Deputy Attorney General Rosenstein,

As you are well-aware, there is a tremendous amount of interest in the firing of James Comey. We have many questions about the sequence of events that led to his termination and your role in it.

I covered you when I was at the Washington Post (we also hung out in the Baltimore FBI office when I was doing a profile of Kevin Davis), and I know many of those who worked with you. They have all described you as a straight-shooter and someone who is not afraid to speak his mind.

If you ever wish to talk about what transpired, I am happy to interview you about it for the WSJ. On background, or on-the-record.

I would normally not reach out directly, but things are moving so quickly that I figured it couldn't hurt.

Thanks for your time.

Good Afternoon,

I wanted to make sure you got our invitation for home iftar dinners during Ramadan. We are looking forward to hosting you in the upcoming month.

Thank you,
Samantha

Dear Friends,

We are delighted to invite you to join us this Ramadan season to break bread with us at iftar dinners with host families throughout Washington, D.C. and Northern Virginia during May 27-June 24.

If you are interested in joining us during any of these dates, we kindly ask you to provide your availability for three dates during this time period via the registration link below. Due to the limited amount of days and homes, we may not be able to accommodate your request if dates fill up quickly. You will be expected to arrive at the homes no later than 8 pm. The dinners start at sunset, which is usually around 8:30 pm during this Ramadan.

Please register your interest by Wednesday, May 24 via the link below:
<https://goo.gl/forms/IV710pnm4KHbspCm1>

We are looking forward to hosting you. We will reconfirm your date and forward you the address and contact information when finalized.

Dear Mr. Deputy Attorney General (Rod):

In the small world category, I have been asked by my friend (b)(6) if I would send some comments of recommendation to you. I am happy to do so, and apologize for communicating by e-mail. However, I wanted to get this into your hands as soon as possible. Thank you in advance for allowing me to share my recommendation. Sincerely, Harry S. Johnson

For the rest of my life, if I ever feel that I'm going through a difficult week at work, I will think about the week you've had and it will put everything in perspective!

More seriously, those of your friends who have known you the longest think of you as virtually synonymous with integrity, and we trust your judgment and honesty more than that of anyone else in public life. Whatever happens in the next few days and weeks, and no matter what hyperbole emanates from the media or Congress, that won't change.

General,

Thank you for taking time out of your busy schedule to see me today. Hang in there. So long as you keep doing the right thing just as you always have done I can promise you one of two possible outcomes. Either EVERYONE will think you are a hero in the end, OR, only the people who really MATTER will think you're a hero. One outcome or another guaranteed. Keep up the good work- you are the RIGHT man for the job.

Preventing crime is our most important mission.

Laws alone do not deter crime. Enforcement deters crime, and it is best accomplished when we work cooperatively with local, state and federal partners, and with other stakeholders.

Prosecutors who understand that principle can be an enormous force for good, particularly if they heed Attorney General Robert Jackson's advice to temper zeal with kindness, seek the truth, serve the law and approach the task with humility.

Many people applied for your job. Prove every day that the person who hired you made the right decision.

Work hard. Work quickly. Be proactive. Be persistent. Build coalitions. Solve problems. Share credit. Learn from mistakes. Make every day count. And never complain.

My favorite management parable is about three stonemasons working on a cathedral wall. A consultant asks each of them to describe the job. The first mason prosaically says, "I earn a living by laying stones." The second proudly proclaims, "I am the best stone cutter in the state." Then the consultant turns to the third mason, who reverently offers, "I am helping to build a cathedral."

Make sure you are building the cathedral.

In a few moments, as I close my office door for the last time, I will be thinking about the exceptional public servants who inspired me to spend the past 27 years as a government lawyer. The mission attracted me to law enforcement, but the people who carry out the mission are what I treasure most about this job. I have seen you pursue justice with ceaseless devotion, often at personal sacrifice and sometimes at physical risk. To those who taught me, those who worked beside me, and those who stood behind me, I am grateful for your friendship and thankful for your accomplishments.

Our office is in good hands. It is in your hands.

Use your power wisely. And always stay humble and kind.

ADDRESS

BY

THE HONORABLE EDWARD H. LEVI
ATTORNEY GENERAL OF THE UNITED STATES

AT THE

PHILADELPHIA AWARD DINNER

HONORING

JUDGE WILLIAM H. HASTIE

8:00 P.M.

MONDAY, APRIL 7, 1975

THE BARCLAY HOTEL

PHILADELPHIA, PENNSYLVANIA

It is a pleasure to be here for the presentation of the Philadelphia Award to Judge William H. Hastie. A review of the past recipients and those associated with this event indicates the Philadelphia Award is indeed an impressive honor. Nevertheless, it is one which can only be enhanced by being presented to Judge Hastie.

At a time when respect for government is perhaps at a low ebb, you have chosen to make this award to a man who has spent most of his life in public office. On this occasion, it is appropriate to ask what we should expect from public officials, elected or appointed. Equally important, it can be asked what they should expect from those they serve. At the risk of embarrassing him, I should say that William Hastie's life suggests some answers to these questions.

A man can often be measured by what he respects. In speaking last year of Francis Biddle -- a Philadelphian and an Attorney General whom I served and admired -- Judge Hastie quoted Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.'s comment that Biddle "always preserved the integrity of his private standards in the public clamor and tumult." Even for those who believe, as I do not, that most public officials stand for nothing and fall for almost anything, Judge Hastie is an obvious exception. His life and work reflect defined values, long and deeply held. Paramount among these is a faith in his fellow man and his right to pursue happiness as he himself defines it.

As many of you may know, shortly after graduating from the Harvard Law School in 1932, William Hastie became a leading civil rights litigator, a government lawyer, a Federal judge for the Virgin Islands and Dean of Howard Law School. By 1940 he was an aide to Secretary of War Henry Stimson -- an exciting job at an important time. But in 1943 he resigned that position to protest racial discrimination in the Air Force.

In the past 10 years we have heard many men who have lost similar positions explain how they wrestled inconclusively with what in retrospect are regarded as questions of conscience. But there were few, if any, who resolved their conflicts as William Hastie did.

The danger to those in public office is undeniable. Issues often do not arise in clear moral terms and the consequences of a wrong decision are often great. The difficulty of deciding these questions is further increased by our ever improving ability to package almost any proposal to make it appear reasonable, if not attractive.

Consideration of resignation over an important issue is inevitably complicated by the question of whether it is better to continue to work from within rather than without. I am sure that many good public servants have worried about the ultimate step of resignation -- a step which is more difficult, but also more important in our non-parliamentary form of government.

For a public official without rooted and recognized values, including the understanding that no man is indispensable, there will be too many close questions and too much opportunity to drift toward danger while trying to resolve them. William Hastie had to wrestle with a hard question. That he had the courage to resolve it decisively despite its complexity provides an important precedent.

The symbolic act of resignation is a vivid reminder that although ours is a system of shared power, public officials are individually responsible and personally accountable for all in which they participate. I hasten to add, however, that I am not suggesting that resignation is the only way to be responsible.

by

In 1949 William Hastie brought with him to the bench a profound understanding of the proper role of the judiciary and the importance of fairly applying established principles. Judge Hastie has said, and I agree, that "the effectiveness of courts must always depend in large measure upon the respect which their processes command by reason of the integrity they reveal." Any partisanship or deviation from established procedures to promote a particular result can only risk grave injustice and erode the public confidence in the legitimacy of the legal process which is essential to our system of government.

Strict standards uniformly applied are basic to the actual and apparent fairness of the legal process. The integrity of this process was tested in the 1950's in many cases involving alleged illegal action by avowed Communists. As Judge Hastie noted in one of his opinions, judges and jurors generally shared an aversion to totalitarianism which could prejudice the trial of any Communist. In one case, for example, the prosecutor stated in court that he believed four defendants were not guilty, but the jury convicted them anyway. In arguing unsuccessfully for reversal, Judge Hastie recognized that "the disposition to relax requirements of strict proof in trials of suspected subversives appears whenever the existing order is subject to stress and strain." He noted that in 1603, when Sir Walter Raleigh was charged with treason and demanded stricter proof at his trial, he was told by the Judge: "I marvel, Sir Walter, that you being of such experience and wit should stand on this point; for so many horse-stealers may escape if they may not be condemned without witnesses." As Judge Hastie recognized then, as now, we need strong determination to enforce the criminal laws surely and swiftly, while at the same time assuring that the law minimizes for everyone the risk of undeserved conviction. Rigorous application of fair, established standards is basic to achieving these twin goals.

The lesson of the 1950's should be very much with us today. In the recent past, law enforcement has been perceived by some as partisan. Such partisanship should be considered inexcusable. In law enforcement there can be neither friends nor enemies and the law must treat important and anonymous interests alike. But the risks in this area are constantly changing. Today we must guard against unfairly prosecuting or convicting public figures for fear of being charged with cover-up or partiality for failing to do so.

This does not diminish, however, the continuing requirement that the government -- that is those men and women in public positions and the institutional totality of their operations as well -- obey the law. For as Louis Brandeis said, "If the government becomes a law breaker, it breeds contempt for the law; it invites every man to become a law unto himself; it invites anarchy."

Judge Hastie and I share the belief that courts ought to have a limited role. They are an important element of our democratic system but they are not -- and should not be -- spokesmen for the popular will. As Judge Hastie has said, "The courts do not serve to make our society run. Rather they serve to prevent it from running wild." To perform their function without a popular mandate, courts must rely on the public perception that their decisions reflect the rigorous application of accepted principles, rather than expressions of political predilection.

Our nation has, however, developed a tendency to transform many political or social problems into legal questions. Often we hope that the formal, judicial process will produce a desired result where the political process has failed to respond. This tendency puts the courts, inappropriately, in the forefront on questions which really require statements of policy preference rather than elaboration of established principle. In many respects, we would be better to expect more from our public officials. But it is equally important that we also demand more from ourselves as citizens.

Felix Frankfurter once said, and he was right, that "in our society the most important office is citizen." I believe we would think better of our country and our government if we would all operate on this assumption. To do so, we must recreate mutual trust between and among our public officials and our citizens. This requires candor by those in office. It requires compassion and concern by all of us.

We should not assume, as some seem to, that the government is solely responsible for pursuing the public interest. Such an assumption is incompatible with the principles upon which this nation was founded. I believe we would be happier with our government and with ourselves if we searched less for solutions and more for meaning -- remembering that such a search can only be an individual or communal effort.

William Hastie has always been aware of his obligations as a public official and as a man -- and he has been equally aware that they are inseparable. In honoring him tonight, you are recognizing what should be found in each of us. That you have chosen to recognize him should encourage all of us.

Rod,

Thank you for your kind and wise words yesterday at Mary McCord's departure gathering.

From my days long ago at the U.S. Attorney's Office in D.C., I know that Mary has served the People long and true.

By taking the time however brief to note the transition of a fine public servant, you and your comments reminded me of a message delivered by a far wise person than I. We may not be able to do great things. But, we can do small things with great love.

Thank you for taking the time in the midst of all other swirling events to honor Mary and, in doing so, to honor the many many similarly dedicated public servants working on behalf of the People.

Until our paths intersect, stay well.

Thanks, Steve

Rod,

Thank you for your kind and wise words yesterday at Mary McCord's departure gathering.

From my days long ago at the U.S. Attorney's Office in D.C., I know that Mary has served the People long and true.

By taking the time however brief to note the transition of a fine public servant, you and your comments reminded me of a message delivered by a far wise person than I. We may not be able to do great things. But, we can do small things with great love.

Thank you for taking the time in the midst of all other swirling events to honor Mary and, in doing so, to honor the many many similarly dedicated public servants working on behalf of the People.

Until our paths intersect, stay well.

Thanks, Steve

Dear Deputy Rosenstein,

The American people are depending on you. You are on the public stage, and please at least make your position clear, even if you would rather not make recommendations that you would consider partisan.

Your resignation would be a horrible loss for Americans like me who are looking to the DOJ to ensure justice, strive toward transparency, and to maintain the rule of law. Even though it seems like you have been played, I have faith that you can still do the difficult but right thing. You have more knowledge than us citizens regarding what happened with this firing, and so I will not pretend to have the answer. Yet to resign would be an abdication of your responsibility to us citizens. Please at least set the record straight and do not abandon your fine career.

Yours,

Sarah Jacobs

Subject: Congratulations on becoming Deputy Attorney General. Two issues that I am asking for your help with.

Dear Deputy Attorney General Rosenstein,

Firstly congratulations on becoming the second most senior prosecutor in the land. It was done without much fanfare, but the accomplishment speaks for itself.

There are two issues that I am asking for your help with. The first is this near constant surveillance of me by the local police agencies. I strongly feel that there is a racist element to this, as I do not believe they would be so 'suspicious' about me, were I a Caucasian man. This near constant surveillance has been going on for years now. Any reasonable investigator would conclude that if nothing was found, after all of this time, that any further surveillance would be inherently prejudicial by nature. This is involving the San Jose police department, the Los Gatos police department, and the Santa Clara county sheriff's office.

The second issue is one with my neighbor. My neighbor would yell anti-homosexual slurs at me whenever I saw him outside. Last August 21, 2016, his wife came across the street and tried to hit me. (b)(6) I had to run for my life. The neighbors who yelled the anti-homosexual slurs at me and tried to hit me (b)(6), as I have written letters to them about it before. When I wrote to the U.S. Attorney's office for the Northern District of California, they referred this case to the San Jose Police department. However I feel that as it deals with anti-homosexual bias it falls under the Justice Department's purview. As well, I do not feel that the San Jose Police department can conduct an impartial investigation into this matter, due to their years of race-based prejudicial surveillance of me.

The neighbors in question are:

Thank you very much for your help Deputy Attorney General Rosenstein,

Steven H. Cook
Office of the Deputy Attorney General
U.S. Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Ave, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Cook,

On behalf of the Major County Sheriffs of America (MCSA), I would like to invite you to address our members at our upcoming meeting in Reno, NV. Every summer, MCSA members from all major metropolitan areas gather to identify, discuss, and share strategies related to public safety challenges and the prevention of crime and terrorism.

Not only will this be an opportunity to discuss vital law enforcement and homeland security issues with the Nation's largest law enforcement agencies, it will also be an opportunity to speak with sheriffs about the Department's Task Force on Crime Reduction and Public Safety.

We are meeting from June 22-23 at the Atlantis Casino Resort and Spa, 3800 S. Virginia Street, Reno, NV and have availability for you to present the morning of Friday, June 23rd. Your staff may contact MCSA's Director of Government Affairs, Laura Cooper at lcooper@brooksawden.com to make any arrangements required to accommodate your busy schedule.

We hope that you will be able to join us for a discussion of our common objectives and priorities.

Good afternoon:

Please see the attached message.

Office of the Attorney General
Washington, D. C. 20530

May 5, 2017

Public Service Recognition Week 2017
May 7-13, 2017

This week is designated by Congress as Public Service Recognition Week, and I am grateful for the opportunity to thank you for all you do on behalf of the U.S. Department of Justice and our nation.

Each and every day, I have the pleasure of witnessing firsthand your remarkable contributions and achievements. Your dedicated efforts have allowed this Department to focus on its key priorities, which include combatting illegal immigration, deterring violent crime, reducing human trafficking and opioid abuse, and strengthening our national security protections and counterterrorism efforts. Furthermore, we all play a critical role in maintaining and strengthening the rule of law which forms the foundation for our liberty, our safety, and our prosperity. In this rule of law, we are blessed beyond all nations. We must continue to do all we can to ensure that it is preserved and advanced.

I extend my appreciation to each of you for your service on behalf of Justice, and for your ability to face challenges with integrity, impartiality, and unwavering dedication to duty. Your hard work does not go unnoticed, and I am proud to serve with you.

Sincerely,

Jefferson B. Sessions III
Attorney General
