

Steve DelBianco is an experienced business leader and policy expert in Internet and information technology. He ran an IT consulting firm before helping to start two tech policy groups: the Association for Competitive Technology, and NetChoice, a coalition of e-commerce businesses and consumers.

In addition, Steve was an investor and board member of eRealty.com, a startup brokerage that empowered Realtors with Internet technology to better serve home buyers who want the convenience of online search and communications.