

U.S. Department of Justice National Unemployment Insurance Fraud Task Force

New Text Message Phishing Scheme

For Public Release

January 29, 2021

The Department of Justice's National Unemployment Insurance Fraud Task Force (NUIFTF) is issuing this alert to warn people of a new phishing scheme. This scheme involves bad actors, presenting as a state workforce agency (SWA), who send text messages containing a link (see below example). The goal is to trick the recipient into clicking the link and transmitting sensitive information to the sender.

A screenshot of a text message on a dark background. The text is white and reads: "IL.GOV - IDES Action Required! Your driver's license required to meet with our new regulation-compliant update. visit : ow.ly/sEDZ50DiX7f".

IL.GOV - IDES
Action Required!
Your driver's license required to meet with our new regulation-compliant update.
visit : ow.ly/sEDZ50DiX7f

Although law enforcement officials are investigating this phishing scheme, people should remain vigilant and not reply or click the link if they receive such text messages. SWAs do not send text messages soliciting information.
