Bangladesh: Procedures and requirements to acquire a passport; characteristics of a Bangladesh passport
Research Directorate, Immigration and Refugee Board of Canada, Ottawa

Procedures and requirements

The website of the High Commission for Bangladesh in Ottawa states that, starting on 1 April 2010, the government of Bangladesh has introduced a Machine Readable Passport (MRP) for which an application can only be made at ten designated regional passport offices in Bangladesh (Bangladesh n.d.a). However, the website states that "until 31 March 2013, all Bangladesh Embassies and High Commissions abroad will issue the traditional hand written Emergency Passports" (ibid.). According to the website, these passports can be issued or renewed for a period of up to three years (ibid.).

The National Web Portal of Bangladesh indicates that while the period of validity of a passport is five years for minors under the age of five years, for most people passports are generally valid for a period of ten years (ibid. n.d.b). In answer to a question about why an individual should renew a passport, the FAQ [Frequently Answered Questions] section of the website of the High Commission of Bangladesh in Ottawa specifies that a passport is first issued for a period of five years and may be renewed for an additional period of up to a maximum of five years, thus, a passport may be used for up to ten years (ibid. n.d.c). The High Commission's website notes that a new passport is required after this ten-year period (ibid.). The website adds that "in some exceptional cases, a passport is issued with a period of limited validity," such as for one or one and a half years if a previous passport was lost (ibid.).

The Web Portal states that there are three types of passports issued by Bangladesh: an international passport for travelling abroad, a special passport used to travel to India only, and a diplomatic passport (ibid. n.d.b). However, a brochure detailing the characteristics of the new MRP does not mention the special passport for travel to India, but provides information on ordinary, official and diplomatic passports (ibid. n.d.f).

The Web Portal states that an application for a passport includes a properly filled application form (Bangladesh n.d.b). A Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ) section dealing with passports on the website of the Department of Immigration and Passports states that two copies of the completed application forms should be submitted, each with an affixed photograph (ibid. n.d.e). The FAQ section also states that the form can be completed in either Bengali or English, but that English is preferred as the passport entries are made in English (ibid.).

The Web portal states that the application must be "attested by a Member of Parliament or a gazetted official" (ibid. n.d.b). However, the Department of Immigration and Passport FAQ section does not mention Members of Parliament, but states that in addition to gazetted officers of the government of Bangladesh, each copy of the application form may be attested by authorities such a teacher from a public university or a public college, the principal of a private college, the headmaster or the headmistress of a private school, the chairperson of a pourasava (municipality), or the mayor or "word commissioner" of a city corporation (ibid. n.d.e).

The Web Portal states that applicants must pay a fee and include two passport-sized and one stamp-sized photographs (ibid. n.d.b). In contrast, the Department of Immigration and Passports' FAQ site states that three passport-sized photographs and one stamp-sized photograph should be submitted with the application (ibid. n.d.e). The website of the High Commission of Bangladesh in Ottawa indicates that four recent passport-sized photographs are required with an application, with five photographs to replace a lost passport (ibid. n.d.a.).

According to the Web Portal, passports may be issued within 72 hours to 30 days, depending on the urgency of the request (ibid. n.d.b). The Web Portal states that the application form can be obtained in Bangladesh at regional passport offices and some deputy commissioner's offices and in foreign missions abroad, as well as by downloading it from the website of the Ministry of Home Affairs' Department of Immigration and Passports (ibid.). According to the Web Portal, passport offices can handle modifications, corrections or updates to passports within a day through one-stop desks (ibid.).

The FAQ section on the website of the Department of Immigration and Passports states that police verification is necessary before a passport is issued (Bangladesh n.d.e.). However, police verification is not necessary for some individuals whose character and antecedents have been verified by employers such as the government, statutory organizations and financial institutions (ibid.). Such individuals must submit a "No Objection Certificate" from their employer (ibid.).

The High Commission for Bangladesh in Ottawa provides the following specific guidelines to apply for a passport:
