Drug Enforcement Administration	International Drug Enforcement Conference	Denpasar, Indonesia	6/11/2012	6/15/2012	30	234	$497,862	Since 1983, the International Drug Enforcement Conference (IDEC) has brought together the top drug law enforcement leaders and senior investigators from over 100 nations to a single venue where yearly agendas are set for cooperation, intelligence sharing and case prioritization. IDEC's principal mission is to share drug-related intelligence, coordinate drug policies and develop joint operational strategies targeting the world's most prolific Drug Trafficking Organizations. Each IDEC has proven successful in institutionalizing cooperation and reinforcing the commitment to fight drug trafficking and narco-terrorism on an international level. Total cost was $797,862, of which DEA funded $497,862 and $300,000 was non-DOJ funding. Because DOJ expenses did not exceed $500,000, an agency head's waiver was not required.
Drug Enforcement Administration	Drug Enforcement Seminar	Dakar, Senegal	7/9/2012	7/13/2012	4	48	$198,358	DEA provided basic training to African Police Forces on the knowledge and skills required to identify drug traffickers and initiate and develop an investigation. The enforcement officials who were trained are vetted partners with DEA. DEA works closely with the Department of Defense (DOD) U.S. Africa Command (AFRICOM) to identify the training needs of local countries in the area of drug law enforcement. Because AFRICOM recognizes that illegal drug trafficking can lead to the destabilization of governments and has negative impacts on the democratic process, human trafficking, financing of terrorism, and national security of democratic countries, AFRICOM requested and fully funded this seminar.
Drug Enforcement Administration	Advanced Drug Enforcement Seminar	Cape Town, South Africa	7/23/2012	7/27/2012	5	32	$160,907	DEA provided advanced training to African Police Forces on traditional and specialized investigative techniques, focusing on supervision and management of complex investigations of transnational drug organizations. The enforcement officials who were trained are vetted partners with DEA. DEA works closely with the Department of Defense (DOD) U.S. Africa Command (AFRICOM) to identify the training needs of local countries in the area of drug law enforcement. Because AFRICOM recognizes that illegal drug trafficking can lead to the destabilization of governments and has negative impacts on the democratic process, human trafficking, financing of terrorism, and national security of democratic countries, AFRICOM requested and fully funded this seminar.

Office of Justice Programs	National Fallen Firefighters Memorial Weekend	Emmitsburg, Maryland	10/14/2011	10/16/2011	9	6,009	$305,238	Through a combination of private and federal funding support, the National Fallen Firefighters Foundation (NFFF) Memorial event reached over 6,000 public safety personnel, survivors and others with a Memorial Tribute to firefighters who made the ultimate sacrifice in 2010. At the event, the NFFF provided grief counselors for families and coworkers of fallen firefighters consistent with DOJ's statutory responsibilities under the Public Safety Officers' Benefits Act (PSOB) to provide support services to families of public safety officers (including firefighters) killed in the line of duty. The multi-day event also featured a Candlelight Vigil and counselor-led events for families and co-workers. Importantly, the event is also designed to build peer support for survivors as one of the most effective ways of responding to grief. The NFFF, created by Congress in 1992, honors America's firefighters who die in the line of duty, provides support to their families and fellow firefighters and assists their survivors in rebuilding their lives.

The conference is about understanding crime and public safety, and their effect on community. It showcased a range of research findings, practical applications, technology demonstrations and policy results.
Office of Justice Programs	National Public Safety Summit on Forensic Science	Clearwater, Florida	10/18/2011	10/20/2011	6	250	$291,084	Over 240 local law enforcement, forensic and court professionals attended the National Public Safety Summit on Forensic Science. The conference provided law enforcement officials training on how to integrate forensic science tools into their investigation processes, a key National Institute of Justice responsibility. The training provided local officials with critical information on: 1) emerging investigation, collection and field-based technologies; 2) case reviews and laboratory policy trends; 3) private sector, volunteer and advocacy-based resources; 4) information on new investigative technologies; 5) quality assurance in the crime laboratory; and 6) policy trends in forensic science.
Office of Justice Programs	Call Takers Training*	Mexico City, Mexico	11/28/2011	11/29/2011	-	104	$110,372	According to figures from the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC), over 40 percent of missing children cases reported to NCMEC involve Mexico. The Department of Justice's Office of Overseas Prosecutorial Development, Assistance and Training (OPDAT) partnered with the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention to increase the capacity and skill level of government and non-government stakeholders, including crisis responders, to respond to missing and abducted children crimes. This training supported the Department's mission to improve public safety and assist victims of crime.

Office of Justice Programs	State Leaders' National Forum on Reentry and Recidivism	Washington, District of Columbia	12/8/2011	12/8/2011	35	277	$188,794	More than 240 State and local leaders attended a national forum on "Cutting Crime, Improving Reentry, and Reducing Recidivism" aimed to position state governments to build on evidenced-based work by translating knowledge and lessons learned into action plans aimed at significant reductions in recidivism at the state level. Teams of policymakers—which include the heads of the department of corrections, legislative leaders, judges and governors' staff from all 50 states—participated in the event. Leaders in Congress, as well as representatives of the U.S. Department of Justice, joined the state leaders to highlight how the federal government can work in partnership with them to pursue cost-effective strategies that provide a strong return on their investments in public safety. This event furthered the Bureau of Justice Assistance's efforts to improve local criminal justice systems and to reduce recidivism as required under the Second Chance Act.
Office of Justice Programs	2011 National Professional Training Conference on Responding to Crime Victims with Disabilities	Orlando, Florida	12/13/2011	12/15/2011	-	487	$133,402	The training event cross-trained nearly 500 local victim service and disability service providers as well as allied professionals on how to identify and respond to criminal victimization of people with disabilities. People with disabilities may find justice and victim service professionals that are unfamiliar with the techniques to communicate with a victim who has a cognitive, psychological, speech, or hearing disability. This training event facilitated partnerships among the fields of victim assistance, advocacy for persons with disabilities, and all allied professions (e.g. adult and child protective service workers, faith-based practitioners, medical practitioners/forensic examiners, mental health practitioners, and educators), consistent with the Office for Victims of Crime's responsibilities under the Victims of Crime Act (VOCA).
Office of Justice Programs	Interdepartmental Tribal Justice, Safety, and Wellness Session 14	Santa Ana Pueblo, New Mexico	12/13/2011	12/16/2011	61	386	$185,128	More than 300 Native American leaders participated in this interdepartmental Tribal consultation and technical assistance event that provided expert assistance to tribal representatives on a range of public safety, criminal justice and related health and welfare issues. The Tribal Justice, Safety and Wellness (TJSW) sessions were designed to enhance federal-tribal collaboration opportunities, including the requirements needed to fulfill the Executive Memorandum and Tribal Law and Order Act directives to support public safety, victim services and crime prevention improvements for American Indian and Alaska Native governments. The TJSW sessions provide opportunities for multiple federal agencies with responsibility for improving safety in Tribal lands to reach Native American leaders and thus offer a cost effective alternative to each federal agency holding individual, duplicative events while also providing federal agencies with the ability to work together to address Tribal justice, safety and wellness.

Office of Justice Programs	NIS Cycle 4 Field Interviewer Training	Dallas, Texas	1/10/2012	1/12/2012	-	61	$112,800	This training enabled over 60 non-federal field interviewers to complete final interviews for the National Inmate Survey (NIS), a Congressionally mandated statistical collection under the Prison Rape Elimination Act of 2003 (PREA). The PREA legislation required that data be collected from a sample of 10% of all prisons and jails in the nation, with at least one in each state. As a result of the training, field interviewers were able to conduct computer-assisted interviews with approximately 28,000 inmates in 135 U.S. jails and prisons between January and April 2012. Data collections involving incarcerated individuals and that nature of this particular data collection as well as the data collection methods require extensive training for field interviewers.
Office of Justice Programs	National Survey of Youth in Custody (NSYC)-2 Field Staff Operational Training*	Rockville/Gaithersburg, Maryland	1/16/2012	1/20/2012	1	53	$103,107	This training enabled over 50 non-federal field interviewers to conduct interviews for the National Survey of Youth in Custody -2 (NSYC-2), a Congressionally mandated statistical collection under the Prison Rape Elimination Act of 2003 (PREA). The PREA legislation required that data be collected from a sample of at least 10% of all juvenile correctional facilities in the nation, with at least one in each state. As a result of the training, field interviewers were able to conduct computer-assisted interviews with nearly 10,000 youth in 326 state operated juvenile facilities between February and September 2012. Because the data collection involved incarcerated youth and highly sensitive questions, the training session was held in person. The session relied upon interactive participation between the trainers and field staff to ensure that uniform procedures were followed.
Office of Justice Programs	2012 OVC Mass Violence & Emergency National Training Conference	Jacksonville, Florida	1/31/2012	2/2/2012	49	410	$268,274	This conference provided critical training for over 400 state, local and tribal victim service providers, law enforcement, emergency response, medical, mental health providers and prosecutors. To ensure that local professionals from across the U.S. could participate, there was no registration fee for eligible participants and travel assistance scholarships were available for up to 40 teams who demonstrated a financial need. In addition to the scholarships provided under the grant, the Office for Victims of Crime's (OVC's) Training and Technical Assistance Center provided professional development scholarships for 76 attendees at a cost of approximately $57,200 for those individuals who could demonstrate a financial need. Responding to victims of mass violence is consistent with OVC's authorities under the Victims of Crime Act of 1984.

Office of Justice Programs	Attorney General's National Task Force for Children Exposed to Violence	Albuquerque, New Mexico	1/31/2012	2/1/2012	12	47	$107,444	This specialized meeting and hearing was held as part of a Nationwide initiative to raise awareness of the issues surrounding children's exposure to violence and to seek local community recommendations for promising practices to prevent and reduce the effects of children's exposure to violence. The participation of the state and local professionals and community members in these meetings and hearings formed the basis of a National Task Force Report with over 50 major recommendations to improve America's response to the thousands of children exposed to violence in communities each day and to improve America's juvenile justice system in order to prevent and respond to delinquency. This event allowed the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention to meet its responsibility to improve the juvenile justice system and its response to victimized youth, as required under the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act.
Office of Justice Programs	Veterans Treatment Court Planning Initiative (VTCPI)	San Jose, California	2/6/2012	2/10/2012	-	114	$164,959	The National Association of Drug Court Professionals (NADCP), through the Veterans' Treatment Courts Program, trained over 100 local community professionals participating in 10 local community Veterans Treatment Court (VTC) Teams from across the United States on the latest research and best practices for Veterans Treatment Courts, a specialized criminal justice strategy to support America's military veterans. Treatment Courts leverage the coercive power of the criminal justice system to reduce crime and substance abuse among nonviolent offenders. Drug treatment courts are an effective way of improving the criminal justice system, the statutory mission of the Bureau of Justice Assistance.
Office of Justice Programs	Adult Drug Court Planning Initiative Training (ADCPI)	St. Paul, Minnesota	3/19/2012	3/23/2012	-	98	$162,956	The National Association of Drug Court Professionals (NADCP) assisted nearly 100 state and local officials in 20 community teams over five days in designing local Adult Drug Court programs to improve the criminal justice system. The drug court team is a multi-disciplinary collaborative of essential team members including the local judge, prosecutor, public defender, treatment provider, probation, law enforcement, coordinator and evaluator. Drug courts are proven effective and leverage the coercive power of the criminal justice system to reduce recidivism and substance abuse among nonviolent offenders. Bringing these teams to a single location for a five-day training is more cost effective than conducting this training in 20 different cities across the U.S.

Office of Justice Programs	Tribal Healing to Wellness Court Planning Initiative (THWCPI)	Phoenix, Arizona	3/25/2012	3/30/2012	-	114	$172,596	The National Association of Drug Court Professionals (NADCP) assisted over 100 tribal justice officials from 10 tribes in designing local Tribal Healing to Wellness Court programs. Wellness courts leverage the justice system and tribal traditions to reduce recidivism and substance abuse among nonviolent offenders and increase the likelihood of successful rehabilitation through early, continuous, and intensive judicially supervised treatment, mandatory drug testing, appropriate sanctions to reduce drug and alcohol use, reduce crime and enhance public safety on tribal lands. Native American Tribes suffer some of the highest crime and substance abuse rates, therefore programs such as these are essential. Improving the justice system in state, local and tribal communities is the statutory responsibility of the Bureau of Justice Assistance.
Office of Justice Programs	National Fusion Center Training Event*	Phoenix, Arizona	4/2/2012	4/5/2012	100	650	$197,177	The Institute for Intergovernmental Research conducted this collaborative National Fusion Center Training which was attended by fusion center directors, their key staff, and the core federal agency personnel that directly support the fusion center work. The event provided an opportunity for attendees to participate in national-level training focusing on the critical operating capabilities that all centers must strive to meet. Additionally, this event highlighted many critical law enforcement projects such as the Nationwide Suspicious Activity Reporting (SAR) Initiative. This national initiative supported the efforts of state and urban Fusion Centers and is funded in part the Department of Justice, Federal Emergency Management Agency, Department of Homeland Security Intelligence and Analysis, Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, and the Program Manager, Information Sharing Environment. These Justice Information Sharing initiatives improve local justice systems, consistent with the statutory mission of the Bureau of Justice Assistance.

Office of Justice Programs	Human Trafficking Workshop	Salt Lake City, Utah	4/10/2012	4/14/2012	-	152	$234,433	This five day symposium assembled over 125 national experts to gain their knowledge and expertise in developing an exhaustive resource of behaviors, indicators and characteristics of perpetrators, victims, and third parties (including organized crime), to be used as best practices for federal, state and local law enforcement, public educators and medical professionals confronting human trafficking in local communities. This group of experts will continue to contribute to the training and expert assistance DOJ provides to local communities, consistent with the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention's mission of missing children and child protection. Seeking the input of such a wide group of local experts will ensure that the Department can provide training and assistance to local communities that will lead to effective investigations and victim service delivery.
Office of Justice Programs	2012 National Law Enforcement Training on Child Exploitation	Atlanta, Georgia	4/16/2012	4/19/2012	315	2,499	$949,315	This Conference provided essential training and expert assistance for over 2,500 law enforcement (state, local, federal, international) officials and prosecutors to identify, prevent and deter criminal child sexual and non-sexual exploitation conducted via the Internet and other electronic devices. The event also enabled law enforcement investigators to meet and share information with each other in order to create a more effective network to respond to these crimes and to identify best practices across states and nations. The Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention's training of law enforcement is critical to protect children, as required by the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act. Costs represent multiple DOJ components. This conference was held prior to the issuance of OMB Memorandum M-12-12. An agency head's waiver was not required.

In keeping with this tradition, the Department held the 2012 National Crime Victims' Service Awards Ceremony, with more than 200 state, local, tribal victims professionals and community representatives, honoring individuals and organizations for their work serving crime victims and advancing the rights of victims. The Victims' Service Awards Ceremony is part of Crime Victims' Rights Week, which furthers the Department's mission to improve service to crime victims.
Office of Justice Programs	Tribe and Territory Sex Offender Registry System (TTSORS) Users Conference	Asheville, North Carolina	4/24/2012	4/25/2012	-	182	$171,646	This conference informed and trained over 175 tribal and territorial officials on the use of the Tribe and Territory Sex Offender Registry System (TTSORS) and served as an information-sharing forum as well, allowing tribal and territorial members to share information and best practices across tribes and territories. The number of jurisdictions using or testing TTSORS has grown to more than 130 Indian tribes and U.S. Territories. This event is consistent with the Department's responsibilities under the Adam Walsh Act and is necessary to ensure sex offenders do not commit new crimes.
Office of Justice Programs	Veterans Treatment Court Planning Initiative (VTCPI)	Buffalo, New York	4/30/2012	5/3/2012	-	112	$133,302	The National Association of Drug Court Professionals (NADCP) held this training event to provide intensive training to over 100 local community justice professionals from 10 teams on the latest research and best practices so that they can establish local Veterans Treatment Courts in their communities. Veterans Treatment Courts are evidence-based and provide essential support to America's veterans to keep them from further involvement in the criminal justice system. These specialized courts improve local justice systems, consistent with the Bureau of Justice Assistance's statutory mission.
Office of Justice Programs	Unsolved Cases: Cold Case Analysis for Law Enforcement and Prosecutors	San Antonio, Texas	5/22/2012	5/23/2012	-	104	$100,699	This training was designed to enhance the efforts of police investigators and prosecutors to successfully investigate and resolve cold cases. The training was provided to over 100 local law enforcement participants. This unique conference allows participants the ability to share information on how to prioritize cases, conduct interviews and maximize the use of forensic technologies, ultimately bringing justice to victims along with improving local law enforcement and safety by removing dangerous criminals from the community. This event provides NIJ with the ability to provide scientific expertise to bear in cold cases being handled by local law enforcement.

Office of Justice Programs	WVU's 2012 Spring Continuing Education for Forensic Professionals Program	Savannah, Georgia	6/4/2012	6/8/2012	-	280	$338,200	This week-long advanced training event provided 280 forensic science professionals with onsite access to 29 various continuing education courses on a wide variety of highly technical topics including forensic pathology, latent print analysis, computer forensics, bloodstain pattern analysis, ethics, toxicology analysis, courtroom testimony and other critical topics in forensics. This bi-annual event is critical in order to ensure that the National Institute of Justice (NIJ) can continue to advance the scientific techniques used to preserve justice in the U.S., as NIJ's mission requires.
Office of Justice Programs	2012 National Court-Appointed Special Advocates (CASA) Conference	Washington, District of Columbia	6/9/2012	6/12/2012	-	1,232	$123,542	The National Court-Appointed Special Advocates (CASA) Conference, sponsored in part through funding from the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP), provided critical learning and networking opportunities for over 1,200 local CASA and guardian ad litem staff, volunteers, judges, attorneys and other child welfare professionals to connect with peers and learn from leaders in the field of child protection. The conference's 54 workshops focused on strengthening volunteerism, building skills and acquiring tools to enhance local child advocates ability to speak up for abused and neglected children. Key workshop topics include trauma-informed advocacy, trends in substance abuse, cultural competency, local CASA organization online presence and volunteer recruitment. CASA volunteers are appointed by judges to watch over and advocate for abused and neglected children, to make sure they don't get lost in the overburdened legal and social service system. OJJDP's sponsorship is consistent with its statutory mission and provides a cost effective way for OJJDP to reach over 1,000 local child advocates with information about OJJDP strategies and initiatives.
Office of Justice Programs	National Institutes of Justice-Standing Panel Peer Review Consensus Meeting*	Washington, District of Columbia	6/11/2012	6/15/2012	25	97	$149,370	The purpose of this meeting was to conduct panel sessions in support of the National Institute of Justice (NIJ) Standing Panels Peer Review process. This was the first year of a 5 year effort, with year one and two serving as the pilot years. The goal of the pilot years is to implement processes that will fulfill the need to establish a more scientific approach to conducting peer review. Each standing panel is composed of 18 renowned researchers. All panels taking place during FY 12 ran from June 11-15. During these meetings, participants attended sessions designed to facilitate the effective peer review of applications submitted in response to solicitations posted by the National Institute of Justice.

Office of Justice Programs	National Institute of Justice Annual Conference	Arlington, Virginia	6/18/2012	6/20/2012	174	1,118	$460,149	Pursuant to the National Institute of Justice's authorizing statute, over 1,100 members of the academic community together with state, local and tribal criminal justice professionals participated in this conference, disseminating research, data and information and generating important dialogues about how scientific evidence can improve policy and practice for crime and justice. The 2012 Conference focused on ways policymakers and practitioners can use scientific methods and evidence-based practices to save criminal justice system funds. The conference featured seven breakout session tracks, including corrections, courts and sentencing, forensic science, policing and public safety, shaping the future of criminal justice, justice technology, and violence and victimization. The conference has provided an annual forum for the dissemination of research and evidence to the criminal justice community.
Office of Justice Programs	Veterans Treatment Court Planning Initiative (VTCPI)	Irvine, California	7/23/2012	7/27/2012	1	127	$238,304	The National Association of Drug Court Professionals (NADCP) provided training at this event to over 100 local criminal justice officials from 10 local teams on the latest research and best practices so that they can effectively design and operate local Veterans Treatment Court Programs. Veterans Treatment Courts assist local communities in responding to America's military veterans who have come into contact with the criminal justice system. The approach is evidence-based and is designed to ensure that veterans can get the specialized treatment needed to avoid substance-abuse and crime. Bringing these community teams together into one location is more cost-effective than delivering the training in 10 different locations and also allows the community teams to share information and best practices with each other.
Office of Justice Programs	National Intertribal Youth Summit	Chevy Chase, Maryland	7/28/2012	8/2/2012	35	322	$324,564	The purpose of this event was to provide a culturally appropriate youth leadership and delinquency prevention conference for over 300 at-risk American Indian and Alaska Native youth ages 14 to 17, consistent with the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention's delinquency prevention and child protection missions. The 2012 National Intertribal Youth Summit examined critical tribal youth issues, such as teen dating violence, substance abuse, suicide prevention, gang involvement, and leadership development. The Summit provided an invaluable opportunity for DOJ and our federal partners to work directly with tribal youth on to improve services to address the key public health and safety issues in their communities, which so many of our programs target.

Office of Justice Programs	Adult Drug Court Planning Initiative Training (ADCPI)	San Diego, California	7/29/2012	8/3/2012	-	101	$249,764	The National Association of Drug Court Professionals (NADCP) provided intensive training to over 100 local justice system professionals from 20 community teams in the planning and development of local Adult Drug Court programs. The local teams are multi-disciplinary and include judges, prosecutors, public defenders, treatment providers, probation, law enforcement, coordinators and evaluators. Drug courts are proven effective in reducing substance abuse among highly addicted individuals who come into contact with the criminal justice system. As a result of this training, local communities are able to implement evidence-based and effective strategies to reduce crime. Bringing these 20 local community teams together in one location is more cost effective than delivering the training in 20 different locations and allows the teams to share information and best practices with each other as well.
Office of Justice Programs	Impression and Pattern Evidence Symposium (IPES)	Clearwater Beach, Florida	8/4/2012	8/10/2012	15	816	$242,099	Through a series of intensive and technical workshops held in August 2012, this week-long symposium brought together over 800 local forensic practitioners and researchers to enhance information-sharing and promote expertise and collaboration among the impression and pattern evidence experts, law enforcement, and legal communities. One of the most common forms of evidence investigators may detect and collect at a crime scene is impression and pattern evidence. Impression and pattern evidence can help link a suspect or tool to a particular crime scene. New or improved techniques to identify, collect, analyze and preserve impression and pattern evidence greatly aid the forensic community and this symposium was designed to share this type of information across the forensics, law enforcement and legal community. This event allows NIJ to share scientific expertise and information with local communities.
Office of Justice Programs	Sentencing and Management of Sex Offenders*	Reno, Nevada	9/10/2012	9/11/2012	2	122	$107,778	Grantee: National Judicial College - The grant's overarching purpose is to make America's communities safer and reduce sex offender recidivism. To achieve the grant's purpose, the National Judicial College (NJC), with its partners, is presenting three regional judicial trainings to give judges the knowledge, skills, and abilities they need to handle cases involving sex offenders. The judges will utilize the recently revised sex offender curriculum to examine and analyze sex offender management. The regional training addresses presiding judges, who then transmit the information back to their respective courts to further support the judiciary's sex offender management throughout the country. This first regional training was held at NJC in Reno, NV, for presiding judges located in the western area of the country.
Office on Violence Against Women	21st Annual Domestic Violence Conference	Salt Lake City, Utah	11/7/2011	11/11/2011	3	349	$211,896	This large scale conference was designed to converge multidisciplinary teams to instruct and collaborate on ways to prevent and respond to Domestic Violence. A significant amount of the travel cost was used to provide scholarships to need based participants in the field of Domestic Violence prevention who would otherwise not be able to attend.
