

In 2016, Zambia made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Government hired additional labor inspectors and approved a new development assistance framework that aims to prevent the worst forms of child labor. The Government also supported the development of programming to empower adolescent girls and reduce child labor in rural areas. However, children in Zambia continue to engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in the production of tobacco, and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Gaps remain in the legal framework related to children; for example, the Education Act does not include the specific age to which education is compulsory, which may leave children under the legal working age vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. In addition, law enforcement agencies lack the necessary human and financial resources to adequately enforce laws against child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Zambia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in the production of tobacco and commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1-3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Zambia.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	28.1 (992,722)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	65.2

[‡] Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children trafficked inside Zambia are primarily trafficked from rural to urban areas for domestic work and agriculture.(1, 15, 18) Some children in Zambia are forced to load trucks with stolen copper ore by Jerabo gangs, which are illegal mining syndicates in the Copperbelt province.(3, 15, 18) Along Zambia’s borders, the commercial sexual exploitation of children is common.(15) The Government has yet to release information on child labor from its 2008, 2012, or 2014 Labour Force Surveys, although the general Labour Force Survey results, which did not include data on child labor, were released in 2011, 2014, and 2016, respectively.(2, 19, 20)

Long distances to schools create a barrier to education.(6) Families also face costs for basic education, including fees for school supplies, which prevent some children from attending school.(3, 6, 17)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

Zambia has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

Zambia has not ratified the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography, although commercial sexual exploitation of children continues to be a problem in the country.(15)

The Government has established laws and regulations related to child labor, including its worst forms (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Zambia’s legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation

Compulsory Education Age	No		Article 16 of the Education Act, 2011 (29)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 15 of the Education Act, 2011 (29)

* No conscription (28)

Gaps remain in the legal framework. Penalties for child prostitution violations in the Employment of Young Persons and Children Act are different from those in the Penal Code.⁽³⁰⁾ Although the Penal Code treats child prostitution as a felony, with a minimum 20-year jail sentence, the Employment of Young Persons and Children Act treats it as a civil penalty and imposes a fine of $35 to $165 and possible discretionary prison time. In practice, the heavier statute of the Penal Code would be applied; however, research did not uncover any such prosecutions in recent years.^(31, 32)

The Education Act requires the Government to provide free education up to the seventh grade and stipulates that education is compulsory for children of “school-going age.”^(1, 29, 33) The Act, however, does not set a specific age or define “school-going age,” which may allow children to leave school before they are legally able to work.⁽²⁹⁾ The lack of standards in this area may increase the risk of children’s involvement in the worst forms of child labor.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

The Government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor, including its worst forms (Table 5). However, gaps in labor law and criminal law enforcement remain and some enforcement information is not available.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Collaborate with the Ministry of Justice to investigate and prosecute child labor cases.(19, 34)
Zambia Police Service Victim Support Unit	Handle the enforcement of laws against human trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and use of children in illicit activities.(1, 14, 19)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2016, labor law enforcement agencies in Zambia took actions to combat child labor, including its worst forms (Table 6).

In 2016, the Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS) employed 110 labor inspectors, which is an increase from the 81 employed in 2015.(11, 35) The number of labor inspectors is insufficient for the size of Zambia's workforce, which includes more than 7 million workers. According to the ILO's recommendation of 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Zambia should employ roughly 178 inspectors.(2, 14, 36-38) In 2016, only three inspectors received refresher training.(11) The MLSS stated that an insufficient budget, inadequate training, and lack of transportation prevented it from effectively conducting inspections.(2, 11) The MLSS conducts labor inspections in registered private institutions only; it does not conduct investigations in unregistered institutions, as allowed by law and where child labor is more likely to be found.(1, 39) A referral mechanism exists through District Child Labor Committees that allows labor officers to refer cases to NGOs; however, not all districts have a committee.(14)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2016, criminal law enforcement agencies in Zambia took actions to combat the worst forms of child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor

In 2016, the Government reported that insufficient training hampered criminal law enforcement.(11)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

The Government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor, including its worst forms (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
MLSS	Coordinate Government efforts on issues of child labor, including its worst forms.(1)
MLSS-CLU	Coordinate with District Child Labor Committees in 26 of Zambia's 102 districts to increase local awareness and mobilize communities against child labor, including its worst forms.(1, 14)
Ministry of Youths, Sports, and Child Development's Child Development Department	Coordinate legislation on child labor.(2)
Zambia Police Service Child Protection Unit	Coordinate with the Ministry of Community Development, Mother, and Child Health to protect children from general abuse, including the worst forms of child labor.(1, 2)
District Child Labor Committees (DCLCs)	Respond to child labor complaints at the local level and file complaints to the MLSS. Serve as the main referral mechanism for social welfare services, a mechanism that is reported to be improving. Comprises the Zambia Police Service; the MLSS; the Ministry of Community Development, Mother, and Child Health; and civil society stakeholders.(1) The Government intends to establish Committees in all districts but lacks the resources to do so. DCLCs serve as the main referral mechanism for social welfare services, and it was reported that these mechanisms have been improving.(1, 14)

Due to overlapping responsibilities and communication lapses, individual agency mandates may not be effective in some cases.(19)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

The Government has established policies related to child labor, including its worst forms (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Child Labor Policy	Establishes an action plan and designates responsible agencies to address child labor issues.(1, 33, 42)
Revised Sixth National Development Plan (2013–2016)	Includes the eradication of the worst forms of child labor as a goal. Places emphasis on early childhood education and a child's right to education.(1, 14, 43)
National Employment and Labor Market Policy	Contains the elimination of child labor as a goal.(19, 44)
UNDAF (2016–2021)†	Identifies child labor as a pervasive problem in Zambia and seeks to prevent the worst forms of child labor and protect children.(45)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

Zambia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2016, the National Action Plan for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor expired and was not replaced.(11, 46) The Government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the Education Policy and the National Youth Policy.(1, 2) Efforts to implement the National Child Labor Policy have been restricted by inadequate funding.(32, 33) No new activities were undertaken to implement the National Child Labor Policy, Revised Sixth National Development Plan, and National Employment and Labor Market Policy during the reporting period, in large part due to poor funding.(32)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2016, the Government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor, including its worst forms (Table 10).

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor[‡]

Program	Description
USDOL-funded projects	Empower: Increasing Economic and Social Empowerment for Adolescent Girls and Vulnerable Women in Zambia ,* $5 million USDOL-funded, 4-year project implemented by Winrock International to reduce child labor in rural Zambia among adolescent girls, ages 15 to 17, by increasing access to technical, vocational, entrepreneurial, and life skills training.(47) Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues Project , implemented by the ILO in approximately 40 countries, supports the priorities of the Roadmap for Achieving the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor by 2016 established by the Hague Global Child Labor Conference in 2010. Aims to improve the evidence base on child labor and forced labor through data collection and research in Zambia.(48) Additional information is available on the USDOL Web site .
Achieving Reduction of Child Labor in Support of Education II (2015–2018)*	Japan Tobacco International-funded, 3-year global training program that provides strategies to reduce the worst forms of child labor in tobacco-growing communities in Brazil, Malawi, Tanzania, and Zambia.(49) In April 2016, Phase II of the project was launched in Zambia.(11, 50)
Social Cash Transfer Program [†]	Government program that provides funds to families and has been shown to increase school enrollment. Scaled up by the Government over time.(2, 14, 51, 52)
Strengthening Social Dialogue as an Effective Tool to Address the Worst Forms of Child Labour	Irish Aid-funded, five-country project, promotes social dialogue with the aim of reducing child labor.(53)
Decent Work Country Programme (2013–2016)	Government program with emphasis on human development, including social protection, child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking.(54)
Zambia National Service Skills Training Camps [†]	Government program that provides life-skills training camps for at-risk youth, including for victims of the worst forms of child labor.(19, 33)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

[†] Program is funded by the Government of Zambia.

[‡] The Government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor, including its worst forms.(1, 55)

Although Zambia has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

This ratio is the total number of new entrants in the last grade of primary education, regardless of age, expressed as a percentage of the population at the theoretical entrance age to the last grade of primary education. A high ratio indicates a high degree of current primary education completion. The calculation includes all new entrants to the last grade (regardless of age). Therefore, the ratio can exceed 100 percent, due to over-aged and under-aged children who enter primary school late/early and/or repeat grades. This number is used to calculate a "sufficient number" of labor inspectors based on the country's level of development as determined by the UN.
37. ILO. Strategies and Practice for Labour Inspection. Geneva, Committee on Employment and Social Policy; November 2006. <http://www.ilo.org/public/english/standards/relm/gb/docs/gb297/pdf/esp-3.pdf>. Article 10 of ILO Convention No. 81 calls for a "sufficient number" of inspectors to do the work required. As each country assigns different priorities of enforcement to its inspectors, there is no official definition for a "sufficient" number of inspectors. Amongst the factors that need to be taken into account are the number and size of establishments and the total size of the workforce. No single measure is sufficient but in many countries the available data sources are weak. The number of inspectors per worker is currently the only internationally comparable indicator available. In its policy and technical advisory services, the ILO has taken as reasonable benchmarks that the number of labor inspectors in relation to workers should approach: 1/10,000 in industrial market economies; 1/15,000 in industrializing economies; 1/20,000 in transition economies; and 1/40,000 in less developed countries.
38. UN. World Economic Situation and Prospects 2012 Statistical Annex; 2012. http://www.un.org/en/development/desa/policy/wesp/wesp_current/2012country_class.pdf. For analytical purposes, the Development Policy and Analysis Division (DPAD) of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs of the United Nations Secretariat (UN/DESA) classifies all countries of the world into one of three broad categories: developed economies, economies in transition, and developing countries. The composition of these groupings is intended to reflect basic economic country conditions. Several countries (in particular the economies in transition) have characteristics that could place them in more than one category; however, for purposes of analysis, the groupings have been made mutually exclusive. The list of the least developed countries is decided upon by the United Nations Economic and Social Council and, ultimately, by the General Assembly, on the basis of recommendations made by the Committee for Development Policy. The basic criteria for inclusion require that certain thresholds be met with regard to per capita GNI, a human assets index and an economic vulnerability index. For the purposes of the Findings on the Worst Forms of Child Labor Report, "developed economies" equate to the ILO's classification of "industrial market economies;" "economies in transition" to "transition economies," "developing countries" to "industrializing economies, and "the least developed countries" equates to "less developed countries." For countries that appear on both "developing countries" and "least developed countries" lists, they will be considered "least developed countries" for the purpose of calculating a "sufficient number" of labor inspectors.
