Hi, Jennie-

I spoke with Hatch's staff yesterday, and they are going to get back to me once they've had a chance to review with the Senator. I'll ping them again this afternoon if I haven't heard from them.

Thanks,
Suzanna

If you think it would be appropriate, it would be helpful if you could feel out his schedule – for Nov 13/14 and for any other dates in November that he will be in town and available. (Someone told me the other day that the Senate is not in session very much next month so we are guessing he might have only a handful of dates that could work.)

Prim, the Religious Liberty Task Force is planning to put together an event commemorating the 25th anniversary of RFRA's passage. (OLP + OAG will be leads on this.) (b) (5)

We do not have a specific date nailed down yet but the anniversary is November 16, and we'd like to stay relatively close to that date while avoiding a conflict with the Fed Soc convention. Nov 13/14 seem like likely candidates, but again, there is some flex there. At this point though we'd like to reach out to Senator Hatch, both to gauge his interest and to get a sense for his availability next month. Would you prefer for someone in OLA to make the first contact with his office, or are you comfortable with me reaching out directly?

Thanks –

Thanks. Yes. Is he interested in the event as a general matter? If so, we're willing to work around his schedule. Could you please ask them to let us know any dates in November that would work for him? It would be helpful to have at least a few possibilities so that we can cross check Great Hall and AG calendars. (In the week of the 19th I think we wouldn't want to get too close to Thanksgiving, since we'd risk low attendance numbers, but that Monday or maybe that Tuesday would be ok.)

The Honorable Jeff Sessions
Attorney General
U.S. Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Ave., NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Attorney General Sessions,

I commend the actions you have undertaken as Attorney General to protect religious liberty through the creation of the Religious Liberty Task Force.

Freedom of religion and the ability to express one's religious beliefs have been a core American principle since our nation's founding. All Americans have the First Amendment right to speak and peacefully live consistently with their religious convictions. However, these liberties are under assault. As you have previously stated, "A dangerous movement, undetected by many, is now challenging and eroding our great tradition of religious freedom. There can be no doubt. This is no little matter. It must be confronted and defeated." And nowhere is the assault on religious freedom more pervasive than at the Colorado Civil Rights Commission through their selective application of the law, using it to target viewpoints that contradict their own personal beliefs.

For over six years now, the Colorado Civil Rights Commission has been on a crusade against Jack Phillips because its officials despise what he believes and how he practices his faith. After Phillips defended himself all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court and won, he thought Colorado's hostility towards his faith was over. Unfortunately, he was wrong. The Colorado Civil Rights Division has filed a Probable Cause determination in a new attack on Mr. Phillips and his business.

It is abundantly clear that the Colorado Civil Rights Commission is incapable of being fair and impartial to the people who are before them. It is imperative that the Department of Justice investigate the actions of Ms. Aubrey Elenis as the Director of the Colorado Civil Rights Division and to actively monitor the Colorado Civil Rights Commission for continued religious bias in violation of the U.S. Constitution. The Department of Justice cannot continue to allow a biased arbiter, who holds a near monopoly on anti-discrimination cases within the state, to continue to wage a personal campaign against individuals they disagree with.

The Department of Justice should have a substantial interest in ensuring that Colorado’s public accommodation statutes, which share certain features with federal public accommodation laws, including Title II of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C. 2000a et seq., and Title III of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, 42 U.S.C. 12181 et seq. are not applied to violate fundamental first amendment freedoms, including freedom of religion. Indeed, you have said the Department of Justice must also protect people of faith from unjust discrimination.

For nearly 25 years, Jack Phillips has owned and operated Masterpiece Cakeshop, Inc. (Masterpiece), a Colorado bakery that creates and sells custom cakes and other baked goods. Mr. Phillips is a Christian who seeks to incorporate his religious principles into all facets of his business. For example, he closes Masterpiece on Sundays, refuses to sell goods containing alcohol, and chooses not to create or sell goods relating to Halloween. Mr. Phillips also believes that he must honor God through the creative aspects of his business, including the design and creation of custom cakes. Mr. Phillips views the creation of custom cakes as a form of art, to which he devotes his creativity and artistic talents.

Both Mr. Phillips and Masterpiece serve everyone. All people – no matter who they are, what they believe, or what protected class they belong to – are welcome in Mr. Phillips’ shop and may purchase anything available for sale. But as a devout Christian, Mr. Phillips cannot create custom cakes that express messages or that celebrate events in conflict with his deeply held religious beliefs.

Mr. Phillips was first targeted by the Colorado Civil Rights Commission when he declined to create a custom wedding cake celebrating a view of marriage that conflicts with his faith’s teachings. The Colorado Civil Right Commission punished Mr. Phillips, while allowing other cake artists to refuse to create cakes with messages they deem objectionable, simply because their ideology aligned with the Commission’s. State officials went so far as to publicly compare Mr. Phillips’s religious exercise to the defense of slavery and the Holocaust.

To punish Mr. Phillips, the Colorado Civil Rights Commission mandated that he implement comprehensive staff reeducation to teach him and his employees that it is wrong for him to operate his business according to his faith. The state also ordered him to either violate his religious beliefs or shut down his custom cake business. Because Mr. Phillips could not turn his back on his faith, he was forced to give up that part of his work, which cost him and his family 40% of their income and caused more than half of his employees to lose their jobs.

After six grueling years, Mr. Phillips was vindicated by the Supreme Court in a 7-to-2 decision, bolstered by an amicus brief from the Department of Justice. The ruling declared that the Colorado Civil Rights Commission acted with “clear and impermissible hostility toward [his] sincere religious beliefs,” Masterpiece Cakeshop, Ltd. V Colo. Civil Rights Comm’n, 138 S. Ct. 1719, 1729 (2018). The Supreme Court held that the Commission manifested its anti-religious hostility by disparaging Mr. Phillips’ religion, “describing it as despicable,” and enforcing a double standard that harshly punished Mr. Phillips while exonerating other cake artists who similarly decline requests for cakes with messages they deem offensive.

And what has the Colorado Civil Rights Commission done to remedy what the U.S. Supreme Court called its “impermissible religious hostility”? Absolutely nothing. Instead, less than one month after the Masterpiece decision, state officials targeted the very same individual in retaliation for fighting against the Commission’s abject hostility towards his religious beliefs.

In June of 2017, the very day that the Supreme Court decided to hear Masterpiece, a local attorney asked Jack to design a custom pink-and-blue cake to celebrate their gender transition, a request that Jack politely declined because the cake’s artistic messages clearly conflicted with his deeply held Christian beliefs. In moving forward with this new case, the Colorado Civil Rights Commission is yet again confirming that it applies the law in an arbitrary and unequal way, which the Supreme Court has already said it cannot do.

No one should be bullied or banished from the marketplace simply because their beliefs don’t line up with the government-favored viewpoint.

We are stronger as a nation because of the societal contribution of religious Americans like Jack Phillips. Mr. Phillips and other creative professionals should not be targeted by the government for living consistently with their deeply held beliefs just because an agency director or the government doesn’t like those beliefs.

Religious freedom is critical to maintaining a free society, and it must be defended. The U.S. Constitution stands as a bulwark against state officials, like Ms. Elenis and the Civil Rights Commissioners, who target individuals and seek to ruin their livelihoods because of the government’s anti-religious animus. I am asking the Department of Justice to protect the rights of religious Coloradans by ensuring that the Colorado Civil Rights Commission cannot continue its harassment of people of faith in my home state and its attempts to violate their first amendment freedoms.

Thank you for your attention and careful consideration of this request.

Sincerely,

Doug Lamborn
Member of Congress

Subject: Re: Invite to Senator Hatch for RFRA 25th anniversary event

Hi, guys-

I will reach out to his office first thing tomorrow and let you know what I find out.

Thanks,
Suzanna

Thanks for the quick reply. Yes, will be here at Main – we think in the Great Hall, although I wouldn't promise that yet. We will likely have one other speaker or panel, (b) (5)

If you think it would be appropriate, it would be helpful if you could feel out his schedule – for Nov 13/14 and for any other dates in November that he will be in town and available. (Someone told me the other day that the Senate is not in session very much next month so we are guessing he might have only a handful of dates that could work.)

Jennie,
Thank you for reaching out. This sounds great. Yes, OLA needs to handle the outreach, and we are happy to help with that invitation! I assume that it will be at Main? Do you want us to see what his schedule looks like on the 13th and 14th, along with gauging interest, or do you want to nail down a date first?

Thanks,
Prim

Prim, the Religious Liberty Task Force is planning to put together an event commemorating the 25th anniversary of RFRA's passage. (OLP + OAG will be leads on this.) (b) (5)

[REDACTED]

We do not have a specific date nailed down yet but the anniversary is November 16, and we'd like to stay relatively close to that date while avoiding a conflict with the Fed Soc convention. Nov 13/14 seem like likely candidates, but again, there is some flex there. At this point though we'd like to reach out to Senator Hatch, both to gauge his interest and to get a sense for his availability next month. Would you prefer for someone in OLA to make the first contact with his office, or are you comfortable with me reaching out directly?

Thanks –
Jennie

It sounds like they may stop by your office a couple of minutes before the meeting to touch base on what you will cover and what Jesse will cover. I will let you know when Jeff confirms that.
