OF THE UNITED STATES
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20579

In the Matter of the Claim of

5 U.S.C. §552(b)(6)

Against the Republic of Iraq

Claim No. IRQ-II-214

Decision No. IRQ-II-150

Counsel for Claimant:

Anthony Onorato, Esq.
FisherBroyles, LLP

PROPOSED DECISION

Claimant brings this claim against the Republic of Iraq ("Iraq") alleging that Iraq held her hostage in violation of international law in August and September 1990. Because she has established that Iraq held her hostage for 25 days, she is entitled to an award of $275,000.

BACKGROUND AND BASIS OF THE PRESENT CLAIM

Claimant alleges that she was born a United States citizen in Kuwait on August 19, 1990, after Iraq invaded that country on August 2, 1990. Although she has no personal memory of the experience, she states that she lived with her family in Kuwait after her birth and during the occupation, and remained there for approximately three and a half weeks until she was evacuated from Kuwait on September 12, 1990.

Although Claimant was not among them, many of the U.S. nationals in Iraq and Kuwait at the time of the 1990-91 Iraqi occupation of Kuwait sued Iraq (and others) in federal court for, among other things, hostage-taking.¹ Those cases were pending when, in September 2010, the United States and Iraq concluded an en bloc (lump-sum) settlement agreement.² The Agreement, which entered into force in May 2011, covered a number of personal injury claims of U.S. nationals arising from acts of the former Iraqi regime occurring prior to October 7, 2004, including claims of personal injury caused by hostage-taking.³ Exercising its authority to distribute money from the settlement funds, the U.S. Department of State provided compensation to numerous individuals whose claims were covered by the Agreement, including some whom Iraq had allegedly taken hostage or unlawfully detained following Iraq's 1990 invasion of Kuwait.

Under the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949 ("ICSA"), the Secretary of State has statutory authority to refer "a category of claims against a foreign government" to this Commission.⁴ The Secretary has delegated that authority to the State Department's Legal Adviser, who, by letter dated October 7, 2014, referred three categories of claims to this Commission for adjudication and certification.⁵ This was the State Department's second referral of claims to the Commission under the Claims Settlement Agreement, the first having been by letter dated November 14, 2012 ("2012 Referral" or "November 2012 Referral").⁶

⁶ Although the November 2012 Referral involved claims of U.S. nationals who were held hostage or unlawfully detained by Iraq, it did not involve hostage-taking claims per se. Rather, it consisted of certain claimants who had already received compensation under the Claims Settlement Agreement from the State Department for their hostage-taking claims, and it authorized the Commission to award additional compensation to those claimants, provided they could show, among other things, that they suffered a "serious

One category of claims from the 2014 Referral is applicable here. That category, known as Category A, consists of claims by U.S. nationals for hostage-taking¹ by Iraq² in violation of international law prior to October 7, 2004, provided that the claimant was not a plaintiff in pending litigation against Iraq for hostage taking³ at the time of the entry into force of the Claims Settlement Agreement and has not received compensation under the Claims Settlement Agreement from the U.S. Department of State. . . .

¹ For purposes of this referral, hostage-taking would include unlawful detention by Iraq that resulted in an inability to leave Iraq or Kuwait after Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2, 1990.

² For purposes of this referral, "Iraq" shall mean the Republic of Iraq, the Government of the Republic of Iraq, any agency or instrumentality of the Republic of Iraq, and any official, employee or agent of the Republic of Iraq acting within the scope of his or her office, employment or agency.

³ For purposes of this category, pending litigation against Iraq for hostage taking refers to the following matters: Acree v. Iraq, D.D.C. 02-cv-00632 and 06-cv-00723, Hill v. Iraq, D.D.C. 99-cv-03346, Vine v. Iraq, D.D.C. 01-cv-02674; Seyam (Islamic Society of Wichita) v. Iraq, D.D.C. 03-cv-00888; Simon v. Iraq, D.D.C. 03-cv-00691.

2014 Referral at ¶ 3.

On October 23, 2014, the Commission published notice in the Federal Register announcing the commencement of the second Iraq Claims Program pursuant to the ICSA and the 2014 Referral.⁷

On October 27, 2015, the Commission received from Claimant a completed Statement of Claim seeking compensation under Category A of the 2014 Referral, together with exhibits supporting the elements of her claim.

personal injury" during their detention. The 2012 Referral expressly noted that the "payment already received by the claimant under the Claims Settlement Agreement compensated the claimant for his or her experience for the entire duration of the period in which the claimant was held hostage or was subject to unlawful detention and encompassed physical, mental, and emotional injuries generally associated with such captivity or detention." 2012 Referral, supra, n.3.

DISCUSSION

Jurisdiction

This Commission's authority to hear claims is limited to the category of claims referred to it by the United States Department of State.⁸ The Commission's jurisdiction under the "Category A" paragraph of the 2014 Referral is limited to claims for hostage-taking of (1) "U.S. nationals," provided that the claimant (2) was not a plaintiff in any litigation against Iraq for hostage taking pending on May 22, 2011 (the "Pending Litigation"), and (3) has not received compensation under the Claims Settlement Agreement from the Department of State. 2014 Referral ¶ 3.

Nationality

This claims program is limited to claims of "U.S. nationals." Here, that means a claimant must have been a national of the United States when the claim arose and continuously thereafter until May 22, 2011, the date the Agreement entered into force.⁹ Claimant satisfies the nationality requirement. She has provided a copy of her U.S. State Department-issued Consular Report of Birth Abroad of a Citizen of the United States of America, which proves that she acquired U.S. citizenship at birth on August 19, 1990; she was therefore a U.S. national at the time of the alleged hostage-taking (August and September 1990). Claimant has also provided copies of each of her previous U.S. passports issued since then, which establish that she remained a U.S. national through the effective date of the Claims Settlement Agreement.

No Pending Litigation

Additionally, Category A states that the claimant must not have been a plaintiff in any of the so-called Pending Litigation cases at the time of the entry into force of the Claims Settlement Agreement.¹⁰ Footnote 3 of the 2014 Referral specifically lists the Pending Litigation cases for purposes of the Referral. Claimant has averred under oath in an October 2015 declaration submitted with her claim, and the pleadings in the cases cited in footnote 3 confirm, that she was not a plaintiff in any of those Pending Litigation cases. The Commission thus finds that Claimant has also satisfied this element of her claim.

No Compensation under the Claims Settlement Agreement from the Department of State

The Claimant also satisfies the final jurisdictional requirement. Claimant has stated that she has “not previously received compensation from the U.S. Department of State under the United States-Iraq Settlement Agreement dated September 2, 2010.” Further, we have no evidence that the State Department has provided her any compensation under the Claims Settlement Agreement. Therefore, Claimant meets this element of her claim.

In summary, this claim is within the Commission’s jurisdiction pursuant to the 2014 Referral and is entitled to adjudication on the merits.

Merits

Factual Allegations

Claimant states that Iraq held her hostage from August 19, 1990, until September 12, 1990, a total of 25 days. She alleges that her family had been living in Fintas, Kuwait, when Iraq invaded the country on August 2, 1990, and that she was born 17 days later, on August 19, 1990. Although Claimant does not have any personal memories of her experience, her mother later told her that, at the hospital, there were “Iraqi soldiers surrounding all areas in Kuwait[,]” and that because of a curfew, “the Iraqi soldiers were shooting guns to let everyone know to go inside.” She was also “told . . . of the fact that the Iraqi soldiers were in complete control of the area, [that] there was constant gunfire and bombings, and that the Iraqis were searching for Americans to take”

On August 28, 1990, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein announced that foreign national women and minors could leave the country,¹¹ and Claimant states that “on September 12, [her] mom took [her] and [her] siblings on a flight out of Kuwait, through Baghdad, and later, on through London to North Carolina, then to Tampa on September 13.”

Supporting Evidence

Claimant has supported her claim with, among other things, two sworn declarations, dated October 22, 2015, and July 25, 2017, in which she describes her hostage ordeal as described to her by her family, as well as a copy of a Travel Document Issued in Lieu of a U.S. passport from the American Embassy in Baghdad, Iraq, which states that it was “given in lieu of a passport due to the unavailability of blank passports occurring at this Embassy during the events of early August in Iraq.” The travel document contains an Iraqi exit stamp dated September 12, 1990, and a London-Gatwick entry stamp for the same day. As noted above, Claimant has also filed a copy of her Consular Report of Birth Abroad, which indicates that she was born in Kuwait on August 19, 1990.

The Commission also takes notice of additional documents, submitted by other claimants in this Iraq Claims Program, that provide background about the broader geopolitical situation during the First Gulf War in 1990-91, including some that relate specifically to the circumstances faced by U.S. nationals in Iraq and Kuwait at the time. These documents include statements from U.S. and Iraqi officials, resolutions of the United Nations Security Council, newspaper articles, a report from Amnesty International on human rights violations committed by Iraq in 1990, unclassified cables and a memorandum from the U.S. Department of State, and affidavits submitted in a lawsuit brought by other U.S. nationals who were also in Kuwait or Iraq during the First Gulf War.

The Commission further takes notice of a declaration, dated October 21, 2015, submitted by Claimant's mother in support of her own claim in this Iraq Claims Program, as well as a copy of her then-valid U.S. passport, which also contains an Iraqi exit stamp dated September 12, 1990. In her declaration, Claimant's mother states that she gave birth on August 19, 1990, and that afterwards, they moved from their apartment to another location "because there were too many soldiers there[]" and they "knew that the Iraqis were looking for Americans." Although she eventually heard on television that "evacuations for Americans would begin[,]" she and her family "were too scared to call the embassy because [they] had heard that the Iraqis were tracking the phone calls and would find and torture you." They had also heard stories about the Iraqis torturing Americans and that the Iraqis "were faking calls from the embassy to lure Americans into being captured."

Legal Standard

To make out a substantive claim under Category A of the 2014 Referral, a claimant must show that (1) Iraq was engaged in an armed conflict and (2) during that conflict, Iraq took the claimant hostage.¹² The Commission has previously held that, to establish a hostage-taking claim, a claimant must show that Iraq (a) seized or detained the claimant and (b) threatened the claimant with death, injury or continued detention (c) in order to compel a third party, such as the United States government, to do or abstain from doing

¹² See id. at 16. An estate claimant would of course need to make this showing as to its decedent.

any act as an explicit or implicit condition for the claimant's release.¹³ A claimant can establish the first element of this standard by showing that the Iraqi government confined the claimant to a particular location or locations within Iraq or Kuwait, or prohibited the claimant from leaving Iraq and/or Kuwait.¹⁴

Application of Standard to this Claim

(1) Armed Conflict: Claimant alleges that Iraq took her hostage in Kuwait on August 19, 1990 and held her hostage for 25 days, until September 12, 1990, when "she was able to leave Kuwait." In its first decision awarding compensation for hostage-taking under the 2014 Referral, the Commission held that during this entire period, Iraq was engaged in an armed conflict with Kuwait.¹⁵ Thus, Claimant satisfies this element of the standard.

(2) Hostage-taking: To satisfy the hostage-taking requirement of Category A of the 2014 Referral, Claimant must show that Iraq (a) seized or detained her and (b) threatened her with death, injury or continued detention (c) in order to compel a third party, such as the United States government, to do or abstain from doing any act as an explicit or implicit condition for her release. Claimant satisfies this standard for the 25-day period from August 19, 1990 to September 12, 1990.

(a) Detention/deprivation of freedom: For purposes of analyzing Claimant's allegations of having been detained, her time in Kuwait following the Iraqi invasion can be divided into two periods: (i) from her birth in Kuwait on August 19, 1990, which followed the Iraqi government's formal closing of the borders on August 9, 1990, until the August 28, 1990 announcement that women and minors could leave Iraq and ¹⁴ See id. at 17.

¹⁵ See id. at 16-17.

Kuwait; and (ii) from that August 28th announcement until Claimant's departure on September 12, 1990.

From August 19, 1990 until Claimant flew from Kuwait to London on September 12, 1990, the Iraqi government confined Claimant to Kuwait (and, for a short time just before her release, the Baghdad airport), preventing her from leaving the country by the threat of force. Starting on August 9, 1990, the Iraqi government formally closed Kuwait's borders, forcibly prohibiting U.S. nationals from leaving.¹⁶ When Claimant was born on August 19, 1990, this formal policy was still in effect. Thus, starting on August 19, 1990, Iraq effectively detained Claimant within the borders of Kuwait and Iraq.¹⁷ This formal policy of prohibiting U.S. nationals from leaving Iraq and Kuwait lasted until August 28, 1990, when the Iraqi government announced that all female and minor U.S. nationals could leave.¹⁸

Although Claimant may have been legally permitted to leave Kuwait on August 28, 1990, her detention did not end on that date. As the Commission has previously recognized, a claimant's detention ends only on the date that she is released from the control of the person or entity that detained her.¹⁹ Any attempt "[by the perpetrator] to restrict [the] movements" of a claimant establishes control,²⁰ whereas a claimant who has a reasonable opportunity to leave the site of his or her captivity is deemed no longer to be under the perpetrator's control.²¹

Under this standard, Claimant remained under Iraq's control until September 12, 1990. The Commission has recognized that Iraq imposed conditions on air travel that limited the ability of foreign nationals, including U.S. nationals, to leave Iraq and/or Kuwait immediately after the August 28, 1990 release announcement.²² Indeed, the available evidence indicates that Claimant left Kuwait at the first reasonable opportunity—on the September 12, 1990 U.S. government-chartered flight that left Kuwait. Because there is no evidence that Claimant remained voluntarily in Kuwait at any time during this period, we conclude that she was under Iraq's control and thus detained from August 28, 1990 to September 12, 1990.

In sum, Iraq thus detained Claimant from August 19, 1990 until September 12, 1990.

(b) Threat: In its first decision awarding compensation for hostage-taking under the 2014 Referral, the Commission determined that the Iraqi government threatened U.S. nationals in Kuwait and Iraq numerous times with continued detention.²³ This included Claimant.²⁴ Both Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and the Speaker of Iraq's National Assembly Saadi Mahdi made clear that American nationals (as well as those from numerous other countries) would not be permitted to leave.²⁵

²³ See id. at 23.

²⁴ While we determine that these statements apply to Claimant and other similarly situated U.S. nationals who were prevented from leaving Iraq or Kuwait after the invasion, we do not make any findings as to whether they also apply to U.S. nationals with diplomatic status: Iraqi officials made specific representations about the ability of diplomatic and consular staff members with U.S. nationality (and their relatives) to leave Iraq and Kuwait throughout the crisis. See In Iraq: 'We Have A Problem' Iraq Holds Fleeing U.S. Diplomats Staff from Kuwait Reaches Baghdad, But Can't Leave, PHILA. INQUIRER, Aug. 24, 1990, <https://perma.cc/B2YF-79AY>.

²⁵ See Claim No. IRQ-II-161, Decision No. IRQ-II-003, at 23.

In short, the Iraqi government made unequivocal threats to continue to detain U.S. nationals in Kuwait and Iraq. Claimant was a U.S. national in Kuwait at the time. Claimant has thus established that Iraq threatened to continue to detain her.

(c) Third party coercion: The Commission has previously held that Iraq detained all U.S. nationals in Kuwait or Iraq at the time and threatened them with continued detention in order to compel the United States government to act in certain ways as an explicit and/or implicit condition for their release.²⁶ Iraq itself stated that it sought three things from the United States government before it would release the detained U.S. nationals; it wanted the United States (i) not to attack Iraq, (ii) to withdraw its troops from Saudi Arabia; and/or (iii) to end the economic embargo imposed on Iraq.²⁷ Indeed, at the time, the U.S. government itself understood Iraq's actions to be hostage-taking.²⁸

In sum, this claim meets the standard for hostage-taking within the meaning of the 2014 Referral. Iraq held Claimant hostage in violation of international law for a period of 25 days, and Claimant is thus entitled to compensation.

COMPENSATION

Having concluded that the present claim is compensable, the Commission must next determine the appropriate amount of compensation.

In its first decision awarding compensation for hostage-taking under the 2014 Referral, the Commission held that successful claimants should be awarded compensation in the amount of $150,000 plus an additional $5,000 for each day the claimant was in captivity.²⁹ Therefore, for the 25 days Iraq held Claimant hostage, she is entitled to an award of $275,000, which is $150,000 plus (25 x $5,000). This amount constitutes the entirety of the compensation to which Claimant is entitled under the Claims Settlement Agreement.

Res. 674 (Oct. 29, 1990) ("actions by . . . Iraq authorities and occupying forces to take third-State nationals hostage" and demanded that Iraq "cease and desist" this practice).

The Commission hereby enters the following award, which will be certified to the Secretary of the Treasury for payment under sections 7 and 8 of the ICSA.³⁰

Claimant is entitled to an award in the amount of $275,000.
