RH: Well I am told, City Secretary and everybody down there that matters knows what has to happen for it to happen. It has to get on the agenda for next week's meeting.

DC: Okay.

RH: Okay. And the only person that can do that is the mayor.

DC: Okay.

RH: Okay. And what I've been told, there's only one person that might get the mayor to do that, and that's Councilmember Dwaine Caraway.

RH: [Laughter.]

RH: I want to do that, so –

DC: I want to help.

RH: Yeah, it's okay. And I want to help you.

DC: All right. Well, I – man, I –

RH: So what can I do for you, right now today?

DC: You can answer that bill that I just threw out there –

RH: Okay.

DC: – for about 62 today and that will help me –

RH: Okay.

DC: – do what I need to do.

RH: Okay.

DC: I will then move from there to try to take a look at what else needs to happen.

RH: Okay. Can you follow through with the mayor –

DC: Okay.

RH: – see if we can do this?

DC: Yeah, I'm – I'll – I'll – I'll talk to him –

RH: Okay.

DC: – today.

RH: Can I just write a check to Dwaine Caraway?

DC: However you want to do that.

RH: That's okay? I mean, does it need to go to the campaign, if somebody –

DC: No, it won't – nothing to do with the campaign.

RH: – if somebody looks at this and asks? What are they going to say, I loaned you money? Or I said, here?

DC: None of this has to do with the campaign.

RH: Okay.

DC: I gotta pay for my mamma.

RH: Okay. Well, there's only one thing we need, Dwaine.

DC: What's that?

RH: A pen.

DC: Okay.
