Boss — I just received the below from our Italian friends. We had asked whether they might be able to meet you in Italy on the 15th or 16th (this Thurs or Fri), and this is their response: "Hi Will, I conveyed the message as agreed. Gen. Gennaro Vecchione, head of the DIS (our DNI), would be happy to meet with the AG in Rome on August 15th at 17:00 (followed, if appreciated, by a dinner). I would need to know who's going to be with him and especially if the Embassy is included. Thank you, let me know. Maurizio". Let me know if I should get the wheels moving on this, o (b) (5)

2:48 PM

Tuesday, March 24, 2020

Eric

Here are my thoughts:

People are worried about paying their rent and utility bills. Utilities are regulated businesses meaning that their rates are set by State Public Utilities Commissions ("PUC). Every utility has a rate recovery mechanism for bad debt.

Let's get major utilities CEOs in and ask for a commitment that there will be no shut-offs of services while either a State or Federal emergency is in place for residential customers.

It has almost zero economic impact since they can borrow at almost zero percent now anyway and they recover bad debt in their next rate case. And, the Government can subsidize if necessary.

12:21 PM

Likewise, we should get a commitment that no evictions on any residential tenants where rent is below Y and they're in arrears for X time period (adjusted by jurisdiction/market). Tenants are not relieved of obligations just accrued.

Banks agree to adjust debt service for landlords by rent roll reductions and banks accrue debt until maturity without interest

There are no courts anyway

Then let's start by sending utility workers back to work with protective equipment as needed and expand from there.

We should start with all regulated businesses because they recover their salaries in rate base

Last night: Police again declared an Unlawful Assembly in Portland, OR, this time to disperse those involved in barricading the main intersections in front of the Justice Center and adjacent federal buildings. Police in Aurora, CO were also forced to declare an Unlawful Assembly when repeated warnings did not stop those determined to vandalize their police station. Otherwise, demonstrations in key cities again remained largely peaceful, including those in Washington, DC. There were no reports of attempts to remove any memorials, and no reported impacts to federal facilities. The National Guard Bureau (NGB) reports state activations for civil disturbance support continue in five states and DC, with the number of activated personnel decreasing significantly, now a total of 744 as of 27 Jun, down from a peak of 43,351 in 34 states on 7 Jun.
