

From: tim miller <millbergfarm@austin.rr.com>
Sent: Saturday, December 19, 2009 10:50 AM
To: ATR-Agricultural Workshops <agriculturalworkshops@usdoj.gov>
Subject: Comments

Regarding the integrity or lack of regarding Monsanto in the world food supply. It has become apparent that recent studies have shown correlations between the health of organically grown foods towards chemical made foods is universally superior. At all costs Monsanto obviously is greatly concerned hence their lawsuits, a loss of acceptance of growing their seeds and market place buying by the consumers. The massive changeover of buying habits of organics has taken place and only a matter of time before it approaches 20% at which time chemically grown produce will not be allowed to be sold at farmers markets, schools and grocery stores. More people want total disclosure in labels of the food they eat. Why can't this be achieved?

The web of the chemical industry is apparent and like the organic industry want their place in society as well. As a Certified Organic grower we have disclosure of operating expenditures. Too much money has been supplied to the vast government programs for cheap unhealthy foods, programs supporting chemical farming, subsidies, insurance to support crop losses, rain enhancement to grow where crops are not needed and controlled flooding of the Mississippi to washout the fertilizers to grow government subsidized wheat, corn and soybeans. A massive dead zone in the Gulf of Mexico all because of Monsanto's web.

Sincerely,

tim miller

, 78640