Claim No. IRQ-II-106

Decision No. IRQ-II-191

Counsel for Claimant:

PROPOSED DECISION

Claimant Estate brings this claim against the Republic of Iraq (“Iraq”) alleging that Iraq held the decedent, Ralph W. Leidholdt, hostage in violation of international law. Because Claimant Estate has established that Iraq held the decedent hostage for 123 days, it is entitled to an award of $765,000.

BACKGROUND AND BASIS OF THE PRESENT CLAIM

Claimant Estate alleges that Mr. Leidholdt was a United States citizen who was working in Kuwait when Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2, 1990. The Estate asserts that after the invasion Mr. Leidholdt was detained by Iraqi forces and held as a “human shield” at a munitions factory in Iraq, and that during this entire period, the Iraqi government in effect forcibly prevented Mr. Leidholdt (and other U.S. nationals) from leaving Kuwait and Iraq and did so with the express purpose of compelling the United States government to acquiesce to certain Iraqi government demands. Claimant Estate asserts that Mr. Leidholdt flew out of Baghdad on December 2, 1990, after Muhammad Ali, a former American professional boxer and activist, negotiated his release with Iraqi officials. Mr. Leidholdt died on May 4, 1994.

Although neither Mr. Leidholdt nor the Claimant Estate was among them, many of the U.S. nationals in Iraq and Kuwait at the time of the 1990-91 Iraqi occupation of Kuwait sued Iraq (and others) in federal court for, among other things, hostage-taking.¹ Those cases were pending when, in September 2010, the United States and Iraq concluded an en bloc (lump-sum) settlement agreement.² The Agreement, which entered into force in May 2011, covered a number of personal injury claims of U.S. nationals arising from acts of the former Iraqi regime occurring prior to October 7, 2004, including claims of personal injury caused by hostage-taking.³ Exercising its authority to distribute money from the settlement funds, the U.S. Department of State provided compensation to numerous individuals whose claims were covered by the Agreement, including some whom Iraq had allegedly taken hostage or unlawfully detained following Iraq's 1990 invasion of Kuwait.

Under the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949 ("ICSA"), the Secretary of State has statutory authority to refer "a category of claims against a foreign government" to this Commission.⁴ The Secretary has delegated that authority to the State Department's Legal Adviser, who, by letter dated October 7, 2014, referred three categories of claims to this Commission for adjudication and certification.⁵ This was the State Department's second referral of claims to the Commission under the Claims Settlement Agreement, the first having been by letter dated November 14, 2012 ("2012 Referral" or "November 2012 Referral").⁶

One category of claims from the 2014 Referral is applicable here. That category, known as Category A, consists of claims by U.S. nationals for hostage-taking¹ by Iraq² in violation of international law prior to October 7, 2004, provided that the claimant was not a plaintiff in pending litigation against Iraq for hostage taking³ at the time of the entry into force of the Claims Settlement Agreement and has not received compensation under the Claims Settlement Agreement from the U.S. Department of State. . . .

¹ For purposes of this referral, hostage-taking would include unlawful detention by Iraq that resulted in an inability to leave Iraq or Kuwait after Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2, 1990.

² For purposes of this referral, "Iraq" shall mean the Republic of Iraq, the Government of the Republic of Iraq, any agency or instrumentality of the Republic of Iraq, and any official, employee or agent of the Republic of Iraq acting within the scope of his or her office, employment or agency.

⁶ Although the November 2012 Referral involved claims of U.S. nationals who were held hostage or unlawfully detained by Iraq, it did not involve hostage-taking claims per se. Rather, it consisted of certain claimants who had already received compensation under the Claims Settlement Agreement from the State Department for their hostage-taking claims, and it authorized the Commission to award additional compensation to those claimants, provided they could show, among other things, that they suffered a "serious personal injury" during their detention. The 2012 Referral expressly noted that the "payment already received by the claimant under the Claims Settlement Agreement compensated the claimant for his or her experience for the entire duration of the period in which the claimant was held hostage or was subject to unlawful detention and encompassed physical, mental, and emotional injuries generally associated with such captivity or detention." Letter dated November 14, 2012, from the Honorable Harold Hongju Koh, Legal Adviser, Department of State, to the Honorable Timothy J. Feighery, Chairman, Foreign Claims Settlement Commission, at ¶3 n.3.

2014 Referral at ¶ 3.

On October 23, 2014, the Commission published notice in the Federal Register announcing the commencement of the second Iraq Claims Program pursuant to the ICSA and the 2014 Referral.⁷

On September 17, 2015, the Commission received from the Claimant Estate a completed Statement of Claim seeking compensation under Category A of the 2014 Referral, together with exhibits supporting the elements of its claim. By letter dated June 29, 2016, the Claimant Estate submitted additional evidence in support of its claim.

DISCUSSION

Standing

Claimant Estate has submitted a copy of Letters of Administration, issued on August 24, 2015, by the District Court of Jefferson County, Colorado, appointing Rosemary B. Leidholdt as the personal representative for the estate of Ralph W. Leidholdt. Accordingly, the Commission concludes that ESTATE OF RALPH W. LEIDHOLDT, DECEASED; ROSEMARY B. LEIDHOLDT, EXECUTOR, is the proper claimant in this claim.

Jurisdiction

This Commission's authority to hear claims is limited to the category of claims referred to it by the United States Department of State.⁸ The Commission's jurisdiction under the "Category A" paragraph of the 2014 Referral is limited to claims for hostage-taking of (1) "U.S. nationals," provided that the claimant (2) was not a plaintiff in any litigation against Iraq for hostage taking pending on May 22, 2011 (the “Pending Litigation”), and (3) has not received compensation under the Claims Settlement Agreement from the Department of State. 2014 Referral at ¶ 3.

Nationality

This claims program is limited to claims of “U.S. nationals.” Here, that means the claim must have been held by a national of the United States when the claim arose and continuously thereafter until May 22, 2011, the date the Agreement entered into force.⁹ Because the decedent, Mr. Leidholdt, died before May 22, 2011, this claim passed from him to his estate prior to May 22, 2011. In such circumstances, the estate must also be a U.S. national. For an estate to be viewed as a U.S. national requires that all of the estate’s beneficiaries also be U.S. nationals. Thus, to satisfy the U.S. nationality requirement, Claimant Estate must show that Mr. Leidholdt was a U.S. national from the time of the alleged hostage-taking until he died and that all of the Estate’s beneficiaries were U.S. nationals from Mr. Leidholdt’s death until May 22, 2011.¹⁰

Claimant Estate satisfies the nationality requirement. It has provided evidence sufficient to show that the claim was held continuously by a U.S. national from August 2, 1990, which is the date that the alleged hostage-taking began, through the effective date of the Claims Settlement Agreement. From August 2, 1990 to May 4, 1994, the claim was held by the decedent. Claimant Estate has submitted a copy of the decedent’s U.S. passport valid from August 22, 1983 through August 21, 1993, which shows that he was a U.S. national at the time of the alleged hostage-taking (August through December of 1990)

⁹ See Claim No. IRQ-II-161, Decision No. IRQ-II-003, at 4-5.

¹⁰ See, e.g., Claim No. Y-0660, Decision No. Y-1171 (1954); Claim No. W-9801, Decision No. W-2107 (1965); Claim No. G-2154, Decision No. G-1955 (1981); and Claim No. ALB-338, Decision No. ALB-321 (2008).

through shortly before his death in 1994. Claimant Estate has also provided a copy of the decedent's Colorado death certificate, which suffices to support the conclusion that he remained a U.S. national through the date of his death.

From May 4, 1994 to May 22, 2011, the claim was held by Rosemary B. Leidholdt, who is identified as the sole heir of the decedent's estate in the Application for Informal Appointment of Personal Representative that was approved on August 24, 2015, by the District Court of Jefferson County, Colorado. Claimant Estate has submitted copies of Ms. Leidholdt's U.S. passports valid from March 13, 1984, through March 12, 1994 and from July 14, 2005 through July 13, 2015, which establish that she was a U.S. national from May 4, 1994, the date of the decedent's death, through May 22, 2011, the effective date of the Claims Settlement Agreement. Thus, Claimant Estate has satisfied this element of its claim.

No Pending Litigation

Additionally, Category A states that the claimant may not have been a plaintiff in any of the so-called Pending Litigation cases at the time of the entry into force of the Claims Settlement Agreement.¹¹ Footnote 3 of the 2014 Referral specifically lists the Pending Litigation cases for purposes of the Referral. Ms. Leidholdt, the Estate's Executrix, has averred, and the pleadings in the cases cited in footnote 3 confirm, that neither Mr. Leidholdt nor the Estate were a plaintiff in any of those Pending Litigation cases. The Commission thus finds that Claimant Estate has also satisfied this element of its claim.

¹¹ The Agreement entered into force on May 22, 2011. See Claims Settlement Agreement, art. IX.

No Compensation under the Claims Settlement Agreement from the Department of State

The Claimant Estate also satisfies the final jurisdictional requirement. Ms. Leidholdt, the Estate's Executrix, has stated that neither the decedent nor the Estate have received any compensation under the Claims Settlement Agreement from the Department of State. Further, we have no evidence that the State Department has provided either of them any compensation under the Claims Settlement Agreement. Therefore, Claimant Estate meets this element of its claim.

In summary, this claim is within the Commission's jurisdiction pursuant to the 2014 Referral and is entitled to adjudication on the merits.

Merits

Factual Allegations

Claimant Estate states that Iraq held Mr. Leidholdt hostage from August 2, 1990, until December 2, 1990, a total of 123 days. Claimant Estate asserts that Mr. Leidholdt relocated in 1989 to Kuwait, where he had been assigned by his employer to serve as a project manager for the Kuwaiti Ministry of Public Works. Mr. Leidholdt spent the first 50 days of the crisis hiding in his apartment near Kuwait City with his roommate, who was another American citizen and work colleague. On September 20, 1990, eight Iraqi armed policemen forced their way into the apartment. One of the policemen pushed his gun into Mr. Leidholdt's stomach and demanded that he turn over his car keys and car registration. Mr. Leidholdt and his roommate were then taken to the Regency Palace Hotel in Kuwait City, where they were detained for the next five days. They were then taken to the Mansour Melia Hotel in Baghdad, Iraq, where they were detained for two more days. On September 27, 1990, armed Iraqi guards took Mr. Leidholdt to a munitions complex in the village of Yousifya, where they held him in a small building between two bunkers, each of which sat atop an underground munitions factory. Mr. Leidholdt's living quarters were dirty and infested with flies and other insects; the food he was provided was meager; and munitions were tested at the complex eight hours a day, six days a week. During this time, he could hear the sound of the exploding ordnance ringing in his ears. On November 21, 1990, nearly two months after arriving in Yousifya, Mr. Leidholdt was taken back to the Mansour Melia Hotel in Baghdad. After a week at the hotel, he was provided with his passport and an exit visa, and on December 1, 1990, he was driven to another hotel, where he was greeted by Mohammad Ali, a former American professional boxer and activist, who had negotiated the release of 15 hostages. On December 2, 1990, Mr. Leidholdt and 14 other hostages departed Iraq on an evacuation flight bound for Amman, Jordan.

Supporting Evidence

Claimant Estate has supported its claim with a Statement of Claim signed by Rosemary B. Leidholdt, Mr. Leidholdt's widow and the Executrix of his estate. It has also provided a copy of Mr. Leidholdt's U.S. passport valid from August 22, 1983, through August 21, 1993, which contains a Kuwaiti entry stamp that, although difficult to read, is clearly from some time in 1989, an Iraqi exit stamp dated December 2, 1990, a Jordanian entry stamp from December 2, 1990, and a signature that appears to read "Muhammad Ali" next to the Jordanian entry stamp. Claimant Estate has also provided a copy of a December 9, 1990 article Mr. Leidholdt wrote in the Rocky Mountain News discussing his experience in Kuwait and Iraq and stating that he left Iraq on a December 2, 1990 evacuation flight organized by Muhammad Ali.

Claimant Estate has also submitted a number of documents that provide background about the broader geopolitical situation during the First Gulf War in 1990-91, including some that relate specifically to the circumstances faced by U.S. nationals in Iraq and Kuwait at the time. These documents include statements from U.S. and Iraqi officials, resolutions of the United Nations Security Council, newspaper articles, a report from Amnesty International on human rights violations committed by Iraq in 1990, affidavits submitted in a lawsuit brought by other U.S. nationals who were also in Kuwait or Iraq during the First Gulf War, and several unclassified cables from the U.S. Department of State.

Legal Standard

To make out a substantive claim under Category A of the 2014 Referral, a claimant must show that (1) Iraq was engaged in an armed conflict and (2) during that conflict, Iraq took the claimant hostage.¹² The Commission has previously held that, to establish a hostage-taking claim, a claimant must show that Iraq (a) seized or detained the claimant and (b) threatened the claimant with death, injury, or continued detention (c) in order to compel a third party, such as the United States government, to do or abstain from doing any act as an explicit or implicit condition for the claimant's release.¹³ A claimant can establish the first element of this standard by showing that the Iraqi government confined the claimant to a particular location or locations within Iraq or Kuwait, or prohibited the claimant from leaving Iraq and/or Kuwait.¹⁴

Application of Standard to this Claim

(1) Armed Conflict: Claimant Estate alleges that Iraq took Mr. Leidholdt hostage in Iraq on August 2, 1990, and held him hostage for 123 days, until December 2, 1990, when Iraqi officials allowed him to leave the country on an evacuation flight organized by Muhammad Ali. In its first decision awarding compensation for hostage-taking under the 2014 Referral, the Commission held that during this entire period, Iraq was engaged in an armed conflict with Kuwait.¹⁵ Thus, Claimant Estate satisfies this element of the standard.

¹² See Claim No. IRQ-II-161, Decision No. IRQ-II-003, at 16. An estate claimant would of course need to make this showing as to its decedent.

¹³ See id. at 17-20.

¹⁴ See id. at 17.

(2) Hostage-taking: To satisfy the hostage-taking requirement of Category A of the 2014 Referral, Claimant Estate must show that Iraq (a) seized or detained Mr. Leidholdt and (b) threatened him with death, injury, or continued detention (c) in order to compel a third party, such as the United States government, to do or abstain from doing any act as an explicit or implicit condition for his release. Claimant Estate satisfies this standard for the 123-day period from August 2, 1990, to December 2, 1990.

(a) Detention/deprivation of freedom: For purposes of analyzing Claimant Estate's allegations of Mr. Leidholdt having been detained, his time in Kuwait and Iraq following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait can be divided into three periods: (i) between the invasion on August 2, 1990, and the Iraqi government's formal closing of the borders on August 9, 1990; (ii) from that August 9th formal closing of the borders until Iraq returned his passport to him and gave him an exit visa on or around November 29, 1990; and (iii) from November 29, 1990, until Mr. Leidholdt's departure on December 2, 1990.¹⁶

From August 2, 1990, until Iraq formally closed its borders and Kuwait's borders to foreign nationals on August 9, 1990, Iraq confined Mr. Leidholdt within Kuwait. The Commission has previously determined that Iraq detained U.S. nationals who were in ¹⁵ See id. at 16-17.

Kuwait and/or Iraq during this period by threatening them with immediate seizure and/or forcible detention.¹⁷ Although some foreign nationals did manage to leave Kuwait and/or Iraq during this period, Mr. Leidholdt could not reasonably be expected to have escaped.¹⁸ Mr. Leidholdt presumably had, as the United Nations Compensation Commission has put it, a “manifestly well-founded fear” of being killed or forcibly detained if he attempted to leave the country.¹⁹ For the purposes of the legal standard applicable here, putting Mr. Leidholdt in this situation in effect amounts to detention.²⁰ Iraq thus detained him from August 2, 1990, to August 9, 1990.

From August 9, 1990, until he departed Iraq on December 2, 1990, the Iraqi government confined Mr. Leidholdt to Kuwait and then Iraq, preventing him from leaving by the threat of force. As the Commission has previously held, starting on August 9, 1990, the Iraqi government formally closed Kuwait and Iraq’s borders, forcibly prohibiting U.S. nationals from leaving.²¹ As of that date, Iraq formally prohibited Mr. Leidholdt from leaving Kuwait and Iraq, effectively detaining him, first within the borders of Kuwait, and then within the borders of Iraq.²² For Mr. Leidholdt, this formal policy of prohibiting U.S. nationals from leaving Kuwait and Iraq lasted until approximately November 29, 1990, when the Iraqi government gave him back his U.S. passport and an exit visa. Because Iraq's previous releases of various categories of foreign nationals did not apply to Mr. Leidholdt,²³ this was the earliest date that he was legally authorized to leave Iraq.

Although Mr. Leidholdt may have been legally permitted to leave Iraq on or about November 29, 1990, his detention did not end on that date. As the Commission has previously recognized, a claimant's detention ends only on the date that he is released from the control of the person or entity that detained him.²⁴ Any attempt "[by the perpetrator] to restrict [the] movements" of a claimant establishes control,²⁵ whereas a claimant who has a reasonable opportunity to leave the site of his or her captivity is deemed no longer to be under the perpetrator's control.²⁶

Under this standard, Mr. Leidholdt remained under Iraq's control until December 2, 1990. The Commission has previously held that Iraq imposed conditions on air travel that limited the ability of foreign nationals, including U.S. nationals, to leave Iraq and/or Kuwait in both September 1990 (after the release of female and minor U.S. nationals on August 28, 1990) and December 1990 (after the release of all remaining U.S. nationals).²⁷ Indeed, the available evidence indicates that Mr. Leidholdt left Iraq at the first reasonable opportunity, on the December 2, 1990 evacuation flight that left Iraq. Because there is no evidence that Mr. Leidholdt remained voluntarily in Iraq at any time during this period, we conclude that he was under Iraq's control and thus detained from the date that Iraq returned his U.S. passport and gave him an exit visa (on or around November 29, 1990) to December 2, 1990.

In sum, Iraq thus detained Mr. Leidholdt from August 2, 1990, until December 2, 1990.

(b) Threat: In its first decision awarding compensation for hostage-taking under the 2014 Referral, the Commission determined that the Iraqi government threatened U.S. nationals in Kuwait and Iraq numerous times with continued detention.²⁸ This included Mr. Leidholdt.²⁹ Both Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and the Speaker of Iraq's National Assembly Saadi Mahdi made clear that American nationals (as well as those from numerous other countries) would not be permitted to leave.³⁰

In short, the Iraqi government made unequivocal threats to continue to detain U.S. nationals in Kuwait and Iraq. Mr. Leidholdt was a U.S. national in Iraq at the time. Claimant Estate has thus established that Iraq threatened to continue to detain Mr. Leidholdt.

(c) Third party coercion: The Commission has previously held that Iraq detained all U.S. nationals in Kuwait and Iraq at the time and threatened them with continued detention in order to compel the United States government to act in certain ways as an explicit and/or implicit condition for their release.³¹ Iraq itself stated that it sought

²⁸ See Claim No. IRQ-II-161, Decision No. IRQ-II-003, at 23.

²⁹ While we determine that these statements apply to the decedent and other similarly situated U.S. nationals who were prevented from leaving Iraq or Kuwait after the invasion, we do not make any findings as to whether they also apply to U.S. nationals with diplomatic status: Iraqi officials made specific representations about the ability of diplomatic and consular staff members with U.S. nationality (and their relatives) to leave Iraq and Kuwait throughout the crisis. See In Iraq: 'We Have A Problem' Iraq Holds Fleeing U.S. Diplomats Staff from Kuwait Reaches Baghdad, But Can't Leave, PHILA. INQUIRER, Aug. 24, 1990, <https://perma.cc/B2YF-79AY>.

three things from the United States government before it would release the detained U.S. nationals; it wanted the United States (i) not to attack Iraq, (ii) to withdraw its troops from Saudi Arabia; and/or (iii) to end the economic embargo imposed on Iraq.³² Indeed, at the time, the U.S. government itself understood Iraq's actions to be hostage-taking.³³

In sum, this claim meets the standard for hostage-taking within the meaning of the 2014 Referral. Iraq held Mr. Leidholdt hostage in violation of international law for a period of 123 days, and the Claimant Estate is thus entitled to compensation.

COMPENSATION

Having concluded that the present claim is compensable, the Commission must next determine the appropriate amount of compensation.

In its first decision awarding compensation for hostage-taking under the 2014 Referral, the Commission held that successful claimants should be awarded compensation in the amount of $150,000 plus an additional $5,000 for each day the claimant was in captivity.³⁴ Therefore, for the 123 days Iraq held Mr. Leidholdt hostage, he is entitled to an award of $765,000, which is $150,000 plus (123 x $5,000). This amount constitutes the entirety of the compensation to which the Claimant Estate is entitled under the Claims Settlement Agreement.

The Commission hereby enters the following award, which will be certified to the Secretary of the Treasury for payment under sections 7 and 8 of the ICOSA.³⁵
