

From: Carol Davis <caroldavis702@hotmail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, December 23, 2009 11:01 PM
To: ATR-Agricultural Workshops <agriculturalworkshops@usdoj.gov>
Subject: Competition issues affecting the agricultural sector in the 21st century

I am concerned about the monolithic nature of our agriculture. I am old enough to remember the farms my grandfathers had. The food tasted like food, not cardboard, and there was never a question about safety.

I fear I'm poisoning my family with every bite I feed them. A glass of milk has hormones that can cause breast cancer and drinking soda pop leads to diabetes. Concerns about what goes on in agriculture and the way food is produced is making this country sick.

Please, stop this dangerous killing machine. It may produce food, but who wants to eat this stuff? I sure don't.

Thank you for your attention.

Sincerely,
Carol Davis
4104 33rd Avenue
Moline, IL 61265
309-740-2035

P.S. I couldn't believe my eyes when I read Monsanto was suing farmers (and winning!) whose fields had been cross contaminated with Monsanto seed. If anyone should have been sued over it should have been Monsanto for the contamination with their crappy Frankenstein seed.

EMAILING FOR THE GREATER GOOD

Join me