EXHIBIT 4D
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christine Klein
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James A Clark Jr
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anne Chapin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Larry Merrill
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lindsey McNeny
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Masotti
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Nolde
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alex Shatsky
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Grace Strong
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Keske
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alex Shatsky
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Masotti
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lindsey McNeny
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, we urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it!

Sincerely,

Diane M. Kastel
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anita Pauwels
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anita Pauwels
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Christopher
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Grace Strong
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sophia Vassilakidis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Troy Jones
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Larry Merrill
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arnold & Irma Wuertz
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sophia Vassilakidis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Troy Jones
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dan Snyder
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Martha Gonzalez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patti Pedretti
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patti Pedretti
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jesse Watson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jesse Watson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Aaron Kendall
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sherry Hill
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Acopine
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Diane M. Kastel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arnold & Irma Wuertz
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

April D
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Catherine Sheap
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Catherine Sheap
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tery Gohsman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nina Macdonald
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Acopine
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mame Boyd
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Vernon Batty
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nina Macdonald
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Denise Hinckley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mame Boyd
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tawnya Shields
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lance Karkruff
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Lou Nowak
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tawnya Shields
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peter Townsend
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lance Karkruff
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Glenn Secor
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peter Townsend
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

jason winn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marie Wakefield
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Denise Hinckley
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Deborah King
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Railsback Beverly
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matt Chagnon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Renee Klein
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Matulina
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marie Wakefield
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matt Chagnon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Renee Klein
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tim Impila
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Enright
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lou Orr
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tim Impila
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lou Orr
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Enright
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amy DeWitt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sara Bhakti
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Ehrman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Kolstad
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amy DeWitt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Frizane
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Ehrman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Madeline Rutski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Rejsek
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Rejsek
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Monroe Foglia
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Mike Franklin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Mike Franklin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rodrigo D?az
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia McGuire
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Thompson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeff Thomas
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Greta Meyerhof
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael and Jeanine Clarke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia McGuire
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike and Jane Conrad
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dylan Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Melloh MD
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dylan Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike and Jane Conrad
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chris Squire
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carlton Keppelman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chris Squire
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ronald Guy
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patrick Stroud
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda L Bader
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda L Bader
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Lynn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Theresa Ruby
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patrick Stroud
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Lynn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Harry Myers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Sylvia Cardella
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert McFarland
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Theresa Ruby
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ginny Rosenkranz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Sylvia Cardella
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert McFarland
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Petra Stang
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gene Marsh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nina Aronoff
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ivy Moser
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Johnson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Petra Stang
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellen Mueller
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike Atkinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike Atkinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Julie Kantor
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Markey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donald Barker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Cornely
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

JK Kibler
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Loretta Kerns
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elaine Reise
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Sims
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

C Breen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elaine Reise
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

JK Kibler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Markey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael and Jeanine Clarke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Don Lowery
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Sims
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Leffler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mija Gentes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Don Lowery
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mija Gentes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Burnett
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Wisniewski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pete Garland
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Herlinger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

W. Allen Wrede
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Wisniewski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Burnett
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

linda clinger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrea Yarger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

w jean rohrer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

linda clinger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Herlinger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrea Yarger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dorothy Stratton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eric McManus
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Colin Robertson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jean Mack
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Santopietro
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Colin Robertson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jean Mack
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Wayne Groesbeck
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anna Rincon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Wayne Groesbeck
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Moppin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anna Rincon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Moppin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

debra espinoza
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dave Swihart
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dave Swihart
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Mireault
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jody McKenzie
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

debra espinoza
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Lerner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Mireault
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Howard Booth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Howard Booth
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Stern
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jody McKenzie
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Laura Napoleon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

MARIA PHIPPS
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Howard Booth
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Howard Booth
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

[Signature]

les zody
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christa Knittle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Penny Heintz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dennis Brokaw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Penny Heintz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christa Knittle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Purnima Barve
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ken Lesem
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Purnima Barve
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jennifer Edwards
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steven Monahan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Sharp
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Diane Woodhouse
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ken Lesem
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steven Monahan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Les Zody
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

kevin slauson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

kevin slauson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cathy Anderson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laura Gandolfo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tom Huneke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jana McKeeman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cathy Anderson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Randall
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jana McKeeman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Salvatore Greisofe
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Larry Lapuyade
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Francine Grant
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Salvatore Greisofe
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Howard Davidson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Larry Lapuyade
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Kuckel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Howard Davidson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Gerals
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Francine Grant
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Randall
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Evelyn Haas
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Ludlow
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Akankha Perkins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Hines
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Goodkind
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Ludlow
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Hines
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

K Kay Bircher
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Herb Allenson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Asphodel Denning
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gerald May
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Asphodel Denning
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

George Melendrez
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Herb Allenson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

K Kay Bircher
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

George Melendrez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lee Alton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brice Beckham
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Theresa Bakko
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

carlos ferreira
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Barnes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dawn Skindziel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cyrene Aksman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dawn Skindziel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marjorie Visher
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ed Covington
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

karen wood
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Theresa Bakko
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

carlos ferreira
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ed Covington

Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Colwill
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Witham
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

karen wood
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jacquelyn Imbrogno
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Witham
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lora Steiner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leslie Johnston
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ralph Collier
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cassandra Auerbach
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lora Steiner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Colwill
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lis Harris
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leslie Johnston
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Dickinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amanda Fights
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Dickinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Dale Sellers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cassandra Auerbach
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amanda Fights
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Gene Binder
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph Lite
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Dale Sellers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

F. Carlene Reuscher
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph Lite
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

F. Carlene Reuscher
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Debra Lewis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Joseph
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Allen Bohnert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jude Maglione
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Allen Bohnert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Joseph
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellis Woodward
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dorene Rios
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lesley Skelly
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Kastendieck
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lesley Skelly
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Olson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Kastendieck
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Yuen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

lisa Zalenski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike LaPorte
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Olson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dale Goodin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christine Rohde
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Randolph Astwood
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chris Moffo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jewel Hall
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Randolph Astwood
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

B L
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chris Moffo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Moon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sam Hathorn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lucinda Hites-Clabaugh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jim Zahakos
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lawrence Wright
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Mackin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Denise Traynor
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Mackin
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathryn McKinney
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Larry Rosenberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carson Martin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carson Martin
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Larry Rosenberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chris Chinn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jennifer Greenidge
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janet McEntee
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Wanda Graff
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Daniel Piotti
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judith Wilson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gerry Owens
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jim Green
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Daniel Piotti
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joyce Turner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gerry Owens
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Wanda Unger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Thomas MacFarlane
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Thomas MacFarlane
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Piech
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Denise Zembryki
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Teresa Carter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Geoff Browne
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Earline M. Reid
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Peterson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stacy Cornelius
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Mitchell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Teresa Carter
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marcus Sellers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dennis Brokaw
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Peterson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marcus Sellers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Tudisco
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Denise Zembryki
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Justin Stricker
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Neil Hammond
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jennifer Tanner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeanne Held-Warmkessel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely, Elizabeth

Elizabeth Shirah
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Justin Stricker
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Constance Ruby
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jennifer Tanner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Shirah
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nathalie Martin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Aileen Glynn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nathalie Martin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Rooney
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Malcolm Fordham
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brian Martinsen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chuck Bailey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kevin Brown
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rick Calvert
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kevin Brown
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chuck Bailey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Linabury
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brian Martinsen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rick Calvert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patty Battaglio
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Allison Marshak
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Beggs
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Aidan Humrich
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Martin Egnal
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anne Sauer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Aidan Humrich
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Allison Marshak
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anne Sauer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

rene breier
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephanie Lovell
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Carey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephanie Lovell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Torunn Sivesind
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph DeSimone
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Carey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Grundy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Keim
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lorena Eaton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Grundy

Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Grundy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Fred Kozak
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Fred Kozak
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peggy Kennon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Noel Orr
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Priscilla Weber
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Priscilla Weber
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peggy Kennon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely, ann Wait

ann wait
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rebecca Strout
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Reed
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

[Redacted]
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph DeSimone
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Woodwell-Freedman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Denning
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robin Patten
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robin Patten
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Lagacy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Roberts
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

K Lucas
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Roberts
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

K Lucas
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Aaron Mainz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Aaron Mainz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Berton Stevens
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ronald Villarreal
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gertrude Crowley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christian Major
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ronald Villarreal
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gertrude Crowley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christian Major
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Moss
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jaacqué Vulcano
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dixie Parker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Henriette Groot
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gregory Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dixie Parker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Collins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Henriette Groot
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gregory Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

A Corbet
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Philip Simon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Philip Simon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Lee Kefauver
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Todd Smarr
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. T Bell
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike Alexander
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellen Hecht
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Bey
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike Alexander
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Danny Watson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Martha M. Wilson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donald White
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Kate Gessert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr Mike Adamson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Martha M. Wilson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anne Cheng
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Bey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

mauricio carvajal
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr Mike Adamson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

mauricio carvajal
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

judith dove
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Haney
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Paul Eisenberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Fleck

Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Paul Eisenberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Claudia Martinez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike Butkiewicz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pat Cahill
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Caro Shu
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Helene Steinhardt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Percy Muertz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Claudia Martinez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anne Bastian
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ty Webster
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike Butkiewicz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Percy Muetz
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Beverly Eckman-Onyskow  Eckman-Onyskow
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ty Webster
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susi Hulbert
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Margaret Anderson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anita Berg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Margaret Anderson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susi Hulbert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

jai parekh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kevin Curtin
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anita Berg
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jonathan Peter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

jai parekh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phyllis Jackson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jonathan Peter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jake Cohen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Kupke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Doria L Steedman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Will H
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phyllis Jackson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Caryl Speck
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Kupke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sha Torres
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janice Merson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

K. Christensen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Caryl Speck
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Luckhardt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Doria L Steedman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sha Torres
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr. James Reaume
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr. James Reaume
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Siri Bletzer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jon Porter, MD
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peggy Armour
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Norma J F Harrison
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Melissa Elder
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jon Porter, MD
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Gottfried
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Randall Esperas
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peggy Armour
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Norma J F Harrison
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nicholas Gagnon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Juliann Pinto
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Smiley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Randall Esperas
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Smiley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nicholas Gagnon
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Juliann Pinto
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carlene Estacion
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Diane Krell-Bates
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Valerie Guinan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Diane Krell-Bates
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jay McCahill
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brian Robertson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Claudia Craig
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Claudia Craig
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brian Robertson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kenneth W Johnson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lori Rose
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jay McCahill
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

E. Kittell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

NICHOLAS PERONE
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

E. Kittell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

NICHOLAS PERONE
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hector Bertin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paula Paine
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathy Grieves
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hannah Doberne
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol J. Stanley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hector Bertin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol J. Stanley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paula Paine
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rémi Perrenoud
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leslie Richardson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kevin Curtin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peter Lee
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rémi Perrenoud
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leslie Richardson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hannah Doberne
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Linda Lillow
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janette Rosenbaum
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jill Wittenbrader
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Lu Lu Kelley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Margaret Champion
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jill Wittenbrader
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Linda Lillow
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Brooks-Fetty
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arlene Schenker
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Craig Stallone
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Brooks-Fetty
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Kelemen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arlene Schenker
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tami Shaloum
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Kelemen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tami Shaloum
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Diane Clark
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Neilia Pierson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeannine Lowenkron
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dean McCartney
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeannine Lowenkron
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Monroe
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Penny March
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jocelyn Henning
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Paul Coakley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Penny March
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Monroe
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brian Murray
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jocelyn Henning
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Mallory
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Allen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Allen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ken Mauney
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dean McCartney
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kelly Webb
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Julie Takatsch
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ken Mauney
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Julie Takatsch
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Genevieve Belleau
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michelle Billington
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard McCrone
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Troyanovich
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Keith Johnson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Genevieve Belleau
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janet Lyons-Fairbanks
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynne Treat
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Troyanovich
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janet Lyons-Fairbanks
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Keith Johnson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Walter Erhorn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Murphy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynne Treat
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Murphy
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Walter Erhorn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Glenn Jr. Letourneau
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Walter Erhorn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Anne Veraldi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anna Louise Fontaine
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anna Louise Fontaine
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Anne Veraldi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janna Neperud
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Emily Van Alyne
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Emily Van Alyne
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janna Neperud
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pedro Lima
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alfred Dickerson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pedro Lima
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard McKee
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alfred Dickerson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Conrad Prybe
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Hancock
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John bernardo
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robin Pinsof
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Hancock
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laurie Kaniarz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James S Gilchrist
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James S Gilchrist
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Quante
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chantal Beveren
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judith Shane
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carolyn Jonsson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

andy tomsky
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chantal Beveren
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joann Pohlmann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tara Verbridge
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

JoAnn Uppena
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joann Pohlmann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tara Verbridge
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Sullivan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

JoAnn Uppena
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

michele lewis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

If it comes to it, BP is not too big to fail!

Sincerely,

Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Constance Coble
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Samuel Goff
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Samuel Goff
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Hamner
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gina Paige
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathie Holzhueter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gina Paige
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Constance Coble
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Adrian Fried
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathie Holzhueter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Adrian Fried
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anne Curtis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Hodgson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Jane Tytko
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Workman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott Gorn
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Reynolds
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Davis
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rike Wesendahl
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Workman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Reynolds
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Davis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jean Semrau
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Jane Tytko
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rike Wesendahl
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rike Wesendahl
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. nancy hartman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jean Semrau
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. nancy hartman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Larry Wineland
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

M Lehman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Betty J. Van Wicklen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mykal Gernaat
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judy Wyeth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phyllis Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Diana Flannery
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Larry Wineland
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynn Garner
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phyllis Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judy Wyeth
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Lopez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Allen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Allen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

john sheeran
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

L. L. Wilkinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

john sheeran
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

L. L. Wilkinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marjorie Ivey
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Holly Carroll
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Roland Goyette
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Roland Goyette
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Villaggio
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Holly Carroll
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laëtitia Petit
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laëtitia Petit
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Carol Gay
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Antoinette Bonsignore
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. William Dolly
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Li Way Lee
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Antoinette Bonsignore
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Thomas Peterson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joan Gabrie
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Thomas Peterson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Sammy Low
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Sammy Low
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Shayna Glenn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joan Gabrie
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joan Gabrie
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janice Cleary
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Whitmore
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sue Perry
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Anita Brandariz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

C. Burnham
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patty Haley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steven R Coomer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Whitmore
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carolina Walther
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patty Haley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

C. Burnham
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Darrah Wagner
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kaye McCall
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Darrah Wagner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Clotilda G. Devlin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Natasha Tuckett
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

c s
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Euler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

S. Robertson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Matteson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

S. Robertson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jennifer O'Keeffe
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

[Redacted]
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mervin Paulson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Matteson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jennifer O'Keeffe
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Powley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Harold Watson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Victor Stein
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Harold Watson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Natasha Tuckett
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Myriam Alaux
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tracy Floeh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Victor Stein
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tracy Floeh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nathaniel Rugh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

kelvin hobson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carolyn LiCalsi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

kelvin hobson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nathaniel Rugh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Douglas Ames
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Catherine Johnston
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eric Fry
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephen Klemash
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laura Yamase
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

B. Thomas Thomas Diener
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laura Yamase
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laura Yamase
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nadine Larsen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephen Klemash
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marina Adams
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Addis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pamela Hildenbrand
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Stephen Greenberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Stephen Greenberg
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pamela Hildenbrand
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Kingsley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Emil Costa
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Small
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Thomas Goff
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judy Luccki
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Thomas Goff
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Catherine Livingston
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Fadeley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Connie Davis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robb Sturtman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robb Sturtzman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

R. Julie Olson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Cramer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Cramer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tom Hazelleaf
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Connie Wedding
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Garry Laquinte
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hugo Martinez-Serros
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Connie Wedding
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elaine Palmquist
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Phyl Newbeck
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Kelly
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Craig Stallone
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ursula Mass
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joan Silverstone
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Vincent Geiger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kari Goode
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kari Goode
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Vincent Geiger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joan Silverstone
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Sellers
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sian Holt
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Margaret O'Malley
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Peterson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Sellers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Margaret Noyes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Peterson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Margaret O'Malley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alex Totman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Diana Tiessen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ursula Mass
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Roberta Glaze
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bert Dunlop
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janat Parker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alex Totman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jon Steenhoven
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Roberta Glaze
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jon Steenhoven
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marie T. Perkins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bert Dunlop
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marie T. Perkins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Walters
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Walters
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barry Kaufman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cate Renner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Radcliffe
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Stephen and Robin W Newberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nathaniel Stetson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barry Kaufman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Keith Cooksey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William McRae
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leslee McPherson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Radcliffe
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

barb schneiders
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Stephen and Robin W Newberg
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leslee McPherson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

RUSSELL BROWN
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jean Ross
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jane Hardy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pamela Lanagan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pamela Lanagan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carrie Doyle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Annette Pieniazek

[Redacted]
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Beatrice Battier
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Annette Pieniazek
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peter Cummins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Zygmunt Czykieta
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frank Baele
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Zygmunt Czykieta
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Gajewski
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Philip Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peter Cummins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Fergeson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frank Baele
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pavel Evtushenko
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Fergeson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynne Oulman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Gajewski
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeff Schmid
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeff Schmid
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David A. Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bobby Ray
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kelly OBrien
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Heinemann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David A. Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

RUSSELL BROWN
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kelly OBrien
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bobby Ray
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

america sherwood
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Chamberlin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Forbes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Schulz-Behrend
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cj Cann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Rudolph
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Enlow
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cj Cann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Forbes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Enlow
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Schulz-Behrend
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Rudolph
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chuck Fisher
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

AniMae Chi
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

D Brown
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Brown
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

D Brown
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John John Kirchner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Kurth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elaine Livesey-Fassel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alyssa Reindel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Lammers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

DG Stave
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Kurth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elaine Livesey-Fassel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mayumi Knox
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Russell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Mudrey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mayumi Knox
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joana Torgal D Duarte
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Dan Novak
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joana Torgal D Duarte
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eugenia A. Patterson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Summer Stevens
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

E. James Nedeau
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

L B Nelson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

E. James Nedeau
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

L B Nelson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mihir Bajaj
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Petrof
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steven Morris
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jesse Armstrong
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jesse Armstrong
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bronwen Evans
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Theodore Wuerslin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bronwen Evans
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Theodore Wuerslin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Allen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Hurley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Prestage
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Hurley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matthew Rafferty
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bessma Richardson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Beverly Rice
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Allen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Denise McDermott
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Prestage
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Denise McDermott
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Finan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cameron Wraye
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gloria Nye
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Shamaila M
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matthew Rafferty
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Finan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Summer Stevens
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jamee Warfle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Gray
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jamee Warfle
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pat Benton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Shamaila M
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Callan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Hope
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brenda Morgan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jan McCreary
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Samantha Eppenauer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pat Benton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

stuart weiss
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Zimmerman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rick Gaffney
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Samantha Eppenauer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

stuart weiss
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Robins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Derengowski
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Hayes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Picco
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Robins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Picco
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brian Gray
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Hayes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Mireault
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peter Schafer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dan Lombardo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Irene Walkiw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dan Lombardo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peter Schafer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Wendy Morgan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lillian G Brown
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Picard
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kay Hardy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Wendy Morgan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jessica Hart
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Suzanne Hodges
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Emily Sagovac
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dana CZAPANSKIY
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dana CZAPANSKIY
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Emily Sagovac
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jim Seewagen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

The Injustice Department would be more accurate!

Sincerely,
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dorri Raskin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Moeller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joan Botwinick
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elak Swindell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arlene Roth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Moeller
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Stinus
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leroy Frankel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

M S
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Collier
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Stinus
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donald Kosak
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joan Botwinick
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tiobe Barron
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kevin Kimmel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christine Ziemnik
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tiobe Barron
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Collier
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carole Cotter Bodner
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carole Cotter Bodner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Terry Wormley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Browning
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Birkenstock
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeff McCollim
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Browning
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Shaughnessy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Birkenstock
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Don Wright
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeff McCollim
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judy Fairless
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andra Heide
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judy Fairless
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Shaughnessy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

valerie steil
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Muammer Ekin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Kain
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

valerie steil
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Kaser-Odor
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Davis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Emil Scheller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Kaser-Odor
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Webb
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Emil Scheller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Webb
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dorion Schlund
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Inez Allan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dorion Schlund
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kimberly Hart
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kimberly Hart
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Walter Loquet
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Christine Klunder
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Wayne Toven
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia McMath
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dave Manso
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Walter Loquet
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Wayne Toven
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Christine Klunder
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia McMath
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Keenan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Toole
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Keenan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Trione
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathy Bradley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Luiz Perez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Blanchard
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathy Bradley
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Denise Damboise
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Luiz Perez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Toole
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Blanchard
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

JANE GILBERT
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lori Curtis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

JANE GILBERT
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andra Heide
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Church
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robyn Richards
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Basey Klopp
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Guros
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brian Cronin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jodie Klugel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Church
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Victoria Erickson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brian Cronin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael J. Kluck
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robyn Richards
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jodie Klugel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard McFatridge
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tracey Bonner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tracey Bonner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

james flanagan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

james flanagan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Parker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael J. Kluck
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Kreitz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joe Joyner
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Hutchings
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Parker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynn McIntyre
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eric Hamburg
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

karl harris
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Todd Templeton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jennifer Lanham
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jovohn Hornbuckle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Todd Templeton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jovohn Hornbuckle
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gerald Brooker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

G Douglas Ray
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joel Quaintance
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gerald Brooker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joel Quaintance
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Robert Banever
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Teresa Wlosowicz
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Renee Bogue
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr Lindsay Sharp
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lee Fister
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Teresa Wlosowicz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jerome Katz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jerome Katz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christine hArvey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr. Lindsay Sharp
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amy Becker
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christine hArvey
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs Jeannine Moore
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs Jeannine Moore
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chris Stawasz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Carr
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lois Sotelo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

jan Schmidt
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janice Speed
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Norris Robinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lois Sotelo
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Basey Klopp
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Maryniak
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chris Stawasz
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Maryniak
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sheila Dillon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Black
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Denis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Latika Young
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Latika Young
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Black
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jameson Bergen
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Virginia Lee
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Granato
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Francisco Medina
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Virginia Lee
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jameson Bergen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Granato
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynn Kush
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynn Kush
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Mitchell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Friend
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Friend
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Felena Puentes
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Felena Puentes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Polly Stonier
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Sloane
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Schirmer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sidne Baglini
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sean Corrigan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sean Corrigan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Delia Gerhard
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Sloane
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Delia Gerhard
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Delia Gerhard
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Wozenski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Wozenski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

stephen sanditz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Johnson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

stephen sanditz
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Johnson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Torah Alabidi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott Darling
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Klein
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Milan Illich
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Aupprele
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott Darling
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Torah Alabidi
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Aupperle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Klein
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Helvie
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Casey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Auer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Casey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

C Sutherland
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Stork
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Casey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kimberly Lowe
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

C Sutherland
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kimberly Lowe
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Tobergta
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Stork
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Rashkow
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Mitchell
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Edward Redig
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nicholas Diamond
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nicholas Diamond
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Edward Redig
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jessica Card
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jason Moore
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Clyde Robinson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Roberta Wray
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Veralli
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jessica Card
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Kingsbury
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Roberta Wray
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bettina Wilkinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Catherine DeFoney
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Boyne
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dan Dolginko
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Boyne
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anne Wisniewski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joel Finley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carrie Johnson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laura Miller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Kavanaugh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joel Finley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kara Dokos
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Obarski
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dan Dolginko
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mari McShane
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Nelson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Shaun Havanec
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisbeth Jaasko
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gaby Roth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Nelson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Kavanaugh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisbeth  Jaasko
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Shaun Havanec
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gail OHara
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Schultz
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gail OHara
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott Beauman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Wilson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dan Dolginko
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gaby Roth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karl Black
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patrick Russell
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph Seliga
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Venzke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Misbah Malik

Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Salvatore Privitera
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Misbah Malik
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gisela Zech
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jeff Hopkins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Salvatore Privitera
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Thaler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. jeff hopkins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeanne Graffin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Thaler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Call
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Achey
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janine Tokarczyk
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Perry Harris
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeanne Graffin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janine Tokarczyk
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Call
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Harriet Adams
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Cupples
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pat Walsh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Julie R Sutter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Cupples
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pat Walsh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Lauffer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Lauffer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

A Daigle
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynne Eggers
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sagar Patel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sagar Patel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sagar Patel
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarr Blumson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Julie R Sutter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sagar Patel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sagar Patel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynne Eggers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Lauffer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarr Blumson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steven Shepherd
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Greg Meyer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Suzanne Kercher
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

April Hancy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Danielle White
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Catherine Galligan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Suzanne Kercher
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

April Hancy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Danielle White
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jim Lykins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steven Shepherd
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Catherine Galligan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Greg Meyer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jim Lykins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Betty Shelley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Diane Alpern
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sabine G.
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kimberly Rigano
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kimberly Rigano
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Diane Alpern
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Ginger Young
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amy Schneider
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Ginger Young
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrea Kendall
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Hatch
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Doris Overmyer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrea Kendall
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eliza Butler
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Haven Knight
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Brown
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Haven Knight
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike biv
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Brown
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Thomas Trenchard
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alan Schenck
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Thomas Trenchard
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alan Schenck
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Maurice Robichaud
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Douglas Cooke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Naomy Browton
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sherron Norris
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Douglas Cooke
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Brown
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Naomy Browton
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

j b
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sherron Norris
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

paula gullo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alicia Zody
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

paula gullo
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike Pickens
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

M. G. Lind
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Boyd
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

j b
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alicia Zody
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

M. G. Lind
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Douglas Wilson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Craig Heverly
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike Pickens
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Boyd
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brian Stokes
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Greiga O'Bleness
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bonita Weis
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Greiga O'Bleness
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Craig Heverly
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brian Stokes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr. John Holtzclaw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amy Schneider
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr. John Holtzclaw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sherry Sharpnacck
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kate Kenner Kenner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kate Kenner Kenner
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

P.P. Soucek
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

P.P. Soucek
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jean Schwinberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jean Schwinberg
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joanna Stanford
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joanna Stanford
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carmen Druke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carmen Druke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lorraine Stone
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Juana Torres
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brian Dunn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brian Dunn
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Terri Kirkman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephanie Trudeau
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephanie Trudeau
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lorraine Stone
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Don Crozier
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Michael Gilgun
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Shaw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Michael Gilgun
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Margaret Wilbur
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Don Crozier
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Shelby
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Margaret Wilbur
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Hemm
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Shelby
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Terri Bleck
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carl Grenadier
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carl Grenadier
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rosli Omar
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

C. Grace
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Terri DeRousse
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Javier Mendez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jacki Fox Ruby
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gerald Gamer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eric G. Ramstrom
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

C. Grace
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Javier Mendez
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pat Dosky
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Terri DeRousse
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Connie Nowlin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellen Kent
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

F Olson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellen Kent
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pat Dosky
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brad Rae
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kyle Bracken
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

F Olson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kyle Bracken
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brad Rae
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stefanie Watkins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amy DeShaw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ken Klemke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike Merchant
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ken Klemke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeanne Moenk
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Julaine Roberson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Julaine Roberson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Johnson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Daniel Weinberger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike Winget
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Daniel Weinberger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robin Terry
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Johnson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Damato
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Damato
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Bradford
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Rossi
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Mead
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Bradford
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Julia Wade
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Catherine Beauchamp
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Catherine Beauchamp
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Rossi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Larkin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Mead
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Theodore Hustava
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Sudbrink
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Sudbrink
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph Naidnur
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael White
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ron Kuykendall
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jason Hartman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael White
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Booth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Booth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Booth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bill and Fran Stenberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jason Hartman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matthew Pawlowski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bill and Fran Stenberg
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ga Hemingway-Proia
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Katsetos
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Julieann Palumbo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matthew Pawlowski
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

michael gertz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Beth VanBuren
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Katsetos
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Beth VanBuren
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

frances Oliver
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

michael gertz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kim Wilson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lois Wilson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Higgins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kim Wilson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Groh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Higgins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lois Wilson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marta Novotny
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anne Autry
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

frances Oliver
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Craig Browning
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janet Hendricks
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Craig Browning
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gilda Nifong
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kaci Caldwell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ronald Zurawski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ronald Zurawski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janet Hendricks
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Albert Sanchez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kahlil Goodwyn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Norman Higginson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Wesley Tyler
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rick Schweizer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Wesley Tyler
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Pinksaw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dolores Guarino
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Pinksaw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Vedvik
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,
Lou Dersch
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Nelson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Schwebke
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Mary Schultz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

maureen kowsky
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Wolf
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James L. McCall
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charlie Daugherty
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Nelson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Meghan Behm
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jerome Roth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Clare Weaver
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Meghan Behm
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

david will
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Clare Weaver
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jerome Roth
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeane Harrison
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John AND Jean Fleming
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arnold Robbins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John AND Jean Fleming
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Jacobs
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Jacobs
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ray Reece
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michele Ledesky
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ken Gilmour
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Julia Wade
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sue Keleher
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Ensch
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Hopkins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Crawford
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Raymond Gibson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Hopkins
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Raymond Gibson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gertrude Gebin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynette Belew
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leigh Wright
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bruce Donnell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leigh Wright
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jennifer Burr
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lou Dersch
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Delaney
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Greg Steuck
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Osullivan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Victor Vuyas
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Osullivan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Victor Vuyas
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barry Fass-Holmes
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eugene Trautmann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Griffith
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dori Bailey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laurel Hieb
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Delaney
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dave Giordano
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eugene Trautmann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matt Chaplin
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dori Bailey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jackie Schmid
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Louise Axelson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joe Ratley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laurel Hieb
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Raul de la Rosa
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Raul de la Rosa
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Winters
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Arko Hargrove
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Regina Milione
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joe Ratley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

jill simons
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Regina Milione
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Blythe Clark-McKitrick
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Winters
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eric Durham
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matt Chaplin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Blythe Clark-McKitrick
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Leese
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Arko Hargrove
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brenda Sanders
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Nix
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Leese
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Hohl
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Nix
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Z K
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellen Cady
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellen Cady
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Art and Carol Stroede
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Melissa Jones
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Douglas Morse
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary OKeefe
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Lynch
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Daniel Duchesneau
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary OKeefe
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Thomas Spencer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bruce Carroll
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Fred Shoemaker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

R Lansing
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tim Earley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Fred Shoemaker
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

R Lansing
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tim Earley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eve Fetzek
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rita Hale
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Berger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eve Fetzek
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert A. Kaczmarczyk
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rita Hale
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ivan Boatwright
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Harvey Dym
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Walton, Sr
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Virginia Gerhardt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Erma Gluck
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dan W
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Virginia Gerhardt
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kevin Duong
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Emily Kiewit
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steven Freiman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Ackermann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

pat olsen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Walton, Sr
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Diane Millican
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Erma Gluck
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steven Freiman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sam Rosser
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kevin Duong
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

pat olsen
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lars Jefferson78@mac.com
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Emily Kiewit
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Halloran
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

carol ohlenforf
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

carol ohlenforf
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Seth Taplin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott Swanson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Seth Taplin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Keith Wentworth
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Keith Wentworth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Paulsen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lucille LePage
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Paulsen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Grant
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eve Eskew
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

B. Rose
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

o lewis
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Grant
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Astalos
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marylyn Irrgang
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

[Redacted]
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cris Culpepper
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eve Eskew
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

B. Rose
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Astalos
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cris Culpepper
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Fae Mansfield
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marylyn Irrgang
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Yvonne Bavery
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Barnes
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

JoAnn Keller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Susan Linden
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bryan Harrell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jennifer Toth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patty Diana
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

JoAnn Keller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dennis Fahey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patty Diana
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John DeYoung
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carolyn Buhl
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Susan Linden
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marc Ruffolo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eric Wessman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matthew Harper
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Guy Chan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jennifer Toth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Willa Paton-Smith
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gavin Bornholtz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Zabriskie
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carolyn Buhl
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matthew Harper
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Willa Paton-Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marc Ruffolo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Guy Chan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellen Carol Halbert
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Zabriskie
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Surton
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dan Ingall
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Randy Roy
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Klein
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mitchell Alperin
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Randy Roy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Klein
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Katz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

K L
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Victor Nepomnyashchy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mitchell Alperin
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary-Alyce Huenefeld
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Henriksen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr. Norm Tempel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

K L
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Schmidt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary-Alyce Huenefeld
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Henriksen
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andi Shotwell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andi Shotwell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Dodd
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellen Carol Halbert
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely, EDWARD G. MRKVICKA
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Alice Green
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marie Oliver
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Dodd
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Alice Green
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rick Foster
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rick Schweizer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gale Smith
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brian Porter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Edward Jahn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lois Hayes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

M L Bacelli
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jonny Hahn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Florence Baranek
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cathy Leibovitz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Roberson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marc Pramuk
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matthew Tarpley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James R. Foreman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

[Name]

Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Alan J Wojtalik
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hans-Peter Heinrich
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sue Davis
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janice Ehrenhaft
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Alan J Wojtalik
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alice Abbott
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sue Davis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Jakubiec
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hans-Peter Heinrich
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janice Ehrenhaft
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alice Abbott
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Teresa Richardson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cindy Chilton
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lana Eisenberg
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ken Andera
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bruce Denny
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Ries
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cindy Chilton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Heather Hamilton Burda
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lana Eisenberg
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Heather Hamilton Burda
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Helen Hauck
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Duane Stanton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marty Bostic
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

tim baxter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

tim baxter
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Kerman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marty Bostic
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Kerman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ingrid Shaw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Verzosa
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Duane Stanton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Verzosa
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ingrid Shaw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joshua Seff
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joshua Seff
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Victoria English
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marscha Irving
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Ann Barrett
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marscha Irving
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Ann Barrett
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Julie Dawson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

brian yanke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Anderson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

[Redacted]
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Candace Lorkiewicz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

brian yanke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Dyxin
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Ryan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Candace Lorkiewicz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Rosemarie Overstreet
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alex Boucher
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Dyxin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alex Boucher
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Caroline Mead
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Caroline Mead
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michelle Mitchell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Cruise
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lydia Garvey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lydia Garvey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michelle Mitchell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rhea Bridgeland
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susanna Chivian
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeff Melin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sheila Cowden
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Denison
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Maryrose Cimino
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sheila Cowden
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Denison
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Hurwitz
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Shelley Frazier
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ruth Leventhal
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marin Phelps
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rhea Bridgeland
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ruth Leventhal
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rick Whitman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Stevens
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Hurwitz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jorge Gonzalez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Glenn Martin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Millonig
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judith Stueve
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jorge Gonzalez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christine Staight
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Millonig
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

S Thompson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judith Stueve
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peter Kostik
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Stevens
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jinger Pulkrabek
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jean Ricci
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Edith Montgomery
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jinger Pulkrabek
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephen Nichols
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jean Ricci
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Nazzaro
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephen Nichols
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Nazzaro
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

ALFRED PAPILLON
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John C Casper
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mountaine Jonas
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

ALFRED PAPILLON
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Kripli
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John C Casper
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Murphy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frank Dannert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Shelley Frazier
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda McKillip
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sheeza Qurashi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph Victor
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda McKillip
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sheeza Qurashi
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tammy Nealis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tammy Nealis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frank Dannert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Soni Davidow
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Travis Bertram
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Travis Bertram
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Hess
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott Kulhanek
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Philip J. Hyun
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gail Toulouse
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Stark
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Philip J. Hyun
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Philip J. Hyun
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Henderson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Stark
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Stark
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Irving
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Madon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Monika Win
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Irving
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anne Hudson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Hess
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I most strongly urge you to include very strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers absolutely should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr Frankel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Monika Win
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Deb Stringham
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marcia Bailey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michsel Sunfire
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peter Carr
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michsel Sunfire
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Roberta Schear
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sue Rogan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janet Atha
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Roberta Schear
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sue Rogan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jim Oxyer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Lonsdale
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jim Oxyer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Lonsdale
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Giles
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Catherine Pringle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Loretta Herger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Catherine Pringle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Loretta Herger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jorge J Tamargo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Turanyi
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jorge J Tamargo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kevin Tong
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Nielsen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

H McKee
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Aida Suidan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kevin Tong
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Nielsen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marcella Hudson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sheila Stone
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Skye McDonald
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Schock
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jean-Philippe Major
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

D.Michael Quinn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Schock
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr. Ruth Yurchuck
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr. Ruth Yurchuck
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Thomas Diehl
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phebe Schwartz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ah Hovorka
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynn Harter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cristina Novelo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert McManus
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynn Harter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cristina Novelo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gregory Duncan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gregory Duncan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jodi Holden
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brian Kolek
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Evelyn McChesney
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Speicher
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Evelyn McChesney
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

No more corporate giveaways.

Sincerely,

[Redacted]
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elaina Wilson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phebe Schwartz
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arlene Rakoncay
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sylvia Lehman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nicole Deter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

No more corporate giveaways.

Sincerely,
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nicole Deter
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sylvia Lehman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jared Sacco
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arlene Rakoncay
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laila Hamrick
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amanda Hayes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amanda Hayes
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Terry Dycus
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gatha Pierucki
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chris Ewald
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chris Ewald
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Fran Schultehenrich
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Glynden Bode
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gatha Pierucki
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dianne Miller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dianne Miller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Harrell
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marc Burbank
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Harrell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Terry Dycus
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Browning
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Browning
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Eschenfelder
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Vera Loewer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Eschenfelder
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Civgin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Vera Loewer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Vera Loewer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dennis Bahr
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Derald Myers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Coffey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bruce Burns
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Myrick
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elaina Wilson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

mary obrien
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

mary obrien
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott Lundgren
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott Lundgren
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alex Graas
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rob Roberts
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Peha
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Erich Winkler
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Erich Winkler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marianne Halevi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Edwin Quigley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marianne Halevi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Edwin Quigley
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marie Veek
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Aquino
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Emily McDonald
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Aquino
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew LeFort
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Aaron Gayken
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

gail comden
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Wall
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Aaron Gayken
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

gail comden
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

G Caviglia
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew LeFort
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Wall
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

G Caviglia
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

amrit khalsa
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Clarence Brown
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Warren
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Debra Vandegrift
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Clarence Brown
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

amrit khalsa
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Debra Vandegrift
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

gail comden
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

George Chorvat
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Terrence Willitts
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

George Chorvat
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William K. Fox
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Terrence Willitts
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kelly Turicchi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kelly Turicchi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lacey Levitt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Heymann
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lewis Murdock
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lacey Levitt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Heymann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Raymond Del Colle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cameron Gaddy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Philip Ratcliff
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cameron Gaddy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Raymond Del Colle
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Carlisle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kay Randall
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynn Sentenn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Philip Ratcliff
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Estra Rubin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kay Randall
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jill Johnston
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jolie Misek
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jolie Misek
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jerry Nailon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Helen Gilchrist
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jerry Nailon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

N J Bast
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Helen Gilchrist
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jan Kampa
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jackie Duba
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jan Kampa
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dave Blair
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karla Hair
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karla Hair
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

jose alvarado
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kate Lunn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rae Pearson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Viterna
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gerald Beever
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lee Wiggam
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gerald Beever
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jean Kozel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jorge Torres
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jean Kozel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Stookey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

hank walker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Dave Byrne
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

hank walker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Weekley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Weekley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dawn Foster
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrea Speed
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Riley Anderson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

H. Celeste Martin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Riley Anderson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Luck
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

H. Celeste Martin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dana Bleckinger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dana Bleckinger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul McKenna
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judith Gabriel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carole Warner
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Nancy Woolley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Margaret McLaughlin
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nigeala Nigrath
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carole Warner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Nancy Woolley
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judith Gabriel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lesley Hunt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joanna Patton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nigeala Nigrath
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matthew Palmer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joshua Morgan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matthew Palmer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christina Pasillas
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mair McNamara
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Miles
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bill Martens
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mair McNamara
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lance and Jenny Peterson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Serio
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christina Pasillas
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joshua Morgan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marija Minic
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hitomi K
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kim Roberts
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lesley Hunt
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marija Minic
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynn Flanagan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Serio
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynn Flanagan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steph Fraine
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Billy Helton
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Roxane Dow
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Timothy Goodman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Norm Levy
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Toni Caldwell-Clark
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Timothy Goodman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Pincince
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Billy Helton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Cal Cole
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Keller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Keller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Cal Cole
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathy Jamieson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Catherine Kroeger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

T Garmon
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathy Jamieson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

M. S. Worrell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Daniel Hulse
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Carol Bosworth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

M. S. Worrell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Carol Bosworth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Michele Temple
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Shari Juranic
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Susan Watts
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gerard Zimney
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alex Mendelsohn
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Henry Rosenfeld
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Shari Juranic
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Debby Strauss
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Liz Garratt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lloyd Turner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Debby Strauss
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ted Rodgers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Annie Winstead
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Petteford
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Devonia Stein
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephanie Stephan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Annie Winstead
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Scott
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ted Rodgers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elise Benson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Emily Bovee
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Rohner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Gill
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steven Smiglicki
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steven Smiglicki
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeffra Rockwell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James J. Boone, Jr.
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peter Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

james prah
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Gaarlandt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Beverly Price
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Snopy
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ruth Miller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Snoply
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

james prah
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Miller
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Morris
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arthur Stoppe
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Miller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeffra Rockwell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynne Clark
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sheila Tran
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Woodruff
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sheila Tran
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Stockhausen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michelle Kollasch
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Norman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alice Thigpen
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michelle Kollasch
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Norman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

GERI VOTAVA
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dylan Z
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Ng
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

GERI VOTAVA
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

lisa agard
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

lisa agard
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sheila Clark
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Gaarlandt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peggy L Swafford
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sheila Clark
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike Love
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

INA BARI
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Edward G. Mrkvicka
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Alice Hendrix
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike Love
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

S Shore
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Alice Hendrix
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kevin Morris
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anne Knoll
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

S Shore
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kenneth Aspinall
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Yvonne Gisonno
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Deborah Krueger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Mann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Beverly Dahlen
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Yvonne Gisonno
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Beverly Dahlen
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Verena Ketola
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Deborah Krueger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Verena Ketola
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

kathryn alexandra
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gregory McCombs
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

kathryn alexandra
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gregory McCombs
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

jeanette fagone
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pamela Tull
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ron McGill
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Diane Marks
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pamela Tull
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bessie Segal
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Ferland
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pamela Tull
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

jeanette fagone
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Martin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pamela Tull
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Martin
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

nicki marx
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pamela Tull
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Maletsky
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Holder
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sara Veit
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brenda Psaras
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sara Veit
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brenda Psaras
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

LeeAnn French
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Rothbell
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

roland d'amour
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nicolette Froehlich
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

brenda craven
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Maletsky
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Durkin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

linda smyth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

linda smyth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

LeeAnn French
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeff Stark
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeff Stark
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William F. Edwards CRNP
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Betsy Ungeheier
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Lincoln
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William F. Edwards CRNP
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jack Perko
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Lincoln
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jack Perko
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Ferguson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gwen McKenna
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gwen McKenna
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Ferguson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carl Oerke Jr
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

mark blandford
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carl Oerke Jr
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Gaipa
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John F Morris
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Markic
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Martha Ahmed
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Daly
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

joyce banzhaf
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Susan [redacted]
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Spirit-Eagle Hawk
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Spirit-Eagle Hawk
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Wienert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Randy Oravec
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Hugh Moore
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Randy Oravec
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Wienert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Hugh Moore
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gayle Ruedi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Claude Robert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Joe Hughes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Culp
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Claude Robert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Colón
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Joe Hughes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joe Coco
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

ROBERT C. BARTLEY
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lela Henderson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marsha Kimball
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marsha Kimball
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Colón
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

Note! As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bard Davidson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cat Marcasciano
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph Naumann
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph Naumann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph Naumann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bob Leppo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kate Jamal
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bob Leppo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Bradley-Johnson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Larry Bogolub
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kate Jamal
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Larry Bogolub
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Nicodemus
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Torrisi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Wendy Kobylarz-Chouvarda
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chuck Wieland
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

HBruce Raymond
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Brown
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Grosh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Blanca DeLaGarza
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

jacob harmon
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nathaniel Marineau
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pam Kedderis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pam Kedderis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rob Lee
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dorothy Dobbyn
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Halderson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rob Lee
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steven Henricks
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Betty Anderson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

e perkins
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ed Fullman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Garrett Larson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

e perkins
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Phillips
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ed Fullman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chetana Knight
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

RAY ELLIS
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

RAY ELLIS
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jerrald James
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joel Libman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charlotte Whiting
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Norman Wrensch
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott Crutcher
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ken Pierce
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kimberlee Tellez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christie Driscoll
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christie Driscoll
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Silvia Hall
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kimberlee Tellez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jeff Jones
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gabrielle Swanberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jay Schelman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gabrielle Swanberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jay Schelman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pamela Nordhof
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paula Lepore
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pamela Nordhof
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Freeman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Mix
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bryan Bennett
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tom Feldman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bryan Bennett
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kerry Klutka
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrea Maxwell
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Kasdorf
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Natalie Rosen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Kasdorf
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Soenksen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kerry Klutka
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Natalie Rosen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Cooley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tamar Sautter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dorothy Wilkinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Hart
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Hart
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Pearce
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tamar Sautter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Terry Murcko
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should NOT be left paying the cost of it.

Very sincerely,

Daniel Fary
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Mossem
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

d fassman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Daniel Fary
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph Kirk
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Tully
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kay Steinauer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kay Steinauer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kay Steinauer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Soenksen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Himavat Ishaya
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Himavat Ishaya
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amanda Yoder
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amanda Yoder
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tom Schwartz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,
David Shearer

David Shesrer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Robinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Valenza
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Vicki Adams
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bernadette Belcastro
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Guma
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Vicki Adams
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tedd Ward Jr.
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph Moore Jr
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Robinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Claire Russell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph Moore Jr
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Claire Russell
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Arthur
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Morgan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gerald Bertholl
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Keith Morgan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Arthur
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Keith Morgan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gerald Bertholl
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cecilia Brown
Am the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tracy King
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nicole Everling
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tracy King
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brianne Helaudais
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ben Teaford
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ben Teaford
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Henderson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Morgan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brianne Helaudais
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ken Box
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paula Chuka
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

jacob harmon
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marian Rewcastle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gina Bates
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marian Rewcastle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Davis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Darrell Noel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

JoAnn Loomis
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Raul Amaya
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Merri Isom
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Helen Beyer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Deven Sharma
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Debra Stephan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Fife
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marge Taniwaki
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Helen Beyer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janice Myers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janice Myers
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ormond Sabans
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Joos
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charlotte Prunet
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Blagden
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Fife
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chris Beyer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charlotte Prunet
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Cartwright
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Shaffer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arlene Baker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kenneth Meyer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Hunt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donald Gentz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Cartwright
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Shaffer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jesse Calderon
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janice Myers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Hunt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Werkheiser
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sheldon Kanfer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jesse Calderon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Greg Sells
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Beth Shemo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Momin Naik
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Werkheiser
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Momin Naik
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Beth Shemo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jerry Persky
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tina Freeman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dan Hubbard
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

christine mustelier
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donald Gentz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jack Stansfield
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cody Winstead
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

steven wypyszczak
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Cox
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sonya Myers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cody Winstead
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donald Schwartz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Cox
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jack Stansfield
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mehdie Vakili
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

April Schmitt
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robin Drawhorn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

mike and miriam kurland
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Wiley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

April Schmitt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gregry Loomis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Johanna Six
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

steven wypyszczak
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gale Rullmann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elisabeth Genaux
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sonya Myers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mehdie Vakili
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Wiley
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Johanna Six
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gale Rullmann
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robin Drawhorns
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Glenn Eacker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gregory Loomis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Glenn Eacker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Glenn Eacker
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Wrona
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Adler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Adler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ruth Olafsdottir
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Bernard
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Berrie Straatman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott White
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

chris granata
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott White
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

chris granata
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Darcy
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Libbie Botting
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Randal Jeter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Just
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Just
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

wayne kostamo
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frank Mallalieu
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ruth Lorenz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frank Mallalieu
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ruth Lorenz
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michelle Jordan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

wayne kostamo
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Steinbach
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Steinbach
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kaitlin Raver
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eugene Marner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jan Phillips
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kaitlin Raver
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Davidson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Davidson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jan Phillips
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tom Schroeder
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Ashley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tom Schroeder
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ric Bernat
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Deborah Crown
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kay Robinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arthur Fornari
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Randy Noel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathryn DeWees
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arthur Fornari
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ric Bernat
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Randy Noel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amy Schlottag
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Doyle Sebesta
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amy Schlottag
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Ryan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Russick
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Davis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Paquette
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Wes Weaver
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Martha Medrano
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephen Mac Nish
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Helen Schafer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christopher Galton
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Shesrer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hillary Ostrow
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eric Stordahl
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bonnie Hearthstone
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hillary Ostrow
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eric Stordahl
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kristin VanHorne
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kristin VanHorne
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Holman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steven Springer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bonnie Hearthstone
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steven Springer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kelley Scanlon
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Farago
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Holman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Farago
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lillian Nordin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bret Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bret Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katy Whitehouse
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Daniel Thayer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donnell Sutherland
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katy Whitehouse
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sherry Baron
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nicola Nelson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Fisher
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Percy Hilo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Redman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donnell Sutherland
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Goshaney
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Fisher
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ronald B. Borgquist
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Redman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Norma McNeill
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sherry Baron
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Goshaney
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mardy Weinstein
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Meredith Diamond
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cindy Borske
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cindy Borske
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ineke Deruyter
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Calvin Klein
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frances Melott
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Calvin Klein
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ineke Deruyter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellen Sharkey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

karen krause
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Emily Ballstaedt
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janet Bradley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Emily Ballstaedt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tina Corbett
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Harbhajan K Khalsa
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Heide Benveniste
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Guillermina Aguirre
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Bautista
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,
Mary Ann Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Guillermina Aguirre
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Heide Benveniste
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Bautista
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phillip leiija
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Hanson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ron Carpenter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

gary rothstein
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Bennett
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ron Carpenter
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gerald Antich
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bob Rayburn U.S. Veteran 1963-1967
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bob Rayburn U.S. Veteran 1963-1967
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynn Kursewicz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Henry Schwartzman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Roger Christensen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leonard Hearne
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Roger Christensen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hannah M Salvatore
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Henry Schwartzman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sonya Lano
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hannah M Salvatore
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phillip leija
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phillip leija
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phillip leija
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phillip Leija
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phillip leija
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phillip leija
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phillip leija
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phillip leija
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Parks
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janet Robinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Parks
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tom Gazik
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donald Morrison
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bob Milbrodt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tom Gazik
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bob Milbrodt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donald Morrison
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barb Rogers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Bray
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Regina Kane
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Darlene Hilbert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marcus Lanskey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joy Hoeft
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marcia Vinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Randall Nord
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Randall Nord
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Darlene Hilbert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Cramer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Weisser
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nell Herrick
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Shannon Whalen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Cramer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Wright
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Maria Lambert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cindy Poston
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Maria Lambert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tom Csuhta
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Shannon Whalen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joanie Murphy
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Wright
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nell Herrick
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Joe Baggett
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joanie Murphy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joanna Williams
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Norman Williams
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan McMurtrie
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Norman Williams
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mathew Wahrman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Glenda Adkinson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Wiles III
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan McMurtrie
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Wiles III
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Byers
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Glenda Adkinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Byers
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bernardo Alayza Mujica
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sherry Opalka
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Helen J. Stockwell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phil Dumont
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Miguel Ortiz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Egolf
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mathew Wahrman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Juls Robertson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Billeb
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Juls Robertson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Helen J. Stockwell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Markham
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tim Butler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bernardo Alayza Mujica
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Schoonover
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bruce Wenger
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gail Veiby
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lance Kammerud
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bruce Wenger
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr. Gerald R. Patterson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Gail Christensen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mika Stonehawk
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lance Kammerud
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hildy Roy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction. The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

john giese
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Haislar
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Miguel Ortiz
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Caitlin Archambault
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joyce Statland
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hildy Roy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Mark Munday
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Caitlin Archambault
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Gail Christensen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eric Wood
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matt Hengesbaugh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Louise Perini
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lois Nottingham
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Louise Perini
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lois Nottingham
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matt Hengesbaugh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kimberly Mathews
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Haislar
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kimberly Mathews
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joel Barlow
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cindy Steele
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Brockway
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Brockway
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cindy Steele
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marcie Colpas
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rob Wolfe
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marcie Colpas
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alexia Jandourek
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alexia Jandourek

Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Mair
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Cevasco
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Mair
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Krawiecki
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Heather Grigsby
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judy Heumann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sona Rejebian
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judy Heumann
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph Brigandi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jacquelyn Meyer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sona Rejebian
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Krawiecki
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jim Stewart
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr and Mrs Richard N Huff
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Caroline Wallace
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Walls
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr and Mrs Richard N Huff
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carla Wenzlaff
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jacquelyn Meyer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Heather Hewett
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Esther Mooncrest
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Heather Grigsby
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Adcock
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anita Capshaw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eleni Kotsis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Esther Mooncrest
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Victor Colon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dave McKee
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stacey Osborne
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Lee
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dean Webb
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Catherine Ayoub
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alie Hall
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gala Lirette
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stacey Osborne
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Lee
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Thomas Ahearn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Lindsey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynn Costa
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Swanson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Lindsey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Pierson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Beth Carbine
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Pierson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Beth Carbine
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bill Kafkis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

I sherwood
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tom Nacey
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Catherine L Adkins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tom Nacey
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tony Lilich
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Norton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hunter Aldrich
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tony Lilich
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joshua Paterno
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard LaVal
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Scholl
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joshua Paterno
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Pearce
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Margaret Olness
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christi Dillon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lauren Svoboda
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Corey Benjamin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Ward
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Ward
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Corey Benjamin
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Sheldon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Berryhill
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Heidi Handsaker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Evi Meuris
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Bachman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Heidi Handsaker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Gephard
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lauren Svoboda
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Gephard
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Kelley
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Emma Bogdan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Gabriel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Aneesh Sawlani
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Gabriel
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Darren Daley
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Margaret Glass
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Darren Daley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Dorothy Anderson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Margaret Glass
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael McCauley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Delabre
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

charlie speno
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charlie Speno
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dorothea Couch
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

pat kelly
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tina Rogers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Bragazzi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tina Rogers
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Maxson Proud
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tyler Walz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Brown
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Martine Cimon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tyler Walz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chris Calvert
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Brown
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Martine Cimon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judy Nakadegawa
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra DeSimone
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judy Nakadegawa
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sheila Ellis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christina Locke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Davis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christina Locke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jim Lambeth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Simon Spence
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Davis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Claudia Rullman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Melissa Alexander
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jim Lambeth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bonnie Grossman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Mumford
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Melissa Alexander
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bonnie Grossman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Meade
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joan Leonard
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jerry Bolick
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Claudia Rullman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Helen Butler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joan Leonard
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Paul Netusil
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jeanene Bergeron
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Paul Netusil
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jeanene Bergeron
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Bergman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Claudia Rullman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eileen Massey
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Crowley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eileen Massey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gigi Ray
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gisela Gama
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frank Kiernan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brett Mitchell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gigi Ray
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Stearns
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Lawless
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frank Kiernan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

STEPHANIE BERMEA
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

STEPHANIE BERMEA
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeff Levy
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Jody Gibson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anthony Keenan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laraine Snooks
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Jody Gibson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Farrah Fettig
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Farrah Fettig
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Eastabrooks
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bruce McLaughlin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gloria Linda Maldonado
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Gregerson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Eastabrooks
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

eugene ekaitis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Gregerson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tom France
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lloyd Schiffelbian
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lloyd Schiffelbian
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chris Whalley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tom France
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dan Matthews
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dan Matthews
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Felicity Francis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph Miller
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chris Whalley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Felicity Francis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cathy Vandrovec
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely mike matviyak,

Mike Matviyak
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Diane Curlette
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dan Kozarsky
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joanne Brown
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Harold Copeland
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Meehling
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Meehling
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Seth Laursen
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Becky  monger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Luke Metzger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Becky monger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

George McDill
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kirsten Holmquist
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rona Kagawa
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charlie Simonds
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Evan Beattie
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Evan Beattie
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

George McDill
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charlie Simonds
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kirsten Holmquist
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tierra Rucker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Mullins
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Betsy Flick
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Mullins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Mullins
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rosalie Stefanich
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Suzanne Bickley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brendan Shaw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Guy Bateman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Theodore Voth III
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rosalie Stefanich
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jared Collins
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Theodore Voth III
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brendan Shaw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Johnson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jared Collins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Johnson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Morgan Weiss
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tierra Rucker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judith Lasko
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bernadine Hoeft
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judith Lasko
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Plunkett
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linnell Krikorian
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chadwick Wright
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Plunkett
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linnell Krikorian
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amanda Goodman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alison MacArthur
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mauro Ferrero
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mauro Ferrero
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Schmidt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jesse Spear
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Dockter
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jesse Spear
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Dockter
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Schmidt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Heidi Ananthakrishnan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chadwick Wright
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Walton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kabir Moscoso
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Erica de Hermida
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Erica de Hermida
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patti Herring
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

janie anderson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Reigle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kabir Moscoso
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

janie anderson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sara Williams
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephen Marshall
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sara Williams
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephen Marshall
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

mekala Ravishankar
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Russick
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

kathleen spencer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Debra McCullough
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Douglas McCorkle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Melissa Thilorway
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laura Garro
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Debra McCullough
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Mikulich
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Franklin Wallace
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Franklin Wallace
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Thank you for your time and for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Amanda Salvner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Douglas McCorkle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leonard Schoch
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tracy Feldman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

G G
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Camryn Pate
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Kersten-Chestney
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rachael Lang
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Camryn Pate
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christian DeFilippo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Walton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arlys Fones
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Kersten-Chestney
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christian DeFilippo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janet Sleeth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Steven R. Hibshman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eugene Zsiros
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Lefler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Gregory
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eve Dion
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Gregory
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Geiszler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lina Poskiene
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Davinia Bleijenberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lina Poskiene
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joan Green
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ferrell Stein
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Hilgenberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Trigg Wright III
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ruth Kneile
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Trigg Wright III
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Davinia Bleijenberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judy Bell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ferrell Stein
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Hilgenberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Klassen
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Kawszan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Bergman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Colleen Allen-Schublin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barb Morrison
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Betty Trentyon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tracy Feldman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barb Morrison
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jill Kortright
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leonard Herman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jason Steadmon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Deborah Forman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Francoise Rothstein
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

J P
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jason Steadmon
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan N Todd
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leonard Herman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janet Strickland
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Francoise Rothstein
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alison Eckels
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alison Eckels
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan N Todd
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Carroll
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alison Eckels
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alison Eckels
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

lee fahey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

lee fahey
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Liz Davis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christine Disimone
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Philip Lefcourt
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Sewell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Philip Lefcourt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Liz Davis
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Trudy Dittmar
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

virginia jastromb
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Gibson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathy Retherford
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

virginia jastromb
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Gibson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen O'Connell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Adrian Maries
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott Houchin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Adrian Maries
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathy Retherford
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alana Mayer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen O'Connell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jill Kortright
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott Houchin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mariano Marquez III
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Martin Kornbluh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Martin Kornbluh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tanya Wilson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tanya Wilson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Cappuccio
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carson Monteith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

K. M.
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tanya Wilson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carson Monteith
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Cappuccio
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Markley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kendra Waddell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Corinne Sherton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

K. M.
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kendra Waddell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Lamson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

J Nichols
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Setlur S. Rangan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judith Elliott
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

natasha salgado
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Neale Allen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pam Roussell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judith Elliott
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pam Roussel
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Neale Allen
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carolyn Summers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pamela Miller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Kiplinger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Melba Williams
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pamela Miller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Melba Williams
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Sinclair
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Seidler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Deborah Doss
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Seidler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Viacrucis
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Sherrill Futrell
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Deborah Doss
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Thomas Rogers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Thomas Rogers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Isabel Martins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Isabel Martins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Susan St Peter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kenneth Chin-Onn
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alejandra Vega
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ariana Rodriguez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bonnie Shand
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kenneth Chin-Onn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jennifer Crum
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Julia Cranmer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

B. Schneider-Serio
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hans Poulsen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bonnie Shand
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael R. Tyre
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Cosgrove
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mj Baumann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael R. Tyre
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Merrie Thornburg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Cosgrove
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mj Baumann
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott Jennings
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Noah Hall
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arlene Baker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles L Arnold
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles L Arnold
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellen Osborne
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellen Osborne
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Raymond Keeling
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Theresa Severson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steven Nelson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Badgley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

George Becke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Badgley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rachel Edelson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Julie Jumonville
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Theresa Kleintank
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

George Becke
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janis Sawicke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rachel Edelson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott Jennings
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharron Yore
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharron Yore
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carolyn Perkins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey Sherman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carolyn Perkins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eva Goss
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Arrabaca
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eva Goss
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Walter Tucker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cindi Keane
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Arrabaca
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Logan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anthony Castillo
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kimberly Frey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Helen Dickey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anthony Castillo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kenneth Bickel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Helen Dickey
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arden Leslie
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Bini
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arden Leslie
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeff Goll
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Hagar
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jeff Goll
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Randy Condo
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Hagar
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Glenda Kohlhafer-Regan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Miller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Glenda Kohlhafer-Regan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Clayton Jones
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Szalasny
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Szalasny
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frank Lorch
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Morgan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Root
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Morgan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Lombardi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr. Ron LR. Nixon
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Lombardi
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lilian Alecia Morgan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

kathryn turk
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr. Ron LR. Nixon
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nathan Ensign
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

kathryn turk
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jan Sloat
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jan Sloat
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nathan Ensign
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Marc Beschler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lilian Alecia Morgan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Suzanne Roche
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Suzanne Roche
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Marc Beschler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Darvin Schild
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frank Ayers
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Raven Vergara
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laura Fake
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dale Sloat
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Raven Vergara
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Darvin Schild
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephen Evans
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Martha Hauer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frank Ayers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert DeStefano
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

DeLaine Bredvik
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Martha Hauer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert DeStefano
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephen Evans
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laura Fake
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

A. Mervyn & Marilyn L CARSE
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jon Spitz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

DeLane Bredvik
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

A. Mervyn & Marilyn L CARSE
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Whiting
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dave Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Whiting
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jon Spitz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dave Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Welker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hank Stevens
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jim McIntosh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jim McIntosh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nicholas Sherman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carolee Horner
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Cole
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nicholas Sherman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Welker
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,
Jon Mullin

Jon Mullin
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Roger Cadwallader
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Cole
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Debbie Campbell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tim Butler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linette Schreiber
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marilynn Mitchell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alison Jaskiewicz
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Douglas Olson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jon Mullin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Kuether
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marilynn Mitchell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Billy Angus
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Rosemarie Sawdon
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Douglas Olson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike Van dyne
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Rosemarie Sawdon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Martin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mike Van dyne
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Deep
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Martin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Debbie Campbell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amanda Hebert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Deep
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Noah Hall
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sean Franulic
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Reinhardt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

carolyn massey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pat Ross
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Newsom
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

eric thompson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Gaissert
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dan Perdios
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated, and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laurie Sandretto
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Laurence Garces
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

eric thompson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pat Ross
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jon Fox-
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patrick Dowd
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy R Griffith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Laurence Garces
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laurie Sandretto
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

W C
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patrick Dowd
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

carolyn massey
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Trenk Ebbighausen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Gaissert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Callie Lockwood
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sumana Raychaudhuri
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Fehr
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sumana Raychaudhuri
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Fehr
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Callie Lockwood
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Debi Wong
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jane Toth
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Debi Wong
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jan Turner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jane Toth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mercedes Lackey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mercedes Lackey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Annie Harrison
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marianne Flanagan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jean Perkins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marianne Flanagan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michele Martinez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jim Pech
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alvera Pritchard
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Margarita Hernandez
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alvera Pritchard
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Claire Barnett
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ladan Dejam
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Emma Shook
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

R T
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Emma Shook
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ladan Dejam
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anthony Lyons
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Melissa Green
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Melissa Green
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eric Larson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Wasgatt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rees Urban
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rees Urban
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joy Ingersoll
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Nida
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michele Martinez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely, Eric L. Larson

Eric Larson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Ridge
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Ridge
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Wendy Jorgensen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rafael Danaher
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Nida
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephen Josephson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rafael Danaher
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Gall
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Wendy Jorgensen

Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Angela Bellacosa
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Robert Lamar
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephen Josephson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Robert Lamar
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Angela Bellacosa
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

william lee
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellene Shapiro
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Bob Haugen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kenneth Proper
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Bob Haugen
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr. Harry Corsover
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jan Voorhees
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Arellano
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr. Harry Corsover
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Candace Volz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Arellano
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathryn Sugg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joan Prum
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rusty Rollings
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathryn Sugg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laurel Harris
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Townsend
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mke Duffy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Khatib
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laurel Harris
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Max Tran
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

kathryn turk
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

stephen budzinski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rusty Rollings
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

kathryn turk
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

kathryn turk
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

belinda collins
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

belinda collins
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Graeme Whitlock
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

kathryn turk
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Don Margsen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Gearhart
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Graeme Whitlock
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michelle Clark
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

R. Smith
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Gearhart
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mario Parra
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Simon
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janet Barr
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michelle Clark

Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely, the

Janet Walley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Simon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janet Walley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dolores Parra
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Kennedy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathryn Conrad
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Roney
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

mary frazer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathryn Conrad
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Kennedy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Roney
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

courtney cook
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

mary frazer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Max Tran
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathy Sabatini
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

M O'Connor
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alyssa C
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lexi Terry
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alyssa C
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Wilburn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Wilburn
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Schildwachter
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Ashmore
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Martin Baclija
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

Hello and Hashtag,

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brian Wilkerson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Songalia
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Martin Baclija
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Ashmore
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Haibeck
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary D.
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ina Lippard
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary D.
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Songalia
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ina Lippard
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Atkins
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Fritz Bachman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

LUis Lerma
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Atkins
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lewis Kuhlman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Thomas
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Haibeck
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Julie Arneson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anna Hennelly
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Thomas
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

r Darling
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Thomas Anderson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bryan Lilienkamp
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

r Darling
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tamara Dreier
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ross Woodbury
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dr. Marc and Jill Klosner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Ruggles
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Julie Arneson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Warming
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Franco Ortega
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Ruggles
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tamara Dreier
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Warming
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kate Anderson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Rossman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kate Anderson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Beth O'Brien
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Rossman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jessica Rodrigues
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michelle Webb
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Beth O'Brien
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michelle Webb
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joann Ramos
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kellyann Morander
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joann Ramos
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Bader
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Bader
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Melski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Bayer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew R.
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Bayer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jeff Crane
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sybille Vital
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Pfersich
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Pfersich
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sybille Vital
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jane Dunn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Cicchine
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jane Dunn
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Don Green
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Don Green
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Kapec
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Siegler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Connie Sullivan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Kapec
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Connie Sullivan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Siegler
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sean Foley
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tina Ann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,
Doug Kershner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tina Ann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Erickson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Beardsley
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Erickson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Prewitt
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Robison
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lucymarie Ruth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Shari Fitzgerald, MD
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Robison
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Shari Fitzgerald, MD
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lucymarie Ruth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

dee tait
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Stack
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Stack
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Schultz
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Schultz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Ostwald
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ed Gould
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Henry Tillman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christine McMasters
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ed Gould
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John R. Bartels
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christine McMasters
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Billingham
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Billingham
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Opaskar
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Adcock

Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laurie Loveman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Betty Tackitt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marlen Hdz
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert March
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marlen Hdz
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kate Babb
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Don Parsons
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marc Conrad
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Don Parsons
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kate Babb
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barry Kelman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

annie oosterwyk
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

RAY Peters
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barry Kelman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Danielle J
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Johanna Miller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Deborah Parker
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Deborah Parker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Claire Barnett
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cameron Zavattero
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

RAY Peters

Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Bauer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Melo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Walker
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Bauer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Walker
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Lipson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Don Meehan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Farmer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Don Meehan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Hardin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Lipson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Farmer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Farmer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carol Hardin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. DAVID PARRETT
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Holly Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Holly Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charley Roth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charley Roth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janet Handford
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judith Laik
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Judith Laik
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

J Jordan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Catherine Jaquith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Nan Corliss
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

ryan w.
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Evette Andersen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Keim
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

ryan w.
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Hobert Richardson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Nan Corliss
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Russ Doyle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joanne Evers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chris Monti
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Aj Gerber
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chris Monti
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joanne Evers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Ruhl
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bradley Sharkey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Aj Gerber
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Lopes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Ruhl
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Don Landry
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rene Lambert
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Edna Mbayo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lenore Reeves
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lorraine Peter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Will Baumgartner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Will Baumgartner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

max jones
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Boone
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Veena Singwi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tanya Gonzales
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Veena Singwi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marvin Lewis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Larsen
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marvin Lewis
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Adam Savett
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Larsen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Adam Savett

Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christopher S. Minich
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pablo D. Cortez
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brenda Bachman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pablo D. Cortez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brenda Bachman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christopher S. Minich
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Diann MacRae
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joy Zadaca
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bruce Nayowith
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Cole
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

MaryRose Randall
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Diann MacRae
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely, make them pay now.

John Pasqua
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Cole
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bruce Nayowith
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sean Mooney
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

rebecca koo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Angela Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Angela Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jacquelyn Bransen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

mark inda
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marco Valente
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joan Parker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jacquelyn Bransen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

ACE HULL
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

jan combs
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joan Parker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Catherine Hirsch
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

jan combs
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

George Wood
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nicki Baran
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laney Roberts
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Catherine Hirsch
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Mario Rivera
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Raymond Barry
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Edna Mbayo
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Mario Rivera
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laney Roberts
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Malcolm Wellington
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Malcolm Wellington
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robin Bedell-Waite
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lauren Murdock
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Kupersmith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jausen Hyldahl
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lauren Murdock
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jausen Hyldahl
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary Kupersmith
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Russ Doyle
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marc Conrad
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Liz Reid
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lenore Sheridan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katie Brady
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joe Glowacki
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Littell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joe Glowacki
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Siraj Mufti
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Timothy Shaw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa Littell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Debra Cunningham
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Timothy Shaw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen King
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Siraj Mufti
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nathan Sullenberger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen King
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Herman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jennifer Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Biscardi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Biscardi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Frances Lynch
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Shira Fogel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jennifer Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elaine Alfaro
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Apfel
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Douglas Engle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elaine Alfaro
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Douglas Engle
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gay Mikelson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,
Amanda Munson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joyce Bartels
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Merrie Saniat
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marion Lakatos
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Fore
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gay Mikelson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gay Mikelson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Victor Monjaras
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Victor Monjaras
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Evelyn Evans
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hagit Halperin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Gerald Fisher
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hagit Halperin
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tim Wilson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Douglas Fuchsman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Douglas Fuchsman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia White
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Gerald Fisher
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia White
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ben Goggins
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ben Goggins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peyton Johnston
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cheri Bumgardner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peyton Johnston
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

George Latta
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cheri Bumgardner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

George Latta
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Olga Grushko
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Martin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Gubernick
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Olga Grushko
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Herb Shoemaker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Martin
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laura Leong
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely, Pam OBryan

Pam OBryan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laura Leong
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathy Bluhm
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Patricia Greiss
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marta Wilcox
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janet Roberts
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

ACE HULL
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sherrill Gary
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Maureen Ebner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janet Roberts
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frances Huffman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marta Wilcox
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Claire Sefiane
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Claire Sefiane
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dylan Nelson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Sanchez
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dylan Nelson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Suzanne Bremmer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely, Pam OBryan

Pam OBryan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Curtis Sanders
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Maureen Ebner
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Curtis Sanders
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peter Homan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jim and Mary Abendroth
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Myles Robertson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Hughes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Helen Reynolds
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stacia Haley
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Helen Reynolds
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Suzanne Kirby
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

selden wasson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stacia Haley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Erica Johanson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Erica Johanson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jane Metcalfe
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Stange
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

selden wasson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jane Metcalfe
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Caroline Mcaliley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pam Masters
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dawn Corbett
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Caroline Mcaliley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mia Fiore
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Margaret Dunn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mia Fiore
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Margaret Dunn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dorothy Anderson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dee Burdick
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dorothy Anderson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rosemary Wilvert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Miller-Kostove
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

j lamantia
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rosemary Wilvert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patrick Delaney
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Doug Westendorp
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stu Farnsworth
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Viane Ward
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sil Reynolds
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stu Farnsworth
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pamela R. Perls
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sil Reynolds
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Wayne Flick
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kimberly Kashner
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Wayne Flick
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

P. Perron
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kimberly Kashner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Edward DeFrancia
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Deborah Capwell

[Redacted]
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jason LaBerge
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Edward DeFrancia
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bill Poteet
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jason LaBerge
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bill Poteet
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pamela Weaver
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Arlen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laurie Moczulski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ross Spiegel
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laurie Moczulski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Franzmann
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alice Parra
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rita Boone
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rita Boone
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

d snyder
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

d snyder
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alice Parra
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Furniss
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Furniss
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nicholas Lenchner
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nicholas Lenchner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Craig Coelho
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jan Lutz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Craig Coelho
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alex Rothenberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dawn Grib
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dawn Grib
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott McIntyre
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Todd Clay
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Greg Black
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Kerr
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Todd Clay
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Greg Black
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Kerr
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tom Robinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Craig Coelho
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joanna Vintilla
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Bertalan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Bertalan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hugh Lindor
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ct Bross
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Caitlin Rust
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Ledesma
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ct Bross
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Caitlin Rust
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hugh Lindor
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Ledesma
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tamara Sharton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tamara Sharton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tamara Sharton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Richards
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Melissa Hillen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

kirstin mueller
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

kirstin mueller
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Edwards
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Melissa Hillen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Deena Wilde
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Victor Afanasiev
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Victor Afanasiev
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Noel Barnes
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karlene Gunter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Edwards
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Noel Barnes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Florette Henner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karlene Gunter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frederick Hamilton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Don Merrick
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frederick Hamilton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Servizio
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Puaoi
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I am very strongly urging you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Very Sincerely,

Marilyn Britton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Dorchin
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Puaoi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rita Larkin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jenna Fallaw
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Davis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

M W
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Davis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph Palmese
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

[Redacted]
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

O L
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph Palmese
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

O L
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

O L
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chris Dietrich
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

O L
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

M W
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Cerkvenik
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

O L
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott Ary
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott Ary
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Julie Carlisle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lisa De Witt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Vinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Duffy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Vinson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dennis Browne
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leo Uzych
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karl Hungus
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karl Hungus
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms Verlene Lewis
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

T Pollak
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

JOHN HYAMS
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Michelle Buerger
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Thomas
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Garratt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michelle Sewald
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jessi Berkelhammer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Liz Reed
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Garratt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Liz Reed
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Michelle Buerger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anna Borsey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jessica Denis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michelle Sewald
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Inderjit Jaipaul
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jasmine Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anna Borsey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jessica Denis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Maria Elena Hernandez
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Inderjit Jaipaul
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

john 0 hinnant
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

john 0 hinnant
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

J L Nwman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

sacha todd
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Spencer Dean
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Wyzenbeek
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Corlett
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Spencer Dean
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kevin McCollough
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jay Rosin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kevin McCollough
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

sacha todd
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Miss Rhyan Grech
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Miss Rhyan Grech
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Harding
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Magdalena Karnicki
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bonnie Mitchell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Magdalena Karnicki
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tim Trudeau
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tim Trudeau
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

terance tashiro
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Neil Stanton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Kermit Cuff
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Kermit Cuff
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

susan sebanc
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

susan sebanc
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cheyenne Russo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cheyenne Russo
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael McCulloh
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul West
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Whalen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ethan Hattendorf
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ethan Hattendorf
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Whalen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Randy Kiel
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Smith
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Randy Kiel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Herb Lowrance
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bradley Cooke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Herb Lowrance
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Allen
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ilene Kazak
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laura Wilder
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ilene Kazak
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Malcolm G Simpson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Allen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joseph Magid
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

H Evand
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Margaret Ennis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Helene Bernardin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Murphey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Helene Bernardin
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anna Bergalis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anna Bergalis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arthur & Shirley Wolfe
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anna Bergalis
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anna Bergalis
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Juli Gage-Macdonald
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alexis Laine
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Juli Gage-Macdonald
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rose M Gonzales Nielsen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cindy Abernathy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Hoff
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cindy Abernathy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Hoff
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Virginia Pierce
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul West
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Virginia Pierce
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jay Gilbert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Soteropoulos
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jim Bergquist
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jay Gilbert
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Mazhnyy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tracy Ouellette
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Soteropoulos
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Hill
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mark Mazhnyy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tracy Ouellette
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Juan de Marchena
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kirk White
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jon Anderholm
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Juan de Marchena
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

b kilbey
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lilith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lilith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cassia Charles
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rita Sheehan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kimberly Jones
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Reba B.
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kimberly Jones
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Nelson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Aj Aumer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Stout
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Nelson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Julie Sicaud
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. barbara stamp
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Barbara Stamp
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hillary Colby
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anita Newman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anita Newman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phillip Schaffer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paul Nasuti
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bianca Martinez
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathy OBrien
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Debbie Mahder
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

K. Carrigan
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Miranda Leiva
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

K. Carrigan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phillip Schaffer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arthur Bright
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dennis Kreiner
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Miranda Leiva
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dennis Kreiner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brian Berg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tina McBride
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peter Ward
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephen au
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brian Berg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tina McBride
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peter Ward
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alison Taylor
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alison Taylor
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janice Pardoe
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

christopher tuch
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Arthur Bright
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Shapiro

Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Lea
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amber Wheat
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jesse Boeckermann
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Lea
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ed Leinartas
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Debbie Mahder
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nikki S
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karl Siebert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Victor Miiller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nikki S
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karl Siebert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellen Jahos
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellen Jahos
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Travis Miller
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Don Hon
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alex Rothenberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Don Hon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ed Leinartas
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Yvonne Peraza
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tina Gallaway
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

suzanne esaine
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Louis Asher
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tina Gallaway
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Meredith Priestley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Travis Miller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

suzanne esaine
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

P Wyatt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrea Poole
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dianne Brooks
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bob Yarger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bethany Hurley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

P Wyatt
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tony Segura
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Toula Halperin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Christa Hladky
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Valerie McCarty
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Valerie McCarty
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Terry Dailey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Steortz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Terry Dailey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Shadhi Morrow
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rudolph Tauer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Steortz
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gary McCormick
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellen Koivisto
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rudolph Tauer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janet Johnston
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellen Koivisto
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

K Curtis
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

K Curtis
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Erin Caughman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Grant Campbell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Dow
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

R. Ellis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Klein
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

R. Ellis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ann Dow
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Mark Heald
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Klein
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frank Morra
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frank Morra
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eleanor Miller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Myers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eleanor Miller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Myers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tika Bordelon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tika Bordelon
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John R Thayer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Levine
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Maureen O'Neal
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Heller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Maureen O'Neal
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Levine
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Keith Zolezzi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Keith Zolezzi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Shannon Fouts
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amanda Zangara
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amanda Zangara
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Shannon Fouts
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Hannelore Goldberg
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Everest
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Everest
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David Halpern
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gerry Martin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pablo Burgos
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gerry Martin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pablo Burgos
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pablo Burgos
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott Teel
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Scott Teel
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ruth Boice
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stan Delozier
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ruth Boice
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eric Wollscheid
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laura Biasci
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Micah McIntyre
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

laura biasci
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephanie Huntington
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephanie Huntington
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jessica Wardlaw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

gary goodwin
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dick Dierks
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Heidi Schiele
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dick Dierks
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Peterson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Heidi Schiele
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sandra Peterson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Zimmer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Zimmer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rob Currie, S.J.
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rob Currie, S.J.
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Allison Spencer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Allison Spencer
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement barring BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

DK Bolen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Diane Nowak
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matthew Whitingbird
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kaye Mouldin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

J Yusuf Erskine
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kaye Mouldin
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jessica Wardlaw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sean Gash
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sean Gash
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Katherine Kurzius
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

DK Bolen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Remund
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tim Gundlach
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely, Mark White (regular taxpayer)

Mark White
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

tim wilson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ben King
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Larry Reed
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. William Pritchard
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ben King
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

tim wilson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Remund
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Shaw
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. William Pritchard
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Paula Yates
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Aaron Jones
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Nolting
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ron Robinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sharon Nolting
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert Scheibner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Miranda Lee Hansen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Miranda Lee Hansen
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ron Robinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Nathan Earl Hetrick
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Gercke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephanie Fairchild
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nancy Gercke
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jaclyn Miller
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephanie Fairchild
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,
Roshan Tourani
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynn Glace
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Basman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Aaron Koch
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Barb Hauser
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lewis Hyde
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carole Slesinski
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jean McAllister
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jon McFarlane
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jon McFarlane
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carole Slesinski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jean McAllister
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gail Brack
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tsee Lee
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tsee Lee
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David W. Stanley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellen Edelman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eileen Easton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amy Hutchinson
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ellen Edelman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joey Henson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carole Huelsberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Nicholes

Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Mckenzie
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

dennis b
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amy Hutchinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Carole Huelsberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Nicholes
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laurie Goodhart
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Laurie Goodhart
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leonard Obert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it!!

Thank you very much.

Sincerely,

Debby Mount
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leonard Obert
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dolores Williams
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Debby Mount
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Crotty
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Eric Miller
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Arthur
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Arthur
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janice Boyce
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janice Boyce
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Theresa Owens
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joanne Willis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Theresa Owens
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Vanessa Gonzalez-Green
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marta Guttenberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Chris O'Brien
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stacy Grossman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stacy Grossman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Vanessa Gonzalez-Green
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Len Raminski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William E Wenzel Jr
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William E Wenzel Jr
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Len Raminski
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Warren Parks
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leila Raab
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Wesa Sweeney
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Audrey Newcomb
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lenny Cavallaro
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nigel Lim
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alyssa Melton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Audrey Newcomb
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alyssa Melton
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lenny Cavallaro
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Rohrer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Indigo Summer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Trevor Robinson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Heiserman
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrew Heiserman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Erica Lindemann
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

C A Stevens
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jameson McDonnell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jameson McDonnell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Sumner Peirce
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

C A Stevens
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephen Minor
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Stewart-Abernathy
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Stewart-Abernathy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lauren Bryant
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

mel eberle
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

David W. Stanley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nicole Shaffer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sheryll Punneo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nicole Shaffer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sheryll Punneo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

M Leszczynski
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Chris O'Connell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

M Leszczynski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

sarah parker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephen Minor
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Chris O'Connell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. Magoo Shoulderblade
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

sarah parker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Doug Edwards
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Phil Burnett
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Zechariah Heck
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Barrett
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Doug Edwards
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Zechariah Heck
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Hung
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia Hung

Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Mike Smith
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Melissa Jersett
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Giles
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Mike Smith
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Giles
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ramsey Russell
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alex Silverio
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ramsey Russell
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donald Dodge
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alex Silverio
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

JOHN GUM
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ms. jan Lochner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

crissi walturz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

crissi walturz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Bentley
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Cynthia Bentley
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nigel Lim
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Shelly Shivers
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Cheryl L Rigby
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Vivian Perry
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Shelly Shivers
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephen Keener
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Martin Krupp
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stephen Keener
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donald Dodge
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Vivian Perry
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Veronica R. Koch
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bruce Pereira
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joanna Stiehl
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jim Roberts
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Thomas Hudson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nathan Van Velson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Veronica R. Koch
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alida Bockino
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Nathan Van Velson
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bruce Pereira
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alida Bockino
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Celia Martin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marc Silverman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

William Beasley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joanna Stiehl
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Angela Perryman
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alan Linn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Clara Bakker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Clara Bakker
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Intz Walker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr Seldom
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alan Linn
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dominick Saia
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dominick Saia
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr Seldom
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Norma Robbins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kevin Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rosalind Andrews
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rosalind Andrews
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kevin Smith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alison Massa
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joyce Grajczyk
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

sibyl james
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Alison Massa
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Joyce Grajczyk
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Satter
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dorothy Mikos
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert MacAulay
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John Satter
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Robert MacAulay
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dorothy Mikos
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Beverly Jeanne Lewis
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Gemma Geluz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lois Kalish
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

M Quintana
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

M Quintana
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Nicholoy
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

James Hedgecock
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jay Wolfe
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Antoinette Garland
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Susan Nicholoy
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Erick Campisi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jay Wolfe
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Erick Campisi
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tara Wesselink
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marvin Feil
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

lauren pihera
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kris Head
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Tara Wesselink
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marvin Feil
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Leo Barrera
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Spano
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sabrina Eckles
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Emily Baker
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Spano
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sanda Bauer
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Mae Mroczynski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

John P. Davis
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bruce White
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marisa Schmidt
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Marisa Schmidt
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Herman Diaz
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

ernest boyd
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Herman Diaz
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donald McKim
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Wise
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Michael Hightower
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jill Richard
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Wise
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charles Wise
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kathie Snavely
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bonnie German
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bonnie German
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pamela Green
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Friesenhengst
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lanie Cox
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Richard Friesenhengst
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Pamela Green
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lanie Cox
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Brandi Montano
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Eliana Uretsky
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

kenn bradley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Charlene Reader
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

kenn bradley
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

elizabeth chaparro
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda A. Heath
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dana Yarger
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda A. Heath
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

elizabeth chaparro
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

elizabeth chaparro
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Deb Hughes
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Morley Schloss
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kate Nunberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kate Nunberg
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ji-Young Kim
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bridget Spann
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anne Ritchings
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jim Haley
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Anne Ritchings
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Davenport
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jane Bunin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rafa Nizam
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lorretta Marcel
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jamie Ashby
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Fair
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Wanninger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jane Bunin
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ahprille Andrews
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Wanninger
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Ahprille Andrews
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Moe Gorsline
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Moe Gorsline
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Dustin Lecander
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bonnie Tanner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

gail stamps
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Bonnie Tanner
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Rafa Nizam
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Christine McArdle
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janice Wilfing
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Penny Hanna
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Frieda Brock
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Janice Wilfing
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

gail stamps
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Annette F
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Penny Nichols
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

moneca Batchelder
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Kris Scarci
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Daniel Johnson-O'Mara
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amber Gilchrist
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Dillon Galbraith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Amber Gilchrist
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Penny Nichols
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Linda Adams
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mary Dillon Galbraith
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jan Modjeski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Jan Modjeski
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Peter J. Keiser
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Steve Garrett
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Karen Greenspan
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matthew Buckmaster
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Stefan Taylor
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Matthew Buckmaster
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

José Medina Pardo
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrea Higgins
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Lynn Madsen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Andrea Higgins
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Becky Moore
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Rosenberry
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Summey
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia A Lenzen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Deb Bear
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Mr. Tom Cloud
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Deb Bear
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sarah Summey
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sara Strickland
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Patricia A Lenzen
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Donna Rosenberry
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Juliana Benner
Loretta Lynch
Department of Justice

Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

Sara Strickland
Dear Attorney General Lynch:

As the comment period for the consent decree between BP, the Justice Department, and the five states of the Gulf Coast continues, I urge you to include strict language in the final agreement that bars BP from claiming any portion of its settlement costs as a tax deduction.

The tragedy of the Deepwater Horizon must never be repeated and taxpayers should not be left paying the cost of it.

Sincerely,

