I am writing because I am concerned about the lack of competition in agricultural markets.

We are often treated to rhapsodies over the free market and the marvels that it brings, but the natural tendency is not to free markets, but monopolies or as close to them as the ambitious can get. Few areas, if any, illustrate that as well or ill as the agricultural market, where near monopoly has already been effected.

But this is all about food and life, folks, it shouldn't be all about money, even in a society as decadent as ours.

Thank you for giving me the opportunity to comment.

Sincerely,

Roger Horn
