Read caption

The road leading from the small airport outside Bamenda in the North-West region of Cameroon and into the city has been the site for intense fighting and the area is now mostly abandoned. Burned and destroyed houses and cars are everywhere to be seen here in Mankon village. Photo: Ingebjørg Kårstad/NRC

Joint statement on attacks on civilians in the North-West and South-West regions of Cameroon

Published 04. Mar 2020

The International Rescue Committee (IRC) and the Norwegian Refugee Council (NRC) call upon all parties to the conflict in the North-West and South-West regions of Cameroon to uphold international human rights and international humanitarian law and cease all attacks on civilians without delay.

The crisis destabilizing the English speaking parts of Cameroon has taken a worrying turn, with an increasing number of reports of targeted attacks against civilians, property and violations of the humanitarian space. More than 700,000 people are displaced, nearly 1 million children are out of school, and the humanitarian needs are mounting.

Survivors have shared testimonies of gruesome attacks that have left children orphaned, people homeless, and limited or cut off access to public facilities such as hospitals and schools. “I have been out of school for two years. The boys stopped us from going to school. They would beat you if you tried,” said Charlene, a 23 year-old single mother. “My teacher wanted to give us private classes so we could sit our exams, but they took and tortured him”.

The conflict would take even more from Charlene when her home was burned down by the military. “There was fighting and the boys hid in our corridor. The military set fire to the house to catch them. We became homeless. We lost everything.”

Reports indicate that an incident on February 14 in Ngarbuh Village, North-West Cameroon, left 24 killed, most of whom were women and children. This is only one of several incidences of disturbing attacks, many of which remain undocumented and impact directly the civilian population.

NRC, the IRC and partners have also witnessed attacks on civilians during humanitarian distributions. “We cannot silently witness defenceless civilians, who are already suffering from extreme deprivation, being attacked while seeking lifesaving assistance,” said Maureen Magee, NRC Regional Director for Central and West Africa. “People in need of humanitarian assistance must be allowed to access necessary support, without having to fear for their lives.”
“This crisis needs more attention,” said Paul Taylor, IRC Regional Vice President for West Africa. “People have been forced to flee and sleep in open air without adequate food or clean water. Aid agencies need additional resources to meet the needs of those displaced by this crisis, and all parties need to ensure that aid agencies are able to access those who are in desperate need of basic services.”

The IRC and NRC call for the immediate cessation of attacks against civilians, the respect of humanitarian space, and that parties to the conflict allow unimpeded access for humanitarian organizations, in accordance with the law, to conduct a coordinated response to reach the people most in need.

For interviews or more information, please contact:

NRC: media@nrc.no, +4790562329.

IRC: Kellie Ryan, kellie.ryan@rescue.org or communications@rescue.org, +254758710198.
Statement by the Norwegian Refugee Council's Secretary General, Jan Egeland, to the United Nations Security Council Arria-Formula meeting on his visit to assess the humanitarian situation in Cameroon, and recommendations on the way forward

Cameroon  |  25. Apr 2019

Cameroon conflict produces mounting humanitarian needs

The Norwegian Refugee Council is alarmed by soaring humanitarian needs in English-speaking regions of Cameroon.

Nigeria  |  Cameroon  |  30. Jan 2019

NRC alarmed by displacement of 30,000 people from Nigeria to Cameroon

CONTACT US

Norwegian Refugee Council
Prinsensgate 2 (Map)
0152 Oslo
Norway

Customer service: fundraising@nrc.no
Privacy policy
About our use of cookies

Switchboard: +47 23 10 98 00

General inquiries: nrc@nrc.no
Expert deployments: norcap@nrc.no
About the website: webmaster@nrc.no

Follow NRC

COUNTRIES IN FOCUS

Syria
South Sudan
Yemen
Afghanistan
Iraq
ISSUES IN FOCUS
Climate change and displacement
Housing, land and property rights
Urban displacement
Cash & vouchers

SHORTCUTS
About us
Vacancies
Reports
Procurements
Camp management toolkit
HEAT security training
BRCiS Consortium

Over 90 per cent of NRC’s income is channelled to our work with people forced to flee.