FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

I. Fair Housing Act Factual Allegations

138. The FHA Subject Properties described above were designed and constructed for first occupancy after March 13, 1991.

139. Each of the FHA Subject Properties is a “dwelling” and contains “dwellings” as defined by 42 U.S.C. § 3602(b).

140. Each of the FHA Subject Properties contains “covered multifamily dwellings” within the meaning of 42 U.S.C. § 3604(f)(7).

141. The covered multifamily dwellings at the FHA Subject Properties are subject to the requirements of 42 U.S.C. § 3604(f).

142. Certain of the FHA Subject Properties were developed using Low-Income Housing Tax Credits, as described above. The Defendants who participated in the design and construction of those properties were aware that those properties were required to be designed and constructed in accordance with the requirements of 42 U.S.C. § 3604(f)(3)(C), as a condition of obtaining Low-Income Housing Tax Credits and to remain eligible for those tax credits. In many instances, these Defendants certified to state housing finance agencies that the projects would comply with, and did comply with, those requirements.

143. The United States obtained property plans related to the FHA Subject Properties. These plans show inaccessible features at covered units, including, but not limited to, doors with non-compliant openings and bathrooms and kitchens with insufficient clear floor space.

144. The covered multifamily dwellings at the FHA Subject Properties have inaccessible features that do not meet the requirements of 42 U.S.C. § 3604(f)(3)(C), including the following:

- a. the public use and common-use portions of the dwellings therein are not readily accessible to and usable by persons with disabilities;¹ and/or
- b. not all premises within such dwellings contain accessible routes into and through the dwellings; and/or
- c. not all premises within such dwellings contain the following features of adaptive design:
 - (I) accessible routes into and through the dwellings;
 - (II) light switches, electrical outlets, thermostats, and other environmental controls in accessible locations; and/or
 - (III) usable kitchens and bathrooms such that an individual in a wheelchair can maneuver about the space.

145. As further described below, each of the FHA Subject Properties has one or more of the following inaccessible features:

- a. a lack of accessible pedestrian routes, including from building entrances to the public street and to onsite amenities, which are necessary to allow wheelchair users to traverse safely around the property;
- b. barriers on the accessible routes from units to the onsite amenities, including to the mail and trash facilities, playgrounds, and community buildings;

- c. amenities provided onsite that are mounted at heights too high for wheelchair users to reach from a seated position;
- d. amenities provided onsite that lack sufficient maneuvering space for a person in a wheelchair to access and use the amenities;
- e. barriers in the approach walkways leading to building primary entry doors and along other pedestrian routes, including one or more steps, running slopes and cross slopes² that are too steep to allow wheelchair users to traverse safely, and routes that are too narrow to allow wheelchair users to traverse safely. For example, there are running slopes that are greater than 5% without handrails, cross slopes greater than 2%, curb ramps with slopes greater than 8.33%, unbeveled changes in level greater than 1/4", and walkways measuring only 4' [48"] wide without wheel stops or other barriers which would prevent parked cars from blocking the wheelchair route;
- f. barriers at accessible routes, including open stairways over walkways that lack cane detection and present a hazard to the vision impaired, and protruding objects on walkways such as lights and fire extinguishers that are mounted higher than 27" or lower than 80" above the ground that pose a hazard to those with vision impairments who may not be able to detect the obstruction;
- g. barriers to accessible parking, including no accessible parking at unit buildings and common-use amenities, no signs at designated accessible parking spaces, no access aisles at designated accessible parking spaces, access aisles that are less than 60” wide, and no curb ramps at access aisles;

² A "running slope" is "the slope that is parallel to the direction of travel," and a "cross slope" is a slope that is perpendicular to the direction of travel. ICC/ANSI A117.1-2003. Running and cross slopes are measured in a ratio of rise to run (or height to length). "For example, if a principal entrance is ten feet from a [designated accessible parking spot], and the principal entrance is raised one foot higher than the [designated accessible parking spot], then the slope is $1/10 \times 100 = 10\%$." HUD's Fair Housing Act Design Manual, published by HUD in 1996, updated in 1998, 1.2.

- h. barriers at public and common-use doors, including knob-style hardware rather than lever-style hardware, which makes the door difficult to operate or open; less than 18” clear maneuvering space at the latch-side of doors with a pull-side approach, which makes those doors difficult to open by a person using a wheelchair; and changes in level greater than ¼” without a bevel, which severely impacts the ability of wheelchair users to traverse safely;
- i. barriers at unit entry doors, including knob-style hardware rather than lever-style hardware, which makes the door difficult to operate or open, and less than 18” clear maneuvering space at the latch-side of doors with a pull-side approach, which makes those doors difficult to open by a person using a wheelchair;
- j. doors within units that have clear openings less than 32” wide, which are too narrow for wheelchair users;
- k. thermostats in units that are mounted higher than 54”, which is too high for wheelchair users to reach from a seated position;
- l. routes into and through units that are too narrow and have abrupt level changes, severely impacting the ability of wheelchair users to pass through. For example, passageways are less than 36” wide and there are unbeveled changes in level at unit entry and unit patio doors greater than ¼”;
- m. insufficient space in unit kitchens to allow wheelchair users to reach and use appliances and to turn around. For example, there is less than 30” x 48” clear floor space centered on kitchen ranges and sinks and less than 40” of maneuvering space between opposing counters or appliances; and

- n. insufficient space in unit bathrooms to allow wheelchairs users to enter the bathroom and close the door and to reach and use the lavatory. For example, there is less than 30” x 48” clear floor space outside the in-swing of the door and less than 30” x 48” clear floor space centered on the lavatory.
