Hi Steve,

This is the current draft incorporating all edits that I have received so far. Feel free to use this if that would be helpful. If not, I am happy to receive your edits in whatever format is easiest for you.

Thanks,
Kira

Hi Curtis,

(b)(5) per OLC

Moving forward, Seth DuCharme asked me to help field and coordinate inquiries potentially involving OLC equities.

To that end, the FBI connected with ODAG this morning with multiple follow-up inquiries. (See the email below and the attached file from (b)(6), (b)(7)(C) per FBI in the FBI Deputy Director's office.)

(b)(5) per OLC + FBI

In other cases, such as (b)(5) per OLC + FBI; (b)(6), (b)(7)(C) per FBI, it looks like an inquiry that might be more appropriately directed to a component other than OLC.

I've cc'd (b)(6), (b)(7)(C) per FBI here. Could you let us know if there's a particular OLC contact who could help (b)(6), (b)(7)(C) per FBI on this morning's inquiries, such as (b)(5) per OLC + FBI

I'd be happy to help in whichever way makes the most sense—e.g., if it's better for us to directly correspond with Henry or Rosemary on any of these points.

Thanks!

ATTORNEY GENERAL WILLIAM P. BARR'S REMARKS ON MR. GEORGE FLOYD AND CIVIL UNREST

Washington, DC

Remarks as Prepared for Delivery for the June 4, 2020 Press Conference

Good afternoon.

Over the Constitution Avenue entrance to this building is a Latin inscription that translates as “Everything is created by Law and Order.”^[1] That ancient principle still holds true. Our free society depends on the rule of law — the assurance that ordinary citizens can go about their lives without being subject to arbitrary violence or fear. When the rule of law breaks down, the promise of America does too.

Our nation is now confronting two serious threats to the rule of law. The first is a long-standing one but was recently crystalized and driven home by the killing of George Floyd in Minneapolis.

The video of police conduct in this episode is harrowing. When you watch it, and imagine that one of your own loved ones was being treated like that, and begging for their lives, it is impossible for any normal human being not to be struck in the heart with horror.

This matter is being pursued by both the state and the federal government. The state has filed second degree murder charges against one officer, and aiding and abetting charges against three other officers.

As we typically do in cases such as this, the Department of Justice is conducting a parallel and independent investigation into possible violations of federal civil rights laws.

The president has directed me to spare no effort. We are coordinating our work with that of Minnesota Attorney General Keith Ellison. As a matter of comity, the Department of Justice typically lets the state go forward with its proceedings first.

This afternoon, our United States Attorney in Minnesota and FBI Special Agent in Charge of the Minneapolis Field Office will attend a memorial service for Mr. Floyd. Today is a day for mourning, and the day is coming soon when justice will be served.

George Floyd's death was not the first of its kind, and it exposes concerns that reach far beyond this case.

While the vast majority of police officers do their job bravely and righteously, it is undeniable that many African Americans lack confidence in the American criminal justice system. That must change. Our Constitution mandates equal protection of the laws, and nothing less is acceptable. As the nation's leading federal law-enforcement agency, the Department of Justice will do its part. I believe that police chiefs and law enforcement leaders around the country are committed to ensuring that racism plays no part in law enforcement, and that everyone receives equal protection of the laws.

In October 2019, the President established the first Commission on Law Enforcement since the 1960's. I am meeting later this month with the Commission and have been talking with law enforcement leaders around the country.

In the weeks and months ahead, we will be working with community leaders to find constructive solutions so that Mr. Floyd's death will not have been in vain. We will work hard to help bring good out of bad.

Unfortunately, the aftermath of George Floyd's death has produced a second challenge to the rule of law.

While many have peacefully expressed their anger and grief, others have hijacked protests to engage in lawlessness — violent rioting and arson, looting of businesses and public property, assaults on law enforcement officers and innocent people, and even the murder of a federal agent.

Such senseless acts of anarchy are not exercises of First Amendment rights; they are crimes designed to terrify fellow citizens and intimidate communities.

As I told the governors on Monday, we understand the distinction among three different sets of actors. The large preponderance of those who are protesting are peaceful demonstrators who are exercising their First Amendment rights.

At some demonstrations, there are groups that exploit the opportunity to engage in looting. And finally, at some demonstration, there are extremist agitators who are hijacking the protests to pursue their own separate and violent agenda.

We have evidence that Antifa and other similar extremist groups, as well as actors of a variety of different political persuasions, have been involved in instigating and participating in the violent activity. We are also seeing foreign actors playing all sides to exacerbate the violence.

The Department of Justice is working to restore order in the District of Columbia and around the nation. Here in Washington, we are working around the clock with local police, the citizen soldiers of the National Guard, and other federal agencies to provide safety and justice. We have deployed all the major law-enforcement components of the department in this mission, including the FBI, ATF, DEA, Bureau of Prisons, and U.S. Marshals Service. I thank them and all those working bravely and professionally to protect the District.

The Justice Department is also working closely with our state and local partners to address violent riots around the country. Our federal law enforcement efforts are focused on the violent instigators.

Through the FBI, U.S. Attorney's Offices, component field offices, and state and local law enforcement, we are receiving real-time intelligence, and we have deployed resources to quell outbreaks of violence in several places. I urge governors, mayors, and other state and local leaders to work closely with the National Guard and with us. The federal government has thus far made 51 arrests for federal crimes in connection with violent rioting. We will continue to investigate, make arrests, and prosecute where warranted.

When I was Attorney General in 1992, violent riots broke out in Los Angeles following the acquittal of the police officers accused of beating Rodney King. Ultimately, the department at my direction filed federal civil rights charges against the officers. As President Bush assured the Nation at that time, "The violence will end. Justice will be served. Hope will return." The same is true today. The rule of law will prevail. Thank you.

Here's what the AG said further in the Q&A. (b)(5) per OLC

Pete Williams NBC News: Thank you Mr. Attorney General. Washington DC has a lot of experience in dealing with large complex events that include protests, like the inauguration or meetings of the World Bank. Why did you think it was necessary for you to take command of this? And where does that authority come from?

AG: Well I think the rioting got going I think on Friday, May 29th, and got worse and worse over the weekend. It culminated, or came to a crescendo over the weekend on Sunday evening right around the White House on H Street, on the northern side of Lafayette Park. And it was very serious rioting. The Treasury Annex, Treasury Department Annex, there was broken into. A historical building on top of Lafayette Park which is federal property was burned down. There was a fire at the historical Saint John's church right there across from the White House. And the old church that goes back to the eighteenth century and is referred to as the "Church of Presidents." The rioters used crowbars to dig out the pavers at Lafayette Park and use them as projectiles thrown at secret service and other federal agents. There were numerous head injuries among other federal personnel whose responsibility is to protect the White House. Just to give you an indication, but from Saturday until today and virtually, well the lion's share of these injuries came over the weekend, there are 114 injuries to law enforcement. Most of those to federal agents, most of those inflicted right around the White House. There were 22 hospitalizations and most of those were serious head injuries or concussions that required monitoring and treatment. On Monday, the president asked me to coordinate the various federal law enforcement agencies not only the multiple Department of Justice agencies but also other agencies such as those in the Department of Homeland Security, so we had a coordinated response and with the National Guard and also with the DC police. That morning we decided that we needed more of a buffer to protect the White House and to protect our agents and secret service personnel, who would be reached by projectiles from H Street. I made the decision that we would try to move our perimeter northward by a block to provide this additional protection. And later at two o'clock on Monday I met with all the various law enforcement agencies and we said our tactical plan and that plan involved moving our perimeter block north to I street. It was our hope to be able to do that relatively quickly before many demonstrators appeared that day. Unfortunately, because of the difficulty in getting appropriate forces, and units into place by the time they were able to move our perimeter up to I Street had been a number, a large number, of protesters that had assembled on H Street. There were projectiles being thrown and the group was becoming increasingly unruly. And the operation to, they were asked three times if they would move back one block and they refused and we proceeded to move our perimeter out to I street. The, it is true that the Metropolitan Police have a lot of experience in dealing with demonstrations but we have a lot of federal property. This is the federal city, it's the seat of the federal government. Many of the buildings as you know and facilities here, and the monuments are the responsibility of the federal government and the proceedings in process of the federal government take place here. And when you have a large scale civil disturbance that is damaging federal property, threatening federal property, threatening federal law enforcement officers, threatening the officials in government and their offices, and our great monuments, it is the responsibility of the federal government to render that protection. And we do so in close coordination with the Metropolitan Police Department. Fortunately, later that evening on Monday, after we did establish a buffer zone, we were able to finish that day without further significant violence from the demonstrators. And then the following two days were peaceful. The assemblies and the protests were peaceful. So how we're pleased with that we are working closely with the Metropolitan Police to plan out the remainder of the week. Next question.

Thanks for sending the letter. The AG's office and OLC were not aware the letter. So if DC sent it to DOJ, I'm not sure to whom they sent it.

I'm adding Gregg, Henry, and Rosemary to this chain, so that you have their contact info.

It's limited distribution on our side, so please don't circulate. We're meeting to discuss in 25 minutes; obviously, we should coordinate with you. Best, (b)(6) per DOD

FYI

The word document is a summary of the legal authority and activities of DOJ components in responding to the recent civil disturbances. Did OLC help draft it?

The pdf is an oversight letter from HJC asking that the DAG's expansion of DEA's authority be rescinded and requesting a briefing about how the expansion came to be.

All,

You may have this chart already, but I wanted to send it along as it was shared with appropriators and House and Senate judiciary and intelligence committees.

In addition, please see the attached briefing request we just received from HJC regarding the DEA.

Let's plan to discuss on our Tuesday call, unless there is a need to discuss sooner.

This represents the latest draft and includes comments from David Burns and Matt Blue and Steve Engel's comments from the point-by-point. I have attached a clean and a redline PDF with some substantive comment bubbles.

I note one question in the redline—(b)(5) per OLC

(b) (6). I do not know how to resolve this but wanted to make everyone aware.

Per Stephen, the AG is going to review this draft this evening but we are not going to send tonight. We will likely send shortly after the hearing.
