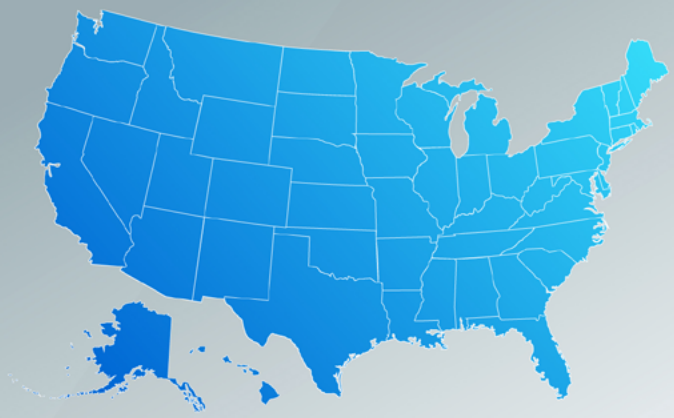
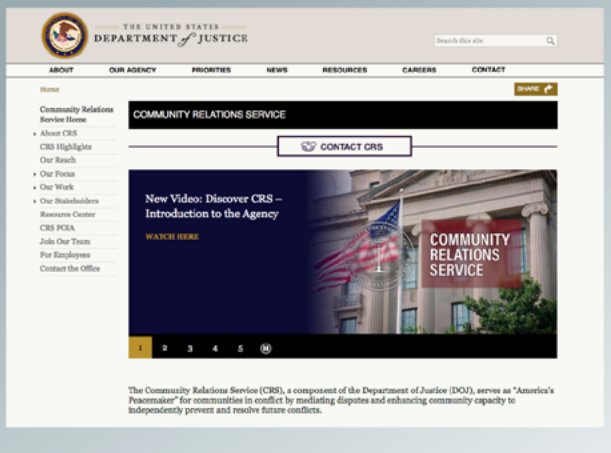
U.S. Department of Justice
Community Relations Service (CRS)

CRS supports communities working to prevent and respond to COVID-19 related bias incidents and hate crimes.



During this time of social distancing, CRS's team of conciliation specialists are still available online and telephonically to serve communities in all 50 states and U.S. territories.

CRS provides virtual services through consultation, dialogues, community meetings, and educational webinars. CRS services provide information to communities about bias incident and hate crime prevention, response, reporting procedures, and resources.



Contact us! If you have questions or to request services, please send an email to:

askCRS@usdoj.gov

Visit the DOJ CRS Resources Center for training, videos, brochures, and more:

www.justice.gov/crs/crs-resource-center