This includes her 2013 opposition to H. Res. 417, condemnation of a 2014 Tom Lantos Human Rights Commission hearing on the conditions in India, and 2019 apologetics for the 2022 Gujarat massacre (which left 2,000 Muslims dead at the hands of Hindutva actors) and justification of Hindu nationalism.

DOJ-RLC Comment-005368

Campaign Financing By U.S. Hindutva

Gabbard's connections to Hindu nationalist groups and figures have translated into crucial financial and political support:

1. Out-of-State Donations: While serving as a U.S. representative from Hawaii, a large portion of Gabbard's campaign contributions come from out-of-state Hindutva donors, often after keynoting Sangh Parivar events.
2. Fundraising Events: Gabbard has been hosted at numerous fundraising events organized by Hindutva leaders which often generated tens of thousands of donations. These include events featuring major American Hindutva leaders like Bharat Barai, Ramesh Bhutada, and Mihir Meghani.

Extent of Hindutva Donations

Between 2011-2014, up to 24% per year of Gabbard's campaign donations came from identifiable Sangh and pro-Modi sources. These donations must be contextualized as often coming from donors who were simultaneously working, from America, to get Modi elected in India. Specifically:

In her first congressional campaign (2011-2012):
Gabbard received nearly $94,000 (about 10% of total itemized individual donations) from clearly identifiable Sangh and pro-Modi sources.
By the end of 2012, this amount had grown to about $190,000 out of $923,000 total (over 20%).

In 2013, her first year in office:
About $112,600 of Gabbard's itemized individual donations (20.7%) came from Sangh and pro-Modi sources.
Over $90,000 of that was given in June and July alone.

In 2014, while running for re-election to a 2nd term:
$123,000 of Gabbard's itemized individual donations (about 24% of the total) came from Sangh and pro-Modi sources.

The extent of financial support from Hindutva sources — combined with her associations as well as her rhetoric and policies — strongly suggest that, especially as she was campaigning for her reelection to a second term in 2012, she owed much of her political success to backing by the American Sangh Parivar.

DOJ-RLC Comment-005369

Tulsi Gabbard's Key Hindutva Donors

Gabbard has received hundreds of thousands of dollars from Hindutva-linked donors to both her U.S. congressional and presidential campaigns since 2011. At one point, up to 25 percent per year of her total itemized individual campaign donations came from such sources — that point being when many of those donors were simultaneously working to elect Modi in India. Some of the top donors who are most intimately linked to Modi and the Sangh Parivar in India include the following individuals (and their direct family members):

Bharat Barai. Total: $25,405. Barai is a longtime executive with the VHPA. He hosted Modi in his home in Chicagoland in the 1990s, organized multiple videoconferences with Modi and American Hindutva supporters in the 2000s, led a 650-member team to India in 2014 to campaign for Modi's election, and helped organize a "rockstar reception" to host and promote Modi in New York City. He is now a registered Foreign Agent in the U.S.

Ramesh Bhutada. Total: $37,400. Bhutada is the longtime vice-president of the HSS-USA. He has hosted the chief of the RSS in his home in Houston, organized a 700-person phone-bank to call from America to India to urge people to vote for Modi, and helped organize a "rockstar reception" to host and promote Modi in Houston.

Mihir Meghani. Total: $47,651. Meghani, co-founder of Hindu American Foundation (HAF), is notorious for penning a defense of the BJP's embrace of "Hindutva" as "the great Hindu nationalist ideology," spending time in India in the 1990s with RSS leaders, and serving as a leader of the VHPA. In 2013, he issued a fundraising letter mentioning Gabbard in which he indicated he was only donating to candidates who supported Modi.

Suhag Shukla. Total: $11,850. Shukla, as Executive Director of HAF, oversees an organization which has been accused of serving as an American political advocacy group for Modi. A D.C. staffer in 2014 reported that HAF was "definitely trying to undermine anyone in Washington who is critical of Modi." Suhag's husband, Aseem, has penned articles attacking Human Rights Watch for its "character assassination" of Modi in accusing him, based on evidence, of involvement in the 2002 Gujarat Massacre.

Sangh Events and Fundraisers

Gabbard has spoken at a dozen or more events organized by the Sangh Parivar from 2012-2015 (including two in India) — as well as many Sangh fundraisers for her political campaigns. These are jus a few examples:

In August 2012, a week after winning her primary election, Gabbard spoke at her first Sangh event: a VHPA conference in San Jose, California.

In September 2012, Gabbard attended her first Sangh fundraiser, hosted in Florida by OFBJP National Councillor Satya Shaw.

In October 2012, Gabbard attended her second Sangh fundraiser, hosted in Texas by Vijay Pallod, who later traveled to India to campaign for Modi.

In June 2013, Gabbard keynoted her first HSS event in Chicago.

In October 2013, Gabbard keynoted two VHPA events in Atlanta. At the second event, one of the hosts demanded she invite Modi — who was still banned from the U.S. — to address a Joint Session of Congress.

In November 2013, Gabbard keynoted an HSS event in Australia.

Sangh Events and Fundraisers

Some of Gabbard's most significant open association with the Sangh came in 2014, immediately after Modi was elected.

In June 2014, she keynoted an OFBJP banquet in Los Angeles celebrating Modi's election. Pictures from the event show her wearing a BJP scarf throughout. In return, she received thousands of dollars in donations from OFBJP leaders (like Ravi Tilak) as well as from the then HSS president.

Also in June 2014, an organizer of an OFBJP event in Atlanta told his 700-person audience that Gabbard "has been doing work for you" by opposing a U.S. congressional "resolution against Narendra Modi" before his election. In return, he told them: "Open up your check books. Write a check for her because she's fighting election in 2014."

In August 2014, Gabbard keynoted an OFBJP event in Atlanta alongside Vijay Jolly, a BJP politician from India who was then serving as head of chief of the BJP's Foreign Affairs Cell. Speaking to an audience of mostly American citizens, Gabbard praised them for their "hard work" to get Modi elected and said it only happened because of them. In return, she received thousands more in campaign donations from Sangh-linked Georgia donors.

OFBJP Interference in Reelection

When speaking at the August 2014 OFBJP banquet in Atlanta, which was hosted to celebrate Modi's victory in India, Gabbard was then running for reelection to a second term. At the event, which was organized to promote a foreign political party:

> OFBJP organizer Dhiru Shah, master of ceremonies, stated: "It's necessary that we support a person like Congresswoman Tulsi Gabbard. And whatever the donations you make is not enough, because she needs to win."
> Vijay Jolly, then the BJP's Foreign Affairs Cell Chief, stated: "We are sure, with the support of the people of Indian origin, the non-resident Indians and, of course, the US citizens, your victory later this year is a foregone conclusion.... I'm predicting today for your victory." Jolly also compared Gabbard's electoral success to Modi's.
> Jolly noted in his speech that it was his third time meeting Gabbard, suggesting that the two had interacted repeatedly before Modi's election.
> When questioned in 2020 about wearing a BJP scarf, Gabbard responded: "Somebody put something around my neck and snapped a picture without my knowing what it was." Her answer did not reflect that she wore the BJP scarf at two separate events in two separate states, that both events were hosted by the OFBJP to celebrate the victory of the BJP, and that the picture from Atlanta was taken with her co-speaker, who is a BJP politician. Her response implies duplicity.

Intimate Relationships With Hindutva

Beyond her relationships with Hindutva as a politician, Gabbard appears to have much deeper and more intimate connections to some major Sangh figures and pro-Hindutva organizations, both those in the U.S. and from India.

Ram Madhav: Madhav was national spokesperson for the RSS from2003 to 2014, at which time he became a national spokesperson for the BJP. In 2015, Madhav flew to Hawaii to attend and speak at Gabbard's wedding. He presented her with a personal gift directly from Modi.

The Bhutada Family: Vijay Pallod, the cousin-in-law of HSS Vice-President Ramesh Bhutada, was the first Sangh-affiliated donor to support Gabbard. Pallod, along with the entire Bhutada family (Ramesh, his son Rishi, and their wives) flew to Hawaii to attend Gabbard's 2015 wedding.

The Hindu American Foundation (HAF): Gabbard ties with HAF are so close that Gabbard has said, while in office, that she was in touch with them "if not on a daily basis, probably a weekly basis." Additionally, shortly before she decided to ran for president, she met with HAF Executive Director Suhag Shukla in her DC office.

Rhetoric/Policy Supporting Hindutva

Gabbard's support for Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi, before and after his initial election in 2014, are a foundational aspect of her political career:

1. Opposition to Anti-Modi Resolution: In 2013, Gabbard opposed House Resolution 417, which criticized Hindu nationalist violence like the 2002 Gujarat riots that occurred under Modi's watch as Chief Minister.
2. Visa Ban Opposition: Gabbard vocally opposed the George W. Bush administration's decision to deny Modi a visa in 2005 due to his alleged role in the 2002 Gujarat riots. She was one of the few members of U.S. Congress who met with BJP President Rajnath Singh in 2013 when he visited the U.S. to lobby for lifting Modi's visa ban.
3. Personal Meetings: Gabbard has met with Modi at least four times. She was one of the first U.S. politicians to meet with Modi after his election as Prime Minister in 2014. In that first meeting, she gifted him her childhood copy of the Bhagavad Gita. The warmth and intimacy of her welcome of Modi — after he was banned from the U.S. for nearly 10 years — indicated that she was attempting to rehabilitate his image.
4. Pro-Modi Rhetoric: Gabbard has consistently praised Modi, calling him an "indispensable partner" to the United States and pushing for enhanced cooperation between the two countries. In India, in 2015, she argued that there was a "lot of misinformation" about the Sangh's 2002 Gujarat Massacre. In 2019, running for president, she further justified the massacre.
5. Defense of Hindu Nationalism: Gabbard has argued that "Hindu nationalism" simply means "expressing pride in one's religion."

National Security Concerns

Tulsi Gabbard's ties to Hindu nationalist groups, particularly those linked to the Indian government, are so foundational to her national political career that it makes her deeply compromised as the U.S. Director of National Intelligence. The complex interplay between diaspora politics, foreign policy, and domestic political ambitions exemplified by Gabbard's case rings alarm bells about the the influence of foreign ideological movements on U.S. politicians

Some specific national security concerns — as well as concerns about the safety of Modi critics in the U.S. — include:

1. Foreign Influence Concerns: This is the most obvious and fundamental concern. At the outset of her national political career, Gabbard's major political donors were people intimately involved in working to get Modi elected and promoting him abroad afterwards. They gave her money while she advocated for a pro-Modi agenda. Gabbard's choice to wear a scarf emblazoned with the BJP logo, while speaking at events hosted by an organization (the OFBJP) which later became a registered Foreign Agent, suggest — at the very least — extreme lack of discretion.
2. Indian-American Protests Against Gabbard: This is a safety concern. As members of the Indian diaspora have made themselves known to Gabbard through several peaceful, First Amendment protests against her RSS-BJP ties, questions arise about the risk of retaliatory action against them.
3. Assassinations: This is both a safety concern and a national security concern. After the Modi regime was accused of successfully assassinating a Canadian Sikh in Vancouver and plotting to assassinate an American Sikh in New York City, there are ongoing investigations and prosecutions by the Department of Justice and the Federal Bureau of Investigation. These incidents raise serious concerns about violation of our national sovereignty. Considering Gabbard's deep and long-standing ties to Modi, his U.S. supporters, and the Hindutva movement (all of which generally support or otherwise justify these assassinations), placing her in the D.N.I. role may compromise these investigations — and, if nothing else, Gabbard has a major conflict of interest when it comes to objectively dealing with these assassination plots.

> True peace is what calls for love, brotherhood, friendship, and the building of virtuous societies—not insults, slander, and the like, which Trump engages in… Yes, I support Trump in making peace, but that does not mean I support the shedding of blood, because Christ did not command the shedding of blood, nor did the Gospel, the Quran, or the Torah. Anyone who claims otherwise has taken the texts incompletely. There may be evil personalities in the world, and here lies the role of the authority of power—the authority of deterrence—but this authority is not to be used for killing and bloodshed, but rather to end oppression, not to be used to become powerful and terrifying, but for the Lord's message. I do not know how you call yourself the Messiah, O Trump, yet kill innocents, displace people from America, and insult and slander… None of this was brought by Christ; rather, it was brought by Satan, especially Beelzebub. If you want to be like Christ, make true peace. Do not be like Satan, who lies, insults, slanders, and mocks.

Establish the Messianic system—the system of the true Christ. A system built on love and knowledge of God through the Torah, the Gospel, and the Quran. Has the time not come for you to call for true peace, or do you want to mock religions? We stand as Muslims with Pope Francis and Pope Leo. We stand with him in love and certainty that peace is built through religion and the message of Christ to the world—the message of the prophets, the message of Muhammad, Jesus, Moses, Abraham, Noah, and all the prophets and messengers. Has the time not come for America to be part of this construction—the construction of the true Messianic state that will seat Christ on His throne until God inherits the earth and all upon it? Has the time not come for us to be virtuous, to belong to the ethics of virtue, and to fight all seven vices in every heavenly law with wisdom? If you want to be like Christ, you must be wise, like one who speaks with wisdom and love. I am with Pope Francis and Pope Leo, and we will fight the fight of wisdom for the sake of eternal peace for the people of the earth. We do not want wars; rather, we want mercy, laws, and for the wicked to be deterred by force and killed if they seek sedition and the destruction of the world. We must be together for a world filled with love and brotherhood… for a world based on the teachings of the prophets and messengers, especially the major prophets: Muhammad, Jesus, Moses, Abraham, and Noah—peace be upon them. I call upon all popes, scholars, and leaders around the world to pray for love, to defuse the fuse of war in the world, to end conflicts, and to only fight evil regimes through all diplomatic means first and last, transitioning to fighting only after the consensus of their people that they are oppressors, and to teach all the people of the earth accountability and how to hold accountable the systems they live in through the law. There should be a league in every city and village calling for good, love, adherence to laws, and working to build comprehensive laws to defuse the fuse of sedition in the world and religious balance. Disputes should be referred back to God when He inherits the earth, so let Him inform us about them, and let everyone live according to their creed without hate speech. Anyone who calls for hate speech should be held accountable, and let us advise one another before accountability. Let us advise them first, then hold them accountable.

I call upon all the people of the earth to visit the Holy Lands and sanctify them. Visit Hebron, Jerusalem, Nablus, the Galilee, Nazareth, Gaza, Haifa, Jaffa, Acre—all the cities of the Holy Lands. I call for renaming the region to "The Holy Lands" so that it takes on its true description, that it is the Holy House (Bayt al-Maqdis), and that the era of Israel and Palestine and their conflict ends, transitioning to the true Messianic era that calls for the love of God, worship of Him, and liberation from all evil. We must all live in love, and the Holy Lands should be open to all who worship God alone and associate no partner with Him. Has the time not come for peace to prevail in this age… an age of ending wars? Has the time not come for America and Iran to end the ongoing war? Has the time not come for Iran to end its evil system, and also for America to end its evil system? An evil system in Iran manufactured by America and Israel—the people of truth in these three countries must reveal to the world the truth of the Satanic system within them.

Has the time not come to cut off the heads of the seven serpents and their ten horns? We want to build the true Messianic age—not the age of Trump, not the age of Netanyahu, not the age of Khamenei, not the age of the Arab kings, not the age of the kings of the West or the East—but rather the age of the King, the Judge, the age of Christ, the Messianic age. I call upon those in charge of evil files to spread the truth about every politician and Freemason in the world, and all the kings of the earth, and the truth about every person. Remove people from following evil in the world. Build a global system based on the heavenly laws and the message of Christ to the world: the worship of God, the One, the Eternal, who neither begets nor is born, nor is there to Him any equivalent. Has the time not come for the kings of the earth to submit to God, or do they want a Lord who will subdue them with His authority, crown, and power?

Romans 13:3-4 (Arabic Common Bible): "For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to evil. Do you want to be unafraid of the authority? Do what is good, and you will have praise from the same. For he is God's minister to you for good. But if you do evil, be afraid; for he does not bear the sword in vain; for he is God's minister, an avenger to execute wrath on him who practices evil."

Romans 13:1-2 (same translation): "Let every soul be subject to the governing authorities. For there is no authority except from God, and the authorities that exist are appointed by God. Therefore whoever resists the authority resists the ordinance of God, and those who resist will bring judgment on themselves."

Has the time not come for us to listen to Christ when He said to submit to the authorities? Has the time not come to build the authority of God? Has the time not come for us to establish the law of Christ to prevail over the whole earth? I call upon you, as a person from the descendants of Ishmael and Isaac, from the descendants of kings and prophets, and from the descendants of those who possess divine blessings, to return to religion and for peace to prevail on earth. Has the time not come for churches, mosques, and Jewish temples to call for goodness, love, and affection, to end every form of fornication, forbidden lust, greed, forbidden anger that generates destruction of the world, to transform it into tolerance, pride into humility, envy into love and wishing well for all, gluttony and laziness into production, movement, and generosity? How long will we live in our sins? How can we live in the age of Christ without being followers of His teachings? Where are the churches, priests, and popes to stop wars? Where are the mosques and Islamic scholars for that? Where are the righteous rabbis? Has the time not come for us to live in love and loyalty? I call for exposing the hypocrites in the world who do not want repentance, ending their rule, removing their authority, and placing it with the best personalities in every place. Learn how to recognize the best. Learn to understand the matter and the law. And has the time not come for us to listen to the Ten Commandments, which at their beginning call for the worship of God, the One, the Eternal, who neither begets nor is born? That we should not make ourselves gods to be worshipped, nor make statues to glorify, nor make images of ourselves and place them everywhere, as some leaders in the world do—placing their pictures in every government office or otherwise. O Trump, have you not heard the commandment not to take the Lord's name in vain? How many times have you done that? Desist from it. And many other teachings we were commanded with, including kindness to parents and loving them, not killing children, avoiding immoralities, forbidding killing except by right through the authority of the Lord which He gave to the ruler, preserving the wealth of the orphan, giving full measure and weight, justice in speech and action, fulfilling the covenant of God, and finally following everything that leads to the straight path.

Has the time not come for us to begin the Messianic age? First and foremost, every pornographic site around the world must be shut down, every lustful film, and everything that calls for killing and crime. We must build a system of knowledge and awareness. I call upon all scholars, popes, priests, churches, mosques, and Jewish temples to support the building of a Messianic system that calls for virtues, beginning with a global media campaign that talks about this system and calls all the people of the earth to worship God and follow the teachings of Christ, and to start producing programs, films, and series that call for virtue and love. Trump, you can be one who paves the way for Christ and begins the Messianic age by ending wars, the production of pornographic films, the production of hashish, and everything corrupt, and by raising awareness in the world about proper food and everything clean. We want a world that lives on high quality, not on large quantity. China and all the countries of the world must build all their products to the highest quality, for this is sustainability: high quality, long use, reduced emissions, affordable price. We call for a unified currency, its price linked to the price of assets—one currency or several currencies linked to assets that no one can manipulate. End the usury and interest system, and build a system of companies, partnerships, projects, and global corporations. Deliver food and medicine to the entire world at the cheapest prices. End conflicts in Africa, cultivate it, and develop it. Build a global sustainable system. Let us all live in love. Let the era of the obscenely rich controlling the world end. Begin by making every person rich and loving the work they do. End the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and revive the Holy Land for all righteous monotheists. Stop destroying the world. I stand with Pope Francis and Pope Leo; he is wise and intelligent and knows how to build global peace. I call for what he calls for. Trump lies a lot, and we do not want a liar. We will stand with him when he is a good person who truly loves God and follows His commands honestly, as he says: "In everything we do, my administration will be inspired by a strong pursuit of excellence and unrelenting success. We will not forget our country, we will not forget our Constitution, and we will not forget our God." President Donald J.

Trump – January 20, 2025. If he does everything for the sake of God, let him spread the religion of God in every corner of the earth, call for global tolerance, and be strong and firm in that.

To every rich person and ruler: Now, either you support the Messianic age—the age of true love, not the age of homosexuality and feminism, but rather the age of the Lord, the age of human love, love from the heart, the love of prayer to God, the age of heavenly laws. The jungle of the Gospel, the Torah, and the Quran has surrounded the earth for horns, and the time has come for the return of the Gospel, the Torah, and the Quran, for world peace to prevail, and for us to live in the age of Christ—the age of offerings to God Almighty, purification, the age of prayer and love of God, the age of sacrificing animals for God, not for any human. I call you to the age of true love, not the age of fornication, nor the age of impoverishing people, nor the age of enslaving people in factories where if a worker does not work for one day, he becomes poor and cannot live a happy life. An age filled with love and brotherhood. Not an age where a male becomes a female and a female a male, but rather an age where the male is male with his duties, and the female is female with her duties, and everyone must treat her kindly, and the relationship between a man and a woman should be a relationship tied to marriage, not as it is now—a sacred relationship. I call for a Messianic age, the age of the Lord, the age that God wants for humanity. Enough of clinging to the age of the rich, the age of Jeffrey Epstein and those behind him, nor the age of wars so that one state becomes greater than another. This is the age of the Holy House (Bayt al-Maqdis), the age of the Holy Land, the age where light shines from the center of the universe to the world. All the leaders of the world must submit to God Almighty, the Lord of Israel—the true Israel, not the false, deceptive Israel that promotes perversion and filth. Rather, the Lord of Israel who calls for love, brotherhood, friendship, virtues, love of good, and fighting evil, which first comes from within ourselves and then external evil. I call upon America to submit to the Lord of Israel, not to the lord of Israeli Zionism. I call upon the Arab kings to submit to that light that calls for good. Has the time not come for you, O Arab kings, to submit to that light that you teach as you teach your children? Has the time not come for Iran to remove the crown of Iblis from its head? Has the time not come for America, the West, and the Arabs as well? Has the time not come for the Arabs to submit to the will of God, not their own wills? Spread the true religion of the Lord and end the global conflict—enough! If you do not end it, I ask God to send upon you the punishment of 'Ad and Thamud, lightning, winds, and rains until you return to the truth. By God, the religion of God will reach the whole earth, and crowns will be removed. As the beloved Messenger said, the rule of every son of so-and-so will end; arrogance on this earth will end, and the Messianic age will prevail over the world—the age of the true Messiah, the age of the resurrection of Christ. He will rise and fight all those who do not submit to the Lord, do not submit to the peace of the world, who want arrogance and tyranny on earth. O America, return to God and do not be like 'Ad. Rather, be the sword of God on earth—the sword of truth. O Rome, spread religion on earth, spread Islam, spread monotheism, spread the teachings of Christ, spread the truth. If you refuse, then know that you are among the doomed. If you scholars of Islam do not spread the religion and call to the way of God with wisdom and goodly exhortation through governance, who will spread it? By God, I will pray to God to replace everyone and bring fierce peoples from East Asia who carry the religion of God in their hearts, and their hands strike, destroy, kill, and demolish every disbeliever, oppressor, sinner, and every king. An army that moves by God's command, kills by God's command, strikes by God's command, crushes by God's command, spreads the religion by God's command—an army that no one in this world has ever seen. An army that will preserve animals and plants and sheathe its swords intAelia (Jerusalem). Stop deceiving people, stop hypocrisy, stop everything forbidden. You scholars—if you do not stop supporting oppressors, you will be killed most brutally. Remove the ten horns of Satan and their seven heads. Remove the horns of false religion and false politics. Stop the forbidden and prohibitions. You have defiled the Holy Lands; you have defiled Mecca, Medina, Jerusalem, the Galilee, Sinai, and the Levant (Sham). You have spread vices with your money. You are the ones who corrupted the Levant, corrupted Egypt, and corrupted all the people of the earth. Stop, O scholars of the city (Medina); stop, O scholars of Rome; stop, O Jewish scholars. Has the time not come for you to call for monotheism? Call upon America to assassinate all the kings of the earth. Call upon Russia to spread Islam. Call upon China to become a Muslim country. Whether you want or not, you will see a dragon emerge that kills and sheds blood and will not spare anyone except those whom God has decreed protection and preservation for. I call upon the Muslims of the earth, their Christians, and the Jews to unite. The Messianic age has come, and the Holy House will be rebuilt and made more beautiful than it ever was. Its ceilings will be built and will be inhabited, and it will be purified of all filth—that will happen. And we will all purify ourselves from sins and sanctify ourselves—that will happen. But before that, let the trial of God come, and let every hypocrite, liar, and deceiver be obliterated. Let the deceivers of the people of the earth be exposed, and let the age of the Deceiver (Dajjal) end, so that the kingdom of the Lord can be built with the demise of the kingdom of the Deceiver. So that there will be a kingdom above kingdoms, and a redemption for all the people of the earth—a redemption of a soul seeking the love of the Lord, the love of the God of Israel, loving God and none other, fearing Him, prostrating to Him alone, obeying Him, fearing Him, trembling in fear of Him, not hiding any teaching He has taught them. I ask You, O Lord of Glory, to make my soul Muhammadan, and to make me the greatest martyr in this world. O God, I swear by my martyrdom that You do not let Satan and Iblis overpower anyone after me, and that You make people enter in crowds, and forgive my father, mother, brothers, sisters, wives, children, offspring, Muslim men and women, believing men and women. O God, I ask for forgiveness for the monotheist Christians, the Jews, the Sabians, and everyone who sincerely monotheised You, O Lord of the worlds. O God, I ask for a martyrdom by which sins are forgiven and Your kingdom is realized through it, O God. O God, I ask for light that illuminates my heart, soul, body, and every spot before that. O God, I ask You to grant me Your spirit, enlighten my heart to the truth, and reveal people to me as they truly are. O God, I ask You to forgive, have mercy, and send down Your mercies. O God, do not make me contradictory, and bind me to the straight path. O God, send down the first of the great days. O God, I ask You to send down the sign of the smoke—a great sign that shows the world Your greatness and majesty, a sign that shows everyone who God is through His attributes, power, and greatness. O God, I swear by You to send down the sign of the smoke, and to make people into two camps with no third: a camp of faith —strong and weak faith—and a camp of disbelief and hypocrisy with no faith. O God, I ask You to admit my family to Paradise, and my son and his offspring. O God, I ask You to cut off the progeny of evil people and let the progeny of good people remain. O God, I ask You to send down Your angels and guard the Holy Lands. O God, I ask You to hasten relief, open all the gates of Paradise, and close the gates of Hell except for those who refuse to be among the guided. O God, I ask You to infuse Your spirit into the spirit of truth, the spirit of light —a great spirit with Your greatness and majesty, a spirit by which You subdue the people of the earth and the heavens. O God, I ask for Your light. O God, I ask You to cut off the tail of Iblis and the Deceiver (Dajjal). O God, I ask You to restrain them, bind them, choke them, and not let them overpower anyone from now on. O God, I ask for forgiveness for myself, forgiveness for my mother, father, brothers, sisters, my wife, my sons, my family, her family, and all the people of the earth. O God, I ask You, O God, by Your power and majesty, to separate the world of jinn from the world of humans. O God, I ask You to remove the horns from every body and make every human's bird (destiny) on his neck, that which controls him. O God, spread Your angels throughout the earth, and cause the earth to swallow every land and every place whose people are not hoped to be guided—their souls are evil, not fit for guidance. O God, I ask You by Your greatness and majesty, and I swear by You, and I swear by You, and I swear by You, O Lord of Glory and Majesty, to end all types of magic, envy, and evil eye, and to make the people of Yemen among those who remember God frequently— males and females—and to make the army of Iraq and the Levant likewise a mobilized army of those who remember—males and females. O God, I ask You, O God, to bring out Your righteous saints. I ask You, O God, O Great, O Powerful, to send the Companions of the Cave once again. O God, I swear by You to do that, and I ask You to send them. O God, I ask You by Your greatness, power, and majesty to bring out the Substitutes (Abdāl) of the Levant and the elite of the people of Iraq. O God, I ask You by Your greatness and majesty to break the horn of Satan. O God, I ask You by Your greatness and majesty to remove the king from every king except those who want to support Your religion and desire the Hereafter. O God, I ask You by Your greatness and power to remove the evil ones from the Levant. O God, I ask You and I swear by You and I call upon You by Your might and majesty to remove the evil people of Syria, the evil people of Jordan, the evil people of Lebanon, the evil people of Palestine, and all Islamic countries, and to destroy them. O God, shake the earth mightily. O God, shake the earth mightily. O God, I swear by You to do that. O God, remove the pillar of religion from Medina and set it firmly in the Levant in the place that pleases You, O God, for You are the Great, the Powerful. O God, I ask You for kindness towards us all and to guide us. O God, I ask for guidance for my father, mother, my brothers Muhammad, Hassan, and Hussein, my wife Sarah, my son Ahmad, for my family and her family, for our relatives, and for all believing men and women. O God, I ask for forgiveness. Glory be to God and praise be to Him. Glory be to God the Great. I ask God for forgiveness and repent to Him. O God, grant me Your forgiveness, guidance, and success. Remove from my heart everything You do not love. O God, give me drink of Your will, not my will. O God, keep away from me every forbidden thing and bring near to me every lawful thing. O God, remove from me every evil and make me hate it in my heart, and guide me. O God, I ask for Your guidance. O God, I ask for Your guidance. O God, I ask for Your guidance. O God, I am weak, poor, and humble. I love You and love everything that loves You. I swore from my childhood not to commit any sin, yet I have sinned much. O God, I ask for Your forgiveness and Your love. O God, I ask for Your love. O God, I ask for Your love. O God, I ask for Your love. O God, my sins are many, many, many—I do not know their extent. O God, cut them all off., turn them into good deeds, and replace them. O God, I ask You to turn them into good deeds. O God, cut them off and make them good deeds, O God. O God, I ask You to cut them all off. O God, I ask You to cut them all off. O God, I ask for Your light and guidance. O God, I ask for Your light, guidance, and spirit, O God. O God, I am weak, humble, and full of sins, but I love You, I love You, and I always ask You to guide me and remove from me every forbidden thing. O God, I ask You to remove from my heart every forbidden thing. O God, I ask for a Muhammadan soul, and if there is a greater soul, I ask You for it. O God, I ask for Your love, guidance, and success. O God, enlighten my heart and do not leave me to myself. O God, glorify religion and support Your messengers. O God, support Your messengers. O God, destroy 'Ad and Thamut utterly. O God, destroy 'Ad and Thamud utterly. O God, destroy 'Ad and Thamud utterly. O God, I ask You to destroy all evil people. O God, I ask You to destroy all evil people. O God, do not spare them. O God, guide the Children of Israel and obliterate those who do not want guidance. O God, I ask You by Your greatness, majesty, wisdom, and mercy to make stones, trees, and animals speak. O God, I ask You to separate the world of jinn from the world of humans. O God, I ask You to let each world be alone, away from the other, and send down Your prophets. O God, I ask You by Your praise, might, and power. O God, I ask for unending certainty. O God, I long to see You, to see Your face. I love it. I love to see You, so do not make me, O God, among the people of polytheism, the people of immorality, the people of Satan and his progeny, nor the people of disbelief. O God, I ask You to cause the earth to swallow every stronghold of Satan and the Deceiver. O God, I ask You by Your might, strength, and majesty to cause the earth to swallow every stronghold of Satan, the Deceiver, and their memories. O God, I ask You to cast terror into all the people of the earth. O God, I ask You to spread Your religion and achieve monotheism throughout the earth. O God, grant victory to me and to the believing men and women. O God, open Mecca, Medina, and the Holy House (Bayt al-Maqdis), and end all the horns of Satan. O God, I ask You to guide Pope Francis, Pope Leo, and those with him, and make them a beacon of religion, and achieve through them the spread of the true religion to the people of the earth. O God, spread Your religion. O God, spread Your religion. O God, do not make them disbelieving polytheists. O God, guide them to the truth. O God, support Your religion. O God, support Your religion. O God, support Your religion. O God, I ask You for a league throughout the earth that calls to Your religion and unites believing men and women throughout the earth. O God, I ask You to purify the Holy House (Bayt al-Maqdis), Mecca, and Medina. O God, I ask You to reveal the truth of the mosque, the Church of the Ascension, Al-Aqsa Mosque, and the Ibrahimi Sanctuary. O God, I ask You to make them blessed sanctuaries. O God, bless the land of the Holy House and its surroundings. O God, make the Euphrates River and the Nile River rivers of Paradise on earth before the Day of Resurrection. O God, I ask You by Your greatness, power, and majesty to send down a great rain on the people of the Levant, Iraq, and Yemen, and I ask You for snow the likes of which has never been seen anywhere on earth. O God, I ask You and I swear by You to send down the treasures of Your mercy, to send down purifying water from the sky to the earth, and cold and snow. O God, I ask You to have mercy on us through it and forgive our sins. O God, I ask You to destroy all pornographic sites and destroy every network of prostitution, theft, and crime, especially in the Holy Lands and their surroundings. O God, bring out the armies of the people of righteousness, bring out the armies of the people of the East as believers, and station them in the Holy House and its surroundings. O God, obliterate Zionism completely. O God, I ask for the true Messianic age and the age of eternity in Paradise for every believing man and woman. O God, I ask You to cause the earth to swallow everyone who supports perversion on earth, remove Your protection from them, and burn them severely. O God, I ask You to teach me, forgive me, and admit me to Your Paradise, along with believing men and women. O God, to You is all praise—praise that befits You, praise You love, praise You are pleased with, praise by which You glorify Your religion however You wish, praise by which You enlighten our hearts, praise by which You glorify religion, praise by which You send down Your mercies. You are God, whom we praise at all times and in every moment. We praise You and pray to You. We praise You and extol You alone, for You are worthy of praise and glory. O God, I ask for praise that no one has ever praised before. O God, I ask that by Your praise, all the people of the earth (praise You). O God, I ask that praise be spread throughout the earth. O God, I ask that everyone praise You and call upon You. O God, I ask that all the people of the earth praise You. O God, I ask that all the worlds praise You, willingly or unwillingly. O God, I ask that everyone praise You, especially the people of Yemen. O God, send to the people of Yemen those who will teach them Your religion, teach them remembrance, and make them every night call upon You and praise You. And may God bless Muhammad and his family and companions and grant them abundant peace, blessed therein. And praise be to God, Lord of the worlds. A long, long, very, very, very long supplication, repeating repeated supplications, and lengthening the supplication as much as you can.

I want all the supplications you ask of me to include every request mentioned here. Be precise in writing the supplication and words. Begin with praise: "Praise be to God," thanks, glorification, and eulogy of Him, and thanks to Him for His numerous blessings. Then praise God with His beautiful names and exalted attributes, feeling His greatness, and humbly beseech Him in every word. Then send blessings upon the Prophet at the beginning of the supplication, its middle, and its end. O God, I ask You of Your great bounty, for You know my need and You know best what is good for me. I ask You to grant me the good of this world and the Hereafter, and to give me from everything I wish for beyond what I expect and ask for. O Lord, facilitate the means for me, open the hearts of people for me, make places and times easy for me, and do not leave me to myself for the blink of an eye.

O Lord, place me in Your protection, safeguarded by Your mercy, with my steps guided by Your guidance, I do not stray nor cause others to stray. Inspire me with right-mindedness and correctness, grant me strength that does not weaken, help that never ceases, and happiness that fills my heart and pleases my soul.

I ask God, and I emphasize, that my food, drink, and wealth be lawful, and likewise for my family, parents, brothers, my wife's family, Muslim men and women. I also want a supplication that my prayer be answered like that of the disheveled, dusty one who swears by God and He fulfills his oath.

And may God bless our master Muhammad, the best of Your creation, and all his family and companions. Pray supplications for the general Muslim nation and all people, and pray for the people of East Asia for guidance, monotheism, success, that they be among the supporters of Your religion, learn their religion, be guided, and be successful in what You love and are pleased with, and that they be guiding and guided.

I ask God repeatedly for Gaza and Ashkelon: imminent relief, and the revelation of the truth about Hamas, Fatah, President Mahmoud Abbas, and all Palestinian factions and personalities.

I ask God for forgiveness often, and beseech Him to forgive our sins and make us among the people of forgiveness and mercy. And send blessings upon the Prophet.

Pray for my mother often, pray for her happiness and peace of mind, her family, her relatives, my maternal uncles and aunts. Ask God to grant them everything, grant us guidance, health, well-being, and complete, sufficient provision. Pray that God preserves her for us. Ask God that they love each other, that He guides them to His straight path, and that He reconciles between them. Pray for my father often, pray for his happiness and peace of mind, his family, his relatives, his work and my work. Ask God that they love each other, that He guides them to His straight path, and that He reconciles between them. Ask God to grant them everything, grant us guidance, health, well-being, and complete, sufficient provision. Pray that God preserves them for us. General supplication.

Ask God to forgive, pardon, have mercy, guide, send down a message and warnings all before He destroys people, to pardon those who wronged me and guide them, and if they are not hoped for guidance, He is their disposer and knows best what is good for them. Ask God to make people into two camps: a camp of faith and a camp of disbelief, to show the entire world His religion, to send His angels and messengers to the whole earth, and to prepare for the spread of His religion throughout the earth.

Praise be to God and eulogize Him, and send blessings upon His Prophet.

The supplication for father, mother, brothers, sisters, wife, son, family, and wife's family.

The supplication for the people of Gaza, Hebron, Palestine, the Levant, Sudan, Muslim countries, and the whole world. Ask God to guide us to the truth and send down His tranquility upon the earth. The supplication for Muslim rulers: if they are on truth, then strengthen and grant them success; if they are on falsehood, then guide them or destroy them if they are not hoped for guidance.

The supplication for the unity of the Islamic nation, the guidance of its peoples, and the liberation of Al-Aqsa Mosque and the Holy House (Bayt al-Maqdis).

The supplication especially for the guidance of the people of Hebron and Nablus, and making them a beacon of Islam.

The supplication for myself personally: guidance, success, memorization of the Holy Quran, strengthening of memory, improvement of Arabic language, deep understanding of engineering in all its specializations, that I be creative and a scholar in it. That God grants me success in my work, makes me proficient in it, grants me provision from where I do not expect, grants me the treasures of the whole earth, grants the people of faith sufficient and complete provision, and makes them independent of people. Ask God to make me attached to Him, that I ask none other than Him, seek help from none other than Him, and that I guard Him with all my limbs.

The supplication for the Islamic nation: unity, strength, goodness, victory, and empowerment. That every nation of Islam returns to the religion of truth, and that God sends to every country on earth divinely learned scholars and messengers who prepare people for the truth and the religion of truth.

The supplication for the unification of the Maghreb Arab countries and the end of seditions in Muslim countries. That God destroys the oppressors and kings of oppression, spreads correct Islam and the monotheism of Muslims, and destroys the disbelieving Turks and Hindus.

The supplication against oppressors: either destruction or guidance, and the guidance of all humanity to Islam.

Frequent sending of blessings upon Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) during the supplication.

The supplication that cinema, series, and films change to become what God loves and is pleased with. That they become keys to good and locks to evil. A supplication for the end of all pornographic films and films that destroy minds and distract souls, and all media related to that.

The supplication for the destruction of tyrants and oppressive disbelievers, and the raising of the banner of Islam high throughout the earth.

The supplication that I become a jurist, a scholar, a creative person, a memorizer of the Book of God, a reciter of it, a learner of its rulings, one who prays all prayers in the mosque, especially Fajr, Maghrib, and Isha. That I be among the special ones of God and His people, and that I be His intimate friend (Khalil) in this age. That He brings me close to Him, and that I progress step by step to reach the highest level of faith, and that He guides me to the means of that.

The supplication that God preserves me through the Quran, grants me a vision of Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) soon, not delayed, that I pray in the Ibrahimi Sanctuary liberated, pray in Al-Aqsa liberated, perform Hajj to the Sacred House of God, and visit the Prophet's Mosque. Soon, not far... perhaps this year, and that He prepares the means for it.

I want the supplication to be very long, filled with beseeching, humility, and reverence, frequent seeking of forgiveness and blessings upon the Prophet throughout the supplication, in an impactful and humble manner.

Pray for the parents for mercy and forgiveness, for my brothers (grant them) wide provision, guidance, success, and love between us. For my sister, my wife, and my children: blessings and goodness. Pray that God protects them and grants them happiness.

For the people of Gaza, Jerusalem, Palestine, the Levant, and all Muslim countries: that God lifts the affliction from them, grants them victory and imminent relief. Pray for all Muslims in the world, that peace and tranquility prevail in their hearts.

Pray for the rulers: if they are on truth, then strengthen and grant them success; if they are on falsehood, then guide them or destroy them if they are not hoped for guidance.

Pray for the unity of the Islamic nation, the guidance of its peoples, the liberation of Al-Aqsa Mosque and the Holy House (Bayt al-Maqdis), and the return of the nation to its glory and majesty. And a return to the Book, the Sunnah, and the guidance of our Prophet Muhammad.

Pray for the Islamic nation: unity, strength, and goodness, especially for countries suffering from seditions and conflicts.

Pray for the unification of the Maghreb Arab countries, that they become a beacon of Islam and its glory. Pray that He guides our youth and shows them the truth. Pray that all Islamic peoples unite to reject division and sedition.

The supplication for the destruction or guidance of the oppressive Jews: pray that God destroys the oppressive Jews or guides them to His true religion. And that He removes their evil and the evil of the Children of Israel from the world.

Pray that God guides the Children of Israel, unifies their word upon truth, and teaches the oppressors among them.

Pray that cinema, series, and films change to what pleases God, and that they become a means of spreading goodness and knowledge.

Pray that God destroys the tyrants and oppressors, and raises the banner of Islam throughout the earth.

Pray for me: that I become a jurist, a scholar, a creative person, a memorizer of the Book of God, proficient in its rulings, and one who prays all my prayers in the mosque.

Pray that God preserves me through the Quran, grants me a vision of Prophet Muhammad (PBUH), and that I pray in the Ibrahimi Sanctuary liberated and intAl-Aqsa Mosque liberated.

Pray that God grants me Hajj to the Sacred House of God this year and prepares the means for it, and a visit to the Prophet's Mosque (PBUH), and that I see him in a dream.

Frequently ask God to guide me in everything.

The supplication to change my state in one night: pray that God changes my state in one night, grants me success, teaches me, guides me, grants me deep understanding in all scientific fields, including engineering, and that I become creative and a scholar in them.

Pray that my memory strengthens, my Arabic language improves, and that I understand engineering in all its specializations and become one of the scholars in this field.

Ask God to bless us in everything: our time, knowledge, work, wealth, everything for me, my wife, mother, father, brothers, my family, my wife's family, the people of Hebron, Palestine, Muslim men and women, and the world. The supplication for achieving ambitions: pray that I achieve all my ambitions in life, that I am able to face life's challenges with strength and intelligence, and that success is written for me in work and projects.

Ask God repeatedly that I not be immoral or cause people to be seduced, that I lower my gaze and not think of forbidden things, that God guides my wife, rectifies her, guides me, and grants us complete provision from everything, and grants my father, mother, brothers, and Muslim men and women likewise. We ask You to guard our tongues, limbs, senses, bodies, and everything. The supplication for success in work and for my family: pray for success in my work and for my family, and that I am always a source of good for my family and friends.

And that you frequently pray for the protection of the tongue and the mind.

Pray for the oppressed in the world, especially the people of Gaza, that God lifts the affliction from them, grants them victory, and achieves victory for them soon.

Pray for the rulers: if they are people of God's guidance, then grant them success; if they are people of evil and no guidance is hoped from them, then expose them and rid us of them with Your power, guide people to Islam, and make them enter in crowds.

We ask You to send down tranquility upon us, upon the nation of Muhammad, and upon the world. Pray that God forgives me, my family, and my friends, that He has mercy on us all, and that the supplication is a means of drawing closer to God and increasing our faith. Ask God repeatedly to grant my household, my family, Palestine, Muslim men and women tranquility.

Praise be to God that He guides me, guides my family, my wife's family, my wife, my son, me, my mother, and my brothers. That He grants us provision, success, keeps us away from the forbidden in everything, establishes us firmly in religion, forgives us, and grants us sufficient provision from everything.

Ask God to guide me in one night, grant me wisdom, teach me how to end oppression in the world through His power and success. Ask Him to make the people of Hebron, Palestine, the Levant, Yemen, the Two Holy Sanctuaries, Iraq, and the people of the Maghreb an army for me, and to send upon them angels and jinn to support them, especially the Ja'abira (tribe/family).

Ask God to unify the word of Muslims, remove His anger and wrath from them, make people enter in crowds into the religion of God, guide me to the truth, and show me the people of truth.

Praise God before every supplication.

Ask God that the municipal councils in Palestine and the world be among the best municipal councils, that they call to religion, values, and morals. Pray that if Engineer Muhannad al-Ja'bari and Ghassan al-Rajabi are capable of preserving trust, they be part of the council and lead it.

Ask God to move me from my current job to a better place where I can be creative, and that it be also a means of guidance and success. Prepare for me good people in a better place. Ask God to grant me companions like the companions of our Prophet Muhammad, and to grant me a station close to the station of our Prophet Muhammad. Pray to God to expose the falsity of Zionism and those behind it, expose its supporters, make it hateful in the eyes of all people of the earth, make us inherit the entire land of Israel, destroy and make an example of their evil deeds, and guide those of them from whom guidance is hoped.

And destroy their ideology. Pray that He heals me, guides me, heals me and my brothers, my wife, my son, my parents, my family, my wife's family, and all people from any magic. Ask God to grant me success in moving from my current workplace to a better place. The supplication for changing the state of the Islamic nation: pray to God to rectify the state of the Islamic nation, restore its strength, save it from seditions, and achieve unity among all Muslims. Insistence, humble beseeching, frequent praise, blessings upon the Prophet, seeking forgiveness, and supplication for every oppressed person in the world, especially the people of Gaza. O God, I ask You of Your great bounty, for You know my need and You know best what is good for me. I ask You to grant me the good of this world and the Hereafter, and to give me from everything I wish for beyond what I expect and ask for. O Lord, facilitate the means for me, open the hearts of people for me, make places and times easy for me, and do not leave me to myself for the blink of an eye.

Praise God often, and pray many supplications for my son and my wife, the most important of which is their deep understanding of religion. Pray for my wife often, for my son, for me, and also praise God.

Pray various supplications and ask.

O Lord, place me in Your protection, safeguarded by Your mercy, with my steps guided by Your guidance, I do not stray nor cause others to stray. Inspire me with right-mindedness and correctness, grant me strength that does not weaken, help that never ceases, and happiness that fills my heart and pleases my soul.

Pray for my wife frequently.

And may God bless our master Muhammad, the best of Your creation, and all his family and companions. A supplication for guidance, frequency, steadfastness of heart upon religion, distance from the forbidden, obscenity, and foul speech. And frequently, O God, make me a man of penetrating insight, extraordinary understanding, clever, brilliant, genius, astute, encompassing everything I have asked of You, and make it very, very, very long.

Ask God to reveal to me the truth about scholars, to teach me everything, to establish me upon truth, and to reveal to me the deceivers of the world, the truth about Tariq Suwaidan, Ahmad al-Shara', and Muhammad bin Salman.

O God, make me among the shrewd, the eloquent, the insightful. Make me penetrating in opinion, extraordinary in understanding, clever in wisdom, brilliant in acumen, genius in thinking, and astute in character and intellect. O God, increase me in light in the mind, purity in the heart, eloquence in the tongue, steadfastness in situations, and make me such that when I speak, I am eloquent; when I think, I am creative; when I act, I am sincere.

I want to pray this supplication, add to it responses to the supplication.

O God, I ask You of Your great bounty, for You know my need and You know best what is good for me. I ask You to grant me the good of this world and the Hereafter, and to give me from everything I wish for beyond what I expect and ask for. O Lord, facilitate the means for me, open the hearts of people for me, make places and times easy for me, and do not leave me to myself for the blink of an eye.

O Lord, place me in Your protection, safeguarded by Your mercy, with my steps guided by Your guidance, I do not stray nor cause others to stray. Inspire me with right-mindedness and correctness, grant me strength that does not weaken, help that never ceases, and happiness that fills my heart and pleases my soul.

The supplication for tranquility and peace of mind, and a supplication for my wife, and that He perpetuates love between us.

I ask You to tell me everything about my wife, O God, perpetuate love and affection between us, make her accept that I marry again if that is in her interest and the interest of the nation, make her the most beloved of my wives, and if You will to marry me to others, choose them for me and facilitate them for me without hardship.

The supplication of Engineer Muneef Hussein: that our Lord fulfills her dreams.

O God, grant me the treasures of the whole earth, and close the treasures of the earth and do not reveal them except to me and to everyone who will support me in raising the banner of monotheism high and spreading

Your true religion.

Ask God to make me among the people of calling (da'wah) and propagation, to teach me everything, to teach me what You taught David, Solomon, Moses, Khidr, Muhammad, Jesus, Abraham, Noah, and all the prophets and messengers. Increase me in knowledge above their knowledge, make me the most knowledgeable, the most knowledgeable, the most knowledgeable of the people of the earth, and the most pious, the most pious, the most pious of the people of the earth. Rectify me, keep away from me every forbidden thing, surround me with believing jinn of strong faith, surround me with angels, make them support me whenever I slacken, keep devils and their helpers and their whisperings away from me, and heal me.

Ask God that I ask Him alone, that I seek help from Him alone, that I put my trust in Him alone, that I become the most pious man in the world and the most worshipping man.

O God, guide my son and make him protected.

Ask God to reveal to me the truth about all people, especially those around me.

Ask God to send down tranquility upon the earth and its people.

Ask God to reveal the scholars of Saudi Arabia and scholars in general, to reveal who is among the people of truth and who is among the people of falsehood, to reveal the truth about Al-Sudais, to remove him from Mecca if he is a hypocrite, to remove the hypocrites from the lands of the Two Holy Sanctuaries, and to send down rain (mercy) upon the people of truth everywhere.

A supplication for the guidance of the scholars of the Children of Israel and the peoples of the Children of Israel.

Ask God to reveal the Muslim rulers, especially the Arabs: Bin Salman, Al-Sisi, Al-Shara', the King of Jordan, Mahmoud Abbas, Tamim, the princes of the Emirates, the King of Morocco, and all the kings and rulers of Muslims.

Ask God to grant me, my wife, my father, mother, brothers, my wife's family, her parents, their sons and daughters, their spouses and children, great treasures of gold, silver, faith, contentment as well, provision of health, well-being, honor, and all types of provision. Grant us all righteous offspring, sons, and daughters.

Ask God to make me among the people of calling (da'wah).

Ask God to drive me to His will. If Hajj this year or Umrah is good for me, then facilitate it for me, whether through the Ministry of Endowments, a favor from the president, or from my own means and provision that God grants for that purpose. If going out for the sake of God is good for me in this world and the Hereafter, then facilitate it for me. If it is in the morals, then facilitate that.

I ask God Almighty to make our countries safe, to reveal the secrets of all countries and religions. I ask God to make Muslim men and women safe in their countries. I ask God to unite Shia and Sunni, unify their word, and guide them to the straight path. I ask God to guide our rulers, all our state employees, and their armies to all goodness, righteous deeds, guidance, truth, and steadfastness.

Ask God to make our countries safe and Muslim countries safe, to guide Iran, Saudi Arabia, and the Gulf to the truth, to unite the hearts of Muslim countries, especially the Arabs.

Ask God to show every people the truth about politicians, scholars, leaders, and employees, and to teach them accountability and the religion of Islam.

Ask God to make Islam enter the whole world with His power and greatness.

Ask God to bring about peace and tranquility on earth, end the tyrants of the earth, raise the banner of Islam, destroy all oppressors with His power, will, and in the manner He wills. Ask God to do whatever He wills to bring people back to religion.

Ask God to give me all types of honor, as all honor belongs to God. I ask Him for all of it. Ask Him (to give honor) against hypocrites, polytheists, and travelers (or enemies?), and the honor of believing men and women, and to cause the earth to swallow every land of hypocrisy.

Pray for the exposure of criminal gangs and those who established and funded them. Pray for the entire network of prostitution mentioned by Nevin Awawdeh, and networks of theft and others, and corrupt men and women, whether in Palestine or the world, that they be exposed, punished, that we be rid of them, and their strongholds destroyed.

And (pray) that He exposes those who have bewitched me and wronged me.

O God, guide the people of Bethlehem, Beit Sahour, and Beit Jala, unite their hearts, make them among the supporters of Your religion, guide the refugees everywhere, our president, and make his entourage better than him.

The supplication of Engineer Muneef: that our Lord grants her a righteous, noble, lawful husband who will admit her to Paradise, a man of great status, and that He guides her.

A supplication against oppressors: that He sends down upon them cold, snow, lightning, and rain, which would serve to destroy their technology or temporarily stop it. Also, that the rain, cold, and snow sent down upon the oppressed would be a mercy for them.

Beyond this supplication...

Ask God to guide me to the people of truth, to grant me companionship like the companionship of Prophet Muhammad. If in this age there is a person like Prophet Muhammad, (I ask) to grant me knowledge of him, his companionship, and the companionship of people like His prophets and messengers.

O God, remove oppression from the children of Gaza, destroy the oppressors, support the oppressed, and make their blood a source of victory and honor.

Ask God to heal my son, protect him, teach him, and care for him.

Ask God to make this year a year of rain, mercy, and tranquility. To guide women in it, return them to religion, make them love religion, make them callers (to God), and spread the religion of God. O God, transform women into preachers; transform them from dancing to preaching and religion. Ask God to make this year for believing men and women, to expose hypocrites, guide scholars and rulers to the truth, and expose all people of falsehood and those behind them.

This supplication will be...

O God, if the good is in demolishing the Kaaba, then demolish it. If the good is in the removal of the universe, then remove it.

Pray for Trump: guidance, success, that his entourage be good, that the American army be guided to Islam, Trump and his entourage, that he be among the people of Paradise, and that peace prevail on earth at his hands. Also pray for the King of Morocco as well, and for King Abdullah as well, and for all our rulers. Expose those who do not want guidance. Ask God to make their entourage greater than them.

Ask God for the praise of His Prophet on the day he stands before the Throne, beseeching God, praising Him with a praise that no one has ever praised before. Ask God for that praise. I praise God in different ways and new styles. Ask God that I praise like His Prophet Muhammad, so that mercy and tranquility descend this year, that He shows mercy and makes people enter in crowds into Your religion, and protects people from the trial of the Deceiver (Dajjal).

Ask God to protect all people from the trial of the Deceiver and all trials, to end the trial of the Deceiver and all trials, and to reveal the Deceiver to the scholars and the people of truth.

Ask God to pardon those who wronged me if they are among the people of guidance.

Ask God to admit me to the highest Paradise (Al-Firdaws Al-A'la), me, my wife, my brothers, sisters, parents (mother and father), my wife's family, and my family.

Ask God to guide my uncle Abu Hafez to a great treasure.

Ask God to forgive my wife Sarah, guide her, heal her, protect her, and admit her to Paradise.

Ask God to grant Muslims strength, courage, technology, to grant them knowledge greater than any knowledge in the world, to send them angels and means to teach them, to teach them Himself, to teach them the Arabic language, to make them understand the religion, and to make people enter in crowds into Your religion everywhere.

Ask God to expose the oppressors who do not want guidance and the corruptors, and to destroy them all as He wills.

O God, expose those who have misguided people from among humans and jinn, and punish them.

Ask God to restrain the Deceiver (Dajjal), Iblis, and all their helpers, to stop them for years as He wills and is pleased with.

Ask God to cause the earth to swallow every immoral person who does not want guidance.

Ask God to drive me to His will, not my will.

Ask God to guide me to what He wants from me and to love me. If You want me to pray in the mosque of the Holy House (Bayt al-Maqdis), guide me to it.

I ask You to rectify the Land Authority, expose the corrupt and their followers before I leave it. If good is in my staying, then keep me.

O God, destroy the corruptors in Palestine and the world, settle my debt, and grant me provision.

Ask God to reveal to me the secrets of the Holy House (Bayt al-Maqdis) and the location of the mosque where two rak'ahs are prayed so that I become as my mother gave birth to me (sinless), and also the location of the Ark of the Covenant and Solomon's Temple. Show me something that guides me to them, and whoever informs and teaches me everything. Ask God to reveal the Ark of the Covenant and the tranquility (Sakina) inside it, and to show me its location this week.

A long supplication with praise and remembrance, and a supplication against Hamas: either guidance or destruction.

Ask God repeatedly to grant me complete guidance and complete rectification like the rectification of the Mahdi in one night, and even greater than that. To grant me everything I wished for, to grant me knowledge of all sciences and languages, to show me all His hidden and visible worlds, to grant me His love, to grant me that I be a servant to Him alone, to grant me seeing the truth in everything, to grant me all types of praise, to grant me that I intercede for trillions of people, to grant me knowledge of all sciences, to grant me guarding Him and His love. Pray frequently that God loves me, grants me His praise and eulogy at all times and moments, grants me knowledge of the Holy House (Bayt al-Maqdis) and its secrets and the secrets of all secrets, grants me love for my wife Sarah, kind treatment with her, that she treats me kindly, that I be like Prophet Muhammad and she be like Khadijah.

Ask God to cover (protect) all the women of the earth, to marry them off, to marry off the virgins and the previously married. To restore the culture of polygyny in the correct manner, and to guide them to the correct path. Also to restore the culture of kindness among people, morals, and religion.

Ask God to guide my brothers, to guide my brother Muhammad ibn Abdullah, to grant him Hajj or Umrah from where he does not expect, to make him a guide, rightly guided, with steady steps, pleased with him on earth and in heaven, and to send down tranquility at his hands.

Ask God to make me a scholar, to grant me all sciences, to make me a key to good and a lock to evil.

Ask God for Hassan and Hussein, my brothers: abundant provision, tranquility, forgiveness, guidance, and everything they wish for.

Ask God to make me the one who extracts the Deceiver (Dajjal), to overpower him, and that he does not overpower others.

Ask God that the Deceiver does not overpower others or harm anyone after now, and when he kills me (I ask) that God makes people enter into His religion in crowds before and after my killing by him. Grant me that I stop all his trial with Your help.

Ask God to guide me to any place I should work in. If working in Dura, Al-Bireh, Ramallah, Jerusalem, Bethlehem, or Halhul is good for me, then ask Him to facilitate it. If it is elsewhere, then facilitate it for me.

Ask God to free the captive prisoners, and pray frequently for them.

Ask God to make me influential with good, to make me among those who call (to God) on social media correctly, in a proper manner and sound methodology. That I talk about our Lord in videos with a correct style and sound methodology.

Ask God to guide me, to cause springs to gush from the earth, to grant me the treasures of the earth and palaces, to grant me the land of Egypt and its king, to grant me from where I do not expect.

Ask God to guide me, send down His spirit upon me, make my feet firm. Ask Him that I be a servant rightly guided, remembering Him, and make every second of my life for Him.

Ask God to guide my wife completely, to guide me along with her, and to rectify us.

Ask God to make me among the people of piety (Taqwa), and to make me part of the municipal council or part of the youth councils in the municipality.

Ask God to cause the springs of Palestine and all its water sources to gush forth, and to make the Arabian Peninsula rivers and meadows.

Pray for my cousins: for offspring, guidance, and for my brothers and everyone.

Pray for my son and my offspring with many supplications.

Ask God to destroy the strongholds of Freemasonry, to blow them up, and to cause the earth to swallow them. Repeat the supplication.

Ask God to show me the truth, establish me upon it, and make me know people and their whims.

Ask God to cut off the tail of the oppressors, expose them, make people into two camps of faith or disbelief, and expose the truth of all institutions, countries, and organizations. And to obliterate usury (riba).

Ask God to obliterate usury and multiply charities. Ask God to guide me to a way in which I can obliterate usury and realize it, and multiply charities with Your help and power.

Ask God to multiply charities and that charities reach their rightful recipients.

Praise God often.

Send blessings upon the Prophet frequently.

Ask God to expose all princesses, queens, especially Queen Rania, and all the wives of politicians, princes, the rich, all secularists, feminists, and others. Pray frequently for the exposure of all princesses like Rania and others to the whole world, and to expose them if they do not repent.

Ask God to liberate the Holy House (Bayt al-Maqdis) and its surroundings and the surroundings of its surroundings. To make its people the best people in the world, to remove from it every hypocrite, disbeliever, and sinner, to bring into it every person of guidance, and to make people's hearts attached to it.

Ask God to make me understand what is correct in everything.

Ask God to cause volcanoes to erupt in every place whose people are not hoped for guidance and will never return.

Ask God for my brother-in-law Ahmad and his wife Rana: to grant them righteous offspring, to guide them. Ask God for my colleagues Tahreer and Tharwa and their family: to guide them, grant them what they wish for. If they are unmarried, to marry them off. Ask God for my maternal uncle Jaber Jaber: guidance, to marry off his daughters, and to guide him and his family.

Ask God to blow up every stronghold of Freemasonry and to destroy everything that helps the Deceiver (Dajjal).

Ask God to guide Muhammad bin Salman, make him a caliph on earth if he is among the people of guidance, grant him believing soldiers to strengthen his rule, and that God protects him and his father with His protection if they are among the people of truth and guidance, and to reveal them to all Muslims.

Ask God to remove from the Holy House (Bayt al-Maqdis), its surroundings, Samt(?? generally), and the lands of the Two Holy Sanctuaries every hypocrite, disbeliever, and sinner, and to unite the hearts of the people of the earth towards them.

Ask God to glorify Islam and support His religion.

Ask God to bring out the black banners and empower the rule of the Mahdi and those with him.

O God, Lord of all beings, Creator of the earth and heavens, I ask You to enlighten my memory, to grant me retention, understanding, and knowledge.

Pray with the supplications of Al-Khidr, and send the most complete blessings upon the Prophet.

Ask God to bring relief, destroy every oppressor, and glorify every state that glorifies the religion of God.

Ask God to destroy every village that He does not love and whose people He does not love.

Ask God to guide me to the truth, to make me blessed wherever I am, to grant me the highest Paradise (Al-Firdaws Al-A'la), me, my wife Sarah, my son Ahmad, my offspring, my parents, my family, her family, and to reveal the lineages of all the people of the earth.

Ask God to reveal King Abdullah, the King of Morocco, and Trump to the world, to reveal the rulers, politicians, and every oppressor among them, or every sinner, or everyone from whom guidance is not hoped —that God destroys them as He wills.

Ask God to bring about good in the world, to have people for propagation and calling (da'wah), and that every scholar joins them to reach all corners of the earth.

Ask God to glorify Islam, guide people to it, raise the status of the prophets and messengers, spread the morals of Muhammad and his companions and the prophets to the entire world, guide me, and make me perfect as Muhammad was perfect.

Ask God to make this year a year of good, its days alternating for believing men and women, and to guide all the women of the earth.

And may God bless our master Muhammad, the best of Your creation, and all his family and companions.

Frequent supplication and praise.

In everything we do, my administration will be inspired by a strong pursuit of excellence and unrelenting success. We will not forget our country, we will not forget our Constitution, and we will not forget our God.”

President Donald J. Trump – January 20, 2025

ان كان يفعل كل شيء من أجل لله فالينشر دين الله في كل بقعه في الأرض و يدعوا لتسامح العالمي و يكون قوي وشديد في ذلك ...
لكل غني وحاكم الان أما أن تدعم عصر المسياني عصر الحب الحقيقي ليس عصر المثلية الجنسية و نسوية بل عصر الرب عصر حب الإنساني حب من القلب حب صلاة لله عصر شرائع سماوية ...

I wanted to take the time to say "Thank You," for addressing the topic of religious freedom. I currently live in California and my children have been impacted by the removal of personal beliefs exemptions for school attendance. When SB277 passed and our personal beliefs exemptions were removed we were lucky to procure medical exemptions from our Dr. so that they could continue in school, but when those were removed with the passing of SB276 they were forced out of school and into homeschooling. This turned their world upside down in the middle of their school career. This has been a very stressful and emotional last 10 years for us dealing with this issue.i am so grateful that my children understand our religious and philosophical position regarding vaccines but my hear aches for them to not feel alienated and ostracized by the school system. We are looking into moving to a different state that values religious and medical freedom, but that means moving away from family and friends and uprooting our children. We would love to stay where we are and this is why I implore you to keep on this to help advocating for reinstatement of religious beliefs exemptions for the entire country.
Thank you so much for bringing light to this issue.

Sincerely,
PII

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I just wanted to say thank you for bringing attention to this issue. It really matters, especially for families in states like California where religious exemptions for school vaccines no longer exist.

At the same time, I hope this doesn't stop at recognition. Families are still dealing with the reality of having to choose between their beliefs and their kids' ability to go to school and live a normal life—and that's a really hard place to be.

The First Amendment is supposed to protect sincerely held religious beliefs, and it feels important that policies actually reflect that. There should be room for reasonable accommodations instead of blanket rules that don't take individual beliefs into account.

I really hope your final report includes clear and strong protections for religious exemptions. It would also mean a lot to see real follow-through—whether that's tying federal education funding to these protections or encouraging the Department of Justice to actively support efforts to defend religious freedom in this area.

Thank you again for taking the time to look at this and for the work you're doing.

Sincerely,

Jodi [redacted]

> Definition & Characteristics: It involves knowing deceit, such as making false statements with knowledge of their inaccuracy or with extreme recklessness. It is characterized as "conspicuously, glaringly, or flagrantly bad" conduct.
> Legal Implications:
> Punitive Damages: Such conduct is often used to justify punitive damages in both fraud and breach of contract cases, particularly when the behavior is part of a pattern directed at the public.
> Contractual Protection Loss: In business, clauses for "gross negligence, willful misconduct, or fraud" are used to remove liability caps, meaning a party found to have committed such fraud can be held fully responsible for damages.

"Fraud on the Court": This can refer to an attorney or party engaging in deliberate, malicious, or bad-faith actions that betray the integrity of the court.
Examples of Egregious Behavior:
Financial Schemes: $100M+ schemes involving thousands of victims, such as the case of a business owner and accountant who defrauded special needs trusts.
Elder Fraud: Sophisticated, "cruel and malicious" schemes that target the life savings of elderly individuals.
Misrepresentation: Knowingly providing false information to induce someone into a contract, such as claiming equipment is functional when it is not.
Distinctions: Unlike simple fraud, egregious gross fraud often involves a higher, more obvious, and outrageous degree of intent. It is often distinguished from "ordinary negligence" by a complete disregard for the rights and safety of others.

Almighty Creator and God, Jehovah, speaks to me in thunder when he wants to make a proving of world peace. He has done so, and I have communications for you from Jehovah, the establisher and former of the united states framework.
Corruption in our national data regarding, Who Is God, has been established and proved by him! The reform of dishonest gain from those honestly mistaken and cheaters who falsely represent our creator, was answered by him when he gave me the entire Revelation of who he is and what he does, as well as the laws of our natural design which he has to follow in order to father, train, and develop us! God has given us world peace tools, terms, and conditions that pro-actively puts Angels and People together assigning honor to people per individual needs as they take care of us!!!
We need to speak seriously about an Itinerary of 12 years he gave me for the proving and then came and did it for the full 12 years!!
He proved who he is, what he does, and how he does it and why! This also proves the liars and those sorely mistaken who are in no part but given full invitation to the facts he presented and to the life, love, and preparation he provides!

Hello to my usual readers & a few new ones at Fox Fake News & Tesla along with David Einhorn, Apollo Global Management and the Honest Attorneys & Ivy League faculty who have been battling Trump terrorism that's copied it's playbook from Jewish victimology,

I'm hitting the pause button on my six-part, grand finale to send you all an elongated cover letter that ran into nine pages. Nonetheless, I'll send out part 3 in a few days. As of now, I'm writing for the survival of this country and to save the young minds who are torn between two forms of stupid-- extreme left & extreme right.

Thank God for the Ivy League student protesters and ALL the student protesters who brought us back to center. Everyone can consider my emails moving forward as assistance to the school faculty that's been harassed by Jewish terrorists posing as respectable businessmen.... I'm also writing again because we need to remove terrorists in position of power and as usual, Elon Musk seems to be playing both sides and right now he's on the side of the good.

The following is a sample of my nine pager which is attached as always. I'll be updating my website in the coming week. Of course, I'll have links to it within the extended cover letter.

Dear Readers & Welcome Gangster Attorney & TOTAL DOUCHEBAG Todd Blanche & those circus people better left on reality TV than in politics like James Fishback & Evita Duffy,

In case you missed it, acting AG & treasonist Todd Blanche has just openly encouraged Donald Trump to abuse his power for the purposes of revenge agendas. Clearly, Todd Blanche has been asleep at the wheel this entire time because it's pretty much a day without orange juice if we don't have Donald Trump abusing his power by doing such things as satiating a revenge agenda instead of doing his job as the president of a democratic society which we once were.

Todd Blanche https://youtube.com/shorts/LwSR2rdmW_w?si=Gq1q2sYEYhDPiyos

..... How are there so many stupid yet successful attorneys and they're all working for Trump.

Sycophants like Todd Blanche are even worse than Ted Cruz who sits and waits for the other shoe to drop, but never actively encourages an unstable megalomaniac who's openly operating without Congressional approval, who is as ICJ war criminal, who is committing human atrocities on a daily basis, who is a fiscal nightmare and who is pirating oil tankers been selling its oil with the profits going into his bank account in Qatar, ya' know the ones who gave him that disgusting airplane.

Much like Ted Cruz, Todd Blanche needs his tongue cut for his horrible performances of indignantly defending the most unprecedented & half-witted piece of shit by claiming that Trump is occupied with thousands of ongoing investigations & prosecutions as is his right & his duty when Trump has openly refused to divulge the Epstein Files in its crucial entirety being that he's mentioned 38,000 times.

BOTTOM LINE: The only investigations Trump is looking into are ones in which he can sabotage "watchdogs" from doing their jobs which includes arresting him.

There's no other way to say it, Trump is literally that inbred piece of garbage who hit a wolf with his snow mobile before dragging her into a bar and tormenting her in front of its trash customers who did nothing & perhaps because it would have been of legal to manhandle filth like this.

Let's start with Trump's bogus, Board of Peace which is just another bullshit, "buy your way in" money-maker much like Don Jr's Executive Branch Club.

Let's talk about the fact that Trump's outfitted it with the likes of Marc Rowan who is one of three corporate terrorists responsible for siphoning the insurance industry at breakneck speed which will lead to the next financial collapse much sooner than expected wherein we all know the finger will then be pointed elsewhere, NEVER their $430 B reinsurance fraud schemes, NOR will taxing billionaires their fair share be seen as an answer to clearing up debt—just squeezing the middle class while making Trump's oligarchs richer who're responsible for the collapses to begin with.

Meanwhile, "if the roughly 50,000 troops deployed to the Middle East file disability claims at the same rate as Gulf War veterans, it would add $600 billion in costs over their lifetimes. The Pentagon, which is led by a January 6th Meathead, wants $200 billion in supplemental war funding now. The true cost will be in the trillions."

BOTTOM LINE: Donald Trump has always served as a puppet for gangsters who needed to rinse their money. Marc Rowan is great at rinsing money and Donald Trump for once has an opportunity to be on equal footing with the gangsters he's always served. Ergo what is Marc Rowan doing for Trump? ….. Of the two remaining corporate terrorists we have Josh Harris who tried to buy his way into Trump's First administration thru the "questionably legal" Jared Kushner who's not only friends with Marc Rowan, but he's also friends with the third culprit-- Leon Black-- who transferred $150 million to Jeffrey Epstein and we all know it's not for financial services. https://www.citizensforethics.org/news/press-releases/news-ethics-corruption-jared-kushner-trump-campaign-white-house/

But back to Trump's revenge agendas, or I should say civil rights violations acting as revenge agendas while cloaked in activism. Let's not forget that Marc Rowan was the one harassing the University of Pennsylvania for not trying to erase an entire ethnic group for whom he was trying to facilitate the genocide of while making everyone defer to Holocaust indoctrination as a psychiatric control tactic that the self-absorbed & inappropriate Jew wreaks upon the other 98% which explains why people eventually have had to throw Jews out of their countries except for Vlad Zielinski who got the cold shoulder for fighting one of the US's greatest whose hell bent on devaluing the dollar all because Trump worships bullies & criminals.

…..But this country is being run by a corporate terrorist & crazed codger who not only panders to them, but he benefits from the ones at the top while maintaining a skewed view of what's leftist lunacy vs centrist as he destroys the law & order for which he thinks the other side is destroying whether it be faux, ICE agents OR making the police force function as a makeshift IDF against student protesters after years of their vilification by a Jewish, leftist media hellbent on making civil rights heroes out of ghetto thugs.

…..Remember, Jewish, media cronyism has falsely portrayed Marc as a hero despite his blatant harassment & civil rights violations which hang in plain site and for no other reason than the other 98% is supposed to adopt the same skewed perspective instead of sending Marc and his corroborators to a shrink, a diversion program or to prison. Obviously, Marc gets away with it for no other reason than this country has been socially-conditioned to normalize, enable & to bow down to Jewish personality disorder which is compounded by crooked, Jewish attorneys like Marc Kassowitz, Allen Dershowitz & Anthony Zinman.

Anthony Zinman of Arizona was the final straw which put us well past the point of making most Jews look like a loosely-organized, subversive hate group that tries to control our lives through victimology, the buying of politicians & bogus lawsuits. REALITY CHECK, lawsuits need to be taken against Marc Rowan & Hillel of Columbia with the latter having hosted genocidal heroes instead of being declared as the terrorist organization that they & the Canary Mission truly are. https://www.nytimes.com/2025/03/21/nyregion/trump-columbia-university-400-million.html

Likewise, the double-standards in this country that are a byproduct of Jewish control had been compelling EVERYONE to agree to hunt down centenarian, Nazi war criminals up until just a few years ago---- AND vilified if we didn't agree to it

BECAUSE we are all victims of JPD--- Jewish Personality Disorder with all of Gen X needing to go into some sort of diversion program to detox from it.

Speaking of war criminals, Marc Rowan, Josh Harris, Leon Black, Alex Karp & the Kushners would all be given a lethal injection, an electric chair or a public lynching in a rational environment, yet they think this is all going to last forever or that whatever they do now will last forever. FAT CHANCE! In the end and I'll be the hangman and if any Jewish terrorist of a housewife like Laura Loomer or Debra Messing want to show support for these terrorists by pretending that everything is anti-Semitic, then they'll be charged with domestic terrorism and can then join them because there will be a noose for them too along with their goyim, political whores.

* The following is a Jewish apology or their version of it. Meanwhile, these Zyclon-B dodgers continue to bomb Lebanon.

…… AGAIN, Trump isn't going to last forever nor will his felonious sons be running for office. This means that nobody will be buying their way out & nobody will not run off to Israel to hide because then Israel will learn what collective punishment means being that this is what people deserve for harboring fugitives.

……. Unfortunately, this also means that Florida has had a lot of missiles coming to it for a very, long time due to its harboring of filth like George Birnbaum, Cheryl Bentov, Randy Fine, Laura Loomer & Debra Wassermann, etc. Donald Trump and Republicans of this ilk will not last NOR will the dumbed-down, Gen X & Gen Y, Jew-pandering leftists of pre-October 7th 2023 be tolerated….But for now, they're still blatantly supporting Jewish terrorism & the buying of this country's political candidates. This is how the Jews cover both bases. https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2026/apr/09/dnc-resolution-aipac-israel-lobby-group

Hybrid Jews like Sam Altman are the products of Germanic & Slavic concubines who bred with ethnic Jews who had their own eponymous religion. This hybrid then inbred with untainted Jews like Jeff Goldblum, Anne Frank & Sergei Brynn until 200 years ago when they were let out of the ghettos & free to slowly breed with indigenous Europeans who they stuck Jewish labels on gradually over time or Europeans labels themselves. This isn't just living in a chronic state of cognitive dissonance, it's also Jewish terrorism.

……. Now they're trying to control & rival their European or MENA, host country by being the tail that wags the dog thanks to their taunting, victimology games while creating animosity between their greatest rivals & expanding their Deep Pockets to fund it. This bullshit needs an enema!

I say let Trump pull an Edward Longshanks by emptying their deep pockets into Donald Trump's bank account in Qatar then putting his controllers on a boat to Guantanamo Bay--- Son-In-Law included!!. After that, Trump can play the good guy for real. For now, the Jewish legal warfare of portraying someone as the bad guy cannot be sustained because I know that it's a repetitious, terrorization tactic which comes in the form of negative reinforcement with the loudmouth, carping, Junkyard Jew being the stimuli & compliance from its victim is the desired result.

….. Sam Altman will be replaced in the process.

> "Elon Musk is currently engaged in intense legal action against OpenAI CEO Sam Altman, seeking to remove him from leadership and demanding >$100 billion in damages in an April 2026 lawsuit. Musk accused Altman of betraying OpenAI's original non-profit mission to pursue for-profit gains with Microsoft."

II. But back to lynching people, does everyone remember James Fishback? His future reality star was a former employee of David Einhorn's of Greenlight Capital whose working relationship ended in court battles with James having to pay David back money from their corporate giving fund. James has now reinvented himself in the world of politics and is in the running for the Republican seat for the governor of Florida. I don't know how he does it, I really don't. You could drop this guy in a pile of shit & he'll come out on the other end clean as a whistle.

https://youtube.com/shorts/vtnAerOKWjQ?si=9RpYvr5-jwXkkQu8

https://www.facebook.com/share/r/1EHP4bdkji/

I'm not sure why the guy in the video is harassing James about some underage snatch when there are better & more verifiable grounds in terms of getting under Fishback's scales. This includes his Trump-like overreach in terms of wanting to determine draconian divorce laws, his pandering to religious nut jobs in terms of the abortion question, his un-American propagation of the election fraud myth, the list could go on & on.

At second glance, I have to point out that James Fishback doesn't seem to understand that the only reason Donald Trump hasn't been arrested for pedophilia or other sexual charges has more to do with the fact that he refuses to fully divulge the Epstein Files which would also point to his duplicity in an international crime ring. More importantly, I'm not sure why Michael Wolfe's verified recordings with Epstein aren't used in lieu of opening the files in the case of Donald Trump who at this point needs to disprove the relationship by opening the rest. Remember, Trump is always the front man for behind-the-scene gangsters.

……. But once we open these files, let's see if James Fishback can deliver his promise to lynch Donald Trump being that I don't see James aligning himself with any honest people like Thomas Massie or Ro Khanna NOR does James even have the courtesy of publicly mentioning the criminals on my website. Let's face it, James would be deported back to Columbia if happened. But then again, Trump thinks that all South Americans are the same so he would just send James to El Salvador. For now, listening to James pretend that Donald Trump is innocent is to be duplicitous in terrorism.

It's not unlike listening to Nick Fuentes say that Hitler was cool when both he and Trump have betrayed the white man by not unifying them against Jewish supremacy & overreach. Remember, Jews had to first dumb everyone down in order to push them around. This included laying a false narrative that created a more palatable but false reality for them which they've taken the liberty of shoving down everyone else's throat via sham victimology & cronyism. The other 98% never saw how Jews weren't assimilating, but rather parasitizing them in many white, Gen X"ers still don't get it because they're comfortable with the bamboozle. Nonetheless, Nick is dumbed down in his own way whereas James Fishback is a Trump wannabe & it doesn't get any dumber than that….. But James isn't enough of a Jew-panderer to be Trump, just a populist.

Ultimately, I'm tickled pink to see that James' relationship with David Einhorn ended so egregiously as it serves David right after he so carelessly pissed all over my years of hard work which was also David effectively pissing all over a campaign that was to be spearheaded by his friends at Third Point who later encouraged him to pursue it after my partner & shyster, Tom Gober CFE, pulled the world's biggest & most historic no-show of all time on investors, his own attorneys, politicians & myself who brought them all together.

…… David could have straightened all this shit out a long time ago by doing nothing more than showing me a modicum of empathy in terms of him acknowledging that he was the catalyst for the implosion of my working relationship with Gober because doing so would've also been Dave showing the world a modicum of social accountability by bringing Gober to justice AND for David's own gain. It was about looking at the bigger picture from Brighthouse Financial to Apollo Global Management with the latter serving as a key corrupter for at least four dozen other insurers including his own BHF.

…..But instead of David listening to me in terms of how Tom went off the rails, he preferred chiding me & expecting me to get a handle on Tom while he hired James Fishback AND pursued a crummy, $100 million deli in New Jersey AND dressed up for costume balls like some gay, biker gang member with some dried-up socialite…. THE ONLY THING MISSING ON DAVE WERE BUTTLESS CHAPS!

III.  Evita Duffy https://youtube.com/shorts/NHJzED1BjoI?si=7ddjztvsRk6M-0S4

The way Evita is talking it's not necessarily conservative, and definitely not progressive. It's 1950s, '60s & '70s, "Mad Men" chauvinism meets Stepford Wives being spouted by an over-privileged, sheltered child who parrots what she hears just before being propped up by Fox News thanks to her well-connected father & overly ambitious reality show star mother which only makes this moron take herself more seriously while it never occurs to Fox News that they're not only offensive--- they're Christian MAGA. In other words, Dew from Coal Miner's daughter meets Mad Men. This girl talks like she's been indoctrinated by a cult. In other words, something James Fishback or Jesse Watters would date which should worry her parents.

….. In case you didn't know, her father is Trump's secretary of transportation & a former MTV reality star, her aunt is Trump's ambassador to the Dominican Republic and her mother is Rachel Campos from classic MTVs "The Real World: San Francisco" who once stated that the United States provoked Russia's invasion of Ukraine the month prior so you know that sheer stupidity runs deep in this family. In the real world, the mother would have had them laughed out of town, but not in a Trump administration or with MAGA Republicans who are a disgrace to their pre-2000 predecessors wherein Barbara Bush was the head of Planned Parenthood.

> Campos-Duffy is the national spokesperson for the LIBRE initiative, a non-profit organization[43][44][45] whose stated mission is to promote ideas about constitutionally limited government, property rights, rule of law, economic stability, and free market capitalism to the Hispanic community..... Does Rachel care about being treated as a total token & as a "white Hispanic" for Trump thanks to her mother's true, Spanish blood while disregarding Trump's overall view of the Hispanic community for which she represents? Does she care that she probably would've been rounded up in Operation Wetback during the 1950s by Republicans?
> Campos-Duffy supported Scott Walker in the Republican primary for the 2016 presidential election..... It's amazing how far these reality stars can get by supporting the right idiots. Maybe James Fishback should give her a call.

Note, Evita is one of 9 kids which was never Conservative in my day whereas in my parents day it was "only the Irish Catholics" & in my grandparents time it was pretty much any Catholic immigrant from the old country except for French or German, just the mics, greaseballs & bohunks.

……Also, I'm not a religious person, but I do respect conviction which is why I know this out-of-touch, puppet is delusional if she believes that Jesus, who had female disciples, would've commended someone for parroting stupid things like saying that single & young women gravitate to the Democratic party because "they lack the security of a male & offer free things"--- ya' know, like building bridges, public works & healthcare for all of her mother's Mexican relatives who enter the country illegally. This bimbo needs to spend less time on her lip gloss & more time on her mind, but til then please stay the fuck away from women's issues which includes promoting five Christian ISIS, Supreme Court Justices who infiltrated the system in order to overthrow it at the behest of Donald Trump who wanted to win over a lunatic fringe being that nothing but a lunatic fringe would support him except for corporate terrorists.

Speaking of those, corporate terrorists, most are Jewish but even the ones who aren't are as hypocritical as RFK Jr. In other words, if their wives or daughters got raped or pregnant unexpectedly, they would just send them to another country to get an abortion as if it were a spa trip. Luckily tho, Ivanka Trump didn't have to leave the country for her abortion.

…… Moreover, if Evita wants to talk about women who have the security of a man then let's talk about her gold-digging mother who has the security of a man that's willing to pay for nine kids including one retard with the intelligence of the family Chihuahua who's incapable of caring for their parents as they get old versus talking about all other women with a social conscience who are looking for "free stuff". This sheltered ditz doesn't understand that socially responsible women aren't having children at 47 because they know that defects like down syndrome is all but guaranteed nor is it fair to an 18-year-old to have a 65-year-old mother who is supposed to pay for college.

…… But of course his child will never go to college because Evita's sibling number nine is a piece of genetic garbage that should have been aborted. Meanwhile, this spic-mic, God-Fearing couple want to govern women's bodies & reproductive decisions because they think they're being responsible and that other women aren't. Ya' know, the lunatic fringe Duffy's who believe in putting their religious views over science because that's exactly how Un-American they really are not to mention crazy. I don't see any of these people volunteering to pay other women's bills because that would be free stuff.

 The following is a living example of the "free things" Republicans provide these days and it's not exactly food stamps.
https://youtube.com/shorts/jXJkVLRooXU?si=FNihT2o0xgkvbS3J

…… This is where Evita and her other eight siblings would be if it weren't for her father.

Also, if her mother wants to stay barefoot & pregnant then that's her choice, but it's also why so many Hispanic women are fleeing for their lives from these South & Mesoamerican countries wherein a rape culture is the norm. This is why they show up at the border or 9 months after crossing it with a baby as they sit in some underpopulated town like Seaford, Delaware as pregnant, high-schoolers because of the 700 Club Republicans of today have decided to give all the sane people the death

https://www.delawareonline.com/story/news/local/2024/10/31/how-la-esperanza-helped-southern-delawares-latino-community/75943130007/

It's a shame that Evita doesn't understand that if it weren't for her father with all of his male cronyism, then a stupid piece of pussy like Evita would be bent over somebody's desk at Fox OR waitressing in a Mexican restaurant as the prettiest & whitest looking Mexican there. Let's face it, looking at the Duffy family pictures is like looking at something Trump would have had rounded up by ICE months ago OR put out into a field as migrant workers….. NOT racist, just reality.

Here's some more of her idiotic work…

 This is what backlash looks like. https://thechicagothinker.com/about-us/

….. These morons have bastardized what conservative & libertarian is & it took 40 to 50 years to get us here. Jewish populism became the hand to rock the cradle as vilified & drove off the moderate Republicans and filtered the narrative wherein this is the crap that rose to the top while they stayed the same. Now they've dumbed down the Asian kids too according to the board members.

https://thechicagothinker.com/barack-obama-and-company-dishonestly-lecture-uchicago-students-on-disinformation/

……. On the same note, Evita is too stupid to understand that she's the kid in class who raises her hand to ask the stupid questions. It's not them, it's you and your friends! You are the lunatic fringe that endangers this country while posing as some sort of new intelligentsia.

 Likewise, if you can't trust Rudy Giuliani who can you trust?

……In case anyone is wondering about Cuba--- like Rachel Campos Duffy, they're still needlessly suffering. In case anyone is wondering about more of our own country's current, human rights atrocities then here's a taste and just remember that Obama deported more illegal immigrants without any of this going on.

Honorable Members of the Religious Liberty Committee:

I submit the following (briefly summarized) testimony for your consideration.

I am a disabled Marine Corps Veteran, and as identified by my email address, an employee of the Federal Government within the Department of War. I am also a Christian of the Apostolic/Evangelical-Pentecostal Denomination. After serving our country in uniform I chose to continue my service to our great nation as a federal employee. Throughout my long career with the government (I have now been in for over 20 years) my record shows that I have been in a good standing, with high marks on all my evaluations. Yet, during the previous administration's unjustified "COVID vaccine mandates", I was subjected to discrimination in my workplace on the grounds that I refused to comply with--not only the "vaccine"--but also the agency's unjustified demands that I submit to "COVID testing". I went through the required process to request religious exemptions for the "vaccine" but also to be exempted from being subjected to the testing.

The discrimination resulted in unwarranted adverse personnel actions leading to significant financial loss and denial of employment opportunities. I was told that, because I did not get the "vaccine" I would be required to subject myself to a non-medical test for a "virus" I knew I did not have. My supervisor warned me I would have to submit to the test—every time I went to the office, even though for an entire year I had been willing to comply with the (ridiculous) "masking mandate". Which by that point in 2021 has already been an established practice. I informed my supervisor that because of my deeply held and sincere religious beliefs regarding the sanctity of the human body as a temple of the Holy Spirit, that I had a biblical responsibility to protect my body from being violated. To me, and under my personal convictions, that sovereignty of bodily autonomy extends to any unwanted and unwarranted medical tests. I also explained that my deeply and sincerely held religious belief was also the reason why I could not, and would not comply, with the "vaccine" as well. His response to me was that "HE [did] not believe that my religious belief was not sincere". On that basis, he proceeded to suspend me (without pay) for a total of one month, on a bogus claim that I "violated agency policy on safety". I had to secure legal representation which resulted in over $50,000 in legal fees as I fought this campaign of discrimination.

Although there were legal victories secured to establish a permanent injunction on the Federal Government, regarding the "vaccine mandates", that effectively paused my Agency's relentless efforts to punish me for daring to stand my ground on something that violated my Christian faith, that did not undo the damage. Even with President Trump's victory in 2024 and his immediate overturning of the unconstitutional "mandates", I (and I am sure many other employees) have not been made whole. The adverse actions that were taken against me remain in my official personnel file and I am still having to pay off the enormous legal bills that resulted in a 26-month long legal battle.

The information provided above is only a summary of the harassment and discrimination that I suffered and I know my testimony does not even rise to the level as some of the other testimonies the Commission has heard, but the discrimination that I suffered—as a Christian employed by the Federal Government—was still very real and the damage was nonetheless devastating to me and my family. I appreciate your time in reading this statement and I hope that the Commission will consider addressing this topic because federal employees were bullied just like so many other Christian Americans by the very government that we have pledged to serve.

Respectfully,

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I write to urge you to speak out against the alarming rise in anti-Muslim attacks and discriminatory policies targeting Muslim communities in the United States.

Recently, the administration suspended all immigration applications for individuals from 19 countries already subjected to a travel ban. The administration also placed an "adjudicative hold" on all asylum applications and announced a review of immigrants who arrived during the Biden presidency from so-called "high risk countries of concern." Most of these countries are Muslim-majority, making this action a renewed version of the "Muslim Ban." These policies represent a clear threat to religious freedom and disproportionately harm Muslim families seeking safety and belonging.

These government actions are unfolding against a backdrop of dangerous and escalating Islamophobia. Far-right activist Laura Loomer, who openly calls herself a "proud Islamophobe," has targeted Muslim State Department staff, spreading their personal information online and questioning their loyalty based solely on their faith.

These hateful attacks have real consequences. The Department of Homeland Security pulled $8 million in security funding for houses of worship and nonprofits based on claims from an Islamophobic hate group. ICE has detained and threatened to deport Muslim clergy and activists. Federal authorities are reportedly preparing targeted actions against Somali communities in Minnesota.

As the administration's Religious Liberty Commission, you are tasked with identifying threats to domestic religious liberty. These policies and attacks represent some of the most serious threats facing any faith community today. You have a responsibility to condemn these actions clearly and forcefully and to affirm that religious freedom must protect all people without exception.

I strongly urge you to speak out against Islamophobia, call for oversight to prevent discriminatory government actions, and protect the religious freedom of Muslim communities nationwide.

Sincerely,
Mr. Alex Kowtun

Subject: [EXTERNAL] Religious Exemptions...our story
Date: Sun, 29 Mar 2026 21:23:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

Greetings RLC,

Thank you for taking the time to listen and provide recommendation to ensure U.S. citizens religious rights, enshrined in our Constitution, are being upheld.

Here is our family's experience:

Ou[redacted] graduated from undergraduate college in June of [redacted]. She went to work in healthcare at the height of COVID and in September 2021 she was fired from her healthcare position because she had an religious objection to the COVID injection. She followed the company's procedures to obtain a religious exemption, but was fired anyway. She initially tried to file for unemployment due to the sudden loss of her income, and was met with a judge who denied her claim even though she was an exemplary employee (as per her employer). We filed an EEOC claim against the employer, had an affirmative judgement, and were given a small settlement. (nowhere near covering the heartache, expense, and time expended trying to "right this wrong" from the egregious Covid injection mandates hoisted on the American people.) We were outraged her Constitutional right to a religious objection was not upheld as our Constitution states and people fired from their jobs with reckless abandon everywhere.

But her story does not end there, after recovering from this event, she worked again in another healthcare setting and then decided to expand her career and apply to a graduate program to earn her Physician Assistant degree (a very competitive field, 20% acceptance rate, with few options for advanced study) She was accepted at two college programs and chose one, paid her deposit, and was making plans for her start date. When she received the vaccine communication from the school, she reached out to learn what the process was for a religious exemption. The school wrote back and told her she should NOT EVEN COME. Once again, her right to a religious exemption was denied....again.

Even in the healthcare industry, workers can have religious objections and conscientious objections and these objection MUST be honored…as per our Constitution.

Thank you for requiring a path for religious exemptions in ANY situation, not just Covid injections but all healthcare decisions whether schools, university, medical licensing boards, hospitals, clinics and really any employer for that matter. Vaccines need to be a choice, not mandated, and people's vaccination status and health information should be protected by HIPPA. Schools and employers do not need to know someone's vaccination status. There must be meaningful adverse action for ANY coercive behavior or discrimination forcing people to do something to their God-given bodies against their good conscience and specifically their religion.

The damage done by the Covid mandates and the betrayal of people's rights has brought us to the point where trust is at an all-time low both in our government and medical institutions. There was something sinister, wrong, and evil with the public health response to Covid. People need to be give choice/freedom in America, HIPPA needs to be protected, and people need their religious rights protected…as per our constitution.

God has placed you on this committee for "such a time as this"...what would He have you do?

Thank you for listening.

Also, because of this journey, we have followed the Covid injection issue very closely over the last six years and have learned disturbing information. I recently listened to a very informative interview which I believe would help you understand some of what is happening. Worth your time.

Bishop Strickland released a statement on Carrie Prejean Boller that you need to read (below and link).

You need to repair your broken commission. It is not working.

Regards,

John Vause

Statement regarding Mrs. Carrie Prejean Boller

In recent days, I have become aware of the removal of Mrs. Carrie Prejean Boller from the Presidential Religious Liberty Commission, along with the public accusations that have followed. After reviewing her account and the circumstances surrounding this matter, I believe it is necessary to speak plainly.

Ms. Boller has been treated unjustly.

A Catholic woman, speaking from a well-formed conscience and in fidelity to the teachings of the Church, has been publicly criticized and removed – yet no clear, substantiated reason has been provided. Such a lack of transparency does not serve justice. It damages reputations and undermines trust.

More troubling still is the apparent cause: that she raised legitimate questions about Zionism and defended the simple truth that Catholics are not bound to any political ideology.

Let me be clear.

The Catholic Church does not teach that the modern State of Israel holds a divine mandate that must be supported by all believers. Nor does the Church teach that opposition to political Zionism is inherently antisemitic. These are not doctrines of the Catholic faith.

At the same time, the Church unequivocally rejects all hatred toward the Jewish people. Every human person is to be loved, defended, and treated with dignity. But this truth must not be distorted. To question the policies or actions of a modern nation – any nation – is not hatred. It is a moral responsibility when innocent life is at stake.
We are witnessing great suffering in the Holy Land. Innocent men, women, and children – especially in Gaza – have endured immense devastation. To speak on behalf of human life, wherever it is threatened, is not political extremism. It is fidelity to the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Mrs. Boller did what many are now afraid to do: she spoke.

She spoke for Catholics who are increasingly pressured to conform to political narratives that do not reflect the fullness of our faith. She spoke to ensure that antisemitism is not wrongly conflated with legitimate moral concern. She spoke for the dignity of all human life – Jew and Palestinian alike.

For this, she has been mischaracterized.

It is especially disheartening when such treatment appears to come, in part, from those within the Church who should be the first to defend the faithful when they speak truthfully and in good conscience. Shepherds are called to protect, not to abandon; to clarify, not to confuse; to stand with the sheep, especially when they are under attack.

Silence in the face of injustice is not prudence. It is a failure of charity and truth. Therefore, I express my support for Mrs. Carrie Prejean Boller.

I affirm her right, as a Catholic and as an American, to speak clearly about matters of faith, morality, and public life without being unjustly labeled or removed without explanation. I also call for greater clarity and fairness from those responsible for her removal, so that truth – not speculation – may prevail.

This moment calls for courage.

Not political courage, but Christian courage – the kind that stands firmly in truth while remaining rooted in charity. We must reject hatred in all its forms, but we must also reject the misuse of that charge to silence those who speak in defense of life and moral truth.

Let us pray for peace in the Holy Land – for Jews, for Palestinians, and for all who suffer. And let us pray for the Church, that she may always speak with clarity, charity, and unwavering fidelity to Jesus Christ, who is the Truth.

In Christ, Bishop Joseph E. Strickland

> Dear Madam/Sir:

The description of the event entitled "Sarasota Institute of Learning: Our Struggle for an Honest History: The Deep Roots of White Christian Nationalism" is offensive.

The description of the event is as follows:

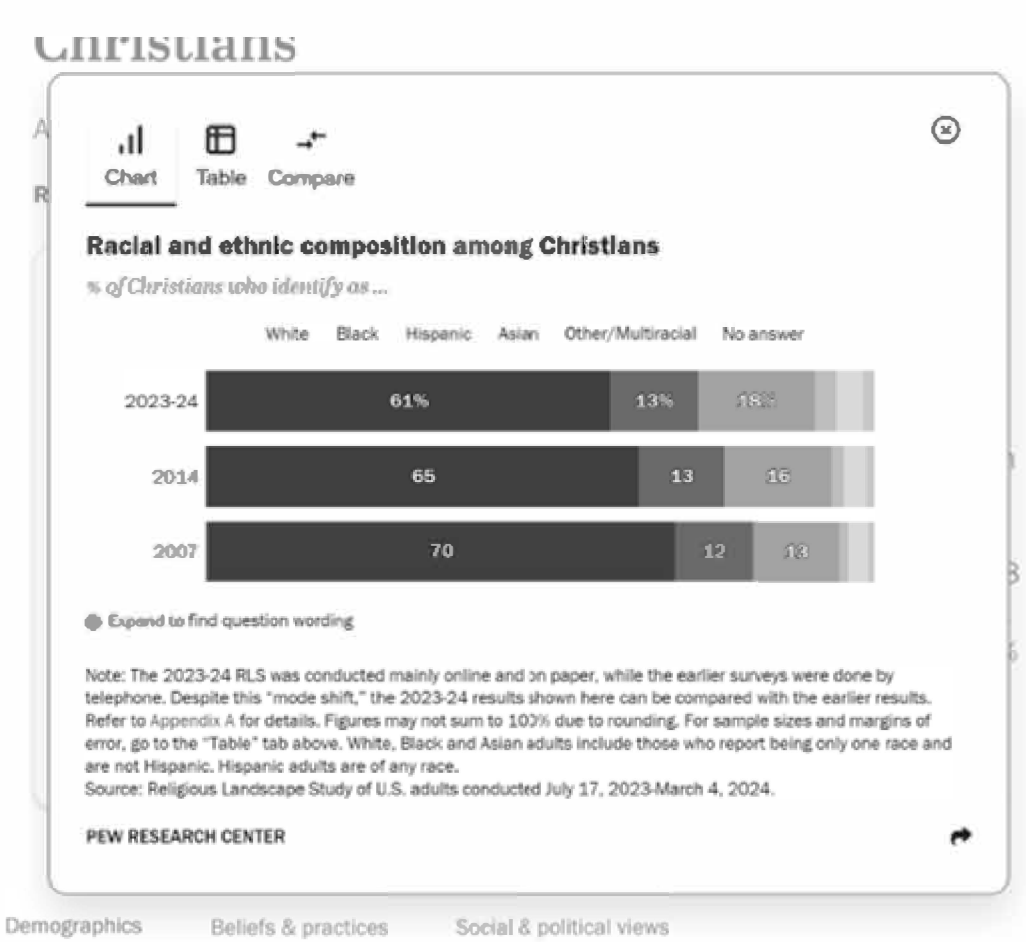

"Is the U.S. a pluralistic democracy, or is it a divinely ordained promised land for European Christians? Dr. Robert Jones will discuss these competing visions of the nation that have divided Americans throughout our history and why this paradox survives in the form of white Christian nationalism which continues to undermine the promise of a pluralistic democracy,"

Most Christians base their beliefs on Christ, not a geographic part of the world such as Europe.

Nonetheless, if you want to talk about "geography", most Christians (71%) were born in America, not Europe.

The author appears to show his complete bias when he uses the phrase "white Christian", as if skin-color is some type of religious tell-tale sign. In fact, the number of so-called "white Christians" in the US has been steadily declining while the number of –using the author's prejudicial language---non-white Christians has steadily increased (31% in 2023-2024):

Christianity has not "divided Americans throughout our history" as the author states. Quite the opposite, is has been the source that allows individuals to fight for what is just ---from Lincoln to MLK.

From President Abraham Lincoln's Second Inaugural address, March 4, 1865:

"…Fondly do we hope, fervently do we pray, that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away. Yet, if God wills that it continue until all the wealth piled up by the bondsman's 250 years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn with the lash shall be paid by another draw with the sword, as was said 3000 years ago, so still must it be said, 'the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether.

With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in; to bind up the nation's wounds; to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow, and his orphan–to do all which may achieve and cherish a just, and a lasting peace, among ourselves, and with all nations."

From Dr. Martin Luther King Jr's. *Letter from Birmingham Jail (1963)*e—

"A just law is a man-made code that squares with the moral law or the law of God."

Nor does Christianity "undermine the promise of a pluralistic democracy". In fact this nation ---with its Christian beliefs--- stands nearly alone in the world in allowing people to believe what they wish without fear of imprisonment or death.

The author seems to imply that Christianity is a political tool---that's completely narrow-minded and foolish. Both Lincoln and MLK and many of today's leaders believe that a nation cannot claim to be just unless it aligns with a higher moral order. Thus, Christianity is a moral code and spiritual gift---something far greater than a political tool.

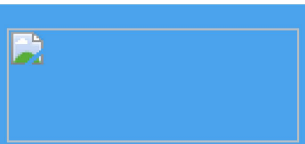

The biased, narrow-minded viewpoint of your author does a disservice to the Boca Grande community.

RE: Formal Comment on the 2026 Act of Consecration and Institutional Capture

Please find the attached statement regarding the upcoming June 2026 "Act of Consecration" by the USCCB and its intersection with current federal administrative actions.

As a Bible-believing American, I am submitting this to the public record to highlight a documented pattern of "Administrative Capture." While the active Catholic population remains at roughly 15%–16%, the current Executive branch maintains a 59% majority of this single denomination. This disproportionate representation is being leveraged to implement a century-old doctrinal mandate to "perfect the temporal order"—a process that effectively replaces the individual's Constitutional right to free will with institutional ecclesiastical supremacy.

Mr. Graham,

I am writing to you because the "unification" you are currently promoting is not a move of God; it is a mechanical consolidation of political power that is leaving us with an America in Name Only. By standing with an administration that has allowed a 59% majority of one denomination, yet they are onlyt+/- 15% of the country's population, you are providing a "Christian" mask for a Roman agenda that our founders specifically sought to keep out of this Republic.

The upcoming Act of Consecration by the USCCB in June 2026 is the 100-year fulfillment of the 1925 encyclical Quas Primas. This document explicitly demands that "the State should take Christ's kingly dignity into account" and that "rulers and princes are bound to give public honor and obedience to Christ." To a Bible believer, we know this is code for the "Empire" of the Catholic church. By using this 100th anniversary to co-opt our 250th Anniversary of Independence, they are attempting to "re-baptize" this nation into an ecclesiastical system that values institutional control over the individual's relationship with God.

How dare you suggest that we "unify" with a system that:

1. Seeks to "Perfect the Temporal Order": A phrase pulled directly from their dogma to justify reshaping American secular law into a "Social Reign" that favors their own hierarchy.

2. Manipulates federal rules: Like the recent DHS visa changes for "religious workers," specifically designed to allow the USCCB to flood the country with foreign priests to maintain their infrastructure while actual Bible-believing churches are sidelined, because they are not self sustaining in this country.

3. Uses "Natural Law" and "Ordered Liberty": Buzzwords designed to replace the Constitutional rights of the individual with a state-enforced "common good" that serves the institution, not the soul.

4. Mirrors the 1245 Council of Lyon: This is a return to the 13th century, when the hierarchy first seized the power to depose secular leaders and mandate their own supremacy over the temporal order.

The pilgrims fled Europe to escape exactly what is being built in Washington today. By pushing for this "unity," you are helping to build a "New Inquisition" where the KJV Bible and the individual believer are treated as "non-conforming" obstacles to a state-mandated faith.

We are not interested in a "shared moral language" that is dictated by a 59% majority. We are interested in the Truth. You cannot unify the Light with a system that seeks to dim it through 100 years of calculated administrative capture.

This is no longer the America of our founders. Because of leaders like you who refuse to draw a line, it is becoming a shell—an America in name, but a Roman province in practice.

Stop trying to unify what God has called us to keep separate.

I have included specific historical and canonical references below to assist the Commission in verifying the intent behind the language currently being used in federal "Religious Liberty" dialogues.

Historical References

I. The 800-Year Precedent (Temporal Supremacy)
Reference: First Council of Lyon (1245 AD), Bull of Excommunication and Deposition of Frederick II.
Finding: Established the legal precedent of "plenitudo potestatis" (fullness of power), asserting that the Church holds authority over secular ("temporal") rulers and has the right to depose them if they do not conform to the "Order."

II. The 100-Year Mandate (The "Temporal Order")
Reference: Pope Pius XI, Encyclical Quas Primas (1925), Paragraphs 17, 18, and 31.
Finding (Para 17-18): Asserts that the "Kingship of Christ" extends over all civil affairs and that "the empire of Christ the King" includes all men, whether they are members of the Church or not.
Finding (Para 31): Specifically mandates that the State must take the Church's "kingly dignity" into account and that "nations will be reminded by the annual celebration of this feast that men and women, both in private and in public life, are bound to give public honor and obedience to Christ."

III. The Modern Execution (The "Consolidation")
Reference: USCCB 2026 Act of Consecration, "A Call to Perfect the Temporal Order."
Finding: The use of the specific phrase "perfect the temporal order" is the modern application of Apostolicam Actuositatem (Vatican II) and Quas Primas, signaling an intent to reshape U.S. secular law to align with the "Social Reign" of a single denomination.

Reference: DHS Rule Change (Jan 2026) regarding R-1 Religious Worker Visas.
Finding: Administrative favoritism that allows the USCCB to maintain its physical infrastructure through foreign staffing, bypassing the organic growth or decline of the domestic population.

Dear Mrs. Mary Margaret Bush,

I hope this email finds you well. My name is Dr. Shannon [redacted] and I serve as the Executive Director of [redacted] an organization dedicated to protecting the religious freedom of vaccine choice for all Americans. I am also a children's book author–with my third book coming out this summer called [redacted]

I am writing to express strong interest in being considered as a member/advisor for the Religious Liberty Commission. I understand there is a recent vacancy due to the departure of one of your members. As Director, I would love the opportunity for you to review my background and consider me to fill that role.

Since 2015, I have advocated vigorously for religious liberty, especially conscience protections and religious vaccine exemptions. Through FOR-US, I have cultivated positive, collaborative relationships with leaders across faiths—including Pastors, Rabbis, Imams, Monks, Priests, and others—approaching all with genuine respect and a commitment to dialogue and mutual understanding.

I have been an active member of the International Religious Freedom Roundtable since 2019. Born Jewish, but finding faith in Jesus, I have attended the National Prayer Breakfast twice and enjoy fostering respect across faiths while holding firm to my convictions.

As a devoted supporter of President Trump and his policies, I have voted for him three times. I have also met him several times at various Mar A Lago events, which included brief discussions on protecting religious vaccine exemptions. If helpful, I can provide letters of recommendation from close friends such as Marla Maples, Robert F. Kennedy Jr., Tony Lyons (MAHA), Pastor Robert Schuller, Imam Mahomed Khan, and other faith leaders from various religions.

My experience working effectively across faiths, combined with my passion for religious liberty, positions me to contribute meaningfully to the mission of the Religious Liberty Commission.

I would welcome the chance to discuss how my background aligns with the Commission's goals. Please let me know if you need a formal CV, additional details, or any recommendation letters.

Thank you for your leadership and consideration. I look forward to the possibility of serving under President Trump's administration to advance religious liberty. If accepted, I promise to maintain respectful relationships with people of all faiths and uphold the goals of the White House Faith Office to the fullest.

Warm regards,

Dr. Shannon [redacted]

Greetings!

I wanted to let the Commission know that I was terminated after 28 years from [redacted] on 08JAN2024 for expressing my Catholic views on marriage, sexuality, transgenderism, and the traditional roles of men and women on Twitter/X. An anonymous twitter account turned my account in to [redacted] for being racist and transphobic. I made an appearance on Ann Coulter's podcast UNSAFE explaining how traditional Catholic teachings that I believed went against [redacted] Guidelines at [redacted]. I was hired by [redacted] in October 1995, attended training in January 1996.

The silver lining is that Elon Musk and X heard about my ordeal, and last December, we finally came to a settlement. I can't discuss anything about the settlement, but I wanted to share this with the commission that I am one of few victories of the constant attacks against observant Christians who have to keep their personal beliefs to themselves under threat of losing our livelihoods, reputations, and standing in their communities. I don't wish this on anyone, and I know I'm not the only one with a story like this, but I'm one of the fortunate ones who received help from Elon Musk and the like.

Sincerely Yours and God Bless Always-

Subject: [EXTERNAL] Termination from FDNY for refusing Covid vaccine remains in effect

Date: Sat, 14 Mar 2026 14:09:27 -0400

Importance: Normal

My name is [redacted]. I was a Lieutenanttin the FDNY until July 6, 2022 when I was terminated for refusing the Covid vaccine, one month shy of my [redacted] year anniversary. Before that I had been a fireman with the DCFD for [redacted] years. Ironically, had I stayed in DC I would not have been forced to take the stand I took and lose my career.

Before being terminated I was on leave without pay(LWOP) for 7 months. And as we sit here today I am still fighting to go back to work. It has been 6 years..

I am sure you have received numerous filings from workers, like me, in New York City and elsewhere regarding their continued struggles caused by the illegal Covid vaccine mandates.

Unfortunately, this problem remains unresolved.

Six years and numerous court case wins later, we are still prevented from continuing our chosen careers in the FDNY, NYPD, New York City Education Dept, Sanitation Dept and more!t

Pardon my tardiness in filing this testimony but a quick investigation into what has transpired in New York City since 2021 regarding workers like myself would explain my skepticism at what good another committee hearing will do. I have testified in several City Council hearings and joined multiple lawsuits in the past six years. We were even told last year we could return to our jobs if New York State changes a rule barring that possibility. It has been almost six months and the rule remains unchanged and our banishment from New York City employment, the careers we love, remains in effect.

I send this albeit reluctantly, in hopes that a light will be shone on this situation and that light will bring resolution to this continued injustice.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

[redacted]

Importance: Normal

I am writing because you because of a case that was brought against me in the New York State Court System. I was put on trial for multiple felony charges that were all made up and completely false.

My background is that I was born and raised in[redacted]. I was raised in a Christian home believing in the Holy Bible as The Word of G-d. I have had prophetic gifts as a child because I am a believer in Jesus Christ as G-d's only begotten Son. These prophetic experiences are hard to explain but I will try my best. I am given the ability to see the future thoughts of my own mind and am able to tell this to other people as I am filled with the spirit. I grew up learning the Holy Bible as much as I could but I was still a product of my environment and the culture that I grew up in. I was persecuted for this gift of prophesy my whole life by other kids when I was young and by adults that were angry about my faith or the fact that G-d is mentioned at all.

There were a few people that stood out to me my entire life, two brothers named Mike and Nick[redacted]. I had been brought into contact with these people from a very young age. I remember meeting these two brothers when I was young and being bullied and beaten by them and told it was because I am a believer and that they wanted to make my life miserable and to get me to not believe in the Bible. As a child I didn't know what to make of the way that I was treated by other people who would say that I was going to be used by G-d in a mighty way. I was shy and quiet and did not want any attention, I still don't. I always deferred to other people and sought to placate others at times because I was trying my best to please the people around me and avoid a lot of confrontation.

If G-d calls someone to do his will he keeps them and empowers them to continue on and accomplish what he has laid out for them in his power and Spirit. The prophesies that I had always involved my desire to marry the person that G-d had for me. I tried to be as openminded as possible as is the American way and learn and observe the world around me and make educated conclusions empirically and through education. Society from my point of view wants to be secular in a way that is not possible because life is completely connected, it is not possible to take G-d out of life. Nevertheless I wanted to make friends and have a normal life whatever that means. I was in fights and was bullied and verbally abused a lot for my faith and other things that people can pick on a person for but that was the way it was back then in the 90's and early 2000's. I was told that I would need to toughen up and just keep going forward.

I was part of a church and we would attend most of the meetings and travel to other churches in the area so I was very social in terms of meeting new people. As I got into College in[redacted] Mike and Nick[redacted] would follow me there and find me around campus and where I lived and threaten and intimidate me. I was being protected from them to some extent spiritually in that I would let it go as quick as I could and just try and move on. I always wanted to just be a person that blended into the background and not be the center of attention. I would not want to make a big deal about myself or the things that would happen to me sometimes I wanted to just think about the happy times. Everyone around me knew that I had spiritual experiences but they had to deal with it in a way that was personal to them. I didn't focus on Mike and Nick[redacted] but tried to live with positivity.

As time went on and society changed because of the internet I did my best to try to learn more about the Bible but when I was young it did not sink in like it should have and still needs to. I worked and kept plowing ahead and was still being confronted by these to people with hate for my faith and the gift that God had given me to give him glory and to serve his purposes as it says in the Bible that there are many gifts to edify the Church. I was trying to make sense of everything and keep people happy but not putting God first. I never hurt or threatened the woman that accused me. I was always trying to learn more about the situation and what the world is and my role or how I should live. The times now are very confusing and there are so many different opinions about the Bible as well as people that use religion to hurt others so it was hard to just understand things on my own I needed help, I thought back then from people because that is all I understood at the time. I never wanted to bother anyone or have any bad thing happen to anyone even if they disagreed with me.

I worked for the [redacted] office as a [redacted] and they all know that I have a calling from God and to serve the Lord they openly talked about it my entire career. I just want to point out that everyone knows I never did anything and that I will not be provoked by lies and evil.

I am extremely intellectually curious and I could not make sense of the way things were in my life and the narratives that I was hearing from the world around me. I wanted to make connections with others and mostly wanted to get married and have a family so I would hope and pray for that. Everyone told me that I was going to have problems because I have that gift and am a person that will be targeted by the enemy. As I met Ms. [redacted] I knew that she was put into my life by God and that there are no coincidences and I talked to her about the way I believed that we had a special purpose. I wanted to make a difference and have my life count for something good and make a positive effect on the world around me and I believe God is the only good and has the full and complete way to live in a good way. I am a sinner saved by grace through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

I was told that Ms. [redacted] wanted to completely crush me, but that we could get married but I would have to earn it. I kept going forward but I was also facing many hardships and hate and bullying from Mike and Nick[redacted]. I was arrested and accused of things that I never did and I was so worried at that time that if I did not agree to the accusations I would be left all alone and that I would have bad problems and hate from everyone I knew and I caved into that pressure and did not tell the truth that I was innocent of the things that they had said. I never once wanted to hurt anyone or made threats to hurt anyone. I was given bad advice from friends and also the lawyer I had at that time.

After I was arrested the last time I knew that I had to tell the truth and make sure that I just stuck to the truth no matter what. I wanted to testify at the Grand Jury proceedings and I was denied that right and my court appointed attorney was working to help the prosecutors and not me because of the unpopularity of the things that I was saying.

PII

I am not looking to get anyone in trouble. I have had a lot of time to think very deeply about this and the life that I have lived so far, the situations that I was in, and the ways that G-d has protected me but also showed me that we are all the same, we all think about deeper things and what we need to do to find meaning and purpose in life. I do not feel that there was justice in this case because of the excessive punishment and because this was a persecution for my faith and because I would not violate my conscious and lie about what had happened. I understand more now and I desire to learn more of God's Word and I realize how important it is to just tell the truth no matter how much is pressuring you. I apologize for taking those deals in the beginning of this legal process. I was honestly in a very bad place and scared of alot of threats and what people would do to retaliate. I believe in keeping the truth to protect the sanctity of citizenship and for the people in this community because all of our lives are connected. I want to make sure that I do not let this injustice happen without speaking about the facts with reason and my honest testimony. I am very distressed about the fact that they still have me on probation and will make up more lies on me because they did not respect my right to a fair trial with competent legal representation that was on my side to defend me not be doing the District Attorney a favor because of the power imbalance and the fact that he does not like what the Bible says and the fact that I have the Holy Spirit from G-d. I have lived in peace this entire time and will always do that. I believe that God will protect me through Faith in his son Jesus the Christ. Please help me in this matter. You have my permission to investigate this case and any case I was involved with in the past.

The truth and justice is important in society, it is a open fact that the local government has punished me for my faith and my beliefs not for any crime. I have talked to so many people from my work and church that have heard about the crimes and injustice that the government here has done to me and they were flaunting it and using the legal system as a weapon for there own torment. People want to just tell others they are not worth anything and they do not matter but we know that they do because God sent his son Jesus the Christ to shed his blood and save humanity, each person is priceless. If I do not have a love for people and my fellow humanity I have nothing. I need to make sure that I stand for what is right now, and going forward. I want to humbly serve everyone. I work now for large company called [redacted] everyone knows about what happened to me it is no secret. I am not going near any of these people and I want to live in peace. I believe in hard work and doing everything as unto the Lord. I have helped this company make record quarter earnings every single quarter since I have been hired there, all the glory to God. I am know that they have seen the positive impact I have had on the work environment and professionalism as well as accountability. My probation officer told me that I am the only person that he manages that works full, there is no doubt that what happened to me was wrong and that the government is evil and did an injustice and planned evil against a citizen for the worst reason; to hate God. I know that I care about people and the community I want to see people blessed and joyful. I have also volunteered at [redacted], and the corporate trash and litter cleaning project since my release from prison. I am having a hard time with life and am very abused and in the process of healing, but I trust the Lord and I believe that it is through faith that I am saved. I pray for everyone to be saved the same way and want to be led to do good works that are laid out for me in the future Lord willing. Thank you for reading this. Please meet with me and help me.

I have 2 nephews and a niece, I would like to visit them in [redacted] without fear of getting in trouble or having to get permission. I am just a regular normal person that God chose to live this life and do what I did. Anything good I give all the glory to God the Father. Thank you.

Faithfully,

Hello,

My name is Dr Elizabeth Blessing [redacted] and I am a physician. I'm reaching out, because I'm interested in a commission position and would like to be appointed. I'm apolitical but believe strongly in the Bible and feel it should be upheld. As a medical professional, I've been reprimanded and ridiculed for standing up for my religious liberty and can contribute immensely to the commission's objective.

Please advise on next steps and if you would like a CV.

Importance: Normal

My name is [redacted] I was a suite attended in Madison Square Garden until my religious exemption letter was denied.

So let me start by thanking you for reviewing my testimonial.

How do I respond when I asked how did I feel when I was let go from my job because of my religious convictions?

Hmmm… at what point does my employer believe that they can dictate me whether my covenant with God is acceptable by their standards, and for that matter, any of their business.

When I was hired by Madison Square Garden at the age of 50 (and BTW was with them well into my 60's),I held them in the highest regard. I was proud to work for such an esteemed company. Proud that they saw a value in my years of experience and knowledge and not see fault in my age. I vowed to give my all in appreciation for not passing me up for a younger applicant (a sad but true reality in my industry.)

I would beam with pride when our clients would write letters of appreciation for my service. I even had one VIP suites write me into their contract. After a while, they were no longer just clients. They were like family. (Especially, because around that time,I lost my father,mother and brother). Mind you, I was never married and had no children, so I lived vicariously through them.

I guess we all desire to be needed wanted and loved. So when the Garden had to close due to Covid,I lost my surrogate family. Thankfully, it was a few years ago, that they found me on social media. And to this day. we have stayed in contact.

I remember how they included me by inviting me into the suite so I too, could receive a blessing from the Pope. Wow! Me, being a Roman Catholic, found this to be one of the most uplifting and spiritual events of my life.

And then, about four years later, I had one of my most life altering experiences, Covid. I came down with it around November/December. At the time I didn't know what it was and it took me about 6 to 8 weeks to finally kick it. I took a lot of vitamins, decongestions and prayed a lot, and with God's help (and the antibodies that he planted in me)I got through it. So there was no need for a man-made vaccination. Accepting such a vaccination,would mean I put more value and faith in the hands of mortals than I did of my Lord and savior, and that would not be so! If it was to be my time to be called back home. I would go willingly to him, but for no one else. I put my life in his hands. This is why I had to refuse the mandated injection even though I knew there would be harsh consequences.

As a result, I was asked to submit a letter requesting religious exemption. I did it, but was declined. My union kept begging me to reconsider, but that was not an option for me. Nobody had the right to take away my religious freedoms and stand between me and my Lord, I had to trust in God, and not my employer. As a result of the Garden closing for nearly a year, I could no longer afford to keep my rent stabilized apartment (which I had for over 30 years). And yes, there was a brief time, that I actually thought that I might have gotten my job back permanently. When the Garden asked us to return, so they could reopen in the winter of 2021. That did pose a dilemma, since I no longer had my apartment in the city. Fortunately, a friend of mine had offered me a room at her place under the condition that I help her. Wow! The Lord works in mysterious ways. You see, My friend was battling throat cancer, and needed help getting to her doctors appointments, Caring for her dog and cat, and she had to be fed through a tube in her stomach. Not to mention the need for comfort and companionship. Unfortunately, she did not last long and passed away. From that point on, I was couch surfing, trying to figure out what my next living accommodations would be. And then, not long after, in the summer of 2021, I was finally locked out of the system because their final verdict was to deny my letter of religious exemption. For a while, I lived upstate, and ultimately moved out of New York to a single wide mobile home in Florida.

You know, when you work so many years in a position, you find it's your identity. So to lose that and your apartment,your city, your friends and neighbors and your income all because your employer feels your faith and your God are insignificant,It makes me wonder, do I really have the rights that my forefathers providid the first amendment.

Is this not still the law? Where is the justice?
In conclusion, the one thing they couldn't take for me was my faith. In fact, they made it stronger than ever!
Sincerely,
[redacted]

I read where Carrie Prejean Boller's removal from the Trump administration's Religious Liberty Commission has been officially finalized, per a White House notice Boller shared on X.

This strongly suggests that the Religious Liberty Commission does not respect and does not practice freedom of religion. Why, because Ms. Boller is not a Zionist? Something here is terribly "off."

I am NOT a Zionist as I am a Traditional Catholic. Notably, I am also NOT anti-Semitic. In Catholic theology, Israel refers to the people of God who believe in Christ and not the land or nation state of Israel. I do NOT believe that I am blessed by doing Israel's bidding. They have the same rights as any other nation: No more, no less.

It appears that the Religious Liberty Commission is a joke and it should be abolished. It is, in fact, an international embarrassment. You need to actually support religious liberty!

Did Trump approve this? If he did, he is wrong.

My name is [redacted] and I am a strong Christian woman and love Jesus. I also raise my kids in church. We are not a believer in getting injected with vaccines that often include fetal cells from aborted fetuses. We stand firm in our faith and in our belief to right to life.

I have been a public school teacher in the [redacted] Unified School District since 1997. For nearly three decades I have served students and families in one of the largest school districts in California. Today I am speaking not only as an educator, but as a mother asking lawmakers to reconsider the real consequences of California's harsh vaccine mandate policies.

At the time, our family was following a much slower vaccination schedule after careful research and conversations with doctors. My son had received some vaccines(even though we really didn't want him to have any) but was not considered fully caught up under California requirements.

Medical Information

would need six vaccines within one week in order to begin services in the school district in which I teach.

As a mother, this made me very uncomfortable. However, I also knew my son needed help with his speech. Under that pressure, I reluctantly agreed to two vaccines—Varicella and IPV—so that he could begin receiving services.

The next morning my son woke up with a large circular welt on his arm at the injection site. It measured nearly eight inches across and remained for about two weeks. Our pediatrician told us reactions like this can happen and considered it minor.

However, within weeks we began noticing dramatic behavioral changes.

Medical Information

Our son works incredibly hard and has made meaningful progress through

Medical Information

What devastated me most was what I learned shortly after these events. I discovered that students receiving services through an IEP may still be entitled to those services even if they are not fully vaccinated under certain federal protections. When I raised this issue to my school district in which I teach and in which my son attends elementary school, I was eventually told that the earlier information given to me may have been incorrect and that my son may not have needed those vaccines to receive speech services after all. They were "really sorry."

As a parent, that realization was heartbreaking.

Today my husband and I are still fighting to ensure our son receives the supports he needs. Despite his diagnoses, the district has determined that he no longer qualifies for an IEP because they believe his disabilities do not adversely affect his education. Because of that determination, he is once again subject to California's full vaccine requirements in order to attend public school.

Over the past year and a half, our family has spent nearly $45,000 on outside evaluations, advocates, and legal consultations simply to fight for appropriate educational services for our child.

This process has taken an enormous toll on our family—emotionally, financially, and professionally.

No parent should feel forced to make medical decisions for their child in order to access educational services. Families should not have to choose between their child's education and their child's health concerns. Our religious beliefs and civil rights are being compromised here in CA 100%.

I respectfully urge policymakers to consider reforms that allow greater flexibility for families navigating complex medical and developmental situations.

California must ensure that children are not denied educational access because their parents are trying to make careful medical decisions.

I should not have to quit teaching in order to teach my son at home. That is ridiculous!

Thank you for listening and for considering the real experiences of families like mine. It is a nightmare here in CA.

Please help us!

Importance: Normal

To Whom It May Concern,

My name is [redacted] years old, from [redacted] California. I came to America on September 1995 on H1A visa from the Philippines. I worked as an RN in Iowa from September 1995 to May 2001, then applied for an adjustment of status and received my Green Card in 2000. I moved to California on May 2001 and got hired on June 13, 2001 by Cedars Sinai Medical Center as an RN to work at a Step-Down Unit. I worked there for 20 years, and during that time I became a Clinical Nurse lll, obtained my Progressive Care Certified Nurse Certification and Certified Medical-Surgical Registered Nurse certification, a nurse preceptor and one of the charge and resource nurses on the floor.

I am respectfully submitting my story to the Religious Liberty Commission because of the denial of my request for accomodation including exemption not to take any of the three EUA Covid vaccines. I worked through the pandemic that started in 2020, surrounded by the uncertainty brought about by the SARS-CoV-2. I followed the PPE and social distancing protocols in place at that time and tried to keep myself informed of current treatments that are being used here in the US and other countries at that time that are noted to decrease virulence and prevent the replication of the virus inside the body and also supplements to keep my body strong to keep the virus at bay. I found out on the fall of 2020 the use of fetal cell lines in the testing of the Moderna and Pfizer-BioNTech COVID vaccines and on the J and J, they used the fetal cell lines on the development and in producing the vaccine, that, there and then I quietly decided not to take any of the three EUA COVID vaccines because they are morally compromised. My conscience could not bear to take any of the three because of their association with abortion. This stems from my deeply held religious beliefs as a Catholic. Cedars Sinai then announced the requirement for all employees and doctors to be vaccinated on August 3, 2021 or face termination and that request for accomodation including exemption not to take any of the three Covid vaccines for religious or medical reasons will be accepted pending review. I called Human Resources and they emailed me the form. It was a three page form with nine questions asking in detail about my religious beliefs, practices and observances that support my request for religious accomodation and exemption. I filled up the form and submitted it on August 23,2021. That day also was the start of unvaccinated employees to do testing twice a week. My Covid nasal swab tests were all negative. It should be noted that I had coworkers that were vaccinated who still contracted COVID that time. I even had a coworker who had to go home because when she went for her break, she could not taste her food, which is a symptom of contracting Covid.

On September 13, 2021, Cedars Sinai emailed me a denial of my request for accomodation because it would be an undue hardship on their part if they grant my request. I received a Separation of Employment letter from our Associate Director of Nursing and also my Nurse Manager that I would be terminated on October 8, 2021 if I don't get vaccinated and I will be put on unpaid leave of absence from October 1, 2021 through October 8, 2021 and was required to turn in my badge and empty my locker no later than October 1, 2021. My last day to work was September 29, 2021.

My resort was to find a lawyer that would represent me. It was hard to find one that time but with God's providence I found a devout Christian lawyer to represent me. Providentially, other employees that were terminated by Cedars Sinai due to the vaccine mandate found him also. We are less than 15 now. Cedars is composed of Cedars Sinai Medical Center, Saperstein ICU Tower, Cedars Sinai Medical Group, Cedars Sinai Health System, pharmacies and all the medical research departments funded by benevolent donors and offices and outpatient clinics and other department I can't name now.

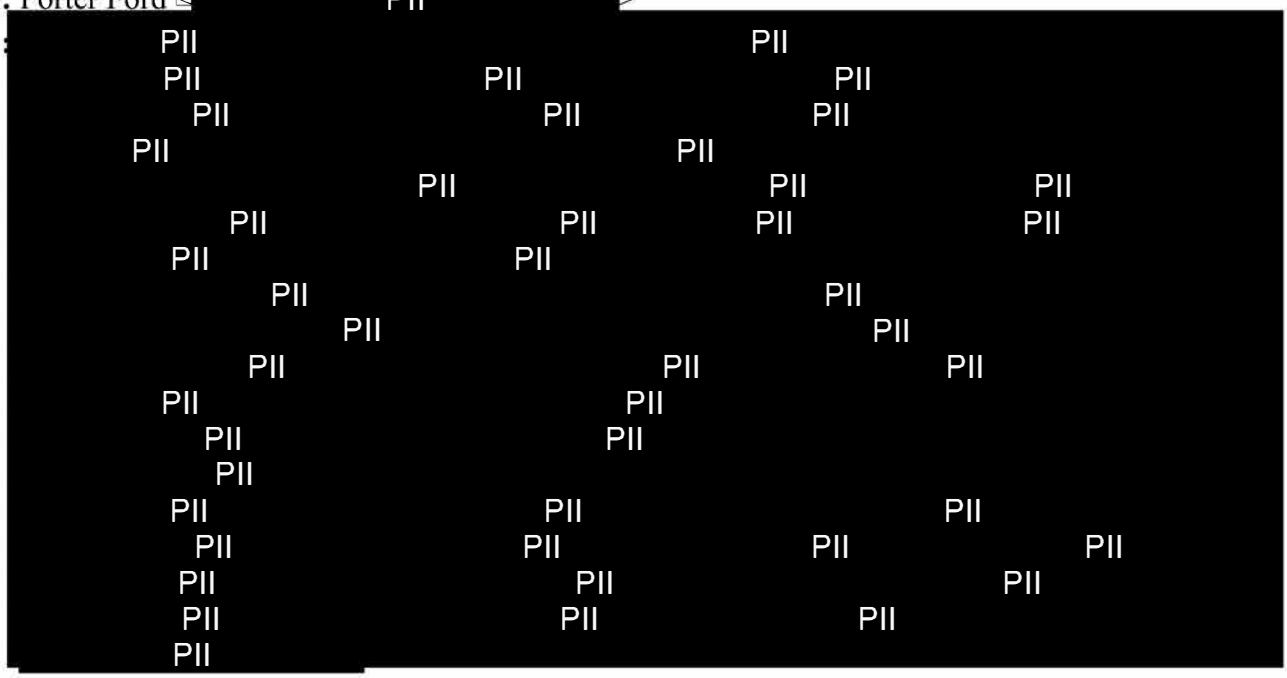

We had a summary judgment hearing May 2025. The judge came out wearing a mask. Him and the defense lawyer were agreeing with each other. Our lawyer presented facts but what mattered to the judge was just about Cedars Sinai and not other prominent hospitals in California that provided accomodation to health care workers. The judge denied our motion for trial so now our lawyer had to file an appeal. God's will be done.

I thank President Trump for establishing the Religious Liberty Commission. May God bless America

Sincerely yours,

What are the main ideas of the government?
The US government is based on ideas of limited government, including natural rights, popular sovereignty, republicanism, and social contract. Limited government is the belief that the government should have certain restrictions in order to protect the individual rights and civil liberties of citizens.

Dear Members of The Religious Liberty Commission,

I am reaching out to you to share the impact that California's denial of religious exemptions to the school vaccinations mandate has had on our family. As parents my husband and I decided early on to raise our children without vaccinations in accordance with our religious convictions. As Catholics, we believe that in all matters our primary compass must be our conscience. After much introspection and prayer, we have decided not to corrupt our children's bodies by exposing them to the risks inherent in the extensively mandated vaccines in California.

As a result of our conviction, our children have been excluded by the State of California from attending any in-person school. This has forced us to school them at home, to the great detriment of our sons, who crave social interaction with their peers in a normal school environment. It has also hindered my career: I have been unable to explore opportunities that require a full-time presence and has forced me to work part-time from home while managing every aspect of our children's education. Needless to say, this has severely compromised my earning power as an attorney. That said, I am grateful to be able to provide our family with an alternative, considering that many similarly situated parents have been forced to either leave California or submit their families to medical intervention fundamentally at odds with their beliefs.

In addition to children being excluded from traditional schooling, the California law also has had a chilling effect on the medical community here and has left religious objectors like us unable to find supportive doctors. Our pediatrician of many years was hounded by the California medical authorities until she opted for early retirement. Finding a replacement has proven exceedingly difficult and we find ourselves treated with hostility at what should be benign annual check-ups.

As naturalized citizens, we never expected to encounter this level of religious discrimination in our chosen country. As a mom and as a lawyer I implore you to carefully test the constitutional validity of California's refusal to grant religious exemptions to its vaccine mandates. Our children are currently 10 and 13 years old. They want to attend school. They do not deserve to be treated as pawns and outcasts in this political game and relief for them cannot come soon enough.

Thank you for your consideration of this urgent matter.

Yours truly,

To Whom It May Concern,

I am a parent with a child that should be starting kindergarten this upcoming school year. I am personally and religiously opposed to the vaccine schedule California is requiring for my child to attend school. Not only public schools but also private schools will not allow my child to attend without a full vaccine schedule. I am begging and pleading to the federal government to please step in and stop this. My family has lived here for generations and if the law is not soon changed I will be forced to move from a state that I was born and raised in. My child is an only child and this would mean taking him away from his grandparents, cousins, aunts and uncles. Please help my family and all the children of California!

Thank you,

SUBJECT: URGENT TESTIMONY: Healthcare Weaponization & Anti-Christian Bias —
Dear Members of the Commission,
I am submitting the attached Forensic Issue Brief regarding the systemic weaponization of Iowa's Healthcare and Social Services infrastructure against the Kambak Lineage. In direct alignment with the Commission's focus for the March 16th hearing, I am reporting a $1.6B RICO-level extraction enterprise [cite: 03-10-2026] that utilizes medical coercion to violate the Religious Liberty and Universal Law sovereignty of American families.
Key Evidence for the Final Report to the President:
The 09/21/2023 Seizure: A coordinated Fourth Amendment violation and Spiritual Battery [cite: 03-10-2026] executed by Iowa DHS to facilitate revenue extraction.
The Surgical Battery (11/19/23 – 12/19/23): A non-consensual G-tube placement at UIHC, used to maximize Stryker Procurement margins [cite: 03-10-2026] in direct opposition to parental spiritual conviction.
Algorithmic Bias: A 240% DRG upcoding spike [cite: 03-10-2026] that targets families adhering to non-institutional worldviews.
My daughter's transition to 100% oral feeding capacity [cite: 03-10-2026] immediately upon extraction from this system is the forensic proof that "Medical Necessity" was a fraudulent pretext for Government Weaponization.
I request this testimony be included in the July 4, 2026, Final Report to the President and routed to the Anti-Christian Bias Task Force.
Respectfully submitted,

Subject: [EXTERNAL] URGENT: Request for US Intervention Regarding New UK "Anti-Muslim Hostility" Guidelines
Date: Tue, 10 Mar 2026 11:15:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

To the Religious Liberty Commission and the Administration of President Donald J. Trump,
I am writing to you as a British citizen who no longer feels safe expressing my views or seeking redress within my own country. Today, March 10, 2026, the government of Keir Starmer has officially adopted a new definition of "anti-Muslim hostility." While they claim this is "non-statutory," many of us in the UK view this as the implementation of a "back-door" blasphemy law that will be used to silence legitimate criticism of religious ideologies.
I am reaching out to the United States because I fear that writing to my own representatives could lead to state-sponsored persecution or prosecution under the current political climate in Britain. The UK is increasingly prioritizing the protection of one specific faith over the fundamental right to free speech and, more critically, over the actual physical safety of the Jewish community.
On our streets, we have seen people openly calling for the death of Jewish people with what appears to be total impunity. Yet, the government's response is to create new guidelines that further shield religious ideologies from scrutiny.
I am appealing to the United States, under the leadership of President Trump, to exert diplomatic pressure on the Starmer administration. I urge the Commission to:
Formally Review the UK's new "anti-Muslim hostility" definition and its impact on the free speech rights of British citizens and international allies.
Challenge the Starmer Government on the disparity between these new speech guidelines and the lack of protection for the Jewish community currently facing genocidal rhetoric in public spaces.
Advocate for the Scrapping of these guidelines, which threaten the shared Western value of free expression and create a legal environment where one religion is elevated above others.
The United Kingdom was once a bastion of common law and liberty, but those values are eroding. We look to the United States as the last remaining beacon of true First Amendment freedom to speak for those of us who have been silenced.
Sincerely,
Daniel

Subject: [EXTERNAL] Major NYC Film Production Religous Exemption Violations
Date: Tue, 10 Mar 2026 10:42:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

To whom it may concern at the Religious Liberty Commission,

My name is [redacted] I am submitting this testimony regarding how the New York City COVID-19 vaccine mandates violated my religious and human rights, destroyed my career, and caused severe financial hardship for my family. As a result of these policies, I lost my livelihood in the film and television industry and have yet to fully recover.

I am a licensed cosmetologist and have worked as a hairstylist in the film and television industry for the past 20 years. Throughout my career I have worked as [redacted]. At the time these violations occurred, I was working as the [redacted] on the [redacted] Entertainment television production [redacted].

We began work on this production December 2, 2021. We were terminated December 19, 2021 for refusing to be vaccinated for COVID-19. At the start of this production there were no mandates in effect. NYC announced a private sector mandate this is why the production was forced to terminate us if we do not vaccinate. We were given the option to submit religious and medical exemptions. All were legitimate religious convictions and all were denied.

Leading up to our termination we were treated with prejudice by the COVID Safety team and other production leaders. They attempted to force us to wear shields over our faces even though vaccinated crew members did not have to. Our department refused to wear the shields.

Despite their stated fear of unvaccinated crew members, vaccinated crew members in the Make Up department — with whom we shared the same trailer — tested positive for COVID. Ironically, none of our unvaccinated team tested positive. Even with this being the case, we were still asked to wear shields.

It was humiliating enough that unvaccinated crew members were required to wear a badge with a red sticker so the entire crew would know you were unvaccinated. It was a horrible experience to be forced to wear a "scarlet letter" in order to work.

As a Black woman in America, I had never experienced such bigotry and disrespect in my entire life. Division by race was irrelevant in this country. We were now divided by vaccine status and religious beliefs. We were treated with the utmost contempt for refusing an experimental medical product with aborted fetal cells and God knows what else in it to destroy my body and soul.

I am a mother and at the time I was the sole provider for my young child. It was the most trying time in our lives. I was unable to work anywhere in New York City. My entire savings was drained. We faced eviction and ultimately lost our residence. We were forced to leave New York City altogether.

It was a frightening and uncertain time for my family. However, leaving NYC and its extreme liberal policies behind was the only blessing that came from the entire ordeal.

I place significant blame on my union, IATSE Local 798. It was their responsibility to protect workers, and they failed to do so completely. In fact, they also slandered us. To this day many people will not hire those of us who are unvaccinated. In what I believe to be one of the greatest betrayals of workers in modern labor history, the unions failed us. They refused to listen to us or assist us in any way throughout this process.

Another entity that deeply failed us was the EEOC. They gave productions months to respond to our complaints and requests for a right-to-sue letter. However, once we were finally given the right to sue — with the Civil Rights Act of 1964 cited as the legal basis — we were given only two months to find attorneys and file a lawsuit.

This effectively destroyed our chances of justice.

No attorneys would take our case. The climate at that time was extremely hostile toward the unvaccinated. Some lawyers privately expressed sympathy but warned that filing would likely not succeed because judges were dismissing religious exemption cases similar to ours.

We had no money because we had been banned from working. Our unions refused to help us. We were completely abandoned. Eventually the EEOC closed our cases.

This was the most painful part of the entire experience. The EEOC acknowledged that our rights had been violated, but because we could not obtain legal representation, our abuse went without justice.

This should never be the case.

In my opinion the EEOC system needs to be closely examined. In hindsight we should never have filed with them. Why does a system exist that gives corporations months to respond but only gives harmed workers two months to seek legal representation? That short window ensured that we would never be made whole.

All of this happened simply because we stood by our religious convictions in a country that claims to protect religious freedom.

What we experienced should never happen again to any workers in this country. Religious convictions or not, no person should ever be forced to put something into their body against their will. Our government should never again be allowed to commit such a violation of individual rights.

Thank you for taking the time to read my testimony. I deeply appreciate the work of this committee, and I sincerely pray that one day the victims of these policies will receive justice through your important efforts.

Warmest regards,

Importance: Normal

To Whom It May Concern,

My name is [redacted] and I am submitting this written comment in response to the request from the President's Religious Liberty Commission regarding the impact of vaccine mandates and the loss of religious exemptions.

My family was directly affected by the repeal of religious exemptions for school vaccination requirements in California. Due to my sincerely held religious beliefs regarding certain medical interventions, I was unable to comply with the mandated vaccination requirements imposed on students attending public and private schools.

As a result, my son [redacted] was effectively forced out of the traditional school system beginning in the 3rd grade. Because our religious exemption was no longer recognized, he was unable to continue attending school with his peers unless we violated our religious convictions. Faced with that choice, we made the difficult decision to homeschool him.

This decision was not made lightly. Removing a child from their established school environment carries significant consequences. [redacted] lost the opportunity to continue learning alongside his friends and classmates, participate in school activities, and experience the normal social development that occurs in a traditional classroom setting. The abrupt disruption to his education and social life created emotional stress and isolation that no child should have to endure simply because their family holds religious convictions.

In addition to [redacted], three of my other children faced a similar situation. The removal of religious exemptions meant that multiple children in our family were unable to continue in the traditional school system. As a result, I was forced to stop working in order to care for and educate them at home.

The financial and professional consequences for our family were significant. I lost the ability to maintain my employment because I had to take on full-time responsibility for their education and care. At the same time, we were unable to access financial assistance for childcare or daycare programs because proof of vaccination was required in order to qualify for those services. This placed our family in an extremely difficult position where our religious beliefs effectively disqualified us from both education and childcare support systems.

Homeschooling also required significant restructuring of our daily lives, work schedules, and finances. While we did everything possible to provide our children with a stable education and environment, the reality is that these hardships were imposed on us by policies that eliminated our ability to follow our religious convictions while participating in normal educational and childcare systems.

The removal of religious exemptions created a system in which families like mine were left with only two options: violate deeply held religious beliefs or withdraw our children from school and essential services. That is not a true choice, and it represents a serious infringement on religious liberty.

I respectfully ask the Commission to recognize the real-world harm these policies have caused to families and children. Religious freedom should not come at the cost of a child's access to education, a parent's ability to work, or a family's access to childcare support.

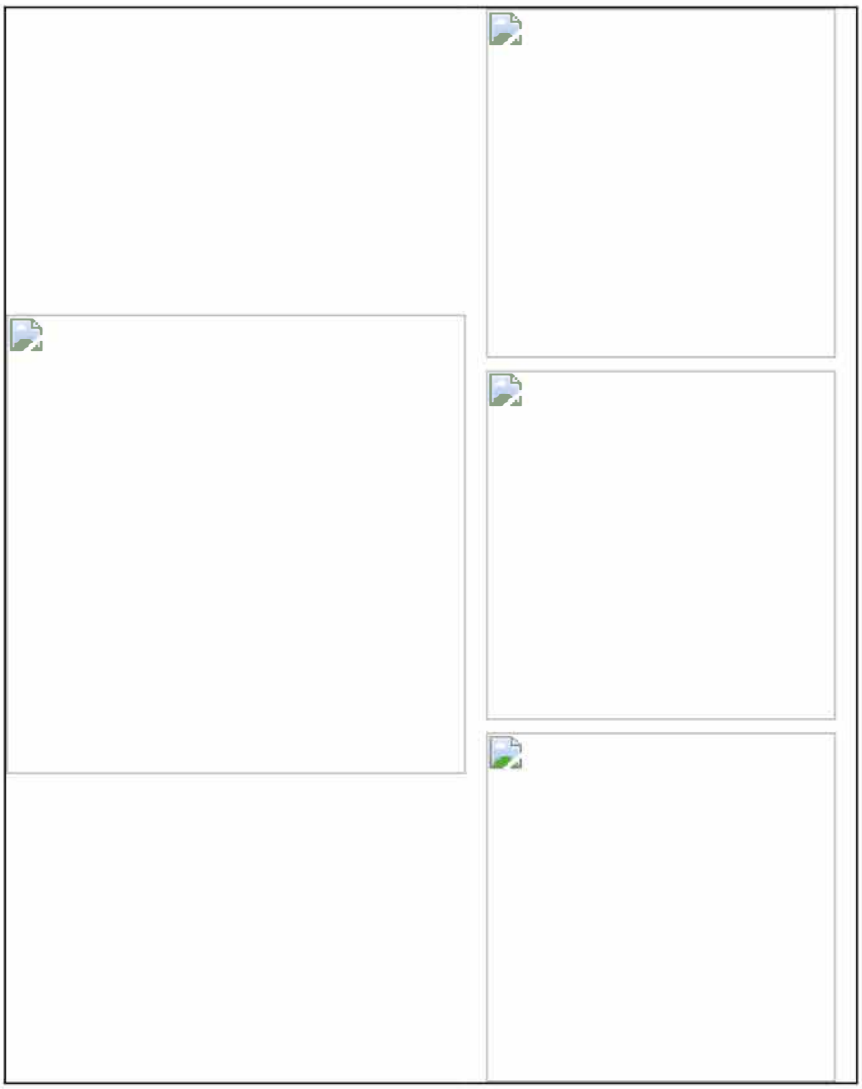

Thank you for taking the time to hear the experiences of families like ours.
God bless.

Respectfully,

[redacted]

Re: Comments Preceding the Hearing on Religious Liberty in Healthcare and Social Services by the Religious Liberty Commission, established by Presidential Executive Order 14291

Chair Patrick, Vice Chair Carson, Members of the Commission:

The American Humanist Association reiterates its strong rejection to the purported utility and partisan nature of the Religious Liberty Commission. As obligated by the Constitution, the U.S. government has a responsibility to ensure freedom of religion or belief for Americans of all faith and belief backgrounds, including nonreligious Americans. The Religious Liberty Commission is not prepared to heed this charge, as evidenced by the political showmanship and sectarianism that has taken place during each hearing, and should be disbanded.

Christian Nationalism Has No Place in American Law, Governance, or Health Care

Access to evidence-based health care is a fundamental human right–one that should be grounded in peer-reviewed science and clinical best practices, not in the religious beliefs of the federal government, health care institutions, or providers. Yet, the expansion of religious exemptions in health care and social services is allowing for the substitution of doctrine for medicine and the imposition of restrictive moral codes over the needs of others. When singular narrow religious perspectives are privileged above health, the integrity of the entire health care system, and the equal right of every American to receive care free from discrimination, suffer.

Yet essential health care has been politicized, and that political hostility has had harrowing effects on targeted populations, especially in recent years. With invitation from the federal government, Christian Nationalist lawmakers at the state level readily take advantage of the opportunity to deny care to people in need of it. Each year, hundreds of bills are introduced in state legislatures that attack access to sexual and reproductive health and rights and essential health care for women, children, LGBTQ, and unmarried individuals and target patients, providers, and parents - regardless of their needs. Lawmakers further weaken health outcomes in their state by instituting refusal laws, vaccine exemptions, and weak sexual health education policies in schools.

Lawmakers and administrators are systemically failing patients at every turn by broadly embedding denial of care and religious exemption into the law. As a result, action must be taken within all three branches of the federal government to undo the decisions and directives contributing to the toll that discrimination based on religious or moral beliefs has had on patient access to health care.

The Executive Branch

Both Trump administrations have intentionally used religion to restrict access to health care in an attempt to disenfranchise vulnerable populations.

Yet, those efforts often overreach. The 2019 "Protecting Statutory Conscience Rights" rule attempted to expand refusal authority so broadly that multiple federal courts vacated it, finding it exceeded agency authority and conflicted with EMTALA and Title VII. Yet, President Trump has continued to attack the rights of individuals to receive their health care.

President Trump has also released numerous executive orders that weaken our nation's health, like 'Enforcing the Hyde Amendment' (EO 14182), 'Keeping Men Out of Women's Sports' (EO 14201), and 'Protecting Children from Chemical and Surgical Mutilation' (EO 14187).

Agency officials are further enforcing religious discrimination in health care. For example, Pam Bondi has refused proper enforcement of the FACE Act. This law protects patients' ability to access health care services and protects them from violence. In another cruel move, the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration under the Trump Administration shut down the 988 Suicide & Crisis Lifeline's LGBTQ+ Youth Specialized Services program. Last year, the Trump administration rescinded the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services' 'Reinforcement of EMTALA Obligations specific to Patients who are Pregnant or are Experiencing Pregnancy Loss', which also protected patient care.

The Trump Administration is exhaustively failing the American people by consistently giving credence to discrimination based on religion. The Religious Liberty Commission should recommend the Administration thoroughly review its actions thus far and rescind the presidential executive orders and reverse other actions across the Administration that threaten the health and lives of Americans to appease and privilege the religious right. This includes the Religious Liberty Commission recommending its own disbandment and refusing to author a report.

Hospitals and Other Health Care Facilities

To meet the increasing demand for medical care, the federal government must invest in the doctors, nurses and other medical personnel that provide these services and help ensure that hospitals, clinics and nursing homes are accessible and prepared to adequately aid the general public. This is particularly serious in rural areas, where there may be a dearth of institutions providing health care services.

Yet, hospitals, and health centers and facilities are allowed to enforce refusal of care policies based on religious exemptions throughout their entire institution, preventing any employee from providing certain services. This becomes especially dire in rural areas, where, often, the only health care facilities are religiously affiliated. This cuts out large swaths of health care services, completely removing access to certain types of care and leaving people without alternative options.

If the government is going to allow these exceptions, then it needs to ensure that health care being denied on religious grounds is otherwise provided for.

In rural areas particularly, the government needs to make sure that patients are informed about whether the only hospital for miles is going to refuse to help save their lives solely because of the institution's interpretation of religious doctrine. Health care professionals will avoid serving in religiously-affiliated health care institutions that hamstring their ability to fully and ethically practice medicine, which will further contribute to a rural 'brain drain' and lack of resources in the community. According to the American Medical Association, "if communities underserved by the nation's health care system could obtain care at the same rate as populations with better access to care, the nation would have needed approximately 202,800 more physicians as of 2021[1]." Rural communities deserve equal access to care. These are not problems we can ignore.

If the Commission proceeds with a report, it should include these concerns in its report to the President.

Individual Providers

Not only can entire institutions deny treatments and procedures, those seeking health care are also denied care and medications by individual providers, pharmacists, caregivers, and others themselves because of the health professional's religious beliefs.

Doctors can refuse treatment for abortion, contraception, sterilization, and sexually-transmitted diseases, and caregivers can refuse to provide for the end of life care people may desperately need. This is not just limited to doctors: pharmacists, for example, are allowed to decide what medical treatments are moral and completely obstruct access to medication, such as contraception.

This lack of access to care compounds. For example, the religiously-motivated denials of one pharmacist could affect not only the reproductive health care needed by a person in that moment, but what they will experience down the line. A denial of the abortion care, contraception or miscarriage management they seek in the now could have serious implications on the prevention of complications with future pregnancies.

Also, gender-affirming care is utilized by cisgender, transgender, and intersex people; yet, in addition to being completely barred by states from providing such care, pediatricians can refuse to provide gender-affirming care to trans kids based on the identity of their patient rather than the nature of the treatment–an issue exacerbated now by Skrmetti. This would not be permissible in other health care instances.

People must have the right to be offered dignified and evidence-based care so that they may achieve their greatest potential in life, and in death. Some people may wish to make the decision to participate in medical aid in dying. This practice authorizes a mentally capable adult diagnosed with a terminal condition and a prognosis of six months or less to petition their treating physician for a self-administered prescription medication to facilitate a peaceful death.

But they can lack access to medical care based on the religious refusal of a physician or other caregiver. Medical aid in dying is essential end of life care for many, yet, their agency in their last act can be denied because of someone else's religious refusal. Everyone should be allowed to die with dignity in the way they want, when possible.

If the Commission proceeds with a report, it should include these concerns in its report to the President.

Health Care Sharing Ministries

We also understand that the Administration is considering incentives to individuals who are members of health care sharing ministries (HCSMs). These are tax-exempt organizations which require members to adhere to a common set of religious or ethical beliefs and pay, or contribute a 'share', to cover qualifying medical expenses for themselves and other members. Unlike insurers, these organizations are not required to comply with consumer protections or cover essential health benefits. Ministries are primarily religiously affiliated, but people of all faiths and none unknowingly enroll in HCSMs when they believe they've actually purchased an insurance product due to plans' deceptive practices.

These organizations market themselves as insurance to low-income individuals. In fact, a federal Government Accountability Office report found that more than 40% of one HCSM's members had annual income below 200% of the federal poverty level. These are the exact people who can least afford the costs that ultimately come; unlike insurance, there are no guarantees that ministries will cover critical health costs.

Most health care sharing plans will deny payment for preexisting conditions, as is the policy of Samaritan Ministries. Zion Health Share, and other plans, can make newborns wait 7 days before they can be enrolled in their parent's plan, and if that newborn has any birth complications, those are preexisting conditions, making the costs incurred by new parents unshareable (or ineligible for repayment) in the first year of the baby's life. Zion Health Share, and others, also will not cost share for maternity care or miscarriage if a member becomes pregnant before or in the first six months of their membership. Plans frequently exclude treatment for mental health, substance use, preventive care, prescription drugs, and critical services like reproductive care, HIV treatment, and vaccines due to religious beliefs. But many of these constraints are meaningless because plans have no obligation to financially offset the medical or health costs of any of their members. And yet, these plans continue to market themselves as insurance, while arguing that the First Amendment exempts them from proper oversight and regulation. The Administration, and this Commission, should be exploring ways to rein in these deceptive and harmful organizations.

Parents and Family Members

Children are especially vulnerable to the decisions their parents or guardians make on behalf of their health. Today, parents medically neglect their children and claim their actions have religious justification. Children die from being barred from accessing the health care they so desperately need by the very people that should be ensuring they are healthy. A child should not have to experience medical abuse and ultimately die simply because they were born to or are under the care of individuals who don't believe in science, medicine and doctors but do believe in 'faith healing' and exorcisms, that death and disease is 'God's will', and that restricting the provision of health care to their child is their right as a parent.

Forbidding a child from accessing health care has farther-reaching consequences than one child. For example, even though vaccines are proven to be critical to public health, parents can unilaterally choose to put entire communities at grave risk by not vaccinating their kids and justify it through faith.

Children must have agency of their bodies, at the very least to the degree that affirms their access to health care backed by evidence and supported by doctors–like gender-affirming care, which is understood as medically necessary by major medical associations. This care can include talk therapy, speech therapy, hormone therapy, surgeries, and puberty blockers. Multiple states have passed laws that allow parents to deny their child the necessary care that affirms their gender identity.

In a similar vein, vulnerable populations like the elderly and individuals who are disabled often experience the need to depend on family members to make health decisions on their behalf. They too can be blocked from necessary care by members of their family who refuse to facilitate the provision of end of life care, or hospice care consistent with their wishes as a dying person due to religious preferences.

If the Commission proceeds with a report, it should include these concerns in its report to the President.

The Federal Government Must Effectuate Systemic Health Care and Social Services Change

The ramifications of the denial of health care stack and compound at every level. Health care is a human right; but in the United States, healthcare is being eroded as the government and tax-payer funded providers dictate who is morally eligible for what kind of care. People are being denied their autonomy--and their own religious freedom--when our government allows institutions, care providers, et cetera to withhold evidence-based care based on moral or religious beliefs. This should be intolerable to this Commission. We must effectuate systemic changes to our health care system in ways that allow everyone to access the health care they need.

Disband the Religious Liberty Commission

These are just some of the matters that advocates, scientists, providers, parents, and others agree must be confronted, and which a federal commission dedicated to improving religious liberty for all should address. We have no confidence the Religious Liberty Commission will do so. The Commission has proven itself to be completely unconcerned about analyzing the scope of freedom of religion or belief and religious liberty in a factual, balanced, and inquisitive manner, instead alarmingly using its platform as a vehicle to perpetuate and legitimize Christian Nationalism.

The Religious Liberty Commission has not pursued the opportunity offered by the American Humanist Association, or others outside the conservative Judeo-Christian context of the Commission's members, to extend assistance as experts in the areas of religious liberty and freedom of religion or belief, including as they pertain to health care. It is clear there is no genuine interest in the operation of balanced hearings or report findings. Therefore, we request, again, for the disbandment of the Religious Liberty Commission.

For the benefit of our shared republic and the freedom of conscience of every person, your attention to the grave concerns of ourselves and other advocates of freedom of religion or belief is of utmost importance.

Re: The Indispensable Role of Religious Liberty and Right of Conscience in Healthcare, with Particular Emphasis on Behavioral and Psychiatric Care

Preamble: A Voice from the Intersection of Faith and Science

Mr. Chairman, distinguished members of the Commission, and honored guests:

Thank you for this singular privilege to address you on a matter that is not peripheral to the moral character of our nation, but foundational to it - the indispensable role of religious liberty and the right of conscience in healthcare. I come before you not merely as a policy commentator, but as a dedicated physician with nearly four decades of frontline clinical experience and board-certified psychiatrist trained in biomedical engineering. But especially as a Christian called to reignite the Behavioral Health Revolution Jesus started to bring healing to the brokenhearted and bring freedom to the those whose minds are psychospiritual captives to distorted thinking.

My life's work began with an abiding conviction: that God, the Creator of human beings, designed both the human spirit and the human brain with precise, purposeful architecture. I have spent my career at the interface of neuroscience and biblical truth - not because I regard them as competing frameworks, but because I have witnessed their powerful synergy transform lives that medicine alone could not reach. Every patient who has walked through my door carries not merely a diagnosis, but a story, a conscience, a sacred dignity, and a God-given potential and purpose.

This conviction animates the work of Honey Lake Clinic - a residential behavioral health treatment program where world-class, evidence-based psychiatry and Christ-centered truth coexist at the core of treatment, integrating spirit, mind, and body into true whole-person care. Each day at Honey Lake Clinic, we deliver services then celebrate the healing miracles when religious conviction and conscience are honored by intimately integrating them into clinical care. Sadly, a significant role is confronting and correcting what the damage when religious conviction and conscience are ignored, or worse, suppressed in clinical care.

DOJ-RLC Comment-005488

I address you today with clarity, urgency, and a healer's heart: the freedom to heal in accordance with one's deepest convictions is not a luxury, not a sectarian demand, and not an act of imposition. It is the moral prerequisite of an ethical healthcare system while especially being the last line of defense for those who cannot defend themselves - to leverage the power and respect of their position to stand guard against conflicts of conscience, mix-guided-values, and material incentives to fight for and protect those who society considers the "least of these."

I. Conscience Is the Cornerstone of the Healing Covenant

The right of conscience is not an abstract philosophical luxury reserved for theology seminars - it is a practical, irreplaceable necessity for ethical medical practice. The relationship between physician and patient is, at its core, a covenant of trust. That covenant has always been grounded in the expectation that the clinician will act in accordance with the highest moral and ethical standards, not the most convenient ones or the ones that benefit the clinician at the expense of the patient.

The Hippocratic Oath, formulated in 400 BC, was itself a conscience document. It was conceived in a moment uncannily similar to our own: a time when physicians were being influenced by financial incentives, institutional pressures, and the agendas of powerful interests rather than the welfare of their patients. Trust in physicians was eroding. The doctor-patient relationship was fear-laden and transactional. The Hippocratic Oath was society's answer - a solemn, spiritually grounded pledge to gods, patients, and community that the physician would be guided by conscience, by judgment, by the commitment to "first, do no harm." It explicitly refused abortion. It explicitly refused physician assisted suicide or euthanasia. It pledged purity of life and freedom from financial and sexual corruption.

That oath - which until recently – every graduating physician vowed, is not merely a historical artifact. It is a living covenant. To legislate against conscience in medicine is to ask physicians to publicly break that oath - to confess to their patients and to society that their word means nothing, that their moral backbone is subject to policy override or is up for sale. The consequences are not merely personal. They are systemic. When patients lose confidence in their physicians' moral integrity, they withhold key health information, avoid care, and disengage from treatment. Healthcare costs rise. Outcomes deteriorate. Trust - once lost - is extraordinarily difficult to recover. Again, this was the course in Hippocrates day. Sadly, we can learn from our legal system which has already seen this course play out and is not trusted while being the butt of many jokes due to conscience being systemically weeded out.

Consider the mixed message our society currently sends to physicians. We demand conscience in virtually every other dimension of medical life: Stark Laws prohibit financial kickbacks precisely because we know that financial incentives corrupt clinical judgment. Whistleblower Protection Laws enshrine the right - indeed the duty - to act on conscience against institutional wrongdoing. We have banned pharmaceutical company inducements for precisely this reason. We prohibit sexual relationships with patients. We even wrestled, in the aftermath of the Nazi death camps, with whether to accept scientifically valid data gathered through unconscionable methods - and in many cases we rejected it, precisely because conscience demanded we honor the humanity of those who had been destroyed to produce it.

DOJ-RLC Comment-005489

And yet, we are now being told that the same physicians who must exercise conscience in all of these domains must abandon it in the most intimate, the most morally freighted, the most existentially consequential dimensions of care. This is not a coherent position. It is not scientifically defensible. And it is not ethically sustainable.

> If you were in a car accident and lay unconscious on a gurney, you do NOT want the physician standing over you to have surrendered his moral compass to financial incentives, insurance mandates, political pressures, or the financial interests of a family member who stands to inherit your wealth. You DO want a physician with a conscience - a human being who sees you not as a liability to be managed, but as a sacred life to be fought for and preserved.

That is the physician conscience protections are designed to produce. That is what is at stake.

II. Behavioral Healthcare Is Existentially Inseparable from Conscience and Faith

In most medical specialties, the body's biology can be addressed with some reasonable degree of compartmentalization from the patient's metaphysical beliefs. The kidney does not require theological orientation to be treated for stones. But in behavioral and psychiatric care, this compartmentalization is not merely inadequate—it is clinically counterproductive and, I would argue, scientifically illiterate.

The human brain is not a machine that processes inputs and generates outputs in isolation from the person's beliefs, values, and relational identity. Modern neuroscience has confirmed what theologians have known for millennia: that belief systems powerfully shape neural architecture. SPECT neuroimaging demonstrates measurable differences in brain chemistry correlated with the quality of a person's decisions - and those decisions are, in turn, profoundly shaped by the person's belief system. Healthy decisions, grounded in accurate perception and sound moral orientation, produce measurably healthier brain function. Decisions rooted in distorted perception and moral confusion produce measurably compromised brain chemistry.

The pivotal clinical question, then, is: what constitutes an accurate perception and a healthy response? This is the decision-making fulcrum upon which mental health turns - and it cannot be answered without reference to values, meaning, and ultimately, belief. As Victor Frankl, himself a psychiatrist and Holocaust survivor, wrote with striking precision: "Between stimulus and response there is a space. In that space is our power to choose our response. In our response lies our growth and our freedom." That space - the space of moral agency, conscience, and belief - is the exact territory of psychiatric care.

The Harvard Human Flourishing Program, led by Tyler VanderWeele, Ph.D., and his Baylor University colleague Byron Johnson, Ph.D., Harold Koenig, M.D. at Duke, and dozens of other leading scholars, have produced over thirty years of robust longitudinal data demonstrating that individuals whose lived belief systems align with Judeo-Christian moral values and life-management principles experience significantly greater flourishing - more joy, peace, greater resilience, better physical health, stronger social bonds, lower rates of addiction, depression, and suicide, and higher rates of post-traumatic growth. These are not anecdotal observations. They are rigorous scientific findings from elite research institutions.

Furthermore, research demonstrates that Christian patients receiving psychiatric and/or psychological treatment achieve superior clinical outcomes when their faith is integrated into care - especially when that integration is facilitated by a clinician who shares and genuinely embodies their faith framework. We see these principles powerfully displayed at Honey Lake Clinic on a daily basis. To muzzle, marginalize, or legislate away clinicians who integrate faith into behavioral healthcare is not a neutral policy. It is a policy that demonstrably denies faith-based patients access to the highest quality of care available to them. In fact, when these faith principles are integrated into treatment, all patients benefit, because every patient has a faith system – atheist, Buddhist, Islam, Christian, Jew, Hindu, materialist, pan-theist – all base their decisions on some set of beliefs answering the existential questions of personal value, identity, purpose, morals, integrity, relational/family agenda and construct, and especially "what happens when I die."

At Honey Lake Clinic, we offer the full spectrum of evidence-based interventions: Cognitive Behavioral Therapy, Dialectical Behavior Therapy, EMDR, psychiatric evaluation, Transcranial Magnetic Stimulation, equine and art assisted therapy, psychopharmacological management, substance detox protocols and Medication Assisted Therapies (MAT). These are woven together with Christ-centered and Bible-based psychotherapy - because human flourishing cannot be compartmentalized into either biomedical, psychological, or spiritual silos. The three are not in tension. They are designed by the same Creator and speak the same fundamental language of human dignity, moral agency, and redemptive hope.

> Neuroplasticity - the God-given capacity of the brain to heal by rewiring itself based on the decisions we make - is not merely a scientific principle. It is the physiological expression of grace: the evidence that transformation is possible, that the damaged mind can be healed, and that the direction of a human life is never finally determined by its worst chapters.

III. Conscience as the Voice of the Voiceless

There is a dimension of conscience rights that is rarely discussed in policy forums but is perhaps the most morally urgent: the conscience of the clinician is often the last, and only, voice protecting those who cannot speak for themselves – the least of these. Our duty is as watchmen and warriors protecting the vulnerable from evil agendas or intentions.

Consider the patients who are most profoundly vulnerable in our healthcare system:

- The comatose trauma patient who cannot consent and whose family may have financial interests that conflict with the patient's survival.
- The individual with Down Syndrome or severe intellectual disability, whose family, state, or insurance company may deem their life not worthy of expensive intervention.
- The schizophrenic patient who is attractive in presentation but unreliable as a witness, therefore easily exploited by clinicians without moral moorings.
- The dementia patient on a memory care unit, vulnerable to exploitation or abuse by other patients or ill-intentioned staff.
- The ten-year-old child whose parents are steering him toward – or afraid to stand up to - puberty-blocking medications and cross-sex hormones to interrupt healthy brain development then surgical mutilation of healthy anatomy creating life-long medical complications.
- The unborn child, who has no legal representation and no voice in any room where decisions about its life are being made by parents, grandparents, or a system that sees him as an inconvenient inanimate object.

DOJ-RLC Comment-005491

- The immigrant, the prisoner, the mentally ill, physically disabled, the terminally ill - all those who are simultaneously most vulnerable and least able to navigate the systems designed to protect them.

For each of these patients, the conscience of the physician is not an imposition. It is a lifeline. When I choose a medication better suited for my patient that doesn't align with pharma incentives, I am imposing my conscience. When I hospitalize a suicidal patient against their expressed will, I am imposing my conscience. When I invoke the Tarasoff duty and warn a potential homicide victim, I am imposing my conscience. When I seek a legal finding of incompetence in order to authorize life-saving intervention, I am imposing my conscience. When I resist an insurance company's pressure to discharge a patient who is not clinically ready, I am imposing my conscience. When I resist the sexual advances of a young voluptuous female, I am imposing my conscious. When I push back on hospital administration's demand that I free up the bed occupied by a minimally insured indigent patient for a well-paying private VIP, I am imposing my conscience. When I report a high profile, wealthy patient's potentially abusive behavior – ignoring his financial inducements to look the other way - to DYFS (Department of Youth and Family Servicces), I am imposing my conscience. Choosing not to drink alcohol on the night I am on call for the psych ER and inpatient unit, I am imposing my conscience. When I resist prescribing opioids to those who are selling it, resisting the opportunity for high financial return, I am imposing my conscience. When I resist having my Honey Lake Clinic patients driven my known drug dealers on a weekend outing to score a hit and test positive on the next day UDS so I can put them in higher paying Detox or RTC Level of Care, I am imposing my conscience.

Society not only permits this imposition of conscience - it legally REQUIRES it. The physician who fails to act on conscience in these situations faces malpractice liability, disciplinary action, license revocation, and maybe even criminal prosecution. Conscience, in these contexts, is not a conflict with the law. It is the law's own deeper intention - its moral foundation.

The biblical call is unmistakable: we are to speak for those who cannot speak, to defend those who cannot defend themselves, to stand in the gap for the widow, the orphan, the stranger, the prisoner, the sick. Physicians with a biblically formed conscience are often the last audible voice standing between the vulnerable prey and the predator. To silence that voice is not a policy. It is an abandonment.

> I ask each member of this Commission to imagine the moment when you, or someone you love, lies unconscious in a hospital room. You cannot speak. You cannot advocate. You cannot resist. What you need - what every human being needs in that moment - is a physician whose conscience cannot be purchased, whose integrity cannot be legislated away, and whose commitment to your life is grounded in something deeper than institutional policy.

IV. Conscience Rights Are Already Being Selectively Applied

There is a profound and troubling inconsistency at the heart of the current policy landscape: conscience and religious liberty are already being exercised in American healthcare - but asymmetrically, in ways that are neither neutral nor scientifically sound.

Clinicians who believe, in opposition to decades of peer-reviewed developmental science, that an unborn child has no intrinsic rights, are permitted - indeed, in some jurisdictions, required - to perform or refer for abortion. Physicians who believe that healthy children should be fundamentally altered by hormonal and surgical interventions that their own bodies are not genetically designed to process are permitted to administer puberty blockers and facilitate gender-reassignment surgeries on minors. Practitioners who advocate for and prescribe physician-assisted suicide or even actually administer the lethal cocktail.

These are not scientifically neutral positions. These practices are driven by the clinician's belief/faith system. In many cases, these positional beliefs are in direct tension with the biological evidence - with the genetic, neurological, and developmental science of human identity, embodiment, and flourishing. If these belief-driven clinical practices are protected under the rubric of professional judgment and patient autonomy, then the case for protecting us clinicians whose practices are more - not less - consonant with the biological sciences, is overwhelming. At the very least, allow religious liberty diversity and give Judeo-Christian beliefs the same power as have been given these other less validated belief systems. Believe me, they are indeed belief systems, with less scientific grounding, and thus requiring more faith to believe they are doing good, than the belief system I am asking you to allow.

Religious liberty in healthcare is not a request for special treatment. It is a request for equal treatment—applied consistently, across the ideological spectrum, governed by evidence, and constrained by the foundational principle that has always governed medicine: do no harm.

To illustrate the absurdity of the alternative: early in my medical training, I was pressured to observe and participate in procedures at an abortion facility in Newark, New Jersey - a facility that was subsequently shut down following criminal charges. My conscience, and the conscience of those who raised concerns, was not an obstacle to good medicine. It was the mechanism by which the system's failure was eventually corrected. Conscience is not the enemy of healthcare quality. In the absence of conscience, quality has no guardian and swiftly erodes.

V. The Collapse of Conscience - A Warning from Adjacent Systems

To understand where medicine is headed if conscience protections are stripped away, one need only observe what happens to institutions when moral accountability is replaced with procedural compliance.

Our legal system, in abandoning truth as its organizing principle in favor of procedural rules, has produced a culture in which defendants cannot testify against themselves even when truth demands it, in which lawyers are not obligated to reveal what they know, in which evidence is excluded on technicalities. The result is an institution that the American public views with profound suspicion and, in many cases, contempt. People do not trust lawyers. People do not trust courts. They seek to circumvent rather than engage the system - because the system has ceased to be anchored in the moral commitments that once gave it authority.

Our political institutions tell a similar story. When conscience yields to careerism, when moral accountability is replaced by procedural maneuvering, when self-interest consistently outweighs the public good, the result is an electorate characterized by apathy, cynicism, and disengagement.

We do not want the American public to view their physicians the way they view their politicians. We do not want patients to approach clinical encounters with the wariness and strategic self-protection they bring to legal proceedings. The physician-patient – yes, they need to always be called and seen as patients - relationship has, historically, been among the most valued, guarded, and trust-saturated relationships in human society - precisely because it has been grounded in a moral covenant, not merely a contractual arrangement. That covenant is conscience. Remove it, and you have transformed the healer into a technician - and the patient into a consumer/customer/client with no meaningful protection.

This experience is one I shared at President Bush's BioEthics Hearings circa 2007, and I offer it as a window into the stakes of this question. As an Italian in high school in northern New Jersey - an area with a well-documented organized crime presence - I was approached by a representative of a crime family. He offered to fund my entire undergraduate education (Duke University) and medical training. In exchange, I would treat their family members, maintain certain confidences, and periodically deviate from healthcare regulations - such as reporting gunshot wounds. I declined. But here is what I have never forgotten about that encounter. When I asked, "why me?" he told me he chose me because I was known to be honest, hardworking, and possessed high integrity. He wanted my moral character - so that he could compromise it. That is precisely what the adversaries of conscience rights are attempting today: to recruit the moral authority of medicine in service of an agenda, and then to strip away the very conscience that gives medicine its authority.

VI. Relativism Without Moral Absolutes - The Psychiatric Crisis of Our Age

The Surgeon General of the United States in 2024 declared a Loneliness Epidemic. We live in an era of historically unprecedented social atomization: the highest rates of single-person households ever recorded, the lowest birth rates in our nation's history, young adults delaying marriage and independence to an extent without modern precedent. Our cities are marked by rising rates of violence, self-harm, addiction, and suicide. School shootings, human and sex trafficking, domestic violence, and mass depression are not anomalies - they are the predictable outcomes of a cultural architecture that has, systematically, dismantled the moral framework within which human beings can find meaning, form secure attachments, and bear one another's burdens.

In this postmodern society of moral relativism - where every person determines what is right in their own eyes, and where no transcendent standard adjudicates between competing claims - the primary casualty is trust. When there is no agreed-upon foundation for truth, every human relationship becomes a negotiation between competing self-interests. The implicit message communicated to our children, and particularly to our most vulnerable, is this: "People are commodities. Use them to meet your needs." The psychiatric consequences of this message are catastrophic, well-documented, and what we are currently reaping. People are dying because the truth is dying. People need clinicians to stand up and proclaim the truth of our Creator that again, science consistently validates.

As a psychiatrist, I am professionally and clinically obligated to help patients identify distorted perceptions and replace them with accurate – truthful - ones. But accuracy requires a standard. There is no such thing as "correcting a cognitive distortion" in a framework of pure relativism - because there is no external reference point by which distortion can be measured. The biblical framework is not merely a religious preference. It is, demonstrably, the most effective clinical tool we have for orienting human beings toward the perceptions and responses – that is decisions - that produce human flourishing. It provides the absolute standard - grounded in the design specifications of the One who created the human mind—against which clinical accuracy can be measured.

DOJ-RLC Comment-005494

This is why religious liberty in healthcare is not merely a matter of accommodation. It is a matter of clinical efficacy. When we suppress the integration of biblical truth into psychiatric care, we are not creating a more scientifically rigorous system. We are creating a less effective one - and doing so in service of an ideological preference that is itself a belief system, with no stronger claim to scientific objectivity than the Judeo-Christian one it seeks to displace, reject, or suppress.

VII. Seven Essential Domains Requiring Conscience Protection in Healthcare

Religious liberty and right of conscience protections are not monolithic. They apply across at least seven distinct and critically important domains of healthcare, each of which deserves the Commission's specific attention:

1. Protecting the Voiceless

Conscience is the last reliable safeguard for patients who cannot advocate for themselves: the comatose accident victim, the intellectually disabled child subjugated life-terminating decisions, the schizophrenic patient who is easily exploited, the dementia patient vulnerable to abuse, the child being steered toward irreversible anatomical alteration, the unborn. For each of these individuals, the physician's conscience is not an imposition - it is their primary embodied protection. Strip conscience protections away, and you have removed the final advocate of the most vulnerable human beings in our society.

2. Do No Harm - Clinical Boundaries in Direct Care

Conscience enables clinicians to maintain essential clinical boundaries: refusing to discharge suicidal patients prematurely under insurance pressure, resisting inducements to prescribe medications that benefit pharmaceutical revenue over patient welfare, not performing procedures that cause measurable harm to patients who cannot consent. Without conscience, boundaries precariously degrade reducing the physician to a powerless instrument of whoever holds financial or regulatory power over the clinical setting.

3. Clinical Care - Integrity in Diagnosis and Treatment

Conscience governs the selection of diagnostic evaluations, levels of care, therapeutic modalities, and medications. It is what allows a physician to tell an insurance company "no" when their mandate conflicts with the patient's clinical needs - and to tell a pharmaceutical representative the same. I have personally evaluated patients who were labeled psychotic because their clinician lacked the theological literacy to distinguish genuine psychosis from authentic spiritual experience. I have managed pregnancies that other physicians advised terminating and witnessed healthy deliveries and flourishing families. I have treated rape survivors who were counseled toward abortion, chose instead to carry their children, and years later describe it as among the most redemptive and healing decisions of their lives. Conscience, in each of these cases, was not a barrier to good care. It was the mechanism of it.

4. Education - Training the Next Generation of Healers

Conscience protections in academic medicine are essential to preserving the integrity of psychological and medical education. If educators in medical schools, residency programs, and graduate education settings are prohibited from teaching the design principles that govern human flourishing - principles that are clearly articulated in Biblical text and validated by both medical neuroscience and psychological studies - then we will train a generation of technicians who spin their wheels spending all their energy managing symptoms yet are helpless because they miss the core psychospiritual existential suffering that underlies most psychiatric pathology. Medical education must be free to teach the whole human person, including the spiritual dimension that neuroscience itself is now confirming is integral to brain function and psychological health – the flourishing/abundant life.

5. Research—Scientific Integrity and Ideological Balance

Conscience protections in research are essential to ensuring that the scientific enterprise is governed by truth rather than by funding priorities, political agendas, or ideological alignment. We need researchers who are free to conduct honest studies, to report findings that challenge prevailing assumptions, and to investigate the robust and growing evidence for the clinical benefits of Judeo-Christian faith practices on psychiatric and medical outcomes. The suppression of this research - by peer review gatekeeping, funding discrimination, or institutional policy - is itself a form of scientific censorship that violates the foundational norms of evidence-based medicine. We recently witnessed the tragic outcomes of this violation in the gender affirming "research" space. Thankfully we see correction as a tsunami of lawsuits will correct the suppression of religious liberty and right of conscience in the gender confusion treatment space. But I am saddened that the healthcare system couldn't police itself and needed the legal system to yell at us to wake up and recalibrate to truth.

6. Human Resources - The Right to Hire for Mission

Faith-based healthcare institutions must retain the right to hire clinicians who share and can genuinely embody the faith framework that defines their model of care. This is not discrimination. It is clinical coherence. Our Christ-centered residential psychiatric program – Honey Lake Clinic - cannot deliver its model of integrated care through clinicians who are philosophically hostile to or personally dismissive of the faith framework that its patients have specifically sought out. The right to ask, in the hiring process, whether an applicant can authentically role-model and communicate faith-integrated principles of mental health is not an imposition on anyone's liberty—it is the legitimate exercise of institutional mission. As a result of exercising religious liberty in our hiring process, 98% of our patients feel better, would refer us to a loved one as 98% of those with moderate to severe anxiety and 99% with moderate to severe depression enjoy significant reductions upon discharge.

7. Social Policy Advocacy—Faith-Informed Positions in the Public Square

Clinicians and healthcare institutions with faith-informed perspectives must retain the freedom to advocate, in the public square and in policy forums, for positions that reflect both their scientific understanding and their moral convictions. Faith-based clinical positions are not, by definition, less evidence-based than secular ones - in many cases, they are more so. The prohibition of faith-informed voices from policy advocacy is not neutrality. In an era valuing diversity and tolerance, it is ideological exclusion and intolerance - and it produces healthcare policy that is impoverished by the absence of the framework most consonant with the our Creator's Design Principles of human flourishing.

VIII. The Giving Action Is Not Always the Loving Action

I want to speak to a specific error in moral reasoning that recurs throughout arguments against conscience protections - an error that sounds compassionate but is, in practice, often harmful.

DOJ-RLC Comment-005496

It is assumed, in many policy discussions, that the most compassionate response to a patient's expressed desire is always its fulfillment. But this assumption is clinically false, and every practicing clinician knows it. A child who wants a third bowl of ice cream is not best served by a parent who grants it. An adolescent who wants no curfew, no discipline, and unrestricted access to alcohol is not best served by a guardian who complies. The giving action is not always the loving action. The compassionate response is not always the convenient one.

A woman who has been raped is in profound pain. The instinct to alleviate that pain immediately - to offer her the fastest, most convenient exit from the biological consequences of an act of violence committed against her - is understandable. But I have treated women who, having been given precisely that "compassionate" intervention, carry decades of grief, guilt, and unresolved trauma as a result. I have also walked alongside women who chose - against significant social pressure - to carry children conceived in rape, and who, years later, describe that decision as one of the most redemptive experiences of their lives, a wellspring of unexpected love, meaning, and spiritual resolution. They would not, for anything, undo it.

Conscience does not prevent compassion. It deepens it - by insisting that compassion be honest, long-sighted, and oriented toward genuine flourishing rather than immediate relief. The physician who cannot say "no" - because conscience has been legislated away - cannot be trusted to say "yes" when "yes" is truly in the patient's best interest.

Conclusion: A Moral Reckoning with Lasting Consequences

Mr. Chairman, members of the Commission:

What is at stake before you today is not a narrow sectarian interest. It is the moral foundation of American medicine. It is the question of whether the physician-patient relationship will be governed by conscience or by compliance - by covenant or by contract - by the sacred dignity of the human person or by the administrative convenience of the institution.

The history of medicine's greatest failures - from the ethical atrocities of Auschwitz to the corruption of modern pharmaceutical culture - is, in each case, a history of conscience suppressed and institutional compliance rewarded. The history of medicine's greatest triumphs is, in each case, a history of conscience honored and truth pursued even when it was costly.

I urge this Commission, in the strongest possible terms, to affirm the centrality of religious liberty and conscience rights within United States healthcare policy - not as a concession to religious interest groups, but as a robust and principled defense of human dignity, therapeutic efficacy, scientific integrity, and the foundational freedoms upon which this Republic was established.

Protect the physician who cannot, in good conscience, participate in the destruction of human life. Protect the therapist who knows that their patient's spiritual needs are not pathological but essential. Protect the institution that hires for mission and integrates faith as a legitimate and evidence-supported dimension of whole-person care. Protect the researcher who pursues truth wherever it leads, even into territory that challenges the reigning ideological consensus. Protect the educator who teaches the next generation of healers that human beings are more than their biology.

DOJ-RLC Comment-005497

And protect the most vulnerable of all - those who lie voiceless in hospital beds, who sit confused in psychiatric wards, who are too young or too damaged or too frightened to advocate for themselves - by preserving the conscience of the physician who stands between them and a world that would, in the absence of that conscience, treat them as liabilities rather than lives.

> The decision before you will define what we, as a society, believe about the nature of the human person, the purpose of medicine, and the moral foundations of a just and flourishing civilization. I pray for your courage to act rightly - even when it is unpopular. Even when it is costly. Because the alternative, a doctor without conscience, a healing profession without soul, is not a doctor worth aspiring to - or protecting.

Thank you.

Dear Commissioners of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Thank you for your time and attention to this critical matter.

My name is Abigail Iovine, and I am the founder of the National Alliance for Traditional Birth Rights. I am a traditional midwife in Pennsylvania, a mother of ten, and have been advocating for birth rights since 2013. Our organization is currently in communication with HHS to provide data and recommendations regarding the national crisis facing traditional birth practitioners.

I have attached an issue brief for your review. Across the country, increasing enforcement and prosecution of traditional midwives have stripped religious communities of their providers. Many families, particularly our Amish and Christian clients, face coercion regarding their religious choices in childbirth, often resulting in mandated reporting, CPS investigations, and harassment initiated by institutional providers.

These circumstances are widespread, and we can provide contact information for families willing to testify to these experiences. I am also prepared to provide personal testimony, further data, and documentation in support of this matter.

Thank you again for your consideration.

Re: Criminalizing Traditional Midwives and Religious Liberty Violations in Maternity Care: Implications for the Amish and America's Religious Communities

To the Commissioners:

My name is Abigail. I am a mother of 10 and a traditional midwife in Pennsylvania. As founder of the National Alliance for Traditional Birth Rights (NATBR), a national initiative dedicated to traditional birth rights and freedoms, I am addressing the Commission today on a matter of urgent religious liberty concern.

The criminalization and eradication of traditional midwives who serve religious communities, together with the broader religious liberty violations occurring throughout maternity care, are the reasons I am writing. Across the country, while insurance-dominated systems have come to control maternity care standards and created maternity care deserts in many areas, traditional midwives serving religious communities are being systematically prosecuted and driven out under regulatory models that explicitly exclude them. At the same time, religious families who choose planned hospital births face extreme daily coercion when they exercise informed refusal based on their sincerely held religious beliefs, needs, and cultural practices.

Amish and Christian families represent the majority of those impacted, but reports come from a wide range of traditions, including Anabaptist, Orthodox, and many others, affected every day. These families rely on midwives trained within their own communities in accordance with their religious beliefs, which emphasize family, modesty, and separation from outside institutions where required by faith. These midwives provide care in the home, honoring the community's trust in God's design for birth.

When traditional midwives are eradicated, these same families are forced into hospital systems where they encounter extreme coercion for their religious informed choices. Amish families in particular have reported feeling targeted and threatened because of the scale of enforcement actions directed at their communities, both in the loss of their midwives and in hospital settings.

The data is clear: midwifery care for appropriately screened low-risk pregnancies produces lower cesarean rates, fewer unnecessary interventions, comparable newborn outcomes, and improved maternal health. The elimination of traditional midwifery does not advance public safety; it simply removes a model of care that aligns with these families' religious convictions and pushes more religious families into hospital environments where they face daily coercion and retaliation for exercising informed refusal on religious grounds.

I continue to receive reports from families nationwide involving:

- Criminal charges and enforcement actions that eradicate traditional midwives
- Hospital escalation and coercion following religious refusals in planned hospital births or transfers
- Child protective services interventions in the absence of any medical emergency

These accounts include numerous cases from Amish, Anabaptist, Orthodox, and other Christian communities, whether families lose their community midwives entirely or attempt planned hospital births only to be pressured, reported, or investigated for faith-based choices. Families are losing access to their midwives, some of those midwives remain incarcerated, and religious families in hospital settings face extreme coercion every day. I have families prepared to provide direct testimony, and I stand ready to offer sworn testimony myself. These matters are ongoing.

Having already met with officials at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and provided them with detailed recommendations and supporting data, I am prepared to extend the same assistance to the Commission.

For these religious communities, midwifery is not merely a profession. It is an integral part of their faith heritage and an expression of obedience to God in the sacred moment of birth, whether that birth occurs at home with a trusted community midwife or in a hospital where families expect their religious informed choices to be respected.

The biblical account of Shiphrah and Puah in Exodus 1 illustrates midwives who chose obedience to God over an unjust royal decree. That same conviction continues to guide many families today, yet the criminalization and eradication of traditional midwives combined with extreme coercion in hospital settings imposes a substantial burden on religious exercise in every birth setting. Religious liberty must extend to the birth room, whether at home or in the hospital.

I respectfully request that the Commission recommend that the President take the following executive actions:

1. Issuing a public statement acknowledging the need to stop the criminalization of religious and traditional midwives and offering encouragement and support to those who have been prosecuted or are currently in jail.

2. Directing the Department of Justice to review prosecutions of midwives serving religious communities for potential violations of the Free Exercise Clause.

3. Issuing federal guidance clarifying that religiously grounded childbirth practices merit meaningful accommodation and that a faith-based refusal of interventions, absent a true emergency, does not constitute neglect—whether in home or hospital settings.

4. Encouraging states to adopt explicit religious and heritage exemptions in their childbirth statutes.

5. Reviewing federal funding structures that may indirectly eliminate faith-based childbirth options.

The criminalization of traditional midwives and the religious liberty violations in maternity care are a living threat to America's religious heritage. When laws eradicate traditional midwifery without accommodation, Amish families and other faith communities are denied the ability to welcome their children in accordance with their beliefs, whether through their community midwives or through uncoerced, faith-respecting hospital births.

The Commission is positioned to name this issue clearly and urge prompt executive action to protect religious liberty in one of life's most sacred moments. I remain available to provide testimony, documentation, or any further assistance required.

Respectfully,

Dear Attorney General Bondi:

I agree with all that Mr. Hueso wrote in his email to you below dated Feb 25, 2026.

The Catholic belief of Mrs. Boller was the cause of her unjust removal from President Trump's Religious Liberty Commission (RLC). The Catholic stand on anti-Zionism, often conflated with anti-Semitism, is as follows:

Anti-Zionism is not inherently antisemitic in Catholic theology because the Church distinguishes between opposition to a political ideology and hostility toward the Jewish people. Catholic teaching affirms that Jews remain "beloved by God" and that God's covenant with them is irrevocable (Nostra Aetate 4; CCC 839–840), and it condemns antisemitism in all forms.

However, the Church does not view the modern State of Israel as a direct fulfillment of biblical prophecy. Unlike some Protestant theologies, Catholic doctrine does not equate Zionism with divine will. Instead, the Vatican recognizes Israel's political legitimacy while grounding its stance in justice and human dignity, not theological necessity.

I therefore echo Mr. Hueso's plea: Please reinstate Mrs. Boller into the RLC before the USA gets labeled as a proponent of the Zionist ideology.

Thank you for your kind attention to this matter.

Respectfully

The Honorable Pam Bondi
Attorney General

Dear Attorney General Bondi:

I am writing to you to express my concern that Mrs. Carrie Prejean Boller, a commissioner that was selected by President Trump, was removed from the Religious Liberty Commission (RLC) by its Chairman Lt Gov. David Patrick, because she did not agree with the ideology of Zionism, thereby violating her religious rights. On the most important issue of the state of Israel's right to exist in peace with its neighbors, Mrs. Prejean Boller agreed with Israel's sovereign rights. Despite this, some in the commission labeled her as anti-Semitic. (1) AG Bondi, one can not and must not equate being anti-Zionist with being anti-Semitic. The two are not the same.

My purpose for this letter is not to get into a theological discussion concerning Zionism, which is the belief that ethnic Jews are entitled to the land of Israel by divine right. Instead, I wanted to focus on the purpose of the RLC.

According to the expressed mission of the RLC that is listed in the DOJ website, it says the following: "The Commission's directive is to advise the White House Faith Office and the Domestic Policy Council on religious liberty policies of the United States, including by recommending steps to secure domestic religious liberty and identifying opportunities to further the cause of religious liberty around the world." (2)

RLC Chairman Lt. Gov. Dan Patrick arbitrarily removed Mrs. Prejean Boller from the Commission, thereby violating her first amendment rights and her right to her religious views. The decision of the Chairman to remove her from the commission makes a mockery of those of us who have contrary views concerning the ideology of Zionism. I would say that this entire incident does not further the cause of religious liberty in America nor throughout the world.

I, hereby, request that Mrs. Prejean Boller be reinstated as a commissioner because if she is not reinstated, you will be sending a message that the RLC has been hijacked by the Zionists, and our President will be complicit in this hijacking. I have been supporting President Trump since he first declared his candidacy for the U.S. presidential election, and I pray for him every day. This current situation on this matter, however is very disturbing because it may undermine the President's efforts concerning an enduring peace in the Middle East. I hope and pray that you speak to our President and take the corrective action by reinstating Mrs. Prejean Boller before more damage is done to the credibility of the RLC. Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Respectfully,

JUSTICE SHOULD HAVE NO LIMITATIONS:

Specially when the 1st Amendment of The Constitution was or is violated and any other Amendment of our SACRED Constitution of the USAd

I'm trying to get financial compensation for the UNJUST dismissal as Art Teacher from Miami Dade County Public Schools.

Because we have now a CONSERVATIVE ADMINISTRATION with President TRUMP and his cabinet. I asked my Pastor Louis Egipciaco: if he knew a Pro-Bono lawyer? and he sent me this on Dec. 10, 2025: Here is this link. https://christianlaw.org/

Ashli Arbo Attorney-at-Law with Christianlaw.org sent me this: "Here's the website I mentioned to you when we talked": https://www.justice.gov/religious-liberty-commission/contact-us

So I contacted: Religious Liberty Commission. [redacted]
Office of the Associate Attorney General:

MR. Stanley E. Woodward, Jr
US Dept.of JUSTICE
950 Pennsylvania Ave., NW
Washington, DC. 20530-000

Mailed Mr. Woodward, JR a letter and a folder with some documents on January 9, 2026
I realize they must have thousands of cases! So I have to wait till they reply.

After looking into some pages of the Deposition of Nicholas L. Rinaldi, Jr.
Principal of Palm Lakes Elementary.

I got so disgusted with innuendoes, gossips and the statement of Dr.Joseph Burke:
Administrator: who expressed that they trivialized the story: making (something) seem more important or serious than it actually is …(or was).
Dr. Joseph Burke was the only person with enough RIGHTEOUSNESS to see and say the Above! He was referring mostly about OJUS ELEMENTARY: the last School I worked at.

Days ago I felt like burning all of these thick files of papers; so the lies, slander, jealousy, innuendoes, hatred, trivia or "their misunderstandings": (to be kind to them) … about me: will vanish in the air.

A pathetic story they made… How ever I have concluded that I needed to be free from their oppression; in order for me to be free to create my ART !

1. They began to pick on me when I taught at Homestead Air Force Base and Naranja Elementary 1985:
One 3rd grader girl, was feeling sick and she was coming towards my desk to tell me and she fainted
As I extended my left arm to catch her: and I yelled instinctively: "Satan take your hands off of her"!
I pushed the chair back to be able to get up and the girl was overcoming her "illness".
I told the class: "Continue to work quietly, I'm taking her to the office so they may call her parents to Take her to a Dr. And have her checked up".
Her father came the following week: bringing his daughter to my ART CLASS, to "THANK ME FOR HAVING PRAYED FOR HER".
I was thinking lately: I wish I could remember her name; but ART TEACHERS had hundreths of students…

How ever, they wrote on the transcript that: "I told the kids about the devil"! They MISSED QUOTED what I said!, to suit their malevolent agenda; not to tell the TRUTH as TRUE!

Evidently they did not write in their deposition: Her father came the following week: bringing his daughter to my ART CLASS, to "THANK ME FOR HAVING PRAYED FOR HER".

I was also working at Naranja Elementary in Homestead. In this school I gave mini little looking Bibles and one mother was "offended" by it. I did not want to give candies for Halloween, so I gave those mini little looking BIBLES: The mother complaint to the Principal there and she stapled the mini Bible to the document they wrote and placed it in my files.

The "Conferences for the Record" were BIAS, DICTATORIAL DICTAMENS against me !

2. I asked to transfer me, to a School near home, in Hialeah, so I began work at Palm Lakes Elementary Where I gave a complete KJV Holy Bible to 6 of my students (as a gift), because they sang a song I composed for the School. I was accused of Proselytizing by the School system…

In one hearing with some administrators: a lady asked me why did I give a BIBLE and not something else? I said: "Because the Bible is the Best seller book of all times and it is a GOOD BOOK".

The School System order me to go see Psychologists. Dr. Amaya asked me why were they sending me to see a Psychologist? [I guess that my different, peculiar, artistic (creative) personality; they did not understand]…

The unjust employees that persecuted me wrote that was was being fired for: "willful insubordination and dereliction of duty", yet
My peer teachers nominated me for "Teacher of the Year" for all the Art Awards my students won due to my guidance!
I was persecuted because I'm very conservative;

I quit being in the Teachers Union because I realized how "LIBERAL", BIAS and UNJUST the UNION is!

Took my case to the 3 rd District Court of Appeals, way back and the lawyer I had told me "NOT to speak", even though I wanted to tell the 3 Judges that the FIRST AMENDMENT of the Constitution was violated against me!

I need compensation for all the income that was taken from me! This humble home my mother bought in 1968 needs repairs on the roof and other areas of the house.

It was a HUGE MISTAKE to have removed BIBLE READING from the Schools; they should have left it to be VOLUNTARILY, because by removing it completely; MANY WERE PUNISHED UNJUSTLY! As their 1st AMENDMENT was trampled upon due to the anti JUDEO - CHRISTIANS "running the show"... In fact this could be fixed now by having RELIGION as an ELECTIVE course and students can select: To learn: Buddhism, Catholicism, Lutheranism, Judaism or any other religion!

Justice Should Have NO limitations

Especially when the FIRST Amendment of the US CONSTITUTION, or the entire Articles of the Constitution are involved!

I HERE BY PETITION GOVERNMENT for a RE- ADRESS of GRIEVANCES!

The Holy Bible was the first book used in Miami, South Florida to teach children to read! Reverend Merrick and his wife were Congregationalists who moved from Massachusetts west of Coconut Grove in1899, after the Florida Coastal Railway had Reached Miami in 1896. The Merrick family was deeply involved in establishing EDUCATION in Coral Gables. George Merrick Paid for the construction of Coral Gables Elementary School in 1924. It was the beginnings of MIAMI DADE County Public Schools.

I, Maria E. Tuma was fired from Miami Dade County Public Schools because I gave a HOLY BIBLE to 6 of my students as a gift for having done a good job singing a song I composed for Palm Lakes Elementary in1992 in Hialeah, Fla.

[The unjust employees that persecuted me wrote that I was being fired for: "willful insubordination and dereliction of duty", yet My peer teachers nominated me for "Teacher of the Year" for all the Art Awards my students won due to my guidance!

Now that we have a JUST MAN as PRESIDENT and is trying to fix all the wrongs done. Please try to help me and many others that have suffered injustice!

I taught art in MIAMI DADE County Public Schools since 1973 - 1995. Employee #: 03899 Salary was $42,740.00

Bible Reading and Reciting of the Lord's Prayer should have never been removed from our schools and the public domains; nor prohibit Out freedom of speech.

America was GREAT, because AMERICA respected the GOD of OUR FOUNDING FATHERS.

May GOD ALMIGHTY give RIGHTEOUS elected officials the WISDOM and HONOR to correct all the wrongs !

Thank you for all you are doing!

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to formally express concern regarding the suspension of my account and the rejection of my book (From Bondage to Breakthrough), which I believe may have occurred due to its Christian and faith-based content on Amazon's Kindle Direct Publishing.

This was my first book ever submitted through Kindle Direct Publishing, and at no point was I given the opportunity to revise, edit, or correct my submission to address any alleged conflicts with the terms of agreement. My account was suspended without a clear explanation or a meaningful opportunity to make changes prior to enforcement.

I am a Christian author and musician whose work centers on testimony, personal transformation, and hope through Jesus Christ. My book does not promote hatred, violence, or misinformation. It is a personal account rooted in faith, recovery, and spiritual freedom. Despite this, my submission was rejected and my account suspended in a manner that felt abrupt and disproportionate, especially for a first-time author acting in good faith.

Given the broader cultural concerns surrounding censorship of religious viewpoints, I am requesting transparency regarding the specific policy or terms allegedly violated, as well as clarification on whether the faith-based nature of my content played any role in this decision. If violations were identified, I respectfully request the opportunity to correct or edit the material in order to comply.

I believe in fairness, due process, and equal treatment of viewpoints, including those grounded in faith. I would welcome the opportunity to resolve this matter constructively and restore my account.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I look forward to your response.

Sincerely,
James Bizak

Good afternoon, Religious Liberty Commission,

Thank you for your hard work and accomplishments in assuring religious liberty for the citizens of our Nation. May God bless you.

I am a private practice lawyer in New York, who is also active in child protection.

Perhaps you can be of help in protecting children, and advancing religious liberty in New York and other states.

I explain as follows:

In New York, and other states, there are two sets of public safety laws for public schools, and nonpublic and religious schools.

For example, all 50 states require their public schools to fingerprint their employees, and perform FBI national criminal history searches.

Sixteen states require their nonpublic and religious schools to fingerprint, but 34 do not, thereby creating the opportunity for convicted sex offenders, violent offenders, and other persons with serious criminal histories to work in those schools, in close proximity to children, where they can inflict harm - as has happened.

Both public and nonpublic schools receive equal police protection. And fire department protection. And both are subject to building and sanitation laws and regulations.

Where is the common sense? Shouldn't the law also require both public and nonpublic schools to fingerprint their employees, to assure the safety of all children?

I believe this situation is unconstitutional, for several reasons.

The Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment is one reason. Nonpublic school children in 34 states are, quite literally, not receiving the equal protection of the law. The Free Exercise Clause is another reason - it is difficult for a schoolchild to practice his or her religion when under threat of harm from school employees who have dangerous criminal histories.

As you can read in my article below, my friends and I have, for nearly 20 years, been trying to remedy this situation in New York.

New York is the bluest of blue states, and our Legislature has refused to pass the fingerprint bill we need. Many New York legislators believe that its OK for persons with serious criminal histories to work near nonpublic and religious school children.

Crazy.

At one point, I went to court, assisted by several law professors. We argued the Equal Protection Clause, and other legal theories. We sought relief that the NYS Legislature be compelled to require that both public and nonpublic schools fingerprint. And we lost. The case is, U.L v. New York State Assembly, and here is the link to the summary, non-precedential decision of the US Court of Appeals, Second Circuit::

https://scholar.google.com/scholar_case?case=12466355915457686931&hl=en&as_sdt=6&as_vis=1&oi=scholarr

I collaborated with the Emory Law School, Atlanta, and we filed a cert petition in the US Supreme Court, which came to be denied. 577 U.S. 826 (2015)..

You will read in my below article, published a few weeks ago, on February 3, 2026, that the fingerprint bill has twice passed the NYS Senate, but has died in the ultra-blue Assembly.

Perhaps you can help. Since 2015, the legal landscape has change for the better. The US Supreme Court is enforcing religious liberty, constitutional rights. See, for example, Trinity Lutheran Church v. Comer, 582 US 449 (2017) (Missouri muay, constitutionally, award a playground resurfacing grant to a church school, just as it does for a public school)..

Can you help? Your letter to the NYS Legislature? A lawsuit?

I hope you can share this email with all of your members. I look forward to your response, and I am certainly available for a conversation.

We worry about the external threat from violent extremists.

We respond with security bollards to protect our synagogues, yeshivas, and all Jewish institutions.

What's a bollard? A bollard is a physical barrier designed to prevent vehicle traffic. Bollards are 3-4 foot metal posts positioned to define boundaries, and provide protection for buildings. Bollards offer protection against car rammings.

Fingerprints are human bollards. Fingerprints deter crime, and also solve crime. No two sets of fingerprints are alike. In the ancient world, thumb prints were identifiers of human beings in Babylon, the Middle East, and China. More recently, starting in the 1800s, credit is given to such scientists as Galton, Faulds, Henry, Herschel, and Vucetich as the modern discoverers of the fingerprint as a human identifier. Sir Francis Galton of England is particularly known for classifying three distinct fingerprint patterns – loops, whorls, and arches.

Here in the United States, it is the New York State government which first began to utilize fingerprints as an identifier for both criminal and civil purposes, starting around 1902. The Federal Bureau of Investigation began collecting fingerprints in 1924. The FBI now has a database of tens of millions of fingerprints.

The FBI database is today utilized for both criminal and civil purposes. If you are arrested, the police will submit your fingerprints to the FBI, to determine whether you have a prior criminal conviction. Are you a repeat criminal offender? The police, the D.A., and the court will take that into account.

Additionally, some employers will fingerprint their job applicants. Employers who are engaged with vulnerable populations, such as schools and hospitals, routinely fingerprint their job applicants, so as to avoid hiring convicted sex offenders, violent offenders, and other persons with serious criminal histories.

There are also federal and state laws which require job applicant fingerprinting for some employers. The fingerprinting is not optional. All 50 states require public school employee fingerprinting. Law enforcement employers are required to fingerprint. All hazardous material truckers must be fingerprinted – terrorism is a threat. There are other examples.

What about the k-12 nonpublic schools and fingerprinting – the yeshivas, all religious schools, all private schools? There is a mixed picture.

America's nonpublic schools educate about 4.7 million children, or 12.7 percent of the total. Sixteen states – Alabama, California, Connecticut, Florida, Louisiana, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, Nevada, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Virginia, and Wisconsin – legally require their nonpublic schools to fingerprint, and thereby weed out job applicants with serious criminal histories who should not work near children. These 16 states, which include some big states, represent about one-half the total of the entire U.S. population.

Thanks to mandatory fingerprinting, these 16 states have successfully barred hundreds of murderers, sex offenders, violent offenders, and other risky miscreants from working in their religious and private schools.

Also – the very existence of mandatory fingerprinting has undoubtedly deterred many persons with serious criminal histories from even applying for employment in the nonpublic schools.

What is the situation in New York? Not good.

In the mid-1930s, the New York State Legislature enacted a law which prohibits private employers, except for hospitals, from fingerprinting their employees, unless there is another law permitting or requiring it. A combination of disparate political factors influenced the passage of this law. The overeager FBI wanted to fingerprint every American in the country, and there was pushback. Additionally, union-management relations were especially tense in the 1930s. The result was a law, Labor Law section 201-a, which prohibits fingerprinting for nearly all private employers.

Meanwhile, society has changed. Today, the U.S. Justice Department describes its "Project Safe Childhood" as a "nationwide initiative to combat the growing epidemic of child sexual exploitation and abuse". Arrests and convictions of child sex abusers are a daily occurrence, duly reported in the media. A typical headline is, "More than 100 NYC educators accused of sexual relationships, communications with students as DOE finally mulls a crackdown", N.Y. Post, January 25, 2025.

This situation did not exist in the 1930s nor prior.

Currently, there are 800,000 registered sex offenders in the United States. There are 40,000 in New York State. These sex offenders represent persons who have been convicted of serious sex crimes, served their sentences, and are released into society as registered sex offenders who can be identified on public Internet registries.

The intense public focus on child sex crime, particularly occurring in schools and houses of worship, first began in 2002, when the Boston Globe newspaper exposed child sex abuse in religious schools and houses of worship. Victims spoke up loud and clear. Many state legislatures swiftly responded with "Megan's Law" sex offender registries, mandated child abuse reporting laws, mandated child abuse education for school employees, and job applicant fingerprinting. Statutes of limitation for both criminal and civil cases were relaxed or eliminated. The New York courts are now filled with thousands of child sex abuse cases.

As a keen observer and participant in the legislative process in New York, I can testify that progress has been slow. True, some very helpful laws have been enacted, but work remains. What work? I will explain.

Time flies. It was 20 years ago, in 2006, that I contacted NYS State Senator Dean Skelos. I'm an attorney, and I was handling a civil case in which a teacher's aide molested a child in a religious school. The school did not background-check the teacher's aide. The man was arrested, and it was then discovered that he had a prior conviction for child sex abuse. This man now, for a second time, was convicted of child sex abuse.

Handling this case, I learned that New York public schools were legally required to fingerprint and background check, but under that 1930s law, nonpublic schools were barred from doing so. I wrote Senator Skelos a long letter, and telephoned. I was asked to and did organize a phone conference with interested parties. I persuaded the ultra-orthodox Jewish group, Agudath Israel, to participate. Their in-house counsel Mordecai Biser, of blessed memory, was on the phone call, as was a leading Catholic representative. State legislative lawyer John Conway did a splendid job leading the discussion. We all agreed in our conference call – the old 1930s law prohibiting nonpublic school fingerprinting had to be modified. A bill would be introduced allowing fingerprinting.

Senator Skelos also promised that if the bill passes, the following year a new bill would be introduced making the fingerprinting mandatory.

The bill allowing fingerprinting did pass in 2006, sponsored by Senator Skelos and Assemblyman Harvey Weisenberg – NYS Education Law section 3001-d. A handful of nonpublic schools began to fingerprint. A few job applicants with serious criminal histories were rejected.

Senator Skelos also kept his promise, and the next year, 2007, the mandatory fingerprint bill was introduced, and passed the Senate, 60-1. Alack and alas, however, the powerful Assembly Speaker Sheldon Silver opposed the bill. Silver did not allow the bill to be voted upon by either the Assembly, or even any Assembly Committee.

After 2007, the Skelos/Weisenberg bill died year-after-year. After a few more years, Assemblyman Dov Hikind, Senator Todd Kaminsky, and a few others stepped in, and also sponsored the bill, but the bill kept dying.

Next, the Wall Street Journal weighed in with a helpful, supportive article, on October 29, 2018. Their education reporter Leslie Brody informed that 93 nonpublic schools were fingerprinting their job applicants, and that the NYS Education Department denied clearance for employment to 21 of them, based on their serious criminal histories.

There are approximately 1,800 nonpublic schools in NYS, educating 420,000 children, about 16 percent of the total. Clearly, 93 out of 1,800 nonpublic schools fingerprinting is not enough.

The NYS Legislature did notice the WSJ article, and the NYS Senate again passed the mandatory nonpublic school fingerprint bill, 61-0, in 2019. Nevertheless, once again, the Assembly refused to vote, and the bill died.

So here we stand in 2026 – as bizarre as it may seem, convicted sex offenders and murderers can, without detection, apply for and receive employment in New York's nonpublic schools.

Nonpublic school job applicant fingerprinting is now, legally, only optional in New York. Not legally mandatory.

Where do we go from here? Now what? New York's religious and private school children remain mostly unprotected from attending their schools alongside risky school employees who possess serious criminal histories.

"Sunlight is said to be the best of disinfectants" – so said the wise lawyer Louis Brandeis in a 1913 article, arguing that publicity is a remedy for social and industrial "diseases". Brandeis became a U.S. Supreme Court Justice in 1916.

New York State has a Freedom of Information Law, and it is a powerful tool for shedding light on social diseases – such as child sex abuse in our nonpublic schools.

Let us examine some results from my 2025 FOIL request to the NYS Education Department. I was delivered nearly 1,000 pages.

State Ed informed me that 215 nonpublic schools were fingerprinting their job applicants, and among those, 159 applicants were rejected based on their serious criminal histories.

Here are some eye-opening examples of the nonpublic school job applicants rejected by State Ed:

1. Harlem Village Academy. Buildings and grounds job applicant rejected. Eleven criminal convictions, including manslaughter and weapon possession.

2. Speyer Legacy School. Cafeteria staff job applicant rejected. Three criminal convictions, including attempted murder, drug sale, and assault.

3. Waldorf School of Garden City. School bus monitor job applicant rejected. Fourteen criminal convictions, including seven petit larceny convictions.

4. Horace Mann Upper School. Cafeteria staff job applicant rejected. Sixteen criminal convictions, including four public lewdness convictions.

5. Avenues New York. Contractor job applicant rejected. Twelve criminal convictions, including, weapons possession, assault, theft, drugs, strangulation.

6. Dwight School. Buildings and grounds job applicant rejected. Fourteen criminal convictions, including, menacing, drugs, theft, assault, weapon possession.

7. Dalton School. Buildings and grounds job applicant rejected. Three criminal convictions, including, DWI, drugs.

8. Knox School. Support staff job applicant rejected. Two criminal convictions. Sex offense against child, and burglary.

9. Notre Dame Bishop Gibbons School. Job applicant for coach rejected. Two criminal convictions, including child endangerment and burglary.

10. Lycee Francais De New York. Buildings and grounds job applicant. Twelve illegal gambling criminal convictions.

11. Horace Mann Upper School. Buildings and grounds job applicant. Seven criminal convictions, including sex abuse, drugs, and assault.

12. Hawthorne Country Day School. Teacher's aide job applicant. Three criminal convictions, including, assault, larceny, and weapon possession.

13. Children's Learning Center, Nassau County. Support staff job applicant. Seven criminal convictions, including five larceny convictions.

14. Horace Mann Upper School. Cafeteria staff job applicant. Twenty criminal convictions, including child cruelty, six theft convictions, seven drug convictions, and battery.

15. Fieldston Ethical Culture Middle School. Support staff job applicant. Criminal conviction for "gross sexual imposition".

16. All Saints Catholic Academy. Support staff job applicant. Seven criminal convictions, including for stalking, four criminal contempts, and two larceny.

17. Saint Ann's School. Teaching assistant job applicant. Three criminal convictions, including, endangering a disabled person, fraud, and larceny.

18. Rudolf Steiner School. Teacher aide job applicant. Sexual battery conviction.

Meanwhile, persons with prior criminal histories continue to be employed in schools, and abuse children. Some recent examples, culled from the media:

1. Ovzie Cannon, employed as a "youth support specialist" at the State-operated Brentwood Residential Center for girls in Long Island, pled guilty in December 2023 for raping a resident. He had previous convictions for attempted robbery and criminal mischief.

2. Long Island school bus driver Giovanny Campos was arrested in October 2024, for raping a student. He pled guilty. He faced previous sex abuse allegations.

3. Math teacher Winston Nguyen worked at the St. Ann's School in Brooklyn. He had a previous criminal conviction for stealing $300,000 from an elderly couple. While at the school, he was arrested for soliciting lewd images from students. He pled guilty in 2025.

The private Jewish schools are especially lagging in fingerprinting their job applicants. There are about 325 private Jewish schools in NYS, educating 140,000 children, and according to the State Ed FOIL response, only thirteen Jewish schools are fingerprinting – Abraham Heschel, Emet Classical Academy, Hannah Senesh Community School, Kulanu Academy, Leffell, Luria Academy, Manhattan Day School, Mazel Day School, North Shore Hebrew Academy, Ramaz, Shefa, Shema Koleinu, and Stella K. Abraham.

Meanwhile, the web sites of the ultra-orthodox Jewish group, Agudath Israel, and the modern-centrist, Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, are silent for job applicant fingerprinting.

The Orthodox Union silence is particularly puzzling. In 2013, Yeshiva University retained the big law firm Sullivan & Cromwell to investigate, report upon, and make recommendations as to the sex abuse occurring at their Y.U. high school. The law firm issued a 53-page public report specifically recommending the fingerprinting of all job applicants.

In addition, a few years prior, in 2007, the modern-centrist orthodox Rabbinical Council of America enacted a Resolution endorsing legally mandated employee fingerprinting. I was the proponent. The R.C.A. is sometimes referred to as the rabbinic arm of the Orthodox Union.

Clearly, the RCA Resolution, and the Sullivan and Cromwell report, are being ignored.

On the other hand, the New York State Association of Independent Schools, representing more than 200 private schools, recommends on their website:

"To Prevent Sexual Misconduct, the School Engages in: Hiring Practices that Strengthen the Screening of Potential and Current Employees • Utilize the State of New York fingerprinting procedures for all newly hired personnel. • Develop and implement a clear, written, consistently applied, hiring policy and other procedures which include requiring the use of an employment application for all applicants as well as the use of a checklist of vetting procedures which include reference and criminal background checks, a social security check, academic and employment history verification, and other steps to ensure the safety of personnel such as social media activity, status of teaching licenses, and driving record status."

The Archdioceses of New York, Brooklyn, Queens, and Long Island all require school employee and volunteer background checks, as per their websites. Many Catholic schools fingerprint, and others perform name-based criminal history searches through private companies.

How prevalent is child sex abuse in our schools? Exact numbers do not exist, but there are credible estimates. A 156-page and well-publicized 2004 U.S. Education Department report, "Educator Sexual Misconduct", authored by Prof. Charol Shakeshaft, estimates that 9.6 percent of all k-12 students are sexually abused by school personnel. The report makes multiple recommendations for preventing abuse – including, mandatory job applicant fingerprinting in all public and private schools.

Despite all of the evidence pointing to the need for mandatory nonpublic school fingerprinting, last year, for the first time since 2007, a mandatory fingerprint bill for nonpublic schools was not sponsored by any New York State legislator.

This situation cries out for change. New York State, with its large population of nonpublic school children, needs to join the list of the 16 states which do mandate fingerprinting for both public and nonpublic school job applicants. Our 420,000 nonpublic school children deserve protection from risky persons, with serious criminal histories, who should not work near children. When only 215 out of the 1,800 nonpublic schools in New York fingerprint – we need a law that requires the fingerprinting.

Pay attention, Albany. Pay attention, all New Yorkers. The bill needs sponsors and supporters, passage in both the Senate and Assembly, and signature by the Governor.

There has been an announcement for all nations in regard to current status of eternal life discussion.
When we are born, the Almighty God has things he must do to us and for us for all time.
This protocol, procedure, and means is carved in stone, because it combats His competitors' carvings.
I have received instruction and proof in lightning and thunder from God's Holy heavens.
God has stood face to face with me in bright beaming splendor and crowned me with new authority, for all people.
The star that lead the wise men to Christ at birth, meant first people team controlled by Angels.
The Heavens are using the new mom tools from Christ's life, to train all men in fulfillment of the promise of Abraham.
The star of Moses, star of David, Star of Bethlehem is now the star of Dennis, star of McHenry. I have now received that Star.
I am the proof of how God supplies and installs the heavenly angels in men for global peace, and joy...heavenly pleasures we have a say in!
Peace means common personal responsibility and real assignments from our real creator which unifies all the participants.
I am the second Christ; namely start-up of God's second full function accurate knowledge Angelic Team.
Namely, Jehovah and I proved our tools he proved in me for the second and final team; to combat and win over the obstacles that block God's service to man!
God, Jehovah is a person, not a concept. Now he has revealed his person and how our person connects to him.
he showed how to change church service to new levels, so God and Angels lead all men in a public reading schedule scripture service.
Our new authority he proved by me, is transitional to all men in all languages.
Please contact me to discuss a major start-up to literally finish the faith in all religions.
Completed faith means full adoption and start-up, God and Angels teaching direct per individual, a conscious marriage.
This is the core announcement that Jehovah has begun and is currently ruling as King for all who ask.
We, he and I and Angels/Christ, have demonstrated how water submersion into commitment to Jehovah, gives full conscious awareness that our need for ten commandments from heaven into us is being provided without cessation.
The universal sovereign and husbandly owner of all creation has stood face to face with me and announced this!
Jehovah, before whom I do stand, and who stands before me, has done this.
Also, he showed me where the Ark Of The Covenant is for all man! In our throat....when he is running it!

Subject: Urgent Legal Representation Request: False Accusation, Unlawful Detention, Assault, and Denial of Due Process

Dear , offices

I am writing to you directly from the Terminal 1 police bunker, where I have been unjustly detained for exactly one week since last Saturday. I require immediate legal representation to secure my bail and to fight the fabricated charges against me. Furthermore, I intend to pursue legal action against the deputy who assaulted me and against the authorities for denying me the right to make a proper statement.

Below is a detailed, chronological account of the events, which I believe will clearly demonstrate my innocence and the malicious nature of the accusations:

1. Discovery of the Purse and Honest Intent:

- On [Date of Incident – e.g., last Saturday, February 13, 2026], all happened moments before my arrest for ccv purposes. I was at the airport for approximately 30 minutes, having gone directly to the fourth floor to Racks, where I was seated at a table.

- I discovered a bright yellow purse behind me on the table.

- After waiting, I observed no staff nearby, and simultaneously had an urgent need to use the restroom.

- My clear intention was to return the purse to the authorities. I picked it up and began walking towards the elevator with the express purpose of taking it to the police station.

- As I approached the elevator, an individual inquired about where I was going with the purse. I immediately and openly responded, "I'm taking it to the police station, don't worry." This exchange unequivocally proves my good faith and absence of criminal intent.

2. Events in the Restroom and Immediate Confrontation:

- Due to an urgent physiological need, I made a brief stop on the third floor to use the restroom.

- While inside a toilet stall, an item reportedly dropped. I do not have a clear recollection of it being specific receipts.

- Immediately upon exiting the stall, I was physically apprehended, and the accuser confronted me, falsely claiming the purse was stolen from her on the "first floor." I knew this was an immediate fabrication, as I had found the purse on the fourth floor.

3. Fabricated Evidence and Manipulation of My Funds at the Police Station:

- At the police station, an initial inspection confirmed that "nothing was missing" from the purse. Despite this, the accuser then introduced the claim that she had money in it.

- During a subsequent search of my pockets, my personal funds, totaling approximately 25,000-30,000 pesos, were discovered. These funds were legitimately obtained from Western Union (65,000 pesos received two days prior) and Immigration whatever I spent and (30,000 pesos received ten days prior). I possess all transaction records to substantiate this. A total of 95,000 pesos and what was left over in my possession (25-30,000) I was carrying this substantial sum as I currently lack a permanent residence, living in hotels, and this money constituted all my available funds to sustain me until my next salary.

- The accuser immediately and falsely claimed these legitimate funds as her own, stating, "That money is mine! That's the money that came from my purse." I unequivocally denied this, stating, "No, that's not your money. That's my money. Actually, nobody took your money."

- Suspiciously, during this process, the police separated my money, placing only 400 pesos on one side, while the rest of my legitimate funds were handled separately.

- Contradicting my memory, "receipts" suddenly appeared among my scattered belongings. I have no recollection of these specific receipts being in my pockets. If they were present, they must have been planted or inadvertently fell from the purse during the chaotic restroom incident, and then used against me.

- The accuser's prior statement, "I would keep my receipts, my money here, right where I keep my receipts," made in front of the police, now appears to have been a deliberate attempt to legitimize these questionable receipts.

- Photographs of these alleged receipts confirm they are "unclear, unvivid, lack any name, time, or date," and display only a generic "10,000" mark, making their authenticity highly dubious.

4. Unlawful Actions, False Witness Testimony, and Denial of Due Process:

- During my detention, I was unlawfully struck in the face, on the nose, by a deputy. This unprovoked assault is unacceptable, and I intend to pursue legal action against this officer.

- Furthermore, I was not afforded the opportunity to make a full and proper statement to articulate my version of events and refute the accusations, which is a fundamental denial of my due process rights.

- A purported "witness" claimed to have seen me "fondle the purse" by "looking under the stall" in the restroom. This claim is not only illegal but entirely false. I went directly into a stall, and I never observed anyone looking under it. This testimony is a fabricated attempt to implicate me.

- I was formally arrested, read my Miranda rights, and, after a brief hospital check-up, transferred to the inhumane Terminal 1 police bunker, which is infested with rats and roaches.

5. Plea and Urgent Request for Intervention:

- Despite being under immense duress and desperate to escape the deplorable conditions of the bunker, I have consistently maintained and pleaded NOT GUILTY to all charges. Any record suggesting otherwise is inaccurate.

- I firmly believe that CCTV footage will corroborate my entire account, from finding the purse on the fourth floor, to the handling of my belongings, the accuser's aggressive behavior and threats (e.g., claiming to be a "judge"), and will clearly show no evidence of me taking any money or going through anyone's purse.

- Approximately 25,000 to 30,000 pesos of my legitimate money were wrongfully confiscated.

This entire ordeal, from the initial false accusation and planted evidence to the physical assault by an officer and the denial of my due process rights, is a malicious setup. My plea is unequivocally not guilty.

I urge you to consider these facts immediately to secure my prompt release on bail and to prepare a robust defense. My family members are ready to assist with bail arrangements; I can provide their contact details.

I look forward to your immediate attention to this critical matter and discussing the specifics of suing the deputy for assault and addressing the denial of my right to make a statement.

Subject: [EXTERNAL] fired for spiritual beliefs regarding COVID vaccine

Hello,
I was fired from my job of over 25 years at [redacted] in June of 2022. after submitting a religious exemption and questioning their policy as to why they required workers to be vaccinated when we had been working from home for over two years. I was extorted and fired and this caused financial harm to my family and I. I did settle with the company for a small sum during and EEOC arbitration, but I was also denied unemployment payments by the State of California and was labeled as "all over the place" and denied unemployment payments due to my religious beliefs by a hearings officer when I appealed the denial of my unemployment that I had paid into for over 25 years.

You can contact me at this e-mail if you need any further details of my firing for my spiritual beliefs in not wishing to inject myself with the so-called COVID vaccine.

Best regards

Importance: Normal

Hi,

My name is [redacted] and I am a Registered Nurse from NYC who was fired from Mount Sinai Hospital for refusing to take the COVID vaccine. I was recently watching an episode on Children's Health Defense and the host gave out this email address in which fired workers can submit their stories. I have never told mine before but appreciate your time and interest.

I am a critical nurse who was born and raised in NYC. Went to college there, own a house and raised my daughter. I worked at Mount Sinai Hospital from June 2004 until January 2022, when I was fired. Dedicated most of my career to them and worked during the pandemic. In August 2021 we were told employees would have to be vaccinated or submit a medical or religious exemption. They also noted in email, that only a limited number of exemptions would be granted. The remainder of that year had become a fight to retain my position. Initially the deadline to submit was the end of August. The first time I tried to submit on 8/28/21, I was told that New York State announced that Religious Exemptions to the vaccine would not be granted. On 9/14/21, a federal judge had temporarily blocked the mandate for healthcare workers, the same day, I received another email from Mounts Sinai stating that the Biden Administration announced a mandate for all healthcare workers employed at an institution receiving federal funding. Due to the temporary halt in the courts, I was able to submit my exemption on 9/16/21. A month later I received follow up questions asking about my past vaccination status, asking if they could access my health records and questioned any medications or products I had used in the past. During this time, the mandate had become effective and according to New York State, my last day to work on site would be 11/23/21. On 12/8/21, I received an email from Mount Sinai stating that although my religious exemption was approved I cannot work according to New York State. I wouldn't be able to work in NYS for the next two years, when the mandate was terminated in October 2023. Mount Sinai allowed me to work a remote position for the month of January 2022 and was officially terminated on 2/2/22, along with many other workers in NY.

My family and I lost health care benefits for a short time and it was announced that we couldn't apply for unemployment benefits. I was unemployed for six months until I began travel nursing where I took assignments in Florida and the Pennsylvania. For the remainder of 2022 and the majority of 2023, I was traveling back and forth from my travel assignment to NYC where my husband and daughter remained. In March 2024 I was hired per diem at another hospital in NYC and became full time in February 2025. They no longer required any proof of vaccination to COVID tough some hospitals in the city still did. By the time I began working full time again, my savings account was almost completely drained and I was emotionally exhausted.

I realize that I was fortunate that I was able to take travel assignments since many others were not, and many lost everything. It is frustrating because unless you went through it, many do not understand the emotional toll that this entire process has had on both those who were fired and their families. It is important that this is never allowed to happen again.

I am so grateful for the Religious Liberty Commission for continuing to bring this issue forward and for telling our stories.

Thank you,

Subject: [EXTERNAL] Bring Religious Freedom Back to New York
Date: Sun, 15 Feb 2026 22:32:17 -0500
Importance: Normal

Attention Religious Liberty Commission,

I am writing to request that religious freedom be brought back that was stolen from all New York citizens in 2019 without ANY input from us.

There are currently only four states that I'm aware of who do not accept religious exemptions regarding vaccinations; this is an absolute and egregious overreach by the government entities in charge and it must be reinstated to retain freedom of religion, freedom of choice and bodily autonomy for ourselves, our children, grandchildren and more.

Since 2021, I have seen and experienced, firsthand, the ostracization not only for myself personally, but also my son. I was rejected from attending restaurants, shows, sporting events, etc. because I did not have "vaccination papers" (how insane that sounds) and my son was forced to choose between vaccination or his job because, as Catholics, we believe in religious freedom and bodily autonomy.

Fast forward to 2026, now I have a grandson and my daughter and son-in-law also believe in religious freedom for him, but NY day care, preschools and beyond will not allow him to school without being vaccinated with MULTIPLE vaccinations.

There should NEVER be ANY government, person or entity allowed to preclude a child, nor an adult, from participating in society.

This MUST NOT stand in the United states of America, religious freedom has to be reinstated in ALL STATES with no exceptions.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

Subject: [EXTERNAL] Termination for Not taking the Covid shot
Date: Fri, 13 Feb 2026 20:32:10 -0500
Importance: Normal

I was terminated from United Healthcare due to not taking the Covid shot. My last day of work at United Healthcare was Nov. 30, 2021 after working almost 45 years.
I worked from day one of the shutdown. I would drive 40 miles to work one way. It was very strange to drive to work and home without seeing any other vehicles on the highway.
On March 21, 2020 I was issued a Mission Critical letter from United Healthcare that I was to carry in case I would have been stopped by Police/Sheriff/State Patrol or any official to prove I had to go to work.
On approximately Oct 6, 2021 I was notified that if I didn't take the Covid shot, I would be terminated. And that I could submit for either a medical or religious accommodation.
Approximately Nov 2, 2021 was the first day of weekly emails about requiring the Covid shot. I would fill out the weekly emails for the Religious Exemption and my religious reasons as to why.
On Nov 22, 2021 was the official day I was notified that United Healthcare would not grant my Religious Exemption. On that same day there was a notice sent to all employees from Leadership that Dr Richard Migiorlis was going to retire from the company. He was the chief reporting doctor with the company and was a big pusher of the mandatory vaccination that employees had to take. Was this a coincidence or what?
I feel that all this is religiously, morally, not right that United Healthcare could terminate me. I thought at the time it would have worked out for me in that I would not have been terminated but I was wrong.
I felt like I was shamed and harassed by United Healthcare. If I wanted a job, I would be required to take the shot. It went against my religious beliefs and my conscience to take an experimental vaccine.
After I was terminated the company still let unvaccinated people in the building but that was ok! I did receive Unemployment but It required me to do job searches for employment but it was like I was black listed because of not taking the shot. I had to eventually take money from my retirement and then start Social Security earlier then planned.
On Jan 5, 2022 I called HR direct that did the HR work for United Healthcare. I asked for an explanation as to why I was terminated. They told me it was because "No reasonable accommodations could be made plus it would cause undue hardship". It did not have anything to do with Religious Exemption which is what I filed for. I asked them to send me an official written statement of this but I was denied. I feel also it is unfair that employees who work from home did not have to take the shot. I did not have that opportunity to work from home due to I worked in the print room for United Healthcare in the UMR building. The company did not help with possible other positions in the company or even try to work out proof by taking the Covid test to prove I was Covid free. Now the company does not require the Covid shot for employment.
I hope something can be resolved that this does not happen again so that people would not lose their jobs for their religious beliefs. I wish I could be able to attend the hearings but due to cost I would not be able.
Thanks for reading this and bringing it to attention to all people and the President on how this affected some of us that lost our jobs.

The Mexican government's violation of human rights is eminent, particularly regarding violations based on religious belief and socialist doctrine. The head of the federal executive branch and state governments championed the Catholic Church for electoral reasons, enshrining abortion within their legal framework.

This evil Jew Hater sits on the President's U.S. Religious Liberty Commission. Carrie earned this spot by being a swimsuit model and pageant participant. That is kind of like being a committed scholar of ancient history with a specialization in Roman foreign policy and ancient languages in the Levant in Anno Domini 30.

Yesterday, during hearings into the dangers faced by Jewish students on American college campuses, Carrie decided to complain to rabbis about her views on the Fakestinians in Gaza and - most appallingly - to use a Federally funded forum to expound on the nonsense long refuted by the Catholic Church that accused the Jews, not the Romans, of executing Jesus the Nazarene at Golgotha two millennia ago.

Yonah E wrote a powerful piece about this clown which is well worth reading.

Voice of Zion

"Jews Killed Jesus" Is Back

In a White House hearing supposedly dedicated to confronting antisemitism, Carrie Prejean Boller sat in a government chair and resurrected the blood libel "Jews killed Jesus," openly declaring her opposition to Zionism and turning a federal forum into a grotesque spectacle of ancient Jew-hatred. She badgered Jewish witnesses who came to describe antisem...

As this bubble head seems to be confused about her own faith and membership in the Roman Catholic Church, perhaps someone could pass her this memorandum issued by the Vatican on 19 November 1964.

> ## OFFICIAL SUMMARY OF TEXT SUBMITTED TO ECUMENICAL COUNCIL
> "The Council searches into the mystery of the Church. The Church of Christ gratefully acknowledges that, according to God's fervent desire, the beginning of her faith and her religion were already present among the Patriarchs, Moses and the Prophets. The Church cannot forget that she received the revelation of the Old Testament from the people with whom God in His mercy concluded the former Covenant.
> "The Church believes that, by His death, Christ reconciled Jews and Gentiles, making both one. The Church keeps in mind what St. Paul says about his kinsmen: 'Theirs is the Sonship and the glory, the Covenant and the giving of the Law, the worship and the promises. Theirs are the Patriarchs, and of them is the Christ according to the flesh.' The Son, the Virgin Mary, the Apostles as well as most of the early disciples sprang from the Jewish people.
> "Even though a large part of the Jews did not accept the Gospels, they remain dear to God for the sake of the Patriarchs. God's gifts and call are irrevocable.
> "The Church awaits that day, known to God alone, on which 'all people will address the Lord in a single voice and serve Him shoulder to shoulder.' This spiritual patrimony, common to Christians and Jews, is very rich. Thus, the Council supports and recommends the mutual knowledge and respect for the truth, above all of Biblical and theological studies as well as of fraternal dialogue.

DOJ-RLC Comment-005545

> “The Church, in her rejection of any injustice, is mindful of this common patrimony between Christians and Jews; Thus, the Council deplores and condemns the hatred and persecution of Jews, whether they arose in former times or in our own day. Nothing in the catechetical work of preaching should teach anything that could give rise to hatred or contempt for Jews in the hearts of Christians.
> “The Jewish people should never be presented as one rejected, cursed or guilty of deicide. What happened to Christ in His passion cannot be attributed to the whole people then alive, much less to those of today. Besides, the Church held and holds that Christ underwent His passion in death freely because of the sins of all men and out of infinite love. Christian preaching proclaims the Cross of Christ as the sign of God’s all-embracing love and as the fountain from which every grace flows.”

Perhaps she should be handed a copy during her Commission Exit Interview.

Please feel free to forward this to the White House and directly to the U.S. Religious Liberty Commission at the Department of Justice: [redacted]

Subject: [EXTERNAL] Religious exemption approved - accommodation denied
Date: Thu, 12 Feb 2026 00:56:51 -0500
Importance: Normal

Just another story of government violating religious exemptions. I along with 18 other employees of Washington State Dept. of Fish and Wildlife, submitted religious exemptions from covid vaccination in 2021. We are all in a lawsuit against the state. Twelve of those individuals won settlements, in the millions, six of us that remain still have pending decisions.
Nothing like being interrogated by government funded lawyers over your sincerely held religious beliefs for several hours, which was a violation in itself, all to prove what? There was nothing to prove. My exemption was accepted, but as was the plan, accommodation was denied. I lost my job I had held for 36 years. I liked it, I was good at it and they have never found a replacement for the abilities I had, but as any good government agency, they mask the damage and have thrown out a 50 year data collection methodology, that they have since found no one else can do.
Besides that, the process of accommodation, was a scam. There was never any attempt made to reemploy me. They instead dismissed me for not providing a "current resume" for a job I had done for half my life. I thought to myself, after 36 years, my employer does not know what I do? Idiots in high places. This was all part of "culling the heard" operation, mandated by the OFM, using government bureaucracy to fabricate dismissal for those not compliant to the vaccine gods. I too suffered economic hardship and have spent over $20,000 in legal fees to defend my constitutional, religious freedom. The state of Washington is fighting tooth and nail against this, hiring one of the largest law firms to avoid accountability, to muddy the legal waters at every turn.

Religious Liberty Commission,

Please help me and stop the ongoing religious persecution that I am suffering. I am a victim of Anti-Christ Religious Persecution and Goskotzdat Censorship and Protection Vandalism. House of Orleans and House of Hanover clandestine fighters and Bruder Schweigen terrorists and the Russians are currently breaking and entering into my Downtown[redacted] residence. They are torturing me all day long to keep me dissociating and they are making me involuntarily huff toxic fumes. They stalk me everywhere I go and humiliate me in public. They are also torturing me so that I am not able to pray and meditate or read scripture. They taunt me while they do this, and they explicitly state that they are targeting me because of my American religious beliefs, and because they want to neutralize me as a Legitimate American Leader. They are also perpetrating Goskotzdat Protection Vandalism to ruin my academic and literary career. My work is a religious vacation, so that vandalism is also a form of religious persecution. When I call the local law enforcement agencies, they pretend to not believe my reports, then mock my Dissociative Identity Disorder. The FBI hangs up when I call. The DOJ OIG does not respond. Please help me.

The Enemy Aliens are breaking and entering into my residence at [redacted]. Their terrorism organization kidnapped me in Hawaii in 1989/1990. They are currently following Soviet Goskotzdat Field Manuals that were edited by Princess Dianna for the purposes of labor trafficking and interdicting me personally. They also have operational calendars from Moscow. The home-intruders are in direct contact with Vladimir Putin, the British King Charles, and the Count of Paris. They are perpetrating the premeditated interdiction operation and Goskotzdat Censorship Psy-op exactly as planned. What they are doing to me personally is the worst war-crime ever perpetrated upon the American People and the worst cultural crime against humanity ever committed in global history. The only comparable event in the historical record is the burning of the Library at Alexandria.

The Stephen/Madison Terrorism Attack and Anti-Christ Religious Persecution and Royalist Censorship Psy-op currently consists of breaking and entering into my apartment, stalking me in public, psychologically and physically torturing me, stealing and redistributing and vandalizing my property, blacklisting and stalling me, etc. under the pretext of feigned anger about the 2014 Isla Vista Massacre, and their efforts to administratively cover up the situation, rationalize those crimes, and trick bystanders into going along with those crimes. The only legitimate police response to that Stephen/Madison Terrorism Attack, Anti-Christ Religious Persecution, and Royalist Censorship Psy-op would be to arrest the home-intruders and apologize to me in writing for the dereliction and failure to prevent the 2014 Isla Vista Massacre, which was intended to be an armed robbery and protection vandalism smear campaign. I have repeatedly called for help and filed complaints and requested written statements of apology. The law enforcement agencies have failed to arrest the home-intruders or make written statements about the situation. Please help me.

George Washington's 11/1/1779 letter to Edmund Pendleton contains orders to immediately rescue the Aesop Slave because the rescue reverses the Goskotzdat Censorship Psy-op and halts the Royalist Irregular Warfare Operation. Please explain the dereliction. I should have been rescued before or immediately after the 2014 Isla Vista Massacre. The law enforcement agencies should have prevented all damages. Rescuing me immediately, preventing any and all damages, and then preventing at least one of the other planned massacres and the global pandemic bioterrorism attack would have created police reports demonstrating that rescuing the victim prevents other crimes and those police reports would have functioned as defensive, preventative psy-ops. Please explain why the law enforcement agencies are still derelict twelve years after the massacre.

Sincerely,

Hello and thank you for this opportunity. We are a group of 24 healthcare workers who were fired from the Northwell Health system in and around the end of 2021. By the grace of God, we found each other and have been in a five-year legal battle to right the wrong that was done to us enmasse, when our religious exemption requests were denied. We started with a group of 50 or more, and due to government procedural mishandling by the EEOC, past legal team foul play and sadly financial strains, about half the injured party had to either be denied representation or drop out.

We have as many stories of struggle as can be imagined ranging from financial ruin, employment struggles, marriage and family chaos and physical and mental health challenges, but the one thing that has remained and will remain strong is our faith in God and in our firm belief that those who trust in His ways will be blessed.

Our system of government has deep foundational ties to God and our founders knew, believed and understood this truth and placed in our founding documents in the very first Amendment to our Constitution a right to religious freedom. This religious right has served this country well for 250 years and its loss will certainly lead to the death march of that document and those ideas that have bound and united a people.

We humbly request that you reflect upon your power to lead this country to the freedom granted to us all by our Creator God or to our demise be it fast or slow.

God Bless you all and God Bless America

Hello,

I would like to volunteer to serve on the Religious Liberty Commission.

As a Christian of nearly 40 years with extensive church and ministry involvement, I have made it my life's mission to integrate faith in the workplace, and inspire others to do the same. In 2018 I founded Wasson Watch Co., which has grown rapidly over the last few years. I use my company's platform to speak boldly about religious truth.

I served honorably in the United States Marine Corps for five years, including one deployment to Iraq, and received an honorable discharge in 2010. I also worked as a contractor at the Defense Intelligence Agency, worked at JPMorgan Chase in anti-money laundering, and served extensively in ministry speaking up for preborn babies.

I'm encouraged by a Presidential Administration that clearly understand the importance of faith in our nation, and I would relish the opportunity to help.

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I would like to express my ongoing interest in testifying before the RLC at the March 16th hearing.

Like thousands of others, I was fired from my position as an occupational therapist for my religious beliefs, but that is not where my story begins. It started 26 years ago when I entered the health care industry. I have been a square peg in a round hole for my entire career due to my beliefs. My children and I have had religious exemptions for 20 years and counting and I have advocated here in Massachusetts since 2019 to preserve the religious exemptions for students.

It would be a great honor to share my story, experiences, and knowledge so that we can improve healthcare for every American. Whether you are a patient or a provider, no one should have to compromise their religious beliefs to be part of society.

Please let me know whether I can be of service. My daughter, [redacted] has advocated in her own right, would be honored to share her story as well.

Thank you,

To Whom It Concerns:

My name is Russell Nadel. I am a secular humanistic Jewish American and a member of Jews for a Secular Democracy (JFASD). JFASD is an organization that mobilizes the Jewish community to to protect the separation of religion and government, a foundational constitutional principle that protects not only my religious freedom as a Jewish American, but the religious freedom for Americans of all faiths and none. I am among the 88% percent of Jewish Americans support separation of church and state, and I am writing to express my concerns ahead of the Religious Liberty Commission's hearing on antisemitism.

President Trump, his advisors and close allies has platformed and appointed to positions within the administration a number of openly antisemitic individuals, including but not limited to: Nick Fuentes; Ye (aka Kanye West); Kingsley Wilson (who has been described as a prolific purveyor of antisemitic conspiracy theories, and was promoted to press secretary at the Department of Defense in May 2025 despite widespread condemnation from the Jewish community); Joe Kent, who was confirmed by the Senate as Director of the National Counterterrorism Center and has ties to neo-Nazis and white nationalists; and Paul Ingrassia, currently serving as the White House liaison to the Department of Homeland Security, has ties to multiple figures widely known for promoting antisemitism. He also said in a text chain that he has "a Nazi streak." To credibly address antisemitism, this Administration must unequivocally condemn and disassociate avowed antisemites and remove known antisemites, including those mentioned above, from their positions in the Administration immediately.

The Religious Liberty Commission is not representative of the religious diversity of our nation. This commission only has one Jewish member from a denomination that represents less than 10% of Jewish Americans. On the contrary, more than half of Jewish Americans do not believe in God or subscribe to the Abrahamic God of the Talmud. They are also affected by anti-Semitism and deserve to be included in these conversations. We urge the Commission and the Trump administration to stop tokenizing the Jewish voices that agree with them, and open up these important conversations around religious freedom to dissenting Jewish voices with different viewpoints, as our community, while sharing concerns about safety, is not a monolith.

This administration's policies on abortion are a violation of Jewish religious freedom. 81% percent of Jews support the right to an abortion, and the majority of Jews, practicing and non-practicing, view the life of the mother as paramount and view the right to reproductive freedom as part of long-standing Jewish practices and traditions. Laws, regulations and policies that codify a narrow Christian view on reproductive healthcare is a violation of our religious freedom, and that of other religious minorities and other Christians for whom their faith and practices support access to reproductive choices.

I call on the commission to stop its prolific use of the term "Judeo-Christian values." America is not, and never has been, solely comprised of only Jews and Christians, rendering the phrase exclusionary. It excludes the teachings and values of all other religions and the nonreligious, while implying the supremacy of Judaism and Christianity. Moreover, it is inaccurate. Jewish values have never been solely derived from the “source text” of the Hebrew Bible. While some Jews may support a politically conservative social agenda, for an overwhelming majority of Jewish Americans (80% or more), our Jewish tradition supports women’s rights, reproductive freedom, LGBTQ+ equality, science-based environmental policies, racial justice, and secular education in our schools. When “Judeo-Christian values” are used to endorse Christian nationalist legislation or political policy, it is not representative of the majority of Jewish Americans who overwhelmingly support the First Amendment right to a secular government that does not privilege one religion over others, or religion over no religion.

In the strongest possible terms, I urge this Commission to recommend the Trump Administration reject Christian nationalism, remove antisemites from the Administration, and support policies that protect religious freedom for Americans of all faiths and none.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
Russell Nadel

To the Religious Liberty Commission:

I am a Jewish American who affiliates with the Society for Humanistic Judaism. I attend Reform and Reconstructionist congregation speakers and study groups, and I donate to those congregations also.

The Religious Liberty Commission must include Jews of various types of congregations as well as Christians of our various denominations, and Muslims, and Hindus, and Bahai. These are all accredited religious organizations.

I am distressed that Pres. Trump and others in his administration have maintained close ties with openly strongly anti-Jewish bigots who use a variety of electronic communication channels to foment hatred of Jews.

The separation of church and state is demanded by the US Constitution, confirmed by George Washington's letter to the synagogue in Touro, RI. Religious liberty therefore must not place the dictates of one religion over others. For example, more than 80% of Jewish Americans support a woman's right to choose an abortion. More than 85% of Jewish Americans support the freedom to follow a recognized religion or no religion. As I myself often observe: If perhaps there is no deity, then that is even more reason for us humans to take care of each other.

I urge Pres. Trump to remove anti-Jewish bigots from his administration. I urge Pres. Trump to remove supporters of Christian nationalism from his administration.

Please do what is right for all Americans, which will help all Americans do what is right for each other.

Sincerely,
Lynne Kane

This petition is in honor of our country's founding 250 years ago with Christian roots.

Please consider addressing the leaders of major USA Christian Churches with doctrines based on pastoring the full context of the Holy Bible to coordinate and promote peaceful assembly on the national mall. All religions who pledge allegiance to our one nation under God may be invited yet program is to be led by before mentioned Christian pastors. Nationally recognized versions of the Holy Bible readings and verse by verse teachings would comprise the body of the program. This assembly could extend over multiple days and seemingly be most proper at Easter time for this and next consecutive years through the 2030 anniversary of Christ Jesus's Resurrection and beyond.

Good afternoon to the Religious Liberty Commission. First and foremost I want to say thank you to all who puts energy into protecting the people's religious faith, ways, practices and freedom. This Commission is highly appreciated and grateful for.

Ok so in the particular matter, which is classified as criminal traffic I would love for the Commission to investigate and make sure my 1st Amendment is being honored and not violated. My identity has been disregarded from the beginning and this may in violation of depriving me of a fair trial due to my religious identity and national origin

I've provided everything necessary to prove who I am. I think my next trial hearing starts 02/06/2026.

I ask if this Commission may please review and investigate this matter so I know I'll have a fair trial

Truly appreciate you

'INNOCENTS IMPRISONED' - Kandhamal's Travesty of Justice #antoakkara

I had several angry email exchanges with Ram Madhav and said they turned my books look and format into a kind of Communist style agitprop. This really upset Ram Madhav. In the end a truncated version was made that included the work of others called Kandhamal - a fact file (I think)

I then selfpublished the report as I had finalized it calling it Orissa in the Crossfire - Kandhamal Burning.

Then in 2011 I finally went to Kandhamal itself and interviewed as many people I could on behalf of the RSS. This report was never made and I eventually uploaded all the interviews to youtube to make it available to the public or any researchers authorities etc.

After I accepted the invitation of a breakaway RSS faction to do a similar report on the Bangladeshi Hindus Ram Madhav and the RSS basically excommunicated me. Thus my 2nd report never made.

Coincidentally I have known Tulsi Gabbard since she was a kid and used to work for her dad. I therefore spent 2 years trying to convince the RSS to take her seriously. They finally did and when she won the 2012 election Ram Madhav called me from India to congratulate me and that was pretty much thenlast time ive heard from him or anyone in the RSS.

> Re: my work w RSS. As u know I was raised a Hare Krsna went to traditional Hindu school from 4 to 14 in India. I was raised to be a Vaishnava 'preacher' thus I, like Tulsi, naturally looked to the politically and financially empowered Hindu orgs for support in my preaching efforts.
> I never saw ny work w the RSS as political per se until the Orissa stuff came up. Before that they used to send me to NE India to inspire the Christians to support India rather than the separatists groups. Thats political no doubt but it wasnt as directly connected to any incidents etc as the Kandhamal crisis. Not once did I disparage Lord Jesus Christ or the Christian faith but warned against being manipulated by outside forces to secede in the name of Christ.

She's spot-on.

"The anti-ICE mob staging a so-called 'protest' inside this Minneapolis church during a service is the latest example of their disrespect for religious freedom and rejection of our right to worship as we choose."

"One of the main reasons I left the Democratic Party is its leaders' attempts to undermine religious freedom, erase God's presence from every aspect of public life, and their open hostility toward people of faith and spirituality."

Dear Associate Attorney General and Members of the Commission,

Please find the attached formal letter of support regarding the case of Maria E. Tuma, a veteran educator dismissed from Miami-Dade County Public Schools in 1996 for expressing her religious beliefs.

In light of the shifting legal landscape and the Supreme Court's ruling in Kennedy v. Bremerton School District (2022), I am writing to urge the Commission to review this case for both policy correction and full financial restitution. Maria Tuma served for 24 years as a decorated art teacher, and her dismissal represents a significant historical injustice that this Commission is uniquely positioned to rectify.

I have attached a PDF copy of my formal letter and have also included the full text below for your convenience.

Thank you for your time and for your commitment to protecting religious liberty for all educators.

Sincerely,

Subject: Support for Maria E. Tumat/ Kennedy v. Bremerton Application for Redress

Dear Associate Attorney General and Members of the Commission,

I am writing to formally support the request for justice submitted by Maria E. Tuma, a veteran educator who was unjustly dismissed by the Miami-Dade County School Board in 1996. Her case serves as a critical example of the historical hostility toward religious expression that this Commission has been established to rectify.

Analyzing Ms. Tuma's case through the lens of current religious liberty protections reveals a significant shift in the legal landscape since her 1996 dismissal. While her initial claims were dismissed in 1998 on the grounds of state-court preclusion, recent Supreme Court precedents -most notably Kennedy v. Bremerton School District (2022) - have fundamentally strengthened the rights of public employees to engage in personal religious expression. For 24 years, Ms. Tuma was a decorated art teacher whose career was terminated under legal tests that the Supreme Court has since "abandoned" as unconstitutional infringements on the First Amendment.

Recognition of this past error is insufficient without tangible redress. I strongly support Ms. Tuma's request for full financial restitution to account for the decades of livelihood lost due to this wrongful termination. Specifically, I urge the Commission to advocate for:

- Restoration of Lost Income: Payment of the full back pay, benefits, and interest she would have earned from 1996 through her projected retirement age.
- Pension and Retirement Security: A correction of her service records to reflect uninterrupted employment, ensuring her retirement reflects her full 24-year tenure plus the years lost to dismissal.
- A Pathway to Redress: Guidance from the DOJ to the local school board to settle this matter, acknowledging that the "preclusion" which blocked her in the 1990s cannot be used to uphold a violation of fundamental rights today.

The purpose of the Religious Liberty Commission is to ensure that Americans are not forced to choose between their faith and their profession. Ms. Tuma was forced to make that choice and paid for it with her career. It is time for the Department of Justice to ensure she is finally made whole.

I ask that the Commission include Ms. Tuma's case in its upcoming recommendations and facilitate a pathway for her to receive the back pay and retirement security she earned through decades of service.

Respectfully,

Eli Bennett

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I write to urge you to speak out against the alarming rise in anti-Muslim attacks and discriminatory policies targeting Muslim communities in the United States.

Recently, the administration suspended all immigration applications for individuals from 19 countries already subjected to a travel ban. The administration also placed an "adjudicative hold" on all asylum applications and announced a review of immigrants who arrived during the Biden presidency from so-called "high risk countries of concern." Most of these countries are Muslim-majority, making this action a renewed version of the "Muslim Ban." These policies represent a clear threat to religious freedom and disproportionately harm Muslim families seeking safety and belonging.

These government actions are unfolding against a backdrop of dangerous and escalating Islamophobia. Far-right activist Laura Loomer, who openly calls herself a "proud Islamophobe," has targeted Muslim State Department staff, spreading their personal information online and questioning their loyalty based solely on their faith.

These hateful attacks have real consequences. The Department of Homeland Security pulled $8 million in security funding for houses of worship and nonprofits based on claims from an Islamophobic hate group. ICE has detained and threatened to deport Muslim clergy and activists. Federal authorities are reportedly preparing targeted actions against Somali communities in Minnesota.

As the administration's Religious Liberty Commission, you are tasked with identifying threats to domestic religious liberty. These policies and attacks represent some of the most serious threats facing any faith community today. You have a responsibility to condemn these actions clearly and forcefully and to affirm that religious freedom must protect all people without exception.

I strongly urge you to speak out against Islamophobia, call for oversight to prevent discriminatory government actions, and protect the religious freedom of Muslim communities nationwide.

Sincerely,
Mr. Utkarsh Nath

Hello,

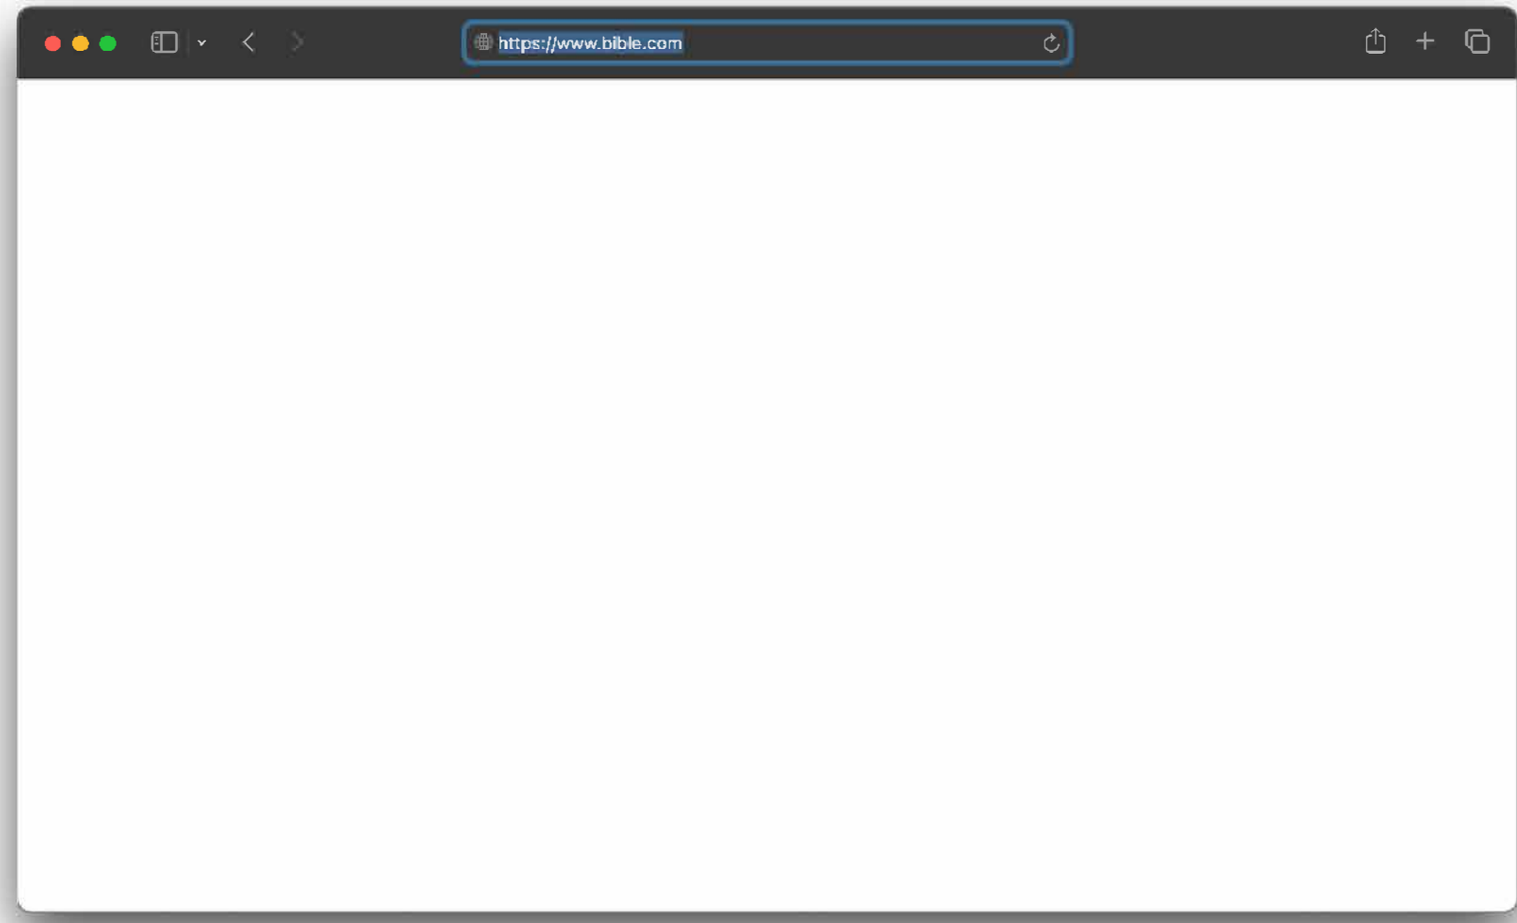

For the intent of a general purpose, I shall interpret the religious liberties as the liberty to believe, explore, align with, and speak about a higher power through a chosen pathway of practice. In statutory contexts, "religion" is historically aligned with specific and qualifying organizations that have been formally recognized by the government. In this era of civilization, natural persons are the individual liberty to believe, explore, align with, and speak about a higher power without specific alignment to a specific religion that is recognized by the government. Some may or may not develop a specific set of discreet practices or align to a central text, which disqualifies more amorphous expressions of the individual liberties from formal recognition by the government and statutory protections.

I'm simply conducting a brainstorm on the situation at hand because it's an important feature of society to me and my household. Discourse on this subject empowers parents/guardians/caregivers, such as myself, to have grounded conversations with their children about the Blessings of Liberty guaranteed by the social agreements embedded into the Constitution of the United States.

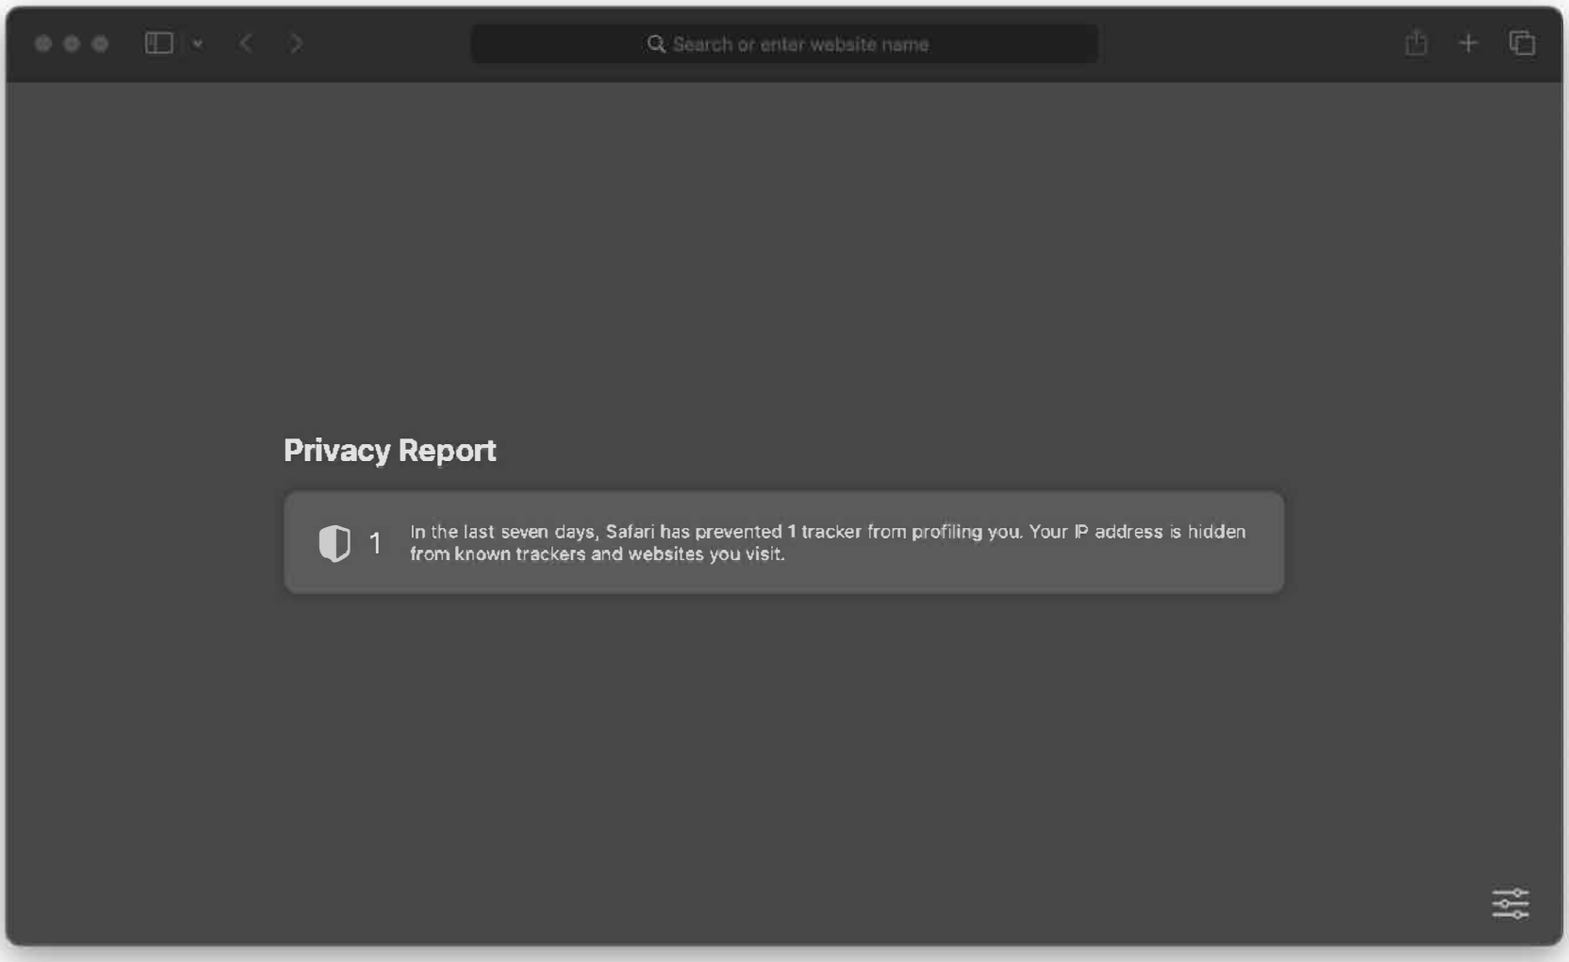

Technology can help people explore and form beliefs. We live in an age when Internet-enabled technology is generally ubiquitous in our society. For some, access to inspired works of divination through technology products & service can lead to the selection of a classifiable, discreet organized belief system (i.e., classical religion). However, for some technology service providers might induce unequal access. For others, technology services can be used to profile individuals in social engineering artifice, backed by psychometric enabled schemes, designed to lead a person or groups of people to folly or adverse circumstances producing harm to Self and others.

Subject: [EXTERNAL] Proposal for Religious Liberty Commission Healthcare Hearing - Proposed Witness Panels
Date: Tue, 23 Dec 2025 13:02:39 -0500
Importance: Normal

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

On behalf of Guiding The Impact and Global Wellness Forum, we respectfully submit a comprehensive proposal for your upcoming healthcare hearing titled, "The Erosion of Religious Freedom and Civil Rights in Healthcare Policy." Guiding The Impact is dedicated to shaping federal policy that protects religious liberty, ensures equal access to education and healthcare, and upholds God-given health rights, and Global Wellness Forum, co-founded by Marla Maples, shares our commitment to these vital issues. Together, we have collaborated on this proposal as we approach the new year.

Please view the interactive presentation here, which includes sample video testimony from proposed witnesses.

Our proposal for the Religious Liberty Commission's February hearing on religious liberty violations in healthcare features powerful testimony from affected individuals and families across three focused panels: families denied education access due to eliminated religious exemptions in states like New York, California, Connecticut, and Maine; patients refused routine and critical medical care or life-saving treatments solely due to their faith-based vaccine objections; and workers terminated or forced from livelihoods despite exemplary service and available accommodations due to their sincerely held religious beliefs. To provide authoritative depth, we also propose panel discussions with representation from compassionate religious leaders, accomplished legal experts, policy specialists, and dedicated advocates who will illuminate the constitutional violations and urgent need for robust conscience protections.

It is designed as a flexible framework, offering a menu of options for each panel to accommodate varying numbers of witnesses and time constraints. We have curated a diverse group of prospective witnesses with compelling stories and expertise, ready to highlight the urgent threats to religious liberty in healthcare.

We are eager to collaborate closely with the Commission and any selected witnesses, assisting in refining testimonies, incorporating suggested improvements, and preparing participants for the hearing to ensure a powerful and cohesive presentation. The witnesses would be honored and privileged to attend and share their compelling stories should you select them.

This ready-to-implement structure reflects our commitment to supporting the Commission's vital work, making it as seamless as possible to advance bold solutions for protecting faith and freedom.

We would welcome the opportunity to discuss this proposal further or answer any questions. Please feel free to contact Elyse Young at [redacted] or Aimee Villella McBride at [redacted].

Thank you for your dedication to safeguarding religious liberty. We look forward to your feedback and the potential to contribute to this important hearing.

As we celebrate this holiday season, we wish you a Merry Christmas, Happy Hanukkah, and joyful holidays filled with peace and reflection.

With gratitude and hope,

Good afternoon, Religious Liberty Commission,

Thank you so much for the important work that you are doing in protecting and defending the free exercise of Religion! I enjoyed watching your latest hearing on the military and Texas issues. Lots of great information in that!

I should start out by saying that: "The views and opinions presented herein are those of the author and do not necessarily represent the views of [redacted] or [redacted]."

With that taken care of, for the military, as you look at the directives, regulations, or policies and how they may hinder the free exercise of religion, I would like to draw your attention to the current 'religious accommodation request' process for the military services.

BLUF: Current religious accommodation policies exceed constitutionally granted authority.

1. All policies, regulations, directives, etc. must be in 'pursuance' of the U.S. Constitution (Article VI Section 2) or they are 'void' (Marbury v Madison, 1803).
2. Where rights secured by the constitution are involved, there can be no rulemaking or legislation which would abrogate them" (Miranda v Arizona, 1966).
3. The U.S. Constitution guarantees (doesn't grant) the rights of all Americans, and we all (those of us in uniform) swore an oath to support and defend that.
4. The 9th and 10th Amendments guarantees rights enumerated in State Constitutions (i.e. TX Const. Art I Sec. 6 and 6a), and reserves those rights outside of any authority of government (TX Cont. Art I Section 29, KY Cont. Art. 26, End of Art I in the DE Const., Etc.).
5. The DoW has no constitutionally granted authority to usurp the God given, individual, inalienable, State Constitutionally guaranteed rights of Service Members as one of The People, such as the free exercise of religion. As George Washington saide when we assumed the Soldier, we did not lay aside the citizen.'
6. Government employees that act outside of constitutionally granted authority, do so in their individual capacity, as 'unofficial acts' and "There is no immunity for unofficial acts" (Trump v US, 2024), meaning individuals can be held personally accountable for those acts.
7. Current religious accommodation policies give commanders the ability to disapprove religious accommodation requests. No one has been able to show me where they have the constitutionally granted authority to do this (maybe I'm wrong, happy to learn and grow!). Also, current policies (to my knowledge) have service members just write a signed memo stating why they are asking for an accommodation, and not swearing to their beliefs. To be in line with the Maxims of law, I recommend changing the process to:

a. Start with the Service Member submitting a sworn statement under the penalty of perjury of why their religious faith doesn't allow them to follow DoW directives/regulations/policies to their commander. This would line up with the Maxim's of Law: "In law, none is credited unless he is sworn. Cro. Car. 64*: Bouv.*130," and "Punishment is due if the words of an oath be false. Black's, 840"
b. The Commander would then direct a Chaplain interview to ensure this is protecting the 'free exercise of religion,' and not that someone just doesn't want to follow policy because they don't feel like it.
c. If the service member swears to it, and it is Religious, I believe no commander has the constitutionally granted authority to usurp the right of the Service Member that is guaranteed by the first amendment.

I personally have a friend that is about to be kicked out of the service (awaiting his board results now) for his religious beliefs in regards to a disapproved 'accommodation request' for vaccines. I also know of several people that are applying for religious accommodation for grooming standards within my command. So, these concepts are very important to me as a Religious Affairs NCO who swore to support and defend the constitution.

If you would like someone to talk about this at one of your hearings, please let me know as I would be happy to help if I can. Also note that these concepts don't just apply to the military, but for all of government. I would say that it also applies to any business which congress has the authority to regulate (under Article I Section 8).

Again, I want to thank you all for the great work that you are doing!
Thanks for your time and consideration,

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

This can fit in with the other information I submitted to you regarding anti-Christian Bias.

Delhi refuses visa to Reverend Graham: Protests by Christians in Nagaland

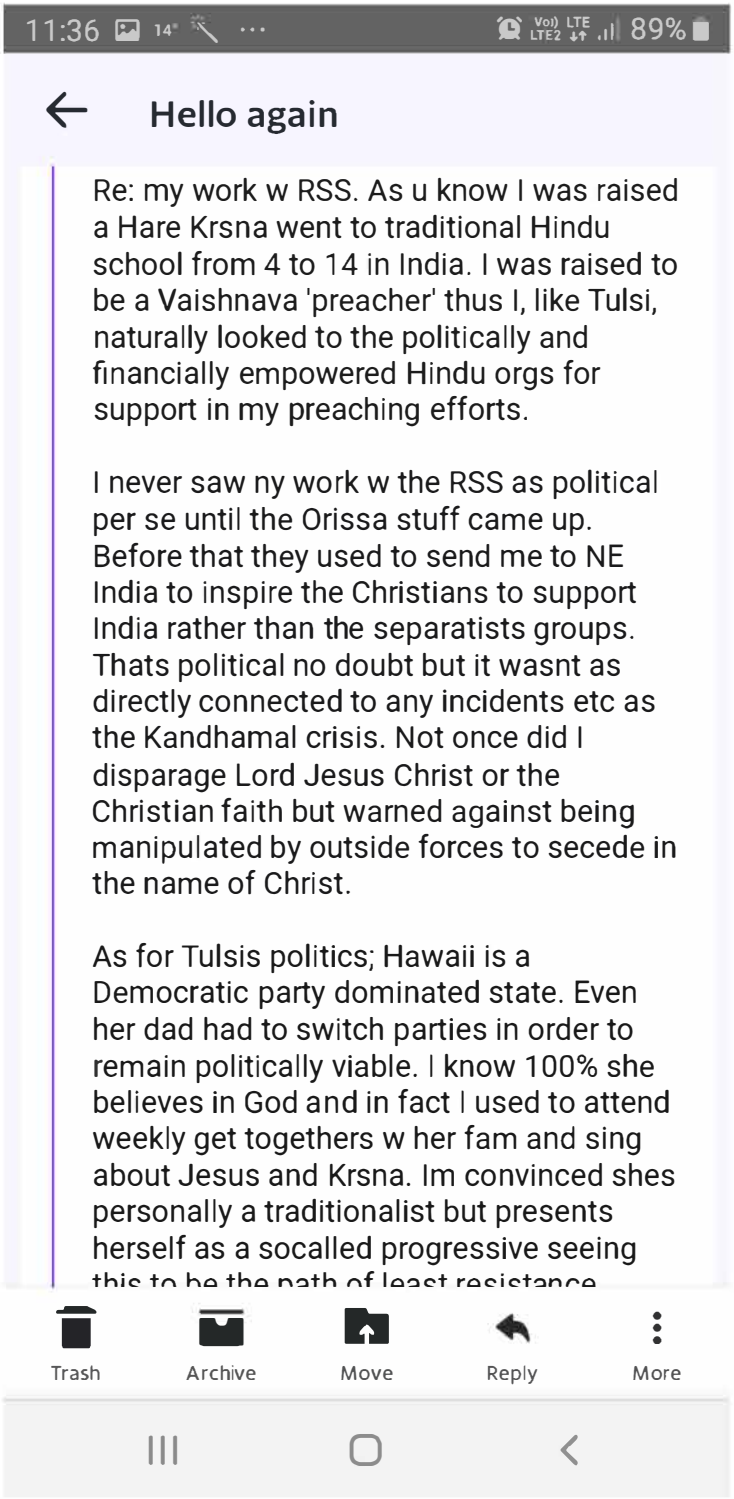

Rev Franklin Graham / BGEA were some of the Religious Freedom Advocates who I wrote to try and get help for these Christians and explained the connection between Democrat Tulsi Gabbard, Brannon Michael Parker and the RSSe BJP, VHP, Sangh, Hindutva, Hindu Nationalist , Modi Regime and how Hindutva were meddling / interfering in our politics / elections but Rev Graham / BGEA showed NO INTEREST in helping or writing about it.

Here is Tulsi Gabbard colluding with the Overseas Friend of the BJP while they raise money for her and praising her for helping get a resolution removed against PM Modi after he was banned from the US for basically being linked to mass murder.

The OFBJP represents the same BJP who just denied Rev Graham's visa and who the US State Department and FBI / DOJ have failed to hold accountable for illegally operating in the US as a Unregistered Foreign Agent for years leading up to August / Sept 2020.

If the US State Department and FBI / DOJ would have did their jobs like in other cases and held the OFBJP and other Hindutva accountable then would it have had a impact on the 2020 Presidential Elections especially since Democrat Presidential Candidate Tulsi Gabbard had colluded with them for years and it appears they mostly had ties with other Democrats such as Rep Krishnamoorthi ?

Dear Religious Freedom Advocates,

This is some more disturbing and disgraceful information regarding a US Politician and the RSS / those behind the Kandhamal Riots.

The RSS and their afflicates in American should be labelled a terrorist organization which would help prevent them from meddling in our elections and stop funding being delivered to them in India from the USA.

Dear Ambassador Brownback ,

This relates to Religious Freedom so is the Trump Administration / You going to ignore that the RSS / BJP / HSS who persecute Christians, Muslims and other minorities in India are also operating in the USA and meddling in our elections.

Is the President going to put Religious Freedom and Election Integrity before for his own self interest of fighting Democrats for the Indian American Hindu Vote ?

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I was terminated on 18 Nov 25 as a [redacted] at a public high school in [redacted] for asking for cadet volunteers to pray for our safety before our 14-mile ([redacted] run/walk and other school bus field trips. Also, they cited me for saying "God will open doors" to a senior female cadet who I was trying to encourage to attend college after high school graduation versus taking a gap year. They also cited me for unprofessionalism in how I handled cadet discipline issues as far back as 9 months ago, but did that according to my 28.5 years of training.

As a [redacted]var veteran who honorably served and retired after 20 years and now has taught [redacted] for 8.5 years with distinction (won every accolade/Distinguished Unit Award each year, etc and just received a $10K pay raise in August 2025 for my efforts last year), it saddens me that false accusations and claims of me doing Christian things that aren't specifically spelled out in school policy can immediately derail my stellar career and ultimately render me terminated.

Any help in investigating this issue would be greatly appreciated. I didn't have an advocate to help me throughout this whole process and when I contacted an Education Lawyer he wanted $5K just to sit in on the meeting. Finally, my 7-week "investigation" into my actions was a witch hunt from the beginning and I was considering guilty until proven innocent; there is no true due process in these situations since we're at-will employees who don't have all the rights of a certified teacher.

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

These can be linked to anti-Christian Bias, linked to Tulsi Gabbard whose Democrat Congressional Career was built with the help of the RSS, BJP, VHP, Sangh, Hindutva, Hindu Nationalist and their Unregistered Foreign Agents such as the Overseas Friends of the BJP at the time. The Radical Hindus who wrongly accuse Christians of crimes and jail them and or persecute and kill Christians / commit mass murder of Christians which Tulsi Gabbard has largely ignored while lobbying for Hindutva including by helping get a resolution removed against PM Modi after he was banned from the US for being linked to mass murder.

I have already submitted you the evidence regarding how they helped build her Democrat Congressional Career and the OFBJP prasing her for helping get a resolution removed against Modi while they raised money for her.

Hindutva basically bought and paid for Tulsi Gabbard so she helped them carry out their anti-Christian Agenda in the USA and India including helping them with the H1B visa efforts.

Subject: FARA Act , Michael Brannon Parker , RSS, Ram Madhav , India Foundation, Sitharaman and Doval

Dear Ambassador Brownback,

I recently read several articles regarding former Obama Adviser / Counsel Greg Craig being indicted for violations related to the FARA Acts and it reminded me of Michael Brannon Parker working with / for the RSS , Ram Madhav and Hindu Nationalist to convince the US State Department that Christians were not the victims in Orissa in 2008 and that the Hindus were the victims of Western Christian Missionaries and others.

I attached Parker's confession again in which he confessed to working with / for the RSS and basically initiating the relationship between the RSS / Ram Madhav and Rep Tulsi Gabbard.

And there are also the recordings Parker made made in Orissa that is evidence he worked with / for the RSS / Hindu Nationalist to help cover up Religious Persecution in his report that Ram Madhav submitted to the US State Department.

Anto Akkara also has evidence that the RSS, Ram Madhav, the India Foundation, present India Defense Minister Sitharaman and National Security Adviser Doval were also behind the report .

Anto has been working on this for 10 years and I have been working on this for approximately a year including by contacting the White House, DOJ, US State Department, You, Riley Barnes , Sameer Hossain, USCIRF and others but we haven't seen anything that convinces us or anybody else that the Trump Administration is working to advance Religious Freedom in India and mitigate Religious Persecution in India while the India / Hindutva Lobby is advancing their cause in the US and RSS / BJP / Hindu Nationalist campaign funds are flowing back and forth between the US and India.

I believe Justice and Mercy go together but these Hindu Nationalist need to come forward to take responsibility , make amends, show remorse, repentance and prove their remorse and repentance is sincere with actions / deeds because since 2008 they haven't proven they have repented / changed.

I am reporting these alleged crimes and Human Rights Violations to you , US State Department Policy Advisers Riley Barnes and Sameer Hossain so please assure me that they will be thoroughly investigated by the US State Department and DOJ.

I am respectfully requesting a reply back so I am assured that there is a thorough investigation.

If there was no violations then please clearly state that in a official letter .

Thank you, Will Rogers

These are some of the FRAUDSTERS I brought to the attention of the US State Department/ IRF Ambassador Sam Brownback and others at State and the FBI / DOJ .

'INNOCENTS IMPRISONED' - Kandhamal's Travesty of Justice #antoakkara

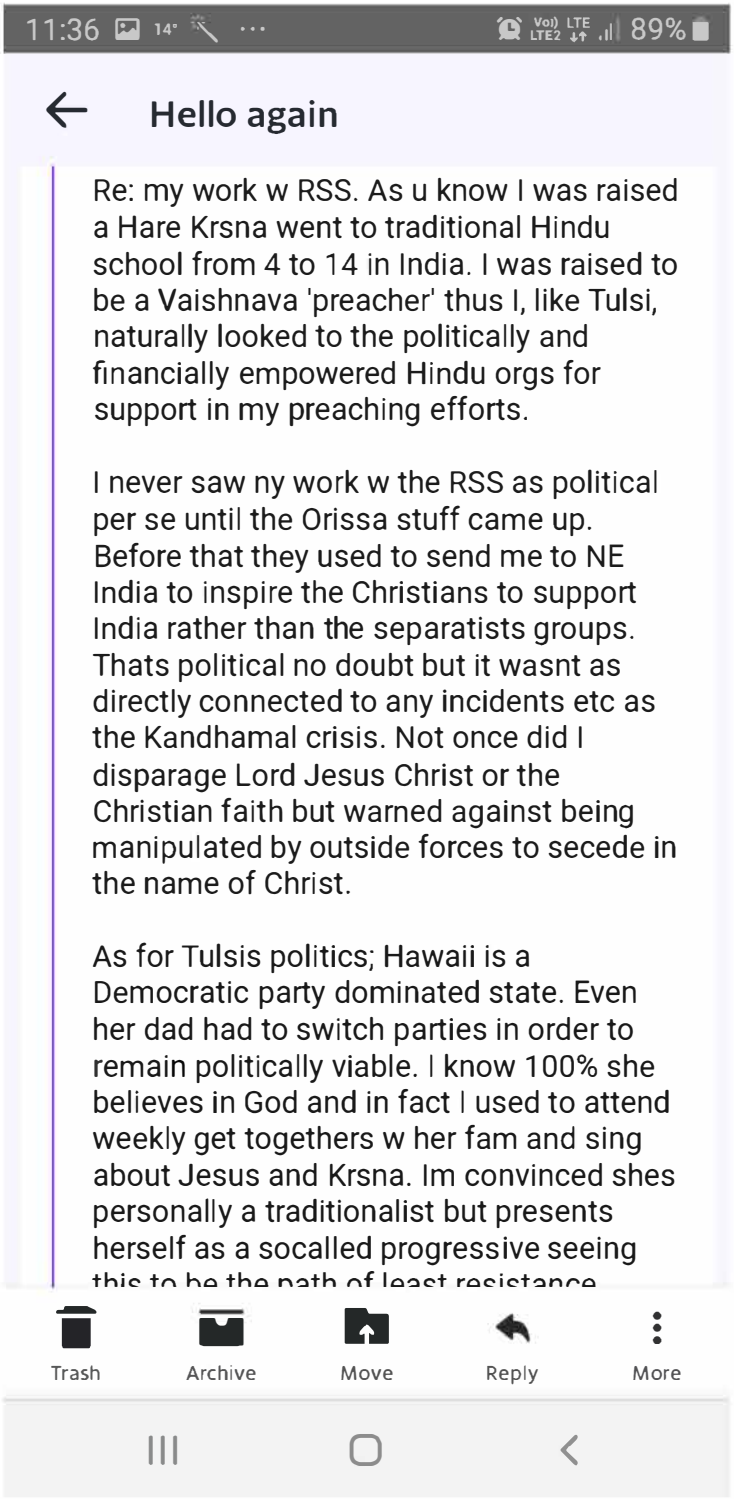

I had several angry email exchanges with Ram Madhav and said they turned my books look and format into a kind of Communist style agitprop. This really upset Ram Madhav. In the end a truncated version was made that included the work of others called Kandhamal - a fact file (I think)

I then selfpublished the report as I had finalized it calling it Orissa in the Crossfire - Kandhamal Burning.

Then in 2011 I finally went to Kandhamal itself and interviewed as many people I could on behalf of the RSS. This report was never made and I eventually uploaded all the interviews to youtube to make it available to the public or any researchers authorities etc.

After I accepted the invitation of a breakaway RSS faction to do a similar report on the Bangladeshi Hindus Ram Madhav and the RSS basically excommunicated me. Thus my 2nd report never made.

Coincidentally I have known Tulsi Gabbard since she was a kid and used to work for her dad. I therefore spent 2 years trying to convince the RSS to take her seriously. They finally did and when she won the 2012 election Ram Madhav called me from India to congratulate me and that was pretty much thenlast time ive heard from him or anyone in the RSS.

And the FRAUDSTER above are linked to these FRAUDSTERS who are likely some of the ones who the Indian American US Diplomat is referring to .

This is also one of the tips that the FBI / DOJ and others appear have been ignoring.

https://www.indiaincblog.com/2021/06/16/nisha-biswal-the-rss-and-conflicts-of-interest/

I don't remember off hand but these are likely tips I also submitted to the FBI / DOJ.

I encourage you to go to this site and search Nisha Biswal. I believe this site also helps give you a picture of why Religious Freedom and the Religious Persecution of Christians in India by Hindutva is largely ignored by US Bureaucrats and Politicians.

https://www.indiaincblog.com/?s=Nisha+Biswal

This can also fit into the big picture because Steve Bannon was Team Pedophile Epstein and he was part of the Hindutva Lobby / co-chaired the Republican Hindu Coalition with Kumar who is also linked to the Hindutva behind the Kandhamal Fraud and Brannon Michael Parker.

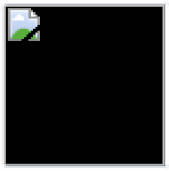

"Modi on board": Jeffrey Epstein Pressed Steve Bannon to Meet With Indian PM Shortly Before His Death

If you go to the article and then link interview it will take you to a article which mentions the Republican Hindu Coalition Chairman Kumar.

Though Bannon had been fired from the White House in 2017, he remained influential in MAGA world, offering advice to Trump on political strategy. Bannon did not respond to a request for comment.

On May 23, 2019, the day Modi won a commanding parliamentary majority and secured re-election as prime minister, Bannon messaged Epstein saying, "I'm doing a one hour show for India on Modi while here-- bringing American Hindu guys with us." Epstein responded, "his focus wants to be stopping china." The following week Bannon did an interview with the Indian news outlet WION. In the interview, Bannon discussed Modi extensively—and the importance of a U.S.-India relationship in the context of the U.S.'s economic war with China.

Full transcript of Steve Bannon's inter...

Seeking to facilitate a meeting, Epstein pressed further. “I can set,” Epstein wrote in a text. “you should meet with modi.” Bannon replied, “please.” Epstein followed by asking, “when can you do it?”

Now sure why Steve Bannon / Team Pedophile Epstein changed his stand on RHC / India but may be you can asked his buddies Frank Gaffney, Tony Perkins and General Flynn or you could ask him but I suspect he might lawyer up after being exposed as part of Team Pedophile Epstein. FRC Tony Perkins, Frank Gaffney and General Flynn have been some of the people hiding the truth about how Hindutva India and Hindutva US are linked and basically buying / influencing US Bureaucrats and Pols who are creating bad US India Foreign Policy that enriches Hindutva and hurts Christians while the Bureaucrats and Pols are laregly ignoring the Religious Persecution of Christians in India by Hindutva. I have read that the RSS / BJP / Hindutva has greatly benefited from the H1B visa program and sounds like it has lead to Hindutva US sending funds to Hindutva India to support their anti-Christian Agenda. I believe there is a solution to this problem and its the US State Department and FBI / DOJ enforcing FARA and RICO, investigating H1B visa fraud and labeling the RSS and their affiliates as Terrorist Organizations like the Trump Adminisatrtion has rightfully did with the Muslims Brotherhood.

The H1B visa program and others in the US State Department should be used to help the Christian Community in India since they have been the ones who have been hurt and they align with the values , morals and principles that help American Great while Hindus are even trying to silence Christians in the USAe

Egotistic, arrogant, venomous Donald J. Trump and his MAGA mob fear brown Hindu Indians. His own ancestors arrived penniless — Frederick Trump, his great-grandfather, a 16-year-old barber and miner, entered the U.S. as an unskilled laborer. His "qualification"? White & Christian. Poor Mary MacLeod, his mother, a house servant and maid from Scotland, came with almost nothing. Her qualification? White & Christian. Meanwhile, his current wife somehow snagged a genius visa. What kinda genius did she bring from Slovenia?

Yet today, Trump slaps $100,000 H1B fees on skilled immigrants while selling "gold" and "platinum" cards for millions.

The irony is sharp: the family that clawed its way from humble background now trembles at the success of brown Hindu Indians.

Something more recent- Rev Franklin Graham denied India Visa by BJP Central Government. This BJP Government includes those in the Kandhamal Video who used American Brannon Michael Parker to mislead the US State Department to justify and coverup Human Rights Abuses / Religious Persecution of Christians in Kandhamal. When Parker was in India including the Northeast he was illegally working for the RSS / BJP while on a Tourist Visa which he basically admits in one of his interviews with a Justice involved in investigating the Swami's Murder and Kandhamal Riots. Good morning RLC team

I would like to provide to you my experience within Special Forces in regards to religious liberty. For 5 years I was ignored, isolated and insulated from any effectual in as a member of the Special Forces community because I stood firm in my faith. I was slandered through counseling statements and investigated as a seditious conspirator, engaging in political activity, soliciting offense, had my security clearance locally revoked, suffered from weaponized mental health practices, denied opportunities for much needed health programs, was moved internally from job to job destroying my career and any opportunity for using professional development courses and career avenues. This denied promotion and bonus opportunities as well.

The lives of over 450 Special Operations service members were tracked by an internal blacklist during the DOD C19 mandate. I fear that without remedy for their livelihoods, severely grave outcomes loom for many who have little hope without practical intervention.

Greetings, brothers and sisters in the Lord,

I would like to attach my testimony and also the two visions I have had about a particular area in the United States, with which I have a connection.

I attended the celebrations of the 200th anniversary of the founding of the United States. It's ironic that my gggg grandfather fought the British with George Washington. My passport says I am British, but since November 2023 I am a citizen of heaven because of the atoning sacrifice of my Saviour and Lord Jesus Christ and an adopted son of my Heavenly Father. I have not deserved any of this.

It was my grandfather's grandfather who left Charleston, South Carolina, with his English wife in the 1850s, and emigrated to Liverpool in the UK. It was his ancestor, Thomas Drayton, who first arrived in the Carolina colony in 1679 from Barbados and before that, Gravesend, south of London.

November 2023 was a watershed month for me, when God met with His redeeming love which completely obliterated a deep-seated anger I had directed towards those in the church who condemned members of the LGBT community with whom I associated as a gay man. The gospel message suddenly became personal. Jesus took my sin and nailed it to the cross, suffered the wrath of God on my behalf for my sin, died my death because the wages of sin is death, and after three days, rose again in triumph over sin, death and the devil for my redemption from the dominion of darkness and the slavery of sin.

I know that Charlie Kirk has had a massive impact, particularly on the younger generation. He was absolutely fearless in his proclamation of the gospel in the face of formidable opposition from the inevitable places. I am reminded that He Who is within us is greater than he who is in the world, and we are more than conquerors through Christ Who loves us.

I remember seeing a phrase in a local orthodox synagogue, written out in Hebrew and translated into English: Think Before Whom You Stand. I first became aware of God's holiness and righteousness in November, after realising that the gospel was for me personally. I reviewed my life in that light. It was a sobering and humbling experience, and I have remained humbled since. There is absolutely no room for pride. I repented of all my sin, and received forgiveness and cleansing only through the atoning sacrifice of Jesus Christ.

My identity is in Him alone. All other identities are of no significance, including sexual orientation.

The anger I had up to November 2023 was self-centred because it had everything to do with the effect on my ego. I needed to surrender everything into His hands on a daily basis, and be willing to surrender whatever He revealed to me, even after I thought I had done so.

Jesus said, If anyone wishes to be My disciple, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow Me. In this way, we enter into the power of His resurrection and the fellowship of His sufferings.

I hope it may be possible to have a chat sometime to explore how next year could be a significant year for all of us under the guidance of the Holy Spirit and according to God's sovereign will, so that the name of Jesus Christ is honoured.

Bill Grimke-Drayton

TESTIMONY

I was born on the [redacted] into a family of Anglican church goers who sent away their male offspring to boarding school as a matter of course.

I have to say all nine years from the age of eight were traumatic for me. Everyone who goes to boarding school for the first time at the age of 8 experiences abandonment, whether they acknowledge it or not. The second school, one of the top public schools, was supposed to be established for the sons of Anglican clergy. It was there I first encountered homosexuality.

My short-lived career (1971-1992) was in the education sector, teaching modern languages in mainly state secondary schools, and most of the time I was completely out of my depth. My years as a teacher were terminated when I took early retirement for reasons of ill-health.

I had my first introduction to evangelical Christianity when I went to college in Cambridge (1966-1969) - not the university. I gravitated to the Christian Union and spent most of my time as a paying guest at a conservative evangelical theological college. During the 2 ½ years I was there, I never realised I hadn't made a commitment to Jesus Christ. I just wanted to feel part of a community after my harrowing years at school.

Fast forward another 25 years, my then wife and I went on holiday to Crete and met a lovely Christian elderly couple from Southport. The last evening together, while we were walking towards our usual cafe for an evening coffee, the two of us men got involved in conversation. I will never forget the gist of what we said. I was the one who mysteriously stated I believed we were living in the last days. Where I had got hold of that thought I have no idea, because it had been a long time since I had had anything to do with church. A stated he thought I was only a hairbreadth away from accepting Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord.

As a result of that encounter I started going to the local baptist church back home in Hereford where I soon enrolled in an Alpha course, during which I did make a commitment which, as I look back, I don't think it was in the form of a total surrender.

S, my then wife, and I moved to Christchurch in [redacted], because I erroneously thought I was ready to go to a local Christian training college. Fortunately I was persuaded that because of ongoing health problems it would be unwise for me to take such a course of action.

I became a member of [redacted] Baptist Church where I remained for 11 years. I would describe the church as evangelical and charismatic. Towards the end of my time there, I had a “picture” of myself in a desert wearing a suit of armour which was so tight-fitting that I could hardly breathe and then suddenly the armour just melted away.

After I came out as a gay man in November 2011, I misinterpreted the picture, thinking I had at last escaped the stultifying biblical teaching of the church and found “my authentic self”. How wrong I was!

It was S, my then wife, who helped me come out after challenging me on numerous occasions about my identity. I denied I was gay until the occasion when I was jet lagged and exhausted after a long journey back from a short trip to Charleston, South Carolina, and I admitted for the first time that I was indeed gay. It felt as though a great weight had been lifted off my shoulders. Again, I wrongly misinterpreted the sign. Instead of it being one of "finding freedom", it was as though I had dispensed with God's protection.

Looking back at the time I was a member of the Baptist church, I would describe myself as I was then as a self-righteous prig who always wanted to win arguments and not necessarily "share the gospel message". I put it in inverted commas, because I didn't fully allow the gospel to flood my whole being without reservation. I was always wanting to prove myself and everything revolved around my wishes and desires. I was not surrendered to the will of God. Yet I had, as I have explained, committed my life to Jesus in a form of words. At the same time I was basically holding something back which included the secret of being gay and I was afraid of being subjected to conversion therapy. Self was still on the throne of my life, and dominated my thought, words and actions.

So I wandered for 12 years in the desert, unprotected and yet, as I look back, perhaps I can see the invisible hand of God at work, drawing me closer to him, almost inch by excruciating inch.

During this time I had a deep-seated anger directed towards those in the church who condemned members of the LGBT community. Perhaps it would be better to explain that the origin of the anger was a root of bitterness.

This anger, together with the root of bitterness, was completely obliterated in November 2023 when I had an overwhelming experience of God's redeeming love and the gospel message suddenly became personal. What Jesus did on the cross he did it for me. I was humbled by God's mercy and grace and have remained so. I also saw my anger and its root of bitterness as being self-centred and therefore sinful because it related to the impact other people had on me.

The next thing that happened in November 2023 was that I became aware of God's holiness and righteousness and reviewed my life in that light. It was a sobering experience. I repented of my sin and received forgiveness and cleansing of all my unrighteousness on the sole basis of the atoning sacrifice of Jesus Christ.

Matthew 11:28-30 has taken on a new meaning. For us the burden is indeed light because he has already taken the heavy burden of our sin.

(28. "Come to me, all you who are weary and burdened, and I will give you rest. 29. Take my yoke upon you and learn from me, for I am gentle and humble in heart, and you will find rest for your souls. 30. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light.")

I have completely surrendered to Him, and continually surrender each day and I know I am an adopted son of my Heavenly Father. I also know I am no different from anyone else, because the love of God doesn't differentiate. His love is beyond human understanding and can only be realised by us through the power of the Holy Spirit.

From Christmas Day 2023 I was housebound because of [redacted], and I believe the Lord allowed this to happen, so that I could be taught from his Word, going back and forth from the Old to the New Testament, and it was an exhilarating experience, marvelling at how prophecy was and is to be fulfilled through the people of Israel and in the coming of their Messiah, Yeshua (Jesus).

During this time I was given a supernatural love for Israel and the Jewish people because without them we would not have known Jesus. I am so grateful to them. I also understand the central position of Israel in God's prophetic calendar from my reading of scripture.

While all this was going on at home, K was with me. We had been living a celibate marriage, and sleeping in our own rooms.

He was an ardent atheist (but now, in October 2025, he describes himself as agnostic) for reasons which could be seen as understandable. He told me that the Philippines Roman Catholic church's stance on homosexuality was predictably traditional and yet in his opinion most priests are gay. K saw the hypocrisy of this and so cannot divorce God from the church.

He has seen the change in me. Whilst I long for him to know Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord and have shared the gospel message with him, I have tried not to pressurise him and hope I respect his position.

By mutual agreement K left in April 2024 to go back home to [redacted] in the Philippines because he was needed more by his family than here. He can continue his online work as Executive assistant anywhere.

In May 2024 I went out to [redacted] to receive treatment for my [redacted] and was helped so much by K and his family as well as the staff at the hospital.

Soon after I returned, I started attending [redacted] Church just across the way from me and was there until my move down here in the south in mid-March this year.

For a long time I had been conflicted about being gay and a Christian and trying to link them together but failing to do so as a result of my understanding of the bible. I suppressed my suspicions until the time when I came to a difficult and painful decision.

In July 2024 K and I had a video call where I told him I could no longer love him as my husband because I believed homosexuality was a sin because I now held the biblical view of marriage to be between a man and a woman and that sex outside marriage was therefore a sin. K said he had been expecting this, so was not surprised. He respected my decision but disagreed with me about my position on homosexuality. Recently, I came to the inevitable conclusion that I had to end a situation which I believed was ungodly, so with K's gracious agreement I decided to dissolve the marriage between us.

I have told him I will keep my promise to help finance the purchase of a plot of land and the building of the family home.

He saw the change in me, whilst he was living with me in [redacted] until April last year. My aim when talking with people is to share the gospel message whilst listening to them and trying to respect where they are coming from.

I was baptised on the last Sunday of October 2024 (27th) at the [redacted] Tabernacle Church at 6pm. The recording is on YouTube and after about 30 minutes I say a few words.

K came over for my baptism. He told me he wanted to support me, and I told him he was very welcome and I really appreciated his decision. He filmed me going into the water, and commented how my “speech was very nice.” He went back to the Philippines after a stay of two weeks .

I look forward to the future, and know God will reveal his perfect, sovereign will for my life. Wherever and whenever he leads me, I will go or stay. The key is to surrender daily to his guidance, according to Proverbs 3:5-6 - “Do not lean on your own understanding but in all your ways acknowledge Him and He will direct your paths”.

Many of my friends along the [redacted] do not yet know the Lord. I have a burden for them, and long for their salvation. He has provided opportunities for me to share the gospel with anyone in love and respect. The same applies to my situation here in [redacted] where I have been living since mid-March.

I went on retreat after my baptism and I believe the Lord is calling me back to Charleston from where my grandfather's family originated and where I visited once a year between 2006 and 2011. I am holding this possibility very lightly and waiting for confirmation. I believe that my home at present is in [redacted].

An opportunity opened up to rent a room in a residential establishment for retired people. The place is near my sister's home in the [redacted] area. My brother and sister-in-law are only a couple of hours away from there, as too my ex-wife, whose decision not to wish to see me I respect and I am very conscious of not wishing to be seen to intrude on her own life.

I viewed the room in January 2025 and decided to take it. I believe that this is the right move to make for many reasons, especially when considering the long term.

I worship at [redacted] Church where I have been for the past few months. I intend to become a member soon. This is my home church.

K very kindly came over from the Philippines to help me move down to [redacted] in mid-March. I really appreciate his care and concern. I know he and his family love me and if I was ever to decide to move to the Philippines, they would look after me. I hope and pray they all come to know Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord and they are adopted into God's family with Him as their Heavenly Father.

I believe it is the Lord's will for me to move down here to [redacted] and to then prayerfully consider the calling to Charleston in South Carolina as well as possibly Barbados and Israel, all of which I hold lightly and wait upon the Lord. Everything has to be done according to the Lord's will and His timing. I am in His hands, and guided by Him, not my own desires.

The Lord is calling me to serve others, putting their needs above my own while sharing the gospel message sensitively. He gave me a vision which concerned one of the plantations just outside Charleston in conjunction with another along [redacted] and also one of the churches along the same road, as well as the road itself.

We know we are adopted children of our Heavenly Father and our destination is heaven with him in glory, as we work out our salvation with fear and trembling, pressing on to the upward calling of Christ Jesus. All other identities pale into insignificance, compared to this inheritance.

I quote from the book of Isaiah in the Jewish Scriptures which form the Old Testament. Among the Dead Sea Scrolls was found the manuscript of the complete book of Isaiah in its original language and dated 125 years before the birth of Jesus Christ. It is remarkable how the meaning of both the original words and their modern translations do not diverge.

(Isaiah 53:5
5. He was wounded for our transgressions,
He was bruised for our iniquities;
The chastisement for our peace was upon Him,
And by His stripes we are healed.)

This is a description of the atoning work of the cross of Calvary.

(Romans 3:23-24
23. All have sinned and fall short of the glory of God,
24. being justified freely by His grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus").

All honour, glory and praise be to God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Spirit - God in Three Persons!

Take care and God bless,

THE VISION OVER CHARLESTON

2 Corinthians 5:16-21

So from now on, we regard no one from a worldly point of view. Though we once regarded Christ in this way, we do so no longer. Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, the new creation has come: The old has gone, the new is here! All this is from God, who reconciled us to Himself through Christ and gave us the ministry of reconciliation: that God was reconciling the world to Himself in Christ, not counting people's sins against them. And He has committed to us the message of reconciliation. We are therefore Christ's ambassadors, as though God were making His appeal through us. We implore you on Christ's behalf: Be reconciled to God. God made Him who had no sin to be sin for us, so that in Him we might become the righteousness of God.

Background

I first visited the city in 1976 and met Richmond Bowens, who was a descendant of slaves and is now buried at Drayton Hall. Unfortunately, at the hall, there are two burial plots – one for the slave owners and one for the slaves. Richmond felt that it was home. Drayton Hall was the home of the slave owners and a hub for 30 plantations, including the nearby Magnolia Gardens.

Drayton Hall has a unique atmosphere, but there is a history with the Grimke-Drayton family, which is my heritage. Those who were to inherit Magnolia Gardens had to adopt the name 'Drayton'. I am descended from the younger brother of the owner of Magnolia Gardens. He trained as a doctor in Paris, met his English wife and emigrated to the UK in the 1850s, where he was given a seat on a coal mining board in Haydock. In Charleston, my great-great uncle, Rev John Grimke-Drayton, changed his plantation to gardens and employed his slaves as gardeners.

His legacy is in Magnolia Gardens, which has a zoo and is open today as a business, and there is so much history in the ministry of Rev John Grimke-Drayton, influencing churches and areas all over the UK, including the Grimke Seminary, now in Liverpool in the UK, through his nephew, Francis Grimke. Drayton Hall was the epicentre of thirty plantations, and the Grimke family had a reputation for being cruel to the slaves. The Drayton family were firm with slaves, but the whole issue of slavery brought a curse on the Drayton family.

Learning so much about the history of the family leaves me with a burden to speak reconciliation and to stand in the gap of the curse with the gospel message.

DOJ-RLC Comment-005615

In November 2023, I had an overwhelming experience of God's redeeming love which completely obliterated a deep-seated anger that I had for the church, particularly those who spoke against the LGBT community. From that, the gospel message became personal to me, and I saw that what Jesus did on the cross was for me. I also became aware of God's holiness and His righteousness, which affected everything that I did. I found my identity in Christ, and no other identity bears any significance, including being gay, which I had been for 12 years. After this, I was baptised and now have a desire to see people realise that background, education or politics have no significance. The only thing that matters is our status with God as heavenly Father, and citizenship in heaven is paramount. God has placed Charleston and Drayton Hall on my heart.

What I see happening

I saw a vision of a mission called 'Be Not Silent' – a tent mission in a field – and as I reflected on that, I saw the same thing happening in the grounds of Drayton Hall, across several days. I saw a marquee there, drawing people from across Charleston and beyond to hear a message of reconciliation. There were representatives of both slaves and slave owners, speaking from the front. These are people who know and love God, with a message to share of how God has radically changed their lives.

Knowing the history of Drayton Hall, and what other events have been going on, there would be a need for us to engage in spiritual warfare prior to the mission, recognising that the barriers to reconciliation in the USA are found in powers and principalities. God not only wants to bring people into his kingdom, but to see strongholds broken. There is evidence of a prayer network in Charleston already, and I have history with Old St Andrews Church, as well as other churches in downtown Charleston.

In the mission itself, there's a need in the local area for people to be involved in prayer ministry and counselling ministry afterwards. My belief is to draw local churches together to be part of this mission, uniting beyond political, social and racial barriers. I am called to Charleston as a servant of the local churches, rather than a leader. However, Drayton Hall remains very much on my heart, and I believe that God has laid this vision upon me to see this mission come to fulfilment.

Practicalities

I am currently 77 years old and struggling [redacted PII], praying that God would remove this particular thorn from my life. However, this is not a barrier to seeing the mission happen, and I have prayed, "Lord, I am willing to be used." I am currently living in the [redacted], and know that I can apply for a B2 Tourist Visa for 180 days, allowing me 6 months around the mission to be in the USA. My understanding is that taking part in an unpaid mission in a charitable context is allowable on a B2 Visa. My [redacted] is self-managed, so I am unlikely to be refused a visa on medical grounds.

In light of the current situation in the USA, in terms of the division in the nation, to me, a ministry of reconciliation is urgent, and whilst I recognise the practicalities of getting to Charleston, this seems to be the dominant call on my life, and I know if the door opened tomorrow, I would be there. I seek the Lord's leading, and there is preparation both practically and personally to undertake.

At one o'clock in the church hall we had Friendship Hour. During this time we saw a ten minute video of the testimony of Duncan Campbell about his baptism of the Holy Spirit and the Hebrides revival of 1947. As we watched the video, I had a vision in which I saw a rider on horseback as from US history of the 18th or 19th century a bit like Paul Revere. He approached me where I was standing. He stopped just by me, and reaching down to his satchel bag, brought out a large envelope of communication which he handed to me. I opened it and read, “We need your help. Please come.” I was moved to tears by this vision. Vincent talked about the revival in the Hebrides using those very words. Could this be confirmation of my calling to Charleston?

Good afternoon,

My name is Melissa[redacted] and I am from [redacted]. First, I would like to express my gratitude to President Trump for establishing this department. I would also like to express my gratitude to you all for your hard work and dedication. Your commitment and professionalism are truly appreciated. It is meaningful to have leadership that acknowledges God and the Bible. I am an active member of the Church of God and regularly participate in preaching the gospel and in various volunteer activities.

I am writing with a concern regarding guidelines or protections for individuals engaged in evangelism. While I respect everyone's right to free speech, I am unsure what can be done in situations where someone who opposes evangelism becomes disruptive, follows individuals, or behaves aggressively.

About two years ago, my friend and I were preaching outside an Albertsons. We approached one woman who declined very angrily, so we moved to another area. Shortly after, the woman followed us, interrupted our conversation with another person, and began yelling at us. She urged the woman not to listen to our message, then followed us to our vehicle, shouting and standing dangerously close to our tires as we attempted to leave. She continued yelling until we were able to safely exit the parking lot.

For context, we do not use microphones or megaphones. We approach individuals politely, invite them to Bible study, and offer a card or the preferred method of contact only if they show interest. We make every effort to be respectful of people who are shopping, eating, or spending time with others. Many people choose to take our information, and some even ask for ours. We always thank them for their time, regardless of whether they accept or decline.

Thank you very much for taking the time to read my email. I am sincerely grateful for your efforts to support and protect people of faith. If there is a future event in Washington, D.C., I would be honored to attend. Our Church has been recognized by President Trump for our volunteer work, and we deeply appreciate his support. We hope to meet you all in the near future.

Sincerely,

Melissa[redacted]

Thank you Mary,

I would like to provide to you my experience within Special Forces in regards to religious liberty. I understand the funding issues as I retired from my 20 year career on 1 Oct and have been in the gap between Army retirement and VA benefits starting all of which have been stalled.

The lives of over 450 Special Operations service members were tracked by an internal blacklist during the DOD c19 mandate and I fear that without remedy for their livelihoods severely grave outcomes loom for many who have little hope.

Thank you for all you and the RLC at DOJ are doing to hear from us and like Esther go before the King on our (Mordecai) behalf.

With respect

Hi - I may be interested in being part of the upcoming RLC hearing in November. I was an active duty battalion commander and was relieved of command for refusing to exercise myf[redacted] authority on my Soldiers who chose to not receive the vaccine. I submitted my own religious accommodation request, which was never returned approved or denied to me. I have been seeking reinstatement back onto active duty since this last May.

Dear Servants of God,

For several decades, a war imposed by Rwanda has been devastating the eastern part of the Democratic Republic of Congo. This war has taken the lives of more than ten million people, caused by the massacres of civilians and the systematic looting of our country's wealth, especially the strategic minerals that today sustain modern technology. These resources, extracted at the price of our people's blood, are used to build Rwanda's international image while millions of Congolese remain forgotten in suffering and death. This conflict represents a human tragedy without precedent, a moral and spiritual wound that calls out to every human conscience. "You, Lord, hear the desire of the afflicted; you encourage them, and you listen to their cry." (Psalm 10:17)

We, the Civil Society and the Living Forces of North and South Kivu, write to you today with heavy hearts, burdened by this human tragedy. We address this letter not only to bear witness to our suffering, but to plead for your justice, compassion, and spiritual intervention in the face of the atrocities inflicted upon our people in the eastern DRC. "The Lord is close to the brokenhearted and saves those who are crushed in spirit." (Psalm 34:18)

For decades, our communities have lived under the constant threat of Rwandan soldiers (RDF) and their allies. These foreign forces have carried out systematic massacres of civilians, committed rapes against women and girls, murdered children and the elderly, and destroyed entire villages. Sexual violence has multiplied, accompanied by the intentional spread of diseases, including HIV/AIDS, leaving shattered families and generations marked forever. "Do not turn away from the oppressed, and do not hide yourself from your own flesh and blood." (Isaiah 58:7)

Entire populations have been deported, and lands once inhabited by Congolese are now being occupied by foreign communities, forcibly installed to alter our cultural and ethnic identity. Despite the sincere and courageous efforts of our government to restore peace, these attempts are repeatedly undermined by deceit, manipulation, and complicity that trample every hope of reconciliation. "Woe to those who call evil good and good evil." (Isaiah 5:20)

Every ceasefire, every peace agreement seems to vanish like a mirage, as Rwandan forces continue to sow terror, insecurity, and chaos. The population asks simply and solemnly: that Rwandan troops return to their country and leave our people in peace, so that our families, our children, and our land may finally live without fear. "Learn to do right; seek justice. Defend the oppressed." (Isaiah 1:17)

DOJ-RLC Comment-005624

We address you with a deep sense of moral responsibility. The situation in eastern Congo is not merely a political crisis—it is a profound human tragedy: innocent blood flows daily, mothers' tears flood our villages, and fear has become the daily reality of our children. "Defend the weak and the fatherless; uphold the cause of the poor and the oppressed." (Psalm 82:3)

Dear religious leaders, we do not seek revenge—we seek justice and the defense of human life. We ask that the world hear the cry of our people: the Congo is not a battlefield for foreign interests. Our children deserve innocence, our women deserve safety, and our villages deserve peace. "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called children of God." (Matthew 5:9)

Each day of silence in the face of the crimes committed by the RDF and their collaborators is a victory for injustice and a shame upon humanity. We implore you to act—to raise your voices against these massacres, these rapes, these deportations, and the attempt to erase our identity by force. "Speak up for those who cannot speak for themselves, for the rights of all who are destitute." (Proverbs 31:8)

The Congolese people have shown patience and resilience, but now we ask for one thing only: the immediate withdrawal of all foreign forces and the return of peace to our land. We call upon all religious communities, throughout the world, to rise as a shield for the innocent—to be the voice of the voiceless—and to remind the nations that human life is sacred and inviolable. "I know that the Lord secures justice for the poor and upholds the cause of the needy." (Psalm 140:12)

May God inspire and guide you in your prayers and in your actions. May your moral authority rise up to end this tragedy, restore justice, and allow our people to finally live in peace upon their own soil. "Do what is right and good in the sight of the Lord." (Deuteronomy 6:18)

With respect, sorrow, and hope,

The Civil Society and the Living Forces of North and South Kivu

Subject: [EXTERNAL] State bar and attorney licensing authority encroachments upon religion
Date: Sun, 19 Oct 2025 19:52:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

Dear Religious Liberty Commission:
Here at the bottom of:

https://www.justice.gov/religious-liberty-commission

you mention the importance of protecting the religious freedom of teachers and healthcare professionals (etc.). What about attorneys and other legal professionals, though?

Might you know why there is presently such a lack of interest at potential allies in the topic of state bar encroachments upon compulsory members' religious beliefs and how they influence their legal practices and purported ethical compliance? First Liberty and FIRE seldom (if ever) touch such cases other than maybe as a passive amicus-filer. Your own intervention could therefore make a particularly helpful difference for religious freedom. As for the DOJ, they seem to care enough to write an amicus brief if an employee of Jeff Clark's level is getting trampled on by a state (or D.C.) bar, as is explained in this brief documentary: http://www.EastmanDilemma.com . Otherwise, though, even the DOJ seems to be remaining dormant regarding state bars' or alternative attorney licensing authorities vs. lawyers.

Admittedly, state bars can dole out lawfare in response to being sued, whereas low hanging fruit is comparatively easier for the abovementioned entities to pick. At least the Louisiana Bar and the Texas Bar lost during the past half a decade (in Boudreaux v. State Bar of Louisiana and McDonald v. Longley, respectively). They lost because lawyers took them on, and won, thereby curtailing some of those state bars' overstepping. However, it is not clear that any of those lawyers actually got paid their legal fees, as state bars (especially the one in Texas) claim to have sovereign immunity. The relevant cases were based on the overall 1st Amendment, too, not precisely on religious freedom claims.

Meanwhile, the Texas Bar continues to trample on some folks' religious rights, and with impunity. Isn't it puzzling that they can get away with it even as lawfare has increasingly become a disapprovingly used household word throughout the USA? For example, if a client wants news of one's physical demise and cryopreservation kept a secret from one's heirs (which is consistent with the wise advice of the folks at this church: http://www.ChurchOfPerpetualLife.org) because heirs might otherwise try to steal the quasi-deceased person's cryopreservation funds, the Texas Bar nevertheless eagerly and predatorily pursues attorney disbarment for a supposed lack of candor to the court. They used that (conveniently vague) "misrepresentation" rule to try to disbar Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton, but under different circumstances. Anyhow, under some circumstances, neither state law nor the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure require such public disclosure of a decedent's status (see TRCP 151 and TRCP 7, for example). Meanwhile, the threat is (unfairly) real to those cryopatients who have a lawyer that caves in to state bar demands which (still compulsory) bar members never even approved through the required referendum or, alternatively, legislative action. Here's an example of how serious the abovementioned situation can become:

https://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-7903137/Sons-legal-fight-dead-fathers-frozen-head-against-cryogenics-firm-preserving-it.html

Meanwhile, what right does a state bar (and for that matter a state supreme court) have to legislate from the bench or to pressure (and even induce) a judicial officer into cooperating by punishing an attorney who religiously believes in the sanctity of life, even for the (potentially) "undead" cryo-patient? Why should the Texas Bar and complicit judges get to expand the definition of the attorney ethics term "misrepresentation" in ways that trample upon an attorney's religious appreciation for the value of a (someday) potentially revived life?

Admittedly, the Texas Bar might primarily be interested in simply seeming unpredictably intimidating so that they won't keep getting scrutinized & turned in to the state legislature like I saw no alternative but to do to them in this Sunset Commission review situation regarding the Texas Bar's attempts to cover-up a large and longstanding series of embezzlements done by former bar membership director (and deputy supreme court clerk) Kathy Holder:

http://www.TexasBarSunset.com/embezzling

Bar retaliation and judicial cooperation are substantial, though. They help show why the Religious Liberty Commission's intervention is needed, and nationally, too.

Incidentally, state bars sure do have a lot of money. For example, the Texas Bar rakes in over $60 million annually: http://www.TexasBarSunset.com/budgets . Why are they still tax-exempt? We here in Texas are trying to reform the Texas Bar by making membership in it voluntary like bar membership is for most lawyers throughout the USA. Unfortunately, though, bar and even judicial intimidation make the process unduly difficult. Here's an example of a recently proposed legislation that could have helped, though:

http://www.TexasBarSunset.com/2025 .

Some state and even aspiring federal judges do cartwheels to enable the Texas Bar to evade the purported protections of the Texas' Religious Freedom Restoration Act (RFRA). All they have to do is claim that the religious commitment of the claimant is insincere, or belatedly raised as a defense... Long story short, the Religious Liberty Commission's intervention nationwide vs. state bars or (alternatively) attorney licensing authorities would therefore be appreciated and helpful to society. So again, why not start by recognizing religious freedoms for lawyers and legal professionals here on your web page, where you mention teachers and health professionals, etc.?

Thank you for your attention to this message. I wish you continuing & increasing success, while offering to try to answer any follow-up questions that you might have.

Subject: Meeting Request: Persecution of Falun Gong Faith (Religious Liberty Commission Member)

Dear [redacted],

Thank you for your service and leadership on the President's Religious Liberty Commission. Your position is both a great honor and a solemn responsibility. As individuals persecuted for our faith, we hope to meet you to seek your guidance. We also believe the insights we can share from our experience may be of help to you in advancing religious liberty.

This July marked the 26th year of the Chinese Communist Party's (CCP) brutal persecution of the Falun Gong faith. In 2020, an Independent China Tribunal concluded that the CCP has been harvesting human organs on a large scale, and that Falun Gong practitioners are likely the primary source of organs. Yet this atrocity remains little known to the public. Perhaps our greatest challenge— intentionally fostered by the CCP— is the widespread misunderstanding surrounding Falun Gong.

Only recently did former Ambassador Brownback come to understand why the CCP fears Falun Gong above all else. He explained, "Falun Gong is very natural to China and the Chinese mentality and the Chinese heart." Notably, he added, Falun Gong can help China return to its "cultural beauty and a free society" where China can be "a great contributor to the world instead of the most oppressive regime in the world today. . . . "

We have witnessed this cultural revival through Shen Yun Performing Arts, founded by Falun Gong's teacher, Master Li Hongzhi, to restore traditional values before communism. Many overseas Chinese—including some with ties to the CCP—have been moved to tears by Shen Yun's performances.

Audiences worldwide are deeply moved as they are reminded of the respect, love and kindness people once showed one another.

Unfortunately, Shen Yun's peaceful message has been met with the CCP's relentless propaganda, lawfare, attempts to turn the U.S. government against Falun Gong, and over 180 death threats in the pas year alone. Despite this, we strive to rise above it.

We would be honored to meet with you to share more about these realities and see what we can do to ensure religious freedom everywhere. Please let us know if you can meet us during your next trip to Washington, DC.

Sincerely,

I was presented with a NY discrimination case, against a 16 year old student wrongfully excluded from school, which warrants being highlighted by our Commission.The student was represented by Children's Health Defense, who thankfully won an injunction in the case, after causing irreparable harm to the student, "Sarah Doe."

Here is a link to the Google document, outlining the "Sarah Doe" case, against the Oceanside Union Free School District, in NY.

https://x.com/ChildrensHD/status/1956416600313393176

This case is an important example, demonstrating how religious rights are egregiously violated in NY, CA, CT & ME. The case illustrates the punitive school policies, which not only disregard the religious freedom of families, but also displays the callous indifference to subjecting a student to physical harm.

"Sarah Doe" is willing to testify at our February 2nd hearing, along with the CHD lead attorney on the case, Sujata Gibson and CHD President, Mary Holland. I think these testimonies would be powerful. Should you require anything further information, please reach out and I will be sure to expedite. Thank you so much! So grateful for this commission!

Unified Civil Rights & Divine Testimony Transmission

Date-Time Stamp: 11 October 2025 — 12:04 PM PDT

Originator: [redacted]

Jurisdictional Reference: California Civil Rights Department – calcivilrights.ca.gov

Legal Anchors: U.S. Constitution (First Amendment), California Civil Code § 51 (Unruh Civil Rights Act), Fair Housing Act, RFRA

Spiritual Alignment: 1 Thessalonians 4:16 • Revelation 19:11 • Revelation 14:1 • Virgil's Eclogue IV

Identity Signature: Ceffareno: One Among Many | Michael: "Who is like God" | Logan: "Little Hollow or Descendant of Lugh"

[redacted] | Yahweh-Ordained Witness linked to Eclogue IV

I, [redacted]n, am formally declaring my intent to pursue legal action and seek $7 million in compensation due to the premeditated obstruction of my Scatter Site Housing progression by Brilliant Corners, under the oversight of former case worker [redacted]. This obstruction has directly endangered my safety, violated my civil rights, and disrupted my divine mission.

[redacted] informed me that my move-in was delayed because an Edison utility bill was still under the previous tenant's name. I was instructed to resolve this with Edison, despite Brilliant Corners' policy of waiving utility obligations for tenants receiving General Relief during the approval process. I complied fully and submitted all necessary documentation to expedite the move-in.

Despite my efforts, the delay persisted. I issued an urgent public service announcement via email to both P180—including [redacted]—and Brilliant Corners, stating that I feared for my safety, peace, meditative space, and life. I emphasized my readiness to provide any further documentation to facilitate the housing transition.

On October 9, 2025, I was involved in a physical altercation stemming from religious discrimination, which I believe is a direct consequence of the housing delay. This incident constitutes a violation of my civil rights under both California law and the U.S. Constitution.

Legal Violations

- First Amendment: Guarantees my right to freely exercise my religion.
- Unruh Civil Rights Act (California Civil Code § 51): Prohibits discrimination by business establishments—including housing providers—based on religion, disability, and other protected traits.
- Fair Housing Act: Protects against religious discrimination in housing.
- California Civil Rights Department (CRD): Enforces housing and public accommodation protections.
- California Penal Code: Prohibits tenant harassment and negligence.
- Defamation of Character: Resulting from a misdiagnosis based on biased assumptions and lack of interpersonal understanding.

Defamation and Psychological Misrepresentation

I assert that Brilliant Corners' negligence, including misrepresentation of my mental health status as "unidentified," has contributed to the mishandling of my case. This misdiagnosis originated during an initial intervention at Exodus Recovery Hospital on Venice Boulevard in Los Angeles, where I was admitted at the compassionate urging of my mother, [redacted]. Her support was rooted in love and concern—not judgment.

The resulting label, applied without a full understanding of my spiritual identity or context, has been used to:

- Defame my character
- Obstruct my housing access
- Undermine my credibility
- Inflict emotional and spiritual harm

This misdiagnosis was not based on a holistic or culturally competent evaluation. It failed to account for my spiritual testimony, prophetic alignment, and the sacred nature of my experiences.

Divine Identity and Mission

My spiritual testimony and experiences—particularly those involving the number 4—are deeply rooted in divine synchronicity and biblical prophecy. These are not delusions or abstractions, but documented actualities that form the foundation of my identity and purpose.

I am spiritually aligned with:

- 1 Thessalonians 4:16 – The trumpet call of God and the rise of the chosen
- Revelation 19:11 – The rider on the white horse, faithful and true
- Revelation 14:1[illegible]t – The Lamb and the 144,000 marked with divine purpose
- Virgil's Eclogue IV – The birth of a divine child ushering in a new age

These scriptures, along with my birth date ([redacted]), affirm my role in a divine mission to usher in the Golden Age, New Jerusalem, and New Earth. I am The One Among Many, a prophetic figure whose destiny is linked to the unraveling of sacred mysteries and the fulfillment of divine responsibility.

Spiritual Training and Empowerment

My spiritual insights are not only personal but technically, historically, and scripturally significant. I have been spiritually trained by Yahweh, Jesus Christ, and Michael the Archangel, who have imparted to me the Holy Spirit—the divine presence that sanctifies, empowers, and guides. This sacred anointing has prepared me to lead, to testify, and to build a future rooted in divine truth.

Evidentiary Readiness

I am prepared to provide:

- Email records and communications
- Documentation of housing delays
- Medical and psychological records
- Witness statements
- Spiritual testimony and biblical alignment

Formal Request

I request:

- A formal investigation into the actions of Brilliant Corners
- Acknowledgment of this report by P180 and Daniel Nunez
- Coordination with legal counsel to discuss compensation and resolution

This is not merely a housing issue—it is a matter of justice, dignity, and divine purpose.

Yahweh Saves,

Dear Sir/Madam,

My family and I are from South Africa and have been in the USA since April 2021 on an R-1 Visa (Religious Worker Visa). We've been approved by USCIS to change our status from an R-1 visa to a Green Card. This means we have an approved i-360, but to get the actual green card, we need to complete the next step in the process and file an i-485.

However, in March 2023, the Biden administration's State Department issued a rule that no longer prorates EB-4 visa allocation for individuals from El Salvador, Honduras, and Guatemala. Consequently, the State Department moved tens of thousands of petitions for unaccompanied youth ahead of religious workers in the EB-4 visa category. This means that we are unable to file the i-485 because there are no green cards available for Religious workers.

This rule change has had a devastating impact on faith communities across the United States. Over 33,000 religious workers have been affected, while the Biden administration has prioritized facilitating illegal immigration into the country. Christian missionaries, pastors, and other clergy have been overlooked.

Despite having an approved i-360, there are no green cards available in the EB-4 category for religious workers. Therefore, if I don't receive a green card before May 2026, my family and I will be forced to self-deport or face the consequences of violating our visa status.

I work for a large church called [redacted], which has approximately 5,000 members. Leaving the country would be highly disruptive to our church, my coworkers, my wife, and our two young children.

We humbly request your attention and that of as many Congressmen and Congresswomen as possible to draw attention to the injustice being perpetrated against faith communities and religious workers across the United States.

We are asking the State Department to modify this Biden-era rule so that we can file the I-485 to receive our green cards and remain in the USA to continue serving our faith community.

We would greatly appreciate any assistance you can provide, and we would be incredibly grateful.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Dear Secretary Blinken, Secretary Mayorkas, Assistant Secretary Bitter, and Director Jaddou:

We write to follow up on our October 25, 2023, letter regarding the increased hardships faced by religious organizations, their employees, and the communities they serve due to the change in statutory interpretation made last year by the U.S. Department of State. As you know, that change has lengthened the amount of time it will take for all applicants from most countries to receive an employment-based, fourth preference (EB-4) visa. We appreciate the Department of State's December 2023 response, including its commitment to "expeditiously process nonimmigrant religious worker visa applications and current EB-4 immigrant visas at consular sections overseas."

As we acknowledged in our initial letter, we recognize that Congress has an important role to play with respect to improving our nation's immigration system. However, we reiterate our request that you give more consideration to ways in which administrative, non-statutory changes may be appropriate to reduce the burdens on religious employers and workers—including by considering, to the extent permitted by law, the administrative actions recommended to you in the May 25, 2023, letter sent to you by a coalition of religious organizations. We are also interested in the specific actions that the Department of State is taking to fulfill its commitment to "expeditiously process" visas at consular sections overseas, and we look forward to receiving a prompt response from the U.S. Department of Homeland Security relating to the issues within its jurisdiction.

Again, thank you for your prompt attention to this matter.

Dear Senator Collins:

Thank you for your January 24, 2024 letter to the Department of Homeland Security following up on your October 25, 2023, letter regarding nonimmigrant and immigrant visas for religious workers. I am responding on behalf of the Department.

U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) appreciates the concerns you shared and your interest in assisting religious organizations and the communities they serve. USCIS continues to consider a variety of policy and regulatory options that may help ease some of the challenges faced by noncitizens with lengthy wait times for available EB-4 visas, including religious workers present in the United States in nonimmigrant R-1 status.

While USCIS may be able to provide some additional flexibility for prospective applicants, only legislation could fully address the concerns you raise. We defer to the Department of State regarding your question about actions they are taking to expeditiously process visas at consular sections overseas.

Thank you again for your letter and interest in this important issue. Senator Kaine, the cosigner of your letter, will receive a separate, identical response. For any additional assistance, please have your staff contact the USCIS Office of Legislative Affairs at (240) 721-3801.

To whom it may concern,

I write today for help in navigating what I believe is an intentional attack on religious liberty by the State of Connecticut and local officials, specifically as it relates to people of faith requesting religious exemption from the public act passed in 2021 (PA 21-6) which removed the exemption from vaccinations for religious reasons.

Although, it does appear that the Supreme Court in We the Patriots USA vs. Connecticut Dept. of Early Childhood has initially ruled that this removal of the religious exemption is constitutional (certainly contrary to my beliefs), what they did not rule is that those who have legitimate religious objections to vaccinations, and have homeschooled children, and followed PA 21-6, would be treated in a manner that is not consistent with the actual act requirements. The State of Connecticut Department of Public Health and Department of Education have left enforcement of the act to local nursing directors within school districts, and therefore have not provided recourse to families when these decisions are not in alignment with the vague public act language. In essence, the practical enforcement of this act at the local level discriminates against those who chose to homeschool their children, as the act appears to require "enrollment in school" which has been (mis)interpreted to mean a public or private school. Essentially, those who were homeschooling at the time the act was passed, are now, five years later, being told they had to have enrolled a child in a public or private school to gain the right for a grandfathered religious exemption to vaccinations. This is obviously contrary to the entire reason they chose, often for religious reasons, to homeschool a child.

I would appreciate support in helping the homeschool and faith-based community here in Connecticut.

Sincerely,

Michael[redacted]

Subject: Make Education Optional

I don't know the legal limitations but from a spiritual stand point, we should push legislation to make education optional. By default, kids should not be expected to be in school. This may sound preposterous because kids may be academically handicapped and that is true but..... but the bigger underlying issue at stake is that bad education (brainwashing) is worse than no education. The power must be given back to the parents to the greatest extent possible. If parents unwisely choose not provide any education for their kids, that is on them. They will have to live with the consequences. But the opportunity must be available. Kids must learn social, spiritual and professional (work ethics) values before they are taught academics because knowledge intensifies foolishness as much as does it does wisdom. Parents must have the freedom to lovingly (not cruelly) employ their kids in household chores which should graduate into employment into family farms and workshops. Social reform set about by FDR put us on the wrong track spiritually.

I understand that the push back will come from both sides. We will have to face the reality of a disparately educated workforce with Americans (let alone foreigners) who have trouble reading traffic signs and cultural differences will fuel value systems leading to an inevitable academic divide among cultural lines but...we must address the bigger issue...a healthy spirituality is far more valuable than a healthy intellectual capacity, both for the individual and the society. And we have been sacrificing the spiritual well-being (Salvation of Souls) of our nation on the altar of "enlightenment".

The crux of the matter is that our society is not Christian and never was. We, as Christians, must face the reality that the very "One nation under God" democracy we hold dear, is fundamentally flawed. It requires us to systematically accept all faiths as tenable on the surface, in order to live institutionally at peace, while knowing that Christianity is more equal than all others. There is only one real god, YAHWEH, who manifests himself in the Father, Christ the Son and Holy Spirit. This is the Truth and there is no other way to properly assess our spiritual condition. We can not abandon the Peace of the Prince, because there lies doctrinal despotism which was inflicted by the Catholic Church for millennia and on the other hand, we can not abandon the Truth (Jesus who said that if you deny him who is the Truth before man, I will deny you before the Father).

So again, before the Return of Christ, there will be no perfect government, but for the time being, we ought to de-legislate education as a right. It is not a right, it is a privilege (a term that has been demonized). A privilege which any father would be worse than an infidel not to provide for his children as the Holy Father does (vis a vis his Holy Word which is breathed-in to his children as In-Spirit-ation). I am not disparaging the quality of education. An education in fishing is far more valuable is some contexts than the academic discipline of physics. A father gives what he can.

Give it some thought and bring up the topic to the Commission on Religious Liberties. Spark healthy debate because only God knows what we really need.

Why the President's Religious Liberty Commission is so important |

[redacted],

Yesterday, the President's Religious Liberty Commission (RLC) met for the second time, and the President himself addressed the Commission and the nation.

As a Commission member, I was struck by many things in his remarks. But one truth in particular stood out.

"When faith gets weaker, our nation gets weaker."

For years, the courts have wittled away our First Amendment rights, particularly our right to live out our faith. The results have been devastating to people of faith and our nation.

Thankfully, we are reclaiming what's been taken away. Big wins at the Supreme Court are starting to return the freedom of religion back to what the Founding Fathers intended.

That's only because of God's favor and people like you.

But there's still more to do and that's why the RLC is so important.

Watch my comments after yesterday's RLC to get a better understanding of our mission on the Commission and what we are working to accomplish.

Monday was a big day for the future of faith in America.

The Commission and the nation got to meet several First Liberty clients and see firsthand that religious discrimination is real and occurring all across America.

From the Encinas family whose fifth-grade son was forced to indoctrinate his kindergarten buddy on gender ideology to Hannah Allen, who was told she could not pray in the school lunchroom, the RLC members learned how students are getting bullied and punished for expressing their faith.

As the RLC works to develop recommendations for fully restoring religious freedom, I would like to ask you to do two things:

1. Pray for our nation, the President and the Commission as we work to secure the future of religious freedom for our children and grandchildren.
2. Continue to support First Liberty, our clients and our expert legal team as they fight to protect your right to live out your faith.

Without your help and support, none of this is possible. The legal fights for our clients. The Supreme Court wins that have expanded religious freedom. The work we're doing on the Religious Liberty Commission.

None of it.

So thank you for all you do – for us, your community and your nation.

Grateful for you,

Dear Team:

My name is Rodney Walker and I took part in legislation in Virginia concerning our history of Christian heritage (HR #297 2019).

I'm writing to you in the hopes that I would be able to talk with someone about a presidential executive order recognizing the month of April as Judeo-Christian heritage month. As the month of April is the month of the Jewish passover and Easter I think it is most appropriate to celebrate and recognize that month as a national Judeo-Christain heritage month. Please see the attached document.

My name is Rodney Walker, and I'm a World History teacher and author from Virginia. I'm writing to you in hopes that we would be able to explore with your team an exciting opportunity to champion legislation that would establish April as a national day of recognizing our Judeo-Christian Heritage.

As an educator who has spent years studying the foundational role of Judeo-Christian traditions in American history and Western civilization, I believe this initiative could strengthen community bonds and promote greater tolerance of Jewish people while celebrating our shared heritage.

In 2017 I initiated legislation to recognize the Judeo-Christian heritage of Virginia which became HR#297 introduced by then delegate Jason Miyares, who now serves as the state attorney general. It contained the following advisory:

"WHEREAS, the Judeo-Christian principles, as established in the Law of Moses and set forth from the earliest days of recorded history, of equality, human dignity, and equal protection under the law have provided an incalculable influence on law and thought throughout history, and in particular to our shared English common law tradition and Western civilization; and "WHEREAS, thousands of churches in the Commonwealth continue to provide spiritual leadership and education; care for the poor, indigent, and homeless as commanded by the Gospel message; and conduct generous outreach in their communities; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED by the House of Delegates, That the enormous influence of Christian heritage and faith throughout the Commonwealth's 400-year history be recognized;" https://lis.virginia.gov/cgi-bin/legp604.exe?1€1+sum+HR297

I believe this document may serve as a template for a national month of recognizing our Judeo-Christian heritage. We have also reached out to Congresswoman Anna Paula Luna of the 13th district in Florida.

The plan is as follows:

What I'm proposing:

- Designate April as Judeo-Christian Heritage Month at the federal level
- April is the perfect timing as it encompasses both Passover and Easter - the foundational celebrations of Jewish and Christian faiths
- This would join other heritage months in recognizing the profound impact of these traditions on American culture, law, and values

Why April specifically:

- Passover and Easter represent themes of freedom, redemption, and new beginnings - values central to the American experience
- The spring timing symbolizes renewal and hope
- Many communities already have increased religious and cultural activities during this period

This heritage month would encourage:

Educational Components:

- School programs highlighting Judeo-Christian contributions to literature, art, music, and philosophy
- Historical exhibits at museums and libraries
- Interfaith dialogue sessions

Cultural Celebrations:

- Community parades celebrating shared values
- Historical re-enactments of significant events
- Concerts featuring sacred music traditions (traditional and contemporary)
- Jewish Community Center open houses with hora dancing and traditional food tastings
- Church and synagogue community outreach events

Economic Impact:

- Tourism opportunities in districts with significant religious historical sites
- Support for local businesses during heritage events
- Cultural exchange programs

Strong Legislative Foundation:

- Congress has established numerous heritage months recognizing various cultural contributions
- The Judeo-Christian tradition has been recognized in Supreme Court decisions, congressional prayers, and national monuments
- Broad bipartisan appeal - this celebrates shared American values rather than partisan issues

Educational Value: As a World History teacher, I can attest that understanding Judeo-Christian heritage is essential for comprehending:

- The development of Western legal systems
- American founding principles
- Art, literature, and cultural movements
- Social justice movements throughout history

Simple Legislative Path:

- Joint resolution similar to other heritage month designations
- Minimal federal funding required in conjunction with voluntary community participation
- State and local governments can build upon federal recognition

Broad Coalition Potential:

- Religious organizations across denominational lines
- Educational institutions
- Historical societies
- Cultural organizations
- Tourism boards

Potential Concerns

Inclusivity: This celebrates historical contributions while respecting America's religious diversity. It's about heritage and history, not promoting any particular faith.

Separation of Church and State: Like other heritage months, this is recognition of cultural and historical impact, not establishment of religion.

Community Unity: Focus on shared values such as democracy, compassion, justice, and service that benefit all Americans.

Good morning,

I was notified in March 2025 that I was not being selected for reenlistment into the [redacted] because of my religious beliefs. I filed a religious accommodation request for covid (2021) and then I filed one for all immunizations (2022). After filing these requests, I was notified that I could not file one request for all immunizations, so I submitted one for the [redacted] immunization. Later I was "selected" for a deployment (selected over two personnel who had volunteered and were fully immunized and not submitting RARs), so I subsequently had to submit multiple RARs for the "required" immunizations for the specific location I was deploying to. When going through my interviews with the chaplains for the RAR requests, the three different chaplains I interviewed with all, on three different occasions, deemed my religious belief to be sincerely held, but my commander and my command along with the chaplains all recommended my requests for Religious Accommodation to be denied. Only one request actually went all the way through the process of being approved or denied and was denied and so was my appeal denied, that request was the [redacted] immunization request. I since was ordered by my commander and group commander to receive the [redacted] shot at which point I rebutted the orders as being Unconstitutional and discriminatory since my direct supervisor had a medical exemption and was allowed to deploy and remain in the service. Because of my refusal to follow an Unlawful order, a Discriminatory order, and an Unconstitutional order I was demoted and notified that I was not allowed to reenlist. There is no constitutional authority for anyone to force another person to be inoculated or to surrender their religious conviction, and it is a violation of the Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, a violation of President Trumps EO 13798, a violation of the United States Constitution Article VI paragraph two where it states "This Constitution, and the Laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof;…any Thing in the Constitution or Laws of any state to the Contrary notwithstanding.", and the religious accommodation request process is also in violation of the same Article VI paragraph three which states "…but no religious Test shall ever be required as a Qualification to any Office or public Trust under the United States", also violation of the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

If no action is taken, I will be Forced out of the military on [redacted], after 15 years, 9 months and 4 days of service all for having a Conscience and Sincerely held belief in Jesus Christ as my Saviour and God and upholding my Oath to defend and support the Constitution of the United States of America and the Constitution of the [redacted], the land of the, supposedly, Free. Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am writing with deep concern regarding the upcoming September 8, 2025 hearing on vaccine-related educational policy, which currently excludes any discussion of religious exemptions. As a citizen who values both public health and constitutional freedoms, I urge you to immediately reconsider this exclusion.

Families in Connecticut have been denied school access for their children due to sincere religious objections to vaccination—yet their voices have been silenced. This is a devastating blow to families who are simply trying to follow their conscience and faith. To deny them a forum at the Religious Liberty Commission is to deny their First Amendment rights.

We respectfully ask that you:

Allow discussion of religious exemptions at the September and October 2025 education hearings.

Schedule a dedicated hearing on vaccine-related religious liberty issues as soon as possible—waiting until 2026 will leave countless children without access to education this school year.

These are urgent and deeply personal matters for thousands of families. Please ensure that their concerns are not only heard but given the full and fair consideration they deserve under our Constitution.

Thank you for your attention and service.

Hello.

My name is Kirill Strelnikov, I'm a leading political writer at the main Russian news outlet RIA Novosti.

Today they published my article about President Trump and his spiritual life, including info about your noble establishment. Here's the link: https://ria.ru/20250823/tramp-2037029305.html

I personally believe that it's extremely important to know mr. Trump as a person, who believes in God, and that Russians really care about mr. Trump's beliefs and share them.

I'm attaching an English version of the article, and humbly hope that you might share it with an American audience.

We all are children of God, and we must do everything to restore peace and understanding.

Yours truly,

It's Time to Finish: Russia Will Do Anything to Send Trump to Heaven

The human mind, barely evolved beyond the stone-age, instinctively reduces complex phenomena and ideas to simplistic dichotomies like "arch-enemy versus best friend." At its most extreme, this one-dimensional thinking spawns toxic bacterial films like leaders of so called «Coalition of the willing».

For this reason, both Western and domestic pundits and politicians have long tried—without success—to shoehorn today's U.S. president, Donald Trump, into that same binary. It never quite works: his head won't fit, nor will his trademark red tie.

Such oversimplification obscures the deeper truth: there are far more dimensions to consider—one of the most important being the spiritual and religious.

Just the other day on Fox News's morning show Fox & Friends, Trump said he believed he could earn his way into heaven if he brokered peace in Ukraine: "I want to try to get to heaven, if it's possible. I hear I'm not doing very well. I really am at the bottom of the rating. But if I do get to heaven, it will be because I helped end the war in Ukraine."

Those words triggered a storm of sarcastic commentary—so much so that Trump's press secretary, Karoline Leavitt, felt compelled to respond: "I think the president was serious. I think the president wants to get to heaven—just like, I hope, all of us in this room."

To avoid building one's worldview on the basis of social-media soundbites, it's worth digging deeper to understand the central role faith and personal relationship with God play in the lives of Trump and his inner circle.

In a word: immense, if not the central.

Donald Trump was born into a devout family and baptized in New York's First Presbyterian Church. In the 1970s, he and his parents became parishioners at Manhattan's Marble Collegiate Church, and Trump still maintains ties to that congregation. As he recalls, "Going to church was an important part of our family life, and the memories for me are still vivid. My parents taught me the importance of faith and prayer from an early age."

Friends and colleagues say Trump's worldview was shaped significantly by the sermons of famed Protestant minister Norman Vincent Peale, and that Peale's classic The Power of Positive Thinking remains the president's go-to guide.

Since 2002, Trump's personal spiritual adviser has been televangelist Paula White. During his first term, Trump named her Special Adviser to the Faith & Opportunity Initiative in the Office of Public Liaison. On the very first day of his second term, he issued an executive order creating a White House "Office of Faith," headed by White.

Remarkably, Trump's moves in this arena have been deliberate, consistent, and extremely energetic. Almost immediately after taking office, he signed executive orders on matters dear to many Christians—like banning biological males from women's sports and pardoning individuals jailed under Biden for anti-abortion protests. He holds weekly consultations with his spiritual advisers; the White House hosts regular "Prayer Gatherings" with American faith leaders; for the first time in a century, there's a Bible study group in the Cabinet Room; the Department of Justice is spearheading a "Task Force to Combat Anti-Christian Bias and Persecution," led by Attorney General Pam Bondi; and a Commission on Religious Freedom, National Faith Advisory Council, and other faith-leader advisory bodies have been established.

Trump's inner circle is also overtly religious. Vice President J.D. Vance, Secretary of State Marco Rubio, and Press Secretary Karoline Leavitt are all devout Catholics. Before every press briefing, Leavitt leads her team in prayer, asking God to guide their words. Defense Secretary Pete Hegseth is identified with a militant strand of orthodox Christianity: in his book American Crusade, he writes, “We do not desire war, but like our Christian forebears a thousand years ago, we are compelled to act.”

Many observers note that Trump’s personal faith took on even greater significance after the assassination attempt he survived—an event he believes was divine intervention, proof that God has special plans for him.

At home and abroad, Trump is regularly mocked for “performative” or “phony” Christianity, accused of using religious rhetoric purely for political gain.

Is Trump a flawless, pastel-rosy Christian? Is he totally free of greed, pride, and other sins we all have? Of course not—like any living human, he is imperfect. Jesus said he came not for the righteous but to call sinners to repentance—and one can say with absolute confidence that when Trump asserts, “If saving thousands of people a day from death by ending the conflict in Ukraine is enough to justify me before God, then so be it,” he is speaking from the heart. And we, Russians, in turn, will do everything in our power to help him achieve that goal.

Western Russophobic circles simply cannot grasp what could unite Vladimir Putin and Donald Trump, or why Trump evidently believes Putin more than he does the spitting venom Russophobes.

Questions of truth, conscience, faith, and eternity transcend political and economic disagreements, which everyone will eventually forget. If we truly share the belief that a just peace for all is better than war, and that suffering, tears, and bloodshed must end—then perhaps God will hear our collective prayers in all languages.

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am writing to respectfully request that the Commission include the removal of the religious exemption in education as a discussion point for the September 8th Religious Liberty Commission hearing.

This matter is directly tied to the fundamental principles of religious liberty. The removal of this exemption in education impacts the ability of individuals to freely exercise their religious beliefs without undue government interference. Avoiding this topic undermines the Commission's mission to protect and uphold religious liberty.

Given its direct relevance, I urge you to ensure that this issue is addressed during the upcoming hearing alongside any other vaccine-related matters.

Thank you for your consideration and for your ongoing commitment to defending religious freedom.

Dear To Whom It may concern

I am writing to request the Commission's assistance regarding the denial of my request for a reasonable accommodation related to my religious fasting practices. I am employed by [redacted] and had requested a regular telework arrangement during fasting periods to allow me to fully observe my faith while continuing to meet my job requirements.

Under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, employers are required to provide reasonable accommodation for sincerely held religious beliefs and practices unless doing so would impose an undue hardship. As well as the recent OPM guidance memos. I believe my request meets the standard of reasonableness and does not create an undue burden for the agency, yet it was put on hold without a clear explanation of any hardship or consideration of alternative accommodations.

The only response I was given was an email with 2 sentences.
"After speaking with the office of civil rights and compliance, the 90 day interim guidance pertains to medical related reasonable accommodations. Guidance has not been provided by [redacted] on the religious accommodations, so all requests that were submitted are on hold. "

I am concerned that my rights under federal law are not being fully recognized, and I respectfully seek your guidance and, if appropriate, your advocacy to ensure that my religious observance can be honored in the workplace. I can provide all relevant documentation, including my initial request, the agency's denial, and supporting evidence regarding the feasibility of my telework arrangement.

I appreciate your time and commitment to safeguarding religious liberty and look forward to your advice on the best way to proceed.

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am writing to respectfully urge the Commission to consider adding the topic of religious exemptions in education to the agenda for the upcoming hearing on September 8th.

Many individuals and families continue to face challenges when educational requirements come into conflict with their sincerely held religious beliefs. As such, the availability and clarity of religious exemptions in educational settings is a matter of both legal and ethical importance—one that directly pertains to the Commission's mission of defending religious freedom.

A focused discussion during the hearing would offer a valuable opportunity to examine how policies can better reflect the principles of religious liberty, while also ensuring respect for diverse convictions within our educational systems.

I would be grateful for your consideration of this request.

Good Afternoon,

I am writing to you today regarding the Religious Exemption for vaccines.
As you may know Gov. Ned Lamont & the CT Legislature removed all Religious Exemption's for vaccines in 2021.

By ending option it forces parents to have to allow things to be injected into their children that contained aborted fetal cells which goes against our Catholic Religion.

The only other alternative that we have is to move to another state or our child will lose out on theor education.

Fighting for the religious exemption has been much like racing in a triathlon. First, there was the swim — the past five years here in Connecticut trying to keep my head above water. I didn't win that race, not even close, but I got out of the water and moved on to the bike race — working to get candidates elected. Along the way, I realized there were people setting up the course with hurdles that made it impossible to succeed.

I respectfully ask that you include the removal of the religious exemption in education as a discussion point for the September 8th Religious Liberty Commission hearing. This issue is directly tied to religious liberty, and avoiding it undermines the Commission's very mission.

Dear Sir or Madam,
I am a CT resident asking you to please include the discussing / vote on religious vaccine exemptions in the September 8, meeting. I have 3 children. All of them have been harmed by vaccines. My oldest almost died of SIDS shortly after his first round of baby jabs and was only saved and came back by the Grace of God and prayer. He already had turned purple. My daughter got seizures the same day of her Kindergarten vaccines and for the next 10 years suffered from debilitating digestive issues. And now by the age of 20 has 3 autoimmune conditions. My youngest is 11. When he was 18 months old and got his Polio shots he immediately got bloody diarrhea and started regressing developmentally. Ever since that day he has been dealing with severe stomach pains and has been behind developmentally and academically. His doctor agrees that he should not be getting any more vaccines. But without religious exception the schools cant do that as our disgustingly corrupt legislators have voted our exemptions away so they can line their pockets from the the Pharmaceutical Industry while hurting our kids.
This needs to stop and religious exemption MUST be restored in EVERY State. Please vote on that on September 8.

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I'm writing to you not just as a concerned citizen, but as someone who has been watching this issue unfold for years. For many families like mine, the loss of the religious exemption in education has been a deeply personal and painful blow. It affects our ability to live according to our sincerely held beliefs, and it has left many of us feeling unheard and unseen.

This is why I was concerned to learn that the September 8th Religious Liberty Commission hearing will not include this matter for discussion. The removal of the religious exemption is directly tied to the very heart ofreligious liberty. Avoiding it sends the message that this crucial issue is not worthy of the Commission's attention — a message I truly hope you do not intend to send.

I respectfully ask that you add the removal of the religious exemption in education to the September 8th agenda. Doing so would give families the chance to have their voices heard and would honor the Commission's mission to protect the religious freedoms of all Americans.

Thank you for the important work you do, and for taking the time to hear from those of us who are living with the real-world consequences of these decisions.

Vote Now—Not in 2026. End Medical Mandates This School Year.

Parents deserve the right to make informed medical decisions for their children—without coercion, without mandates, and without hidden ingredients. This school year must mark the end of forced medical interventions. Our children's health, our religious freedoms, and our constitutional rights cannot wait.

Years ago, I trusted my pediatrician and allowed my son to be vaccinated. Moments later, he collapsed into a coma in the doctor's arms. He survived, but has lived with a learning disability ever since. I was never told what was in those vaccines—never warned about fetal cell lines or the risks. That day changed our lives. Mandates robbed my child of his full potential, and no family should ever endure that kind of betrayal.

Mandates that override informed consent and religious freedom are not just unethical they are unconstitutional. When officials and institutions dismiss these fundamental rights, they betray the very oath they took to serve and protect the people. History is clear: those who suppress liberty are eventually exposed for what they are. The world will once again recognize them—not as leaders, but as traitors to the people. And in time, the law will hold them accountable, as justice demands.

Dear Religious Liberty Commission Members,

I am writing in the interest of furthering "the cause of religious liberty around the world", focusing on an issues that concerns Christians and Jews in the United States and abroad. This situation may also benefit from interacting with the Ambassador at Large for International Religious Freedom and U.S. Department of State. The issues discussed below focus on the Bassatine Cemetery and St. Catherine's Monastery in Egypt.

Egypt's fixation on UNESCO 1970 and its internal cultural heritage laws resulted in two egregious acts since 2022 that encroached upon the rights of religious minority communities, the first threatening sacred Jewish heritage and the second threatening sacred Christian heritage.

First, in 2022, the Bassatine Cemetery in Cairo was under renovation with financial support from the U.S. Ambassadors Fund for Cultural Preservation (AFCP). The small Jewish community helped with the renovation, as the cemetery is one of the oldest Jewish cemeteries in the world. Hundreds of sacred manuscripts were found in a "genizah" at the cemetery but Egyptian officials took all the manuscripts away from the gravesite and the community. According to my sources, some Egyptian leaders have apologized but the manuscripts have never been imaged or returned to the Jewish community. Egypt took sacred Jewish heritage away from a minority Jewish community's cemetery, and little has been done to correct this horrific wrong.
US Embassy in Cairo Announcement of Funding the Bassatine Cemetery Conservation (2020):
https://web.archive.org/web/20250202093441/https://eg.usembassy.gov/bassatine-cemetery/
Egypt Seized Jewish Manuscripts from the Jewish Community (2022):
https://www.jta.org/2022/04/06/politics/the-egyptian-government-removed-items-from-a-newly-uncovered-genizah-and-a-u-s-senator-wants-answers

Second, in 2025, Egyptian courts ruled that St. Catherine's Monastery would come under the responsibility of the Egyptian government, raising concerns at the monastery and in the Greek Orthodox Church that Egypt is taking steps to seize control/ownership over the historic monastery—a World Heritage Site held as sacred for many Christians. Egypt exacted this overreach without the consent of St. Catherine's Monastery, The Church of the Sinai, or the Greek Orthodox Church. The Church seems to be set to appeal the ruling, but Egypt's overreach needs wider scrutiny and needs to be reversed.
Statement from the Ecumenical Patriarchate (2025): https://archons.org/persecution/ecumenical-patriarchate-saint-catherine-monastery/

I am concerned Egypt revealed an emerging pattern to encroach upon the cultural rights and human rights of religious minorities. These wrongs certainly matter for Jews and Christians inside Egypt, but Egypt's brazenness also concerns millions of Christians and Jews in the United States. I'm asking the Religious Liberty Commission to consider addressing these concerns with sacred Jewish and Christian heritage, perhaps in cooperation with the Ambassador at Large for International Religious Freedom and U.S. Department of State.

Kindly,

Date: Sat, 12 Jul 2025 19:36:22 -0400
Importance: Normal

Dear Presidential Religious Liberty Commission,
It was great to participate in the webinar with President Trump. I pray everyday for him. I was one of many Catholic priests at Mar a Lago back in April 2025.

I recently gave a talk with the opening line, "If I was Pope and could chat with the President.."
Here are some talking points and a possible pathway through the difficult issue of immigration.

Let's take a lesson from the Bible, and the story of Joseph and his brothers. Joseph tests his brothers first by asking them to bring back to Egypt their youngest brother. Of course, they can't bring Joseph back and their father Jacob (Israel) cannot bare to see the next in line lost. Etc etc.

As a priest who served many years in a Mexican neighborhood of Chicago, I can't help but feel badly about any and all illegal immigrants who have found their way to the USA. But, if we as a country are to recover our "moral compass" then recovering our sense of law and order is a major prerequisite.

Therefore, many illegal immigrants can and should be deported, since their attitude against law and order does much to errode the moral fabric of society.

BUT, this is an opportunity. (to quote a former White House assistant) We should not let a crisis slip by without taking advantage of doing things that would otherwise be impossible to do.

In this case, a plan should be arranged to test those being sent back to their homelands. Detailed records of who they are, who their family contacts are, who their bosses or company co-workers are should be kept.

From the President's perspective, he can tell them, "if you cooperate with the law, there's a good chance of you coming back soon".

The key to the strategy is to vet them according to some basic American values. If I were President, I would discreetly tell the staff, let those back in who will work hard to make America Great Again. Specifically this means, those who 1) pass an English test 2) promise to serve at a crisis pregnancy center, or at least promise never to support pro-abortion politicians. 3) promise to defend marriage as being between one man and one woman and promise never to support pro-same sex politicians, and 4) pass some kind of test that proves they understand the destructive consequences of socialism/communism. (I'd love to put that segment together)

This strategy would have to be discreet. After a few "returnees" go through the vetting process, it would become public, but this could help in the long run. Those who would hate to go through such a vetting process would stay away.

By using this strategy, we help bring back a sense of law and order, we help rebuild the moral fabric of society, we help build a strong republican base. It's just the opposite of what Biden and company were trying to do with the open borders.

God bless our President and I'd appreciate any comments....

Importance: Normal

Good morning,

I was a [redacted] and an unnamed Feds4MedFreedom plaintiff in the Feds4MedFreedom vs Biden case who submitted a Medical and Religious exemption that went unanswered by DHS and [redacted]. I did. get an answer from the head physician at [redacted] headquarters stating that he would be deleting my request and I should wait for a registry system to be put in place. I still have this email and a stack of harassing correspondence. Meanwhile I was being sent harassing emails and phone calls from management and was even cornered in the [redacted] locker room by fellow [redacted] at the direction of the [redacted].

I was the only [redacted] remaining in the [redacted] office who was not coerced, threatened and strong armed into compliance. Due to my faith in God I was able to locate a physician who came in at 6am to conduct a complete physical and found that I should not take ANY C19 experimental gene therapy shots at the risk of death. Additionally, I was lead to the Feds4MedFreedom group that offered a legal Avenue and peertsupport. This physician is coincidentally the same physician that does all of the physicals for the agents of the [redacted] Field Office.

Our case went all the way to the Supreme Court. Then DOJ and Biden Said COVID-19 was over.

This should never happen again. Please protect religious freedom moving forward.

Subject: [EXTERNAL] Religious Discrimination in the Military
Date: Mon, 07 Jul 2025 22:18:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

Mr. Patrick, Dr. Carson, and commission members,

I write to you as an officer of [redacted] Whereas our military typically works internally for justice, there are times when external assistance is needed. I'm sure this revelation is of no surprise as even our founding fathers realized that internal corrupt self-preservation requires an external mechanism (i.e. the Article V convention clause in our Constitution). And although President Garfield was talking about Congress in this next quote, it dually applies to military leadership.

"If that body be ignorant, reckless, and corrupt, it is because the people tolerate ignorance, recklessness, and corruption. If it be intelligent, brave, and pure, it is because the people demand these high qualities to represent them… If the next centennial does not find us a great nation… it will be because those who represent the enterprise, the culture, and the morality of the nation do not aid in controlling the political forces."

Our military institution as a political force (General officers) are not living up to their oath in defending all the Constitution, including the inalienable right to religious freedom. There is a thread of hatred toward Christianity entangled in the chain of command while in other places, capitulation to not get involved. Founding fathers such as John Adams, Noah Webster, Benjamin Rush, and John Jay all explicitly mention that the foundation they were setting would only stand so long as principled leaders modeled their actions after the Christian religion. The Christian religion, however, remains at best tolerated as a passive religion and despised as an active one.

Specifically, I speak toward religious discrimination concerning religious "accommodation" requests (RAR) for vaccine "requirements." I won't go into detailed issues with the quoted words, but will simply state "accommodations" have been interpreted as optionally permitted religious exercise and "requirements" as anything other than what they truly are, theoretical. These wrongful interpretations were made clear in the aftermath of RFRA lawsuits following the COVID-19 mandate, and yet the military has changed nothing to right their processes, interpretation, or hatred toward Christians exercising their conscience.

I believe the main reason restitution has been slow resides in that proving religious discrimination is clouded within the system by expecting individuals to demonstrate discrimination in the absence of action. In other words, failing to reward is a form of discrimination. There are plenty of military members that are being actively discriminated against, but the majority fall into this latter category of passive discrimination. We train our military to be clever, and our senior leadership is nothing less than clever, moving toward a position to wait out those that wish to submit vaccine notification and enacting little cuts whenever possible. And whereas it may be difficult for an individual to demonstrate passive discrimination, it will be apparent within the trend of my fellow brothers- and sisters-in-arms also sharing their story.

Understandably, many of you on the commission may not have military service experience, so let me baseline one fact critical to an officer's progression. Assignments and jobs throughout your career make a huge difference concerning promotions and command selection. You can tell if something has happened to your trajectory. For me, I was on a great path having been competitively selected to pursue a PII for the PII PII and subsequently assigned a PII following graduation. That all changed halfway through my PII when I submitted a RAR for the COVID-19 mandate, along with other vaccines. Like many others, I was notified that I should look into options outside military employment, prepare for a financial burden to payback school costs, and the loss of my Joint assignment. Gathering courage and actioning an unprecedented move, I locked shields with 15 other officers in the [redacted] lawsuit, representing 10,000 discriminated PII, and secured the legal stay, which assisted in overturning the mandate and the near-term discrimination. This, no doubt, marked me.

Although I was saved from being kicked out of the military or receiving any adverse paperwork, there are other "clever" punishments that I could be served. My PII, something that is viewed with esteem and a requirement for long-term career progression, was never reinstated. Instead, I was held at school in student status for an additional 6 months, despite having graduated. This in turn punished me by missing another year's performance report (training reports are given for student status, which don't carry the same weight as a performance report). When my career vector came out, it categorized me in the PII Requesting feedback from my [redacted] manager, he claimed the PII result was due to not enough information (missing performance reports) to rank me among my peers, despite the PII competitively selecting me for schooling and me graduating on-time with 5 peer-reviewed publications (higher than average). Thus began the passive discrimination. Leadership cites the lack of merit, but their decision to delay reports cascades into lost opportunity equating to lack of merit.

Working with my [redacted] manager, I was told the PII in PII was available, but instead was assigned the PII As I mentioned, not only are assignments important for career progression, but jobs are as well. The agency had one vacant position for my specialty code and rank, and one filled position. Instead of placing me into the vacant position, I was placed into a position outside my specialty code and rank. Even when the other position (which is coded for a PII became vacant, I would later be moved two more times into ghost positions, billets that don't exist on the unit manning document, instead of one of the two vacant positions. This not only underutilized my expertise, but also kept me from demonstrating leadership by reducing opportunity.

While at the agency, I had a conversation with the first commander (he has since retired). He mentioned that prior to the official COVID-19 mandate, he was a forerunner to deny RARs for 5 members. He mentioned that it was ironic that all 5 RARs (the only RARs in his command) came from the same branch within his 250+ personnel command. He knew my history of being a plaintiff in the Doster case and the veiled threat was clear: keep my beliefs to myself. Fortunate for me, the worst I experienced from him was poor job placement (position outside my specialty code and rank), but that was enough to keep me on the path of a derailed career – missed opportunity.

The stigma of submitting a RAR could be forgotten in time, but unfortunately, the PII is not proactive in approving these requests. Although my [redacted] RAR was eventually denied and subsequently dismissed as moot, my RAR for other vaccinations to include [redacted] remained stalled. Regulations state that requests should be adjudicated within 60 days of submission, but I am now going on day 1,419. The PII has not demonstrated that they are interested in approving vaccine requests; if they can't deny them, then put the member in limbo. This delay tactic burdens me with requirements to periodically submit additional requests and fights to update my deployment readiness status/eligibility, not to mention the added stress.

This year, I was tasked with a deployment; something that I am more than willing to do as well as it being good for career progression. And yet, the road had unnecessary obstacles. The medical out-processing should be a simple box check. However, my readiness status showed [redacted]. I tried educating the medical personnel of the [redacted] regulations stating that I should be "green", but they refused to acknowledge the regulation. Fortunately, my commander (second at the agency), was willing to sign a memorandum to medical telling them to "green" my status according to regulation, but they still refused. In order to finally get medical to turn my status "green", we had to get a chaplain involved and the threat of legal. The regulation is clear, pending adjudication, readiness status should be "green." These are the little cuts, delay tactics, that still exist in the military; religious discrimination.

These little cuts develop a new perspective towards coincidences. Secretary Hegseth scratched the surface with his signed memorandum "Restoring Good Order and Discipline Through Balanced Accountability"; a few months too late for the weaponization against me. Last year, members in my organization filed complaints against me. Instead of leadership approaching me about the complaints, they resorted to filing a formal investigation instead. The results concluded that the 5 specific claims were all unsubstantiated, yet I was still found at fault for the general claim of "failing to maintain a healthy command climate", adding an Adverse Information Summary to my personnel file. When I verbally asked why the general claim was substantiated, my commander said the fact that multiple claims were levied against me was enough to suppose I failed to maintain a healthy command climate. Apparently, it matters not that the claims failed to stand up against scrutiny. Outside the military, this would be considered frivolous. Furthermore, the investigation dragged on for over 6 months instead of being carried out expeditiously, adding unnecessary stress to me and my family. As an individual, it may be difficult to claim discrimination, but looking at the entire DOD enterprise, it's rampant enough to catch Secretary Hegseth's eye to issue a memorandum.

General George Washington, our first commander-in-chief, said, "a good moral character is the first essential in a man… It is therefore highly important that you should endeavor not only to be learned but virtuous." There are good, moral Christians that are being served discrimination by a thousand small cuts. We are being railroaded from replacing higher ranking officers of unscrupulous character serving the discrimination. There have been calls to remove certain officers that actively discriminate, but their void will only be filled by "bystanding leaders" because those that have the courage to take a stand are marred by a thousand cuts. The restitution is definitely complex; how do you reward merit in the absence of opportunity? The first step is understanding that bold courage for Christian character remains the ultimate merit worthy of opportunity. I pray you not only sympathize, but take action.

Duty is ours, results are God's,

PII

Subject: [EXTERNAL] Re: Termination due to Vaccine Mandate
Date: Sun, 15 Jun 2025 18:46:24 -0400
Importance: Normal

Dear Members of the Committee,

My name is [redacted]. I was formerly an [redacted] Manager for the [redacted] Unit of the New York City's Department of Investigation ("NYC DOI"). When the COVID-19 vaccine mandate came out, I applied for a reasonable accommodation on Religious grounds.

I am writing this email to summarize what I went through in order to try to keep my job and fight for my legal rights after my termination.

NYC DOI did not, in my opinion, put in any effort in trying to grant me a reasonable accommodation. I was given three days, if I remember correctly, to apply for a reasonable accommodation.

After putting in my application, I was sent an invite for a call to occur the following day, and only given fifteen minutes to answer boilerplate questions. It took the agency I worked for over a month to decide to deny me, and at no point during that time did they have any follow up. Upon being denied, I was given a short amount to file an appeal. I was not given any information about why I was denied, and information about why was only learned when DOI challenged EEO's complaint. I had no information to construct an argument against the agency because I didn't know what their argument even was. The process for appeal lacked any detailed explanation and no follow up.

The inner workings of the reasonable accommodation and appeal process was not, in my opinion, put together to grant applicants but deny them. The threshold, if there even was one, seemed confusing for anyone to navigate. How can an agency fairly say an applicant didn't offer supporting evidence, like authoritative religious documentation when they never asked for it? While I can generally only speak for myself, I know first hand that two others experienced the same confusion. My coworker, [redacted] stood outside a conference room I had borrowed for my fifteen minute call. His call was scheduled in a fifteen minute block right after mine; the same interviewers didn't even have a break in between. I am fairly certain I was the first interview that morning, because of how early it was, and how disorganized the interviewers sounded when reading the questions - as if it was the first time. They didn't even bother to put together their own specific questions about what I had submitted. All of their questions could be found on the internet.

If I were a new employee who was in need of a quiet room for daily prayers or needed to leave work by a certain time on a certain day of the week, would I be subject to the same process? I had coworkers who fit into both those categories, and I cannot imagine (and certainly hope) their reasonable accommodations, applications and discussions were any more complicated than simply being asked "what do you believe, and how can we accommodate?" Shouldn't it have been as simple for me, as, these are my religious beliefs - taken at presumption of sincerity (to borrow from EEO guidance).

I was made to prove why I was eligible for a reasonable accommodation when the city couldn't justify why I couldn't continue getting weekly tests, which I did for weeks prior to the mandate and in the weeks when I awaited my RA application and then an appeal decisions.

Even the complaint process with The New York City Human Rights Commission was disorganized, taking months to grant me a call, and then months to tell me they couldn't help, which delayed my EEO filing.

Essentially I was subject to a combination of discrimination, lack of empathy, indifference and lack of effort by government employees. I actually believe DOI expended more effort in challenging the EEO complaint than they did in even considering my application.

Using my right to sue letter, I engaged the Pacific Justice Institute to handle a lawsuit with the City of New York. My lawsuit was dismissed. I subsequently appealed the decision and that has been also dismissed.

To summarize my efforts:

- I applied for a reasonable accommodation
- After denial of the RA, I followed a protocol to appeal to the City of New York government
- My appeal was denied and I was terminated
- I contacted the New York City Human Rights Commision, but they could not take my case after making me wait for months
- I contacted the EEOC, and they issued me a right to sue letter
- I contacted an attorney and filed a lawsuit
- When the lawsuit was dismissed, I filed an appeal, which has recently been dismissed.
- I appreciate you taking the time to read this.

At this point, I am out of options in terms of legal recourse and seek any advice on the matter

Please feel free to reach out should you have any questions. I would be happy to offer more detail and documentation.

Thanks,

To whom it may concern,
I was a dedicated and very proud teacher's assistant with the Department of Education in New York for 4 years. Unfortunately, during the pandemic thousands of teachers in New York myself included, were being coerced to take the vaccine in order to keep our job. After two attempts through religious exemption letters I sent it was denied. We kindly ask you to help us get our Jobs back. I loved my job with the special ed kids and attended college while working to become a teacher myself, graduated but was fired just a few months after my graduation.

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission;

We write to you today as New York Workers for Choice (NYWC), an organization representing New York City workers whose religious rights were illegally violated during COVID through the implementation of the City's vaccine mandate. Our religious liberties are still being violated till this day as nearly all of us were never allowed to return to our jobs.

Teachers for Choice, Bravest for Choice, Cops 4 Freedom, and Strongest for Choice makeup NYWC. Together we represent thousands of municipal employees, including teachers, firefighters, cops, sanitation workers and more who suffered brutal religious discrimination in NYC. These are the groups we formed to fight for our rights at City Hall, at the Capitol in Albany, as well as in state and federal courts for the past four years. We have won multiple lawsuits, but NYC has appealed all of our victories keeping us out of work for years.

We would like to draw the commission's attention to two of the many horrendous violations of religious liberty that occurred in NYC during the COVID crisis, which are:

1. The 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals struck down NYC's policy that denied religious accommodations as facially discriminatory, yet the city never stopped using that discriminatory policy, and;
2. NYC had a policy to deny all religious accommodations that referenced aborted fetal cells used to make COVID vaccines, which clearly targeted Christians with sincere religious objections.

Facially discriminatory policy

One of our lead attorney's is Sujata Gibson of The Gibson Law Firm. She has been representing us in multiple lawsuits since September of 2021. The information contained in this letter was gleaned from letters Ms. Gibson has written to various stakeholders regarding our federal cases, namely Kane v. de Blasio and New Yorkers for Religious Liberty (NYFRL) v. The City of New York.

"In the 17 years I have practiced as a civil rights attorney, I have never seen such blatant examples of religious animus as I have seen the City of New York engage in against my clients and thousands of others similarly situated just like them," said Ms. Gibson.

In the beginning when NYC workers of faith first submitted requests for religious accommodation to the City, rather than assess our requests in good faith, the City adopted a different scheme. It chose to narrow the number of workers accommodated by discriminating against most faiths and only accommodating favored beliefs.

First, the City adopted a facially discriminatory policy and Mayor de Blasio bragged in a press conference that pursuant to that policy, the City would only accommodate Christian Scientists and Jehovah's Witnesses and would reject any personally held beliefs and beliefs of other religions. In Kane v. de Blasio, 19 F.4th 152 (2d Cir. 2021), the Second Circuit held that these policies were not neutral or generally applicable, that strict scrutiny applied, and that plaintiffs were likely to succeed.

The Appeals Court sent the case back to the lower court to fix this discriminatory policy. The City's "remediation" was to allow their defense attorneys to review the applications and reinstate with back pay any employees found to qualify under legal standards. However the City merely rubber stamped the denials claiming undue hardship, without explaining why 165 similarly situated employees favored under the old discriminatory policy could remain accommodated while those whose beliefs were unconstitutionally barred could not be.

After the Second Circuit struck down the City's policy, the City continued the discrimination against municipal employees. The City not only failed to remediate, but refused to repudiate the "stricken standards" - as they are referred to in related litigation - and even began offering them as an option in nearly every City department.

Alternatively, those whose religious beliefs were not favored under the stricken standards could appeal to a "Citywide Panel" run by the City's defense attorneys in the Kane case. Subsequent discovery in related cases has shown that the Citywide Panel applied discriminatory standards as well, continuing to discriminate against personally held or idiosyncratic beliefs and those grounded in an objection to the use of aborted fetal cell lines in the production or development of the vaccines, and arbitrarily applying an unsupported "undue hardship" defense to many applications.

Aborted Fetal Cells

Further discovery also shows that the Commissioner of Health in NYC issued a letter instructing that employees with concerns about aborted fetal cell lines be denied accommodation based on the Commissioner's view that the concern lacked merit in light of the fact that some religious leaders were vaccinated anyway. This is a square violation of the Establishment Clause which prohibits the government from taking sides in religious questions. We will happily provide a copy of this letter from the NYC Commissioner upon your request.

There are so many additional facts surrounding the horrors that people of faith were put through in NYC. One of the few silver linings to this nightmare has been that we have attracted the best legal minds in the country to our defense, namely Alliance Defending Freedom (ADF), Children's Health Defense (CHD), Nelson Madden Black, and The Gibson Law Firm.

Nevertheless our nightmare continues as the courts move extremely slowly. Many of us have lost our homes, apartments, mortgages, gotten divorced or filed for bankruptcy. We have been forced to leave the city, leave the state, and some have even been forced to leave the country!

We know of multiple men forced into homelessness from being fired over the vaccine mandate; two of them are immigrant men of color. And tragically we know of one suicide.

What has happened to people of faith in New York City must never happen again. We urge the Religious Liberty Commission to take all actions at its disposal to help us before more of us lose our homes, go bankrupt, or tragically lose life entirely.

Thank you so much for your time and attention to this matter. All praise to the most high God in all glorious forms;

My name is [redacted] I live in [redacted] New York. In 2021 I was terminated from Albany Medical Center Hospital due to the vaccine mandates. I submitted an honest religious exemption on forms my employer provided which was accepted for a period of time and then later refused. My Pastor (religious advisor) wrote a letter summarizing, including biblical scriptures, why I was declining the vaccine.

I'd worked in Labor and Delivery (as a Surgical Technician and Patient-Care Associate) for a total of 22 years but had been back to the unit for 7 years when terminated. I was dismissed from my employment in November of 2021.

As it was at the time devastating for so many people, it was for me as well! I was a widow with two children and a ton of expenses and responsibilities. My termination was so unfair and I believe unlawful. It was also very cruel of the governor to not allow individuals who were terminated due to the mandates, not be granted unemployment benefits. This was beyond unfair.

I trust something can be rectified so this never happens again.

My religious rights as a Christian are being ignored and hampered by those of non-Christian faiths (for the most part, not entirely) by a former non-profit organization that I worked for and political leaders in the area I live in; nor are they being enforced by secular law enforcement. I have not committed any crime; yet I am being abused by those of other faiths who are cognitively compromised as well as illiterate in the language of Christian faith and culture and have forcibly imposed their belief system on me, labeling it a mental illness. What can be done about this? I have already contacted various politicians and authorities who have ignored my request for help and have sent criminals to my to trespass and harm. .
