As a mother, I am writing because I am concerned about the lack of competition in agricultural markets. One company, Monsanto, controls the majority of seeds in the U.S., and regularly threatens farmers who don't buy its seeds. This is unAmerican and farmers deserve better than that.

I would like to see specific labels on food that, at the very least state, whether there are GMOs in it and also where it was grown and what chemicals were used in the growing process. We need to tend to the earth in a way that safeguards our water, soil, and our long-term food security.

My children, our children, also deserve better and we do know better at this point and can do better. You are called the Dept. of Justice. Please do what is just and right and make changes so that agribusiness giants like Monsanto do not control our food supply.

Thank you for giving me the opportunity to comment.

Sincerely,

Nina Otazo
