

From: NancyTerrell <NancyTerrell@comcast.net>
Sent: Wednesday, December 23, 2009 8:47 AM
To: ATR-Agricultural Workshops <agriculturalworkshops@usdoj.gov>
Subject: Food prices

During the past decade, food prices have risen significantly.

Since the wealthy and the poor pay about the same for milk and bread - WHO regulates food prices??

Grocery stores and regulators don't seem to mind that only SOME Americans can afford their high prices - and as long as the stores maintain a certain profit margin they don't care.

State taxes on grocery food items should be abolished! - because as stated earlier - the wealthy and the poor pay about the same for milk and bread. But of course, the poor and middle class suffer the most - not the wealthy!

Thanks
Nancy