

From: twmac <twmac@frontier.net>
Sent: Saturday, December 19, 2009 1:24 AM
To: ATR-Agricultural Workshops <agriculturalworkshops@usdoj.gov>
Subject: Monsanto Monopoly Investigation

Sirs,

The Department of Justice has a mandate to protect the American public from predatory monopolies under section 2 of the Sherman Act. With Monsanto's patented genes being inserted into roughly 95 percent of all soybeans and 80 percent of all corn grown in the U.S. and with the company's attempts to control the ability of new biotech firms to get wide distribution for their products, it appears that Monsanto is engaging in anticompetitive behavior that risks monopolization of seed production in the U.S. It is your fiduciary duty to fully investigate these potentially illegal activities, and to give American farmers and the citizens of the U.S. full disclosure of any prohibited conduct and to remedy any harm done to the American people. I hope you will proceed with all deliberate speed in investigating Monsanto's actions to find whether this company is in violation of U.S. antitrust law.

Sincerely,

William Thomas Williams, MD