Liberia

The Government of Liberia launched youth employment programs, published research, and conducted awareness-raising campaigns to combat the worst forms of child labor. Hazardous child labor continues to exist however, especially in agriculture, mining, and rubber tapping. Liberia does not yet have a comprehensive policy to combat exploitive child labor, especially its worst forms, and does not effectively enforce its child labor laws.

Prevalence and Sectoral Distribution of the Worst Forms of Child Labor

Statistics on the number of working children, school attendance and children combining school and work in Liberia are unavailable.2922

Children are exploited in the worst forms of child labor in Liberia, many of them in hazardous work. A number of working children are engaged in agriculture where they may work long hours, perform physically arduous tasks, use dangerous tools, and face a high risk of occupational injury.2923 On some rubber plantations, children are commonly employed to tap rubber trees, clear brush, and carry buckets.2924 Children work in stone cutting and the mining of natural resources, including alluvial diamonds and gold.2925 Children are also employed as domestic servants.2926 In such work, they may work long hours and their isolation in homes may put them at risk of physical and sexual harassment. Children transport heavy loads as porters, truck loaders, and sand baggers, and some children are employed to carry imported goods from Côte d’Ivoire into Liberia and load them onto commercial trucks.2927 Children are also employed as domestic servants.2928 In such work, they may work long hours and their isolation in homes may put them at risk of physical and sexual harassment.

Children, especially girls, engage in prostitution.2929 Some children are trafficked within and outside of Liberia for domestic service and exploitive labor.2930

Liberia was engaged in intermittent conflict from 1990 to 2003 and the long term effects leave many children vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. This long period of war displaced entire communities and destroyed the country’s political, economic, and physical infrastructure. Thousands of children were recruited by armed groups during the conflict to serve as combatants or sex slaves. Liberia remains mired in poverty. Nearly 64 percent of the entire population lives under the absolute poverty line.2931

Laws and Regulations on the Worst Forms of Child Labor

The Government of Liberia has laws to protect children from the worst forms of child labor. The Labor Law sets the minimum age for work at 16 years. Children under age 16 are prohibited from working during the school day and may only work for wages if the employer can demonstrate that they are attending school regularly and have a basic education.2932 Labor recruiters are permitted to hire children between ages 16 and 18 for occupations which the Ministry of Labor determines are not harmful to children’s physical and
The law does not establish adequate prohibitions against the involvement of children in hazardous activities. In particular, the law does not prohibit the use of children in work that exposes them to sexual, physical, and psychological abuse; takes place underground or in confined spaces; and involves the transport of heavy loads, all of which occur in sectors where Liberian children work. Further, the law does not provide a comprehensive list of hazardous activities in Liberia that are forbidden to children under age 18.

Institutional Mechanisms for Monitoring and Enforcement

The Government of Liberia has established mechanisms for monitoring issues related to the worst forms of child labor and designated institutions for child labor enforcement.

The National Commission on Child Labor (NACOMAL) is charged with monitoring child labor issues and directing policies. The commission is headed by the Ministry of Labor and includes representatives from the Ministries of Health & Social Welfare, Gender & Development, and Youth & Sports. The objectives of NACOMAL include awareness raising, reforming national child labor laws, and designing a national child labor database. However, the commission's efforts are hindered by a lack of reliable data because the national statistics office does not conduct child labor surveys and has limited capacity to collect data for strategic planning and evidenced-based policies. Serious budgetary constraints also impede the commission's efforts.

NACOMAL is also responsible for enforcing child labor laws. NACOMAL conducted two investigations in 2009; neither of these resulted in any prosecutions.

In addition to NACOMAL, the Women and Children Protection Section (WACPS) of the Liberia National Police Force contributes to the enforcement of child labor laws. WACPS has 245 investigators who are primarily trained on women's issues. However, WACPS is not responsible for child labor investigations. If WACPS investigators identify exploited children in the course of their work, they will attempt to resolve the situation. There are limited opportunities for NACOMAL and WACPS to collaborate. NACOMAL does not have permanent field staff and representatives from WACPS, the Liberian National Police Force, or the Ministry of Justice do not participate in the commission as members or observers. WACPS did not report any child labor prosecutions in 2009.

Liberia also has mechanisms in place for monitoring and law enforcement of criminal violations of the worst forms of child labor. The Ministries of Justice and Labor are responsible for enforcing anti-trafficking legislation. The Government coordinates anti-trafficking activities through the National Human Trafficking Task Force. The Task Force is chaired by the Ministry of Labor with representatives from the Ministries of Justice, Foreign Affairs and Internal Affairs, the national police, and the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization. The Task Force meets on a monthly basis. Task Force members assist the Liberian National Police with human trafficking investigations and monitor court cases. The Task Force also publishes reports that are accessible to the public.

Despite the Task Force's efforts, the Government of Liberia did not prosecute any child traffickers or provide anti-trafficking training to police officers during the reporting period.2951

Government Policies on the Worst Forms of Child Labor

The Government of Liberia has not established a policy framework to promote the elimination of the worst forms of child labor. However, it has undertaken a Country Program Action Plan (2008-2012) with UNICEF that seeks to reduce the vulnerability of children to exploitation, including child labor and child trafficking.2952 The plan calls for UNICEF to complete a national child labor analysis and build the capacity of Liberian institutions to prevent child trafficking and the worst forms of child labor.2953 The plan provides indicators, targets, and sources of data to measure UNICEF’s progress.2954 The Government and UNICEF intend to conduct a midterm evaluation of the plan in 2010. The plan indicates that UNICEF will create detailed annual work plans with implementing partners that will list specific actions, inputs, and outputs.2955

The Government of Liberia has included child labor issues in several relevant development agendas and social policies. The United Nations Development Assistance Framework for Liberia (2008-2012) tasks ILO with reforming national labor laws in accordance with ILO conventions and assisting in the implementation of child labor policies.2956 It also requires other UN agencies to promote youth employment and increase access to quality education.2957 The Government’s Poverty Reduction Strategy (2008-2011) recognizes the links between household income and child labor and highlights the importance of protecting children from physical, psychological, and sexual abuse.2958 Liberia’s National Social Welfare Policy prioritizes the development of action plans and policies that target child labor and child trafficking.2959 The National Youth Policy for Liberia identifies children working in the informal sector, children living and working in the streets, and children associated with armed groups as priority target groups for assistance.2960 While these policies address child labor concerns, the Government does not have a national child strategy that coordinates all of its child labor activities and provides concrete targets to protect children from exploitation in hazardous work and human trafficking.2961

Social Programs to Eliminate or Prevent the Worst Forms of Child Labor

The Government of Liberia has participated in the implementation of programs to eliminate the worst forms of child labor since 2003, when it emerged from more than a decade of civil war. Most programs have sought to remediate child labor issues that were created or exacerbated by the conflict. From 2003 to 2006, the Government’s National Commission on Disarmament, Demobilization, Rehabilitation, and Reintegration in collaboration with UNICEF, the UN Mission in Liberia, and other partners demobilized 10,963 child combatants.2962 From 1998 to 2007, the Government implemented the accelerated learning program in partnership with UNICEF and other international organizations to provide primary education to children whose schooling was interrupted by armed conflict.2963 The Government participated in the USDOL-funded $6 million Child Labor Education Initiative project in Sierra Leone and Liberia from 2005 to 2010 that was implemented by the International Rescue Committee. This 4-year project, which was launched in 2005 withdrew a total of 8,243 children and prevented a total of 21,647 children from exploitive child labor.2964

During the reporting period, the Government supported the UN Joint Program for Employment and Empowerment of Young Women and Men in Liberia, which aims to produce decent employment for disadvantaged youth in the informal economy and agriculture.2965 The Government also published the National Youth Policy Action Plan, which provides youth of legal working age with training in entrepreneurship skills and linkages to business mentoring programs and cooperatives.2966 The Government signed a memorandum of understanding with UNICEF. In this memorandum, the Government agreed to establish child protection focal points in all military barracks and design a child rights and child protection training program for all military officers and civilian staff in the Liberian Ministry of National Defense.\footnote{Data provided in the chart at the beginning of this country report are not available from the data sources that are used by USDOL. Reliable data on the worst forms of child labor are especially difficult to collect given the often hidden or illegal nature of the worst forms. For more information on sources used for these statistics, the definition of working children, and other indicators used in this report, please see the “Children’s Work and Education Statistics: Sources and Definitions” section.}
