

binary “all or nothing” determination. To be sure, the depiction here is not as lengthy or repeated as some of the cases cited by ABC and ABC Affiliates in which the Commission has indicated that this factor supported a finding of patent offensiveness (and thus does not provide as much support for a finding of patent offensiveness as was present in those cases).⁴⁷ However, this material does contain more shots or lengthier depictions of nudity, or more focus on nudity, than other cases involving nudity where the Commission has found that this factor did not weigh in favor of a finding of patent offensiveness.⁴⁸

16. Third, we find that the scene’s pandering, titillating, and shocking nature supports a patent offensiveness finding. The female actor’s nudity is presented in a manner that clearly panders to and titillates the audience. The viewer is placed in the voyeuristic position of viewing an attractive woman disrobing as she prepares to step into the shower. Moreover, not only does the scene include a shot of her naked buttocks as she removes her robe in front of the bathroom mirror, the scene goes farther, providing the audience with another full view of her naked buttocks as she stands in front of the shower. This second shot, in which the camera pans down her naked back to her buttocks, pauses for a moment and then pans up her back, highlights the salacious aspect of the scene, clearly suggesting that its interest lies at least partly in seeing the actress's naked buttocks. The subsequent camera shots of the boy's shocked face from between the woman's legs, and of her naked, partially-obscured upper torso from behind his head, also serve to heighten the titillating and shocking nature of the scene. We disagree with ABC's position that these shots convey "nothing sexual or lewd."⁴⁹ Although the scene does not depict any sexual response in the child, his presence serves to heighten the shocking nature of the scene's depiction of her nudity.⁵⁰

⁴⁸ In any event, even were we to conclude that the second principal factor in our contextual analysis does not support a finding a patent offensiveness, we would still reach the same conclusion based on the strength of the first and third principal factors. See, e.g., Super Bowl Forfeiture Order, 21 FCC Rcd at 2766 ¶ 12; Young Broadcasting of San Francisco, 19 FCC Rcd at 1755 ¶¶ 10, 12 (broadcast of performer’s exposed penis was graphic and explicit).

⁵⁰ While the scene does not depict any sexual response in the child, the effect of the nudity on the child is joked about later in the episode. The woman, who is on the police force, is discussing with another police-woman whether seeing her naked might have a long-term impact on the boy when the older detective who is the boy's father walks into the squad room. The woman asks him: "How was he when you dropped him off at school?" He responds: "Dropped him off at a Hooters." When she looks perplexed, he adds: "He insisted," at which point she smiles and walks away.

17. Contrary to ABC's arguments, comparison of the instant scene to Commission precedents does not undermine our finding regarding the third principal factor. The disputed material is easily distinguishable from the nudity addressed by the Commission in Schindler's List.⁵¹ In Schindler's List, the complainant conceded that the material he alleged to be actionably indecent was not presented to pander or titillate.⁵² Indeed, the "full frontal nudity" that aired outside of safe harbor and was the subject of the complaint was, as the ABC Affiliates explain, a scene depicting concentration group prisoners "made to run around the camp fully nude as the sick are sorted from the healthy."⁵³ While the scene is certainly disturbing, it is neither pandering nor titillating and bears no contextual resemblance to the material in NYPD Blue.⁵⁴ Accordingly, we disagree with the ⁵¹ See WPBN/WTOM License Subsidiary, Inc., Memorandum Opinion and Order, 15 FCC Rcd 1838, 1840 (nudity in broadcast of Schindler's List not patently offensive when considered in context of World War II concentration camp).

⁵² See id. at 1840 ¶ 6.

⁵³ ABC Affiliates Response at 57.

⁵⁴ Neither do we credit ABC's argument that the nudity here is presented in a similar manner to the expletives in Saving Private Ryan. See ABC Response at 27, (citing 20 FCC Rcd 4507) (In Complaints Against Various Television Licensees Regarding Their Broadcast on November 11, 2004, of the ABC Television Network's Presentation of the Film "Saving Private Ryan", Memorandum Opinion and Order, 20

claim of the ABC Affiliates that it is “difficult to distinguish” the nudity here from the nudity in the Schindler’s List scene.⁵⁵ Likewise, the Will and Grace episode

FCC Rcd 4507 (2005), the Commission found that use of coarse, vulgar expletives in broadcast of Saving Private Ryan not patently offensive when considered in wartime context). The conclusion that the material here (a woman disrobing to reveal her naked buttocks) is presented in a pandering and titillating manner whereas the material in Saving Private Ryan (expletives uttered by soldiers in the midst of World War II) was not presented in a pandering and titillating manner is entirely unremarkable.

⁵⁵ See ABC Affiliates Response at 58. For the same reason, we reject the ABC Affiliates’ assertion that the Commission has created a per se prohibition of nudity. We need not address Respondents’ reliance on unpublished staff letters denying indecency complaints against broadcasts of the film Catch-22 and other programs that contained nudity. See ABC Response at 18-19, 25-27; ABC Affiliates Response at 58-60. See 47 C.F.R. § 0.445(e) (unpublished opinions and orders of the Commission or its staff “may not be relied upon, used or cited as precedent, except against persons who have actual notice of the document in question or by such persons against the Commission”); Pathfinder Communications Corp., Memorandum Opinion and Order, 18 FCC Rcd 9272, 9279 ¶ 13 & n.47 (2003); see also Indep. Ins. Agents of America, Inc. v. Ludwig, 997 F.2d 958, 962 (D.C. Cir. 1993) (“In the real world of agency practice, informal unpublished letters should not engender reliance.”) (internal quotes and citations omitted).

cited by ABC is easily distinguishable because it presents no nudity.⁵⁶

18. We also disagree with ABC's contention that we are refusing to defer to its artistic judgment, in contrast to cases such as Schindler's List and Saving Private Ryan.⁵⁷ We are not "second-guessing" an artistic decision by concluding that the nudity contained in NYPD Blue was graphic and presented in a pandering and titillating manner.⁵⁸ Art may very well be graphic, and we recognize that NYPD Blue was a longstanding television drama that garnered writing, directing, and acting awards, and that the scene in question related to a broad storyline of the show.⁵⁹ Our finding does not represent a conclusion that the disputed material lacked artistic or social merit. As the D.C. Circuit has recognized, however, "merit is properly treated as a factor in determining whether material is patently offensive, but it does not render such material per se not indecent."⁶⁰ Further, we agree with ABC that the parental advisory and rating at the beginning of the program is relevant and weighs against a finding of indecency.⁶¹ As discussed above, however, we must weigh these factors along with the three principal factors above to ultimately determine whether the disputed material is patently offensive and therefore indecent. In context and on balance, we conclude that the graphic, repeated, pandering, titillating, and shocking nature of the scene's visual depiction of a woman's naked buttocks warrant a finding that it is patently offensive under contemporary community standards for the broadcast medium, notwithstanding any artistic or social merit and the presence of a parental advisory and rating. Therefore, it is actionably indecent.

⁶¹ As ABC points out, the Commission made clear in dismissing indecency complaints against broadcasts of Schindler's List and Saving Private Ryan that a prominent broadcast parental advisory, while not necessarily precluding an indecency finding, should be considered in assessing the degree to which the broadcaster is acting in a responsible manner and the degree to which the public may be surprised and offended by unexpected material. See ABC Response at 34-35 (citing 20 FCC Rcd at 4513 ¶¶ 15-16, 15 FCC Rcd at 1840 ¶ 6, 1842 ¶ 13); ABC Affiliates Response at 61-62.

B. Procedural Arguments

19. ABC and the ABC Affiliates raise several procedural objections to the NAL, including attacks on the sufficiency of the complaints underlying the Commission's action and arguments that the parties have been denied their due process rights by the Commission because of an alleged delay in providing the complaints to them and the alleged truncated period afforded them to respond to the NAL. We address these arguments in turn.

1. Sufficiency of Complaints

20. ABC and the ABC Affiliates contend that the complaints underlying the NAL did not meet the requirements of the Commission's indecency enforcement policy and should have been summarily dismissed.⁶²

⁶² See ABC Response at 10-14 (citing Complaints Regarding Various Television Broadcasts Between February 2, 2002 and March 8, 2005, Order, 21 FCC Rcd 13299 (2006) ("Omnibus Remand Order")); ABC Affiliates Response at 21-34 (citing Omnibus Order, 21 FCC Rcd at 2673 ¶ 32, 2676 ¶ 42, 2687 ¶ 86; Complaints Regarding Various Television Broadcasts Between February 2, 2002 and March 8, 2005, Order, 21 FCC Rcd 13299, 13328-329 ¶¶ 74-77 (2006) ("Omnibus Remand Order"). In addition, Channel 12 of Beaumont, Inc. (Beaumont), which joined in the ABC Affiliates Response, filed a supplement directed to matters pertinent to Station KBMT(TV). See Beaumont Response.

Specifically, both ABC and the ABC Affiliates argue that the Commission failed to make an initial determination as to the sufficiency of each complaint in this case, as required by the Omnibus Remand Order. According to ABC and the ABC Affiliates, with one exception, the subject complaints in this case were identical “form” complaints generated by a single advocacy group. Furthermore, they claim there is no evidence that any of the complainants actually viewed the subject episode of NYPD Blue on the stations cited in the NAL or on any station.⁶³ For these reasons, ABC and the ABC affiliates argue that the complaints are not bona fide, actionable complaints and should have been dismissed for lack of sufficiency. Accordingly, they contend that the Commission should rescind the NAL.⁶⁴

21. The arguments advanced by ABC and ABC Affiliates regarding the sufficiency of the complaints are without merit because they are based upon a flawed understanding of our indecency enforcement policy.⁶⁵ As the Commission clarified in the Omnibus Remand Or- der, it is sufficient that viewers in markets served by each of the ABC Stations filed complaints identifying the allegedly indecent episode of NYPD Blue at issue.⁶⁶ Moreover, and contrary to the arguments of ABC and the ABC Affiliates, there is no requirement that a complaint include a statement that the complainant viewed the material alleged to be indecent. The Commission has considered and rejected similar arguments.⁶⁷

22. Each of the initial e-mail complaints received by the Commission specifically identified the February 25, 2003 episode of NYPD Blue, each stated that the material was aired on stations affiliated with the ABC Network, and each provided a significant excerpt of the allegedly indecent material.⁶⁸ Although the complainants

⁶⁶ See Omnibus Remand Order, 21 FCC Rcd at 13323 ¶ 57, n.180, 13328-329 ¶75.

⁶⁸ We reject the ABC Affiliates' argument that the complaints singularly concern the exposure of a child actor to adult female nudity on the set of NYPD Blue during production of the episode and cannot be read to raise a broadcast indecency issue. See ABC Affiliates Response at 24. There is no reasonable basis for this extremely narrow construction of the complaints. Indeed, many of the complaints specifically stated, "it is shameless that this kind of broadcast is going unchallenged by the FCC." We note, in this regard, that the Commission does not require that indecency complaints be "letter perfect," or provide an exact description of the allegedly indecent material. See, e.g., Indecency Policy Statement, 16 FCC Rcd at 8015 ¶ 24 & n.20 citing Citicasters Co., initially did not provide call letters of a specific ABC affiliate or other information identifying the market in which the complainant resided, Commission staff requested further information on these points in follow-up e-mails to the complainants. Specifically, the staff requested information about the television station over which the complainant saw the subject program,⁶⁹ including, if available, the station's call letters or "the city and town in which the station you watched is located."⁷⁰ The staff received numerous responses to the follow-up e-mails identifying the ABC Stations referenced in the NAL.⁷¹ The follow-up emails permitted the staff to ensure that there was a complainant in the market of each of the ABC Stations against which a forfeiture is imposed herein, consistent with the Commission's enforcement policy.⁷²

23. Consequently, this complaint proceeding does not present the same issues as did the complaints against KMBC-TV discussed in the Omnibus Order Remand and which both ABC and the ABC Affiliates cite in their responses.⁷³ In that case, there were no complaints filed by anyone residing in the market served by KMBC-TV. Instead, the complaints were filed by a complainant residing outside the KMBC-TV market and there was nothing in the record to tie the complaints to KMBC-TV's local viewing area.⁷⁴ With respect to stations at issue in this Order, we have affirmative statements from the complainants tying the complaints to a particular ABC station or affiliated station.⁷⁵

⁷³ See ABC Response at 10-11; ABC Affiliates Response at 28-29; Beaumont Response at 4.

⁷⁴ See Omnibus Remand Order, 21 FCC Rcd at 13328-329 ¶ 75.

24. Moreover, we find no merit in the argument by ABC and the ABC Affiliates that complaints which were not filed contemporaneously with the airing of the February 25, 2003, episode of NYPD Blue should be dismissed.⁷⁶ The Commission does not require complainants to file indecency complaints within a specified time frame.⁷⁷ Under these circumstances, we find that the NAL was consistent with our commitment to an appropriately restrained enforcement policy and recent Commission practice to limit the imposition of forfeiture penalties to licensees whose stations serve markets from which specific complaints are received.⁷⁸

⁷⁶ See ABC Response at 12-13; ABC Affiliates Response at 23-24; Beaumont Response at 4-6.

⁷⁷ See Indecency Policy Statement, 16 FCC Rcd at 8015, ¶ 24.

Response at 14-17, 22-23. Two of these stations, KTKA-TV and KFBB-TV, are no longer subject to forfeitures for reasons discussed elsewhere in this Order, and thus the argument as to them is moot. As to the remaining six stations, the Commission responded on an expedited basis to all requests for complaints concerning stations named in the NAL where the requesting party represented the station(s) whose complaints it sought. Our records reflect that the only party requesting the complaints for these six stations did not indicate that it represented these stations and the complaints were not, therefore, provided on an expedited basis. The complaints have now been provided, but any prejudice alleged to have resulted from the timing of their production must be attributed to the stations' failure to timely request them.

In addition, the ABC Affiliates point out that certain discrepancies among the responses to their FOIA requests for the underlying complaints—mainly, the format of the information provided—raised questions as to whether they had received copies of the genuine complaints. See ABC Affiliates Response at 22-23. We have since corrected any such deficiencies, to the extent they existed. We note, in this regard, that the parties have not established that they suffered any actual harm as a result of these discrepancies and that they were able to and did rely on the complaints in responding to the NAL. Moreover, in responding to the parties' requests for the underlying complaints, we explained that the copies we first produced were Access database versions of the complaints rather than the original Outlook e-mail versions. See E-mail from Ben Bartolome to Mark Prak, Wade Hargrove, and David Kushner, sent Monday, February 4, 2008, at 8:02 p.m. (attaching copies of complaints in Access Version) (copy of E-mail available in FCC record). The next day, we located and produced the original Outlook versions. See E-mail from Ben Bartolome to Mark Prak, Wade Hargrove, and David Kushner, sent Tuesday, February 5, 2008, at 4:54 p.m. (attaching copies of same complaints, but in Outlook version) (copy of E-mail avail-

2. Notice and Length of Time to Respond to NAL

25. The ABC Affiliates contend that the length of time between when the episode aired and the NAL was issued, combined with the “unusually shortened” period of time they had for responding to the NAL, effectively deprived them of their administrative due process rights.⁷⁹ Beaumont, in a separate response, makes similar arguments.⁸⁰ More specifically, the ABC Affiliates claim that they did not know until the NAL was issued that there were pending complaints against the ABC affiliate stations concerning its broadcast of the subject NYPD Blue episode.⁸¹ The ABC Affiliates note that although the Commission issued a letter of inquiry to ABC, Inc., concerning the indecency complaints the Commission had received,⁸² the affiliates did not directly receive similar notice from the Commission and, therefore, did not have as much time as the ABC owned-and-operated stations to conduct a contemporaneous investi-able in FCC record). There is no question that the complaints we provided were “genuine.”

⁷⁹ See ABC Affiliates Response at 9-21.

⁸⁰ See Beaumont Response at 5-6.

⁸¹ See ABC Affiliates Response at 11-13.

⁸² See Letter from William D. Freedman, Deputy Chief, Investigations & Hearings Division, Enforcement Bureau, FCC to Susan L. Fox, Esq., ABC Inc., dated February 3, 2004 (“Letter of Inquiry”).

gation of the facts. As such, they assert that pertinent records may be non-existent or hard to locate, and knowledgeable witnesses may no longer readily be available.⁸³ Moreover, they argue that once the NAL was issued, they were afforded only 17 days, rather than the usual 30 days, in which to respond and that this shortened period further prejudiced their rights.⁸⁴

26. We find no merit in ABC Affiliates' and Beaumont's due process arguments. Both parties fail to demonstrate that the Commission's process somehow impeded their ability to fully exercise their due process rights. The arguments advanced by the parties with respect to insufficient notice suggest a misunderstanding of the nature of the Commission's forfeiture process. Pursuant to section 1.80 of the Commission's rules, before imposing a forfeiture penalty, the Commission must provide each licensee with a written notice of apparent liability which includes an explanation of the nature of the misconduct, the rule section that the Commission believes was violated, and the proposed forfeiture amount. The NAL in this instance provided such required notice. There is no requirement that the Commission direct a letter of inquiry to a licensee as part of an investigation of alleged indecent programming aired by a broadcast station before issuing an NAL. Moreover, section 1.80 of the Commission's rules specifies that each licensee to which such notice is provided may file a written response demonstrating why a forfeiture penalty should not be imposed or should be reduced. By their responses to the NAL and various FOIA filings to obtain copies of complaints, the ABC Affiliates and other parties availed themselves of the opportunity to respond to the Commission's concerns, belying their claims to the contrary.

⁸³ See ABC Affiliates Response at 12.

⁸⁴ We note that potential statute of limitations concerns under 28 U.S.C. § 2462 warranted the Commission's action in providing Respondents a shorter time period than usual to respond to the NAL.

27. Furthermore, as a practical matter we are not persuaded that the ABC Affiliates suffered any harm from the shortened NAL response period or the time period between the broadcast and the NAL under the circumstances involved here. The principal record involved here is the tape of the episode, which the ABC Affiliates do not maintain was difficult to obtain. In addition, while they argue that individual stations may have had difficulty determining whether they aired the episode within the "safe harbor," ABC provided that information to the Commission in 2004.⁸⁵ The parties' timely filings also contradict any potential claim that they have suffered actual harm and/or that the NAL response time was so inadequate as to jeopardize their due process rights. The ABC Affiliates claim that “pertinent records of the broadcast may be non-existent or difficult to locate, and knowledgeable witnesses may no longer be readily available.” They do not argue that such records or witnesses were, in fact, impossible to locate or that any particular material relevant to their case could not be found. At best, the parties argue inconvenience, which, even if true, they clearly surmounted, considering the number, coordinated nature, and overall comprehensiveness of their filings.

28. Section 1.80 provides that the “[r]espondent will be afforded a reasonable period of time (usually 30 days from the date of the notice) to show, in writing, why a forfeiture penalty should not be imposed or should be reduced, or to pay the forfeiture.”⁸⁶ The Commission’s rules do not state that the reasonable period of time will always be 30 days. A 30-day response period is not mandated. The rule only requires that the response period be reasonable, and the parties have not submitted evidence of actual harm or presented any persuasive arguments to convince the Commission that the 17 days afforded for a response in this case was not reasonable. Indeed, the evidence before us demonstrates that the ABC Affiliates were able to substantively respond to the ⁸⁶ See 47 C.F.R. § 1.80(f)(3) (emphasis added).

NAL and to fully incorporate in that response relevant materials, including the underlying complaints in this proceeding. Legal counsel from 20 law firms and/or companies coordinated and responded to the NAL in one, consolidated, 70-page brief, with exhibits, on behalf of the majority of ABC affiliated stations. Accordingly, we conclude that the period provided for the licensees' response was reasonable and that they were neither deprived of the required notice nor an opportunity to be heard.

29. The ABC Affiliates also complain that the quality of the notice received through the NAL does not meet the standards set forth in Section 1.80(f)(1)(ii) because it allegedly fails to “[s]et forth the nature of the act or omission charged against the respondent and the facts upon which such charge is based.”⁸⁷ We find this argument wholly unpersuasive. The NAL set forth the episode, air date and time, and a sufficient description of the content and how it violated the Commission's indecency rules.⁸⁸ There is no requirement, as the ABC Affiliates suggest, that the Commission provide the underlying complaint itself as part of the notice. Accordingly, we reject this argument.

⁸⁷ See ABC Affiliates Response at 21; 47 C.F.R. § 1.80(f)(1)(ii).

⁸⁸ See NAL at ¶¶ 9-19.

30. Finally, the ABC Affiliates' argument that their due process rights have been denied because they did not have the benefit of producing evidence in the context of an administrative hearing proceeding is misplaced.⁸⁹ As the Commission has previously stated:

It is, of course, true that the complainant's statement is "untested," in that no evidentiary hearing has been held. However, the Communications Act of 1934, as amended ("Act") permits the imposition of a forfeiture without an evidentiary hearing. The Act also protects the rights of parties subject to a forfeiture assessed without a hearing by providing that such a forfeiture cannot be used to the prejudice of the party unless it is paid or a court of competent jurisdiction has issued a final order after a trial de novo requiring that the forfeiture be paid.⁹⁰

Accordingly, given the foregoing, we deny the ABC Affiliates' and Beaumont's argument that the NAL should be rescinded based on any due process or insufficient notice grounds.

⁸⁹ See ABC Affiliates Response at 10.

C. Other Arguments

1. Broadcast Satellite Station

31. Gray Television Licensee, Inc. (“Gray”), argues that the Commission should dismiss the case as to its satellite station, KLBY(TV), Colby, KS, and remove it from liability for the forfeiture assessed in the NAL.⁹¹ Gray explains that KLBY is a satellite station of Gray’s full-power station, KAKE-TV, Wichita, KS, which is already subject to the NAL.⁹² As such, Gray asserts that KLBY(TV) “offers little more than an extension of the signal of its parent station, and makes virtually no independent programming judgments about the programming it broadcasts.”⁹³ Further, it states that it broadcasts less than one half hour a week of programming that differs from the full power station.⁹⁴ Gray contends that the Commission’s treatment of KLBY here is inconsistent with its differential treatment of satellite stations in other arenas, such as their exemption from television broadcast ownership restrictions.⁹⁵ Gray claims that subjecting it to forfeitures for both KAKE-TV and KLBY airing the same content would effectively make it more expensive to own satellite stations, which contrasts with the Commission's treatment in other contexts making it less burdensome to own satellite stations.⁹⁶ In making these arguments, Gray relies on precedent concerning ownership restrictions, the burdens an applicant must satisfy to own a satellite station, and limits on independent programming a satellite station may offer.⁹⁷

32. Notably, however, Gray does not cite indecency enforcement rules or policy to support its theory. While the Commission might have eased certain burdens on those seeking to own satellite stations, it has not made the pronouncement that Gray suggests, in effect, that the Commission should not apply the same indecency rules to satellite stations as it does to full-service stations. Nor has the Commission concurred in Gray's implicit contention that when a satellite station's parent station is subject to forfeiture for the airing indecent programming, the satellite station should not be fined for carrying the same material.⁹⁸

33. The Commission first authorized TV satellite operations in small or sparsely populated areas with insufficient economic bases to support full-service operations. As such, Gray is correct that KLBY offers "a unique and irreplaceable service.”⁹⁹ That does not mean, however, that KLBY is effectively exempt from the Commission’s indecency regulation. In fact, the Commission abolished the limit on the amount of original local programming that a satellite station may originate.¹⁰⁰ This elimination cuts against Gray’s argument because it chooses for its satellite station to carry most of the same programming aired by its full-service parent station rather than originate different programming. In any event, there is no reason why the viewers of a satellite station should not expect it to abide by the same content restrictions as a full-service station. Accordingly, Gray is no less responsible for the programming of its satellite station than for its full-service station. Therefore, we reject Gray’s arguments on these points.

⁹⁸ We note, in fact, that the Commission has previously imposed a forfeiture on a satellite station for violation of the indecency rules and has done so while concurrently imposing a forfeiture on the satellite station's parent station for airing the same programming. See, e.g., Super Bowl NAL, 19 FCC Rcd at 19235 ¶ 13 (finding satellite stations KCCO-TV and KCCW-TV and their parent station, WCCO-TV, apparently liable for forfeiture for their broadcast of the Super Bowl XXXVIII Halftime Show), affirmed, Forfeiture Order, 21 FCC Rcd 2760 (2006), affirmed, Order on Reconsideration, 21 FCC Rcd 6653 (2006), pet. for review pending on different grounds, CBS Corp. v. FCC, No. 06-3575 (3d Cir. Filed July 28, 2006).

On a related topic, we note that the Commission has specifically stated that it will apply indecency rules to the low power broadcast service. See An Inquiry into the Future Role of Low Power Television Broadcasting and Television Translators in the National Telecommunications System, 51 Rad. Reg. 2nd 476 ¶ 105 (1982) (noting that the statutory prohibitions against broadcast of obscene material apply to the low power service).

2. Statute of Limitations

34. Northeast Kansas Broadcast Service and KFBB Corporation correctly argue that the statute of limitations for the Commission to assess a forfeiture precludes it from assessing liability for KTKA-TV and KFBB-TV due to an intervening renewal grant for each station between the episode in question and the issuance of the NAL.¹⁰¹ The Commission accordingly cancels the NAL insofar as it relates to these stations.

D. Constitutional Issues

35. Respondents argue that imposition of a forfeiture in this case would violate the First Amendment. ABC contends that Commission's indecency standard is unconstitutional on its face. In support, it asserts that the justifications that existed for adopting the current indecency standard are no longer valid; the current indecency standard is impermissibly vague; the availability of new blocking technologies has rendered the current indecency standard overbroad; and the indecency standard is subjective in a way that violates the First Amendment. The ABC Affiliates assert that the Supreme Court's decision in Pacifica bars the Commission from regulating brief material; the Commission failed to follow the context-driven approach required by the First Amendment; a prohibition on all broadcast nudity is overbroad; and the Commission must apply local, not national, community standards of patent offensiveness. For the reasons discussed below, we reject Respondents' arguments.

36. Validity of Indecency Test. ABC argues that the underpinnings of the Commission's current indecency standard date back to the Supreme Court's decision in Federal Communications Commission v. Pacifica Foundation,¹⁰² and that the justifications upon which the Court relied in its decision—the uniquely pervasive presence of the broadcast medium and the unique accessibility of broadcasting to children—are no longer viable. In this regard, ABC argues that cable and satellite transmissions now reach the majority of the nation's television households and offer hundreds of channels as well as the signals of broadcast stations.¹⁰³

37. We disagree with ABC's claim that the justifications upon which the Supreme Court relied in Pacifica are no longer valid and note that the D.C. Circuit has rejected this precise argument: "Despite the increasing availability of receiving television, such as cable . . . there can be no doubt that the traditional broadcast media are properly subject to more regulation than is generally permissible under the First Amendment.”¹⁰⁴ Notwithstanding ABC’s arguments to the contrary, the broadcast media continue to have a “uniquely pervasive presence” in American life. The Supreme Court has recognized that “[d]espite the growing importance of cable television and alternative technologies, ‘broadcasting is demonstrably a principal source of information and entertainment for a great part of the Nation’s population.’”¹⁰⁵ In 2003, 98.2% of households had at least one television, and 99% had at least one radio.¹⁰⁶ Although the majority of households with television subscribe to a cable or satellite service, millions of households continue to rely exclusively on broadcast television,¹⁰⁷ and the National Association of Broadcasters estimates that there are some 73 million broadcast-only television sets in American households.¹⁰⁸ Moreover, many of those broadcast-only televisions are in children's bedrooms.¹⁰⁹ Although the broadcast networks have experienced declines in the number of viewers over the last several years, the programming they offer remains by far the most popular and is available to almost all households.¹¹⁰

¹⁰⁷ Annual Assessment of the Status of Competition in the Market for the Delivery of Video Programming, Twelfth Annual Report, 21 FCC Rcd 2503, 2506-07 ¶ 8, 2508 ¶ 15 (2006).

¹⁰⁸ See id. at 2552 ¶ 97. It also has been estimated that almost half of direct broadcast satellite subscribers receive their broadcast channels over the air, Media Bureau Staff Report Concerning Over-the-Air Broadcast Television Viewers, 2005 WL 473322, No. 04-210, ¶ 9 (MB Feb. 28, 2005), and many subscribers to cable and satellite still rely on broadcast for some of the televisions in their households. Annual Assessment, 21 FCC Rcd at 2508 ¶ 15.

¹⁰⁹ See Kaiser Family Foundation, Generation M: Media in the Lives of 8-18 Year-olds 77 (2005). According to the Kaiser Family Foundation report, 68 percent of children aged eight to 18 have a television set in their bedrooms, and nearly half of those sets do not have cable or satellite connections.

¹¹⁰ A large disparity in viewership still exists between broadcast and cable television programs. For example, during the week of February 4, 2008, each of the top ten programs on broadcast television had more than 12.5 million viewers, while only two programs on cable television that week—both professional wrestling programs—managed to attract

Indeed, elsewhere in its response, ABC trumpets the fact that “NYPD Blue . . . enjoyed great popular success on the ABC Television Network, averaging more than 15 million viewers during its 12 years on the network.”¹¹¹

38. The broadcast media are also “uniquely accessible to children.” In this respect, broadcast television differs from cable and satellite television. Parents who subscribe to cable exercise some choice in their selection of a package of channels, and they may avoid subscribing to some channels that present programming that, in their judgment, is inappropriate for children. Indeed, upon the request of a subscriber, cable providers are required by statute to “fully block the audio and video programming of each channel carrying such programming so that one not a subscriber does not receive it.”¹¹² more than 5 million viewers. See Nielsen Media Research, “Trend Index,” available at http://www.nielsen.com/media/toptens_television.html (visited Feb. 14, 2008). Indeed, that same week, 90 of the top 100-rated programs appeared on broadcast channels, and the highest rated cable program was number 71. See Television Bureau of Advertising, “Top 100 Programs on Broadcast and Subscription TV: Households,” available at http://www.tvb.org/nav/build_frameset.aspx (visited Feb. 14, 2008).

In contrast, as the D.C. Circuit has observed, “broadcast audiences have no choice but to ‘subscribe’ to the entire output of traditional broadcasters.”¹¹³ The V-chip provides parents with some ability to control their children’s access to broadcast programming, but it does not eliminate the need for the Commission to vigorously enforce its indecency rules. In particular, as explained in further detail below, we note that numerous televisions do not contain a V-chip, and most parents who have a television set with a V-chip are unaware of its existence or do not know how to use it.¹¹⁴ Accordingly, there is no merit to ABC’s claim that Pacifica—and more importantly, our indecency rules—are invalid, obsolete or outdated.

39. Vagueness and Overbreadth. ABC argues that the Commission’s indecency standard is unconstitutionally vague, citing Reno v. ACLU.¹¹⁵ Reno addressed the constitutionality of provisions of the Communications Decency Act (“CDA”) that sought to protect minors from harmful material on the Internet. The Court determined that the CDA’s indecency standard was impermissibly vague because it failed to define key terms, thereby provoking uncertainty among speakers and preventing them from discerning what speech would violate the statute.¹¹⁶ ABC asserts that, because the CDA definition of indecency was determined by the Court to be fatally imprecise, and the Commission's definition of indecency is similar to the CDA definition, it follows that the Commission's definition is similarly flawed.¹¹⁷

40. We reject ABC's arguments that the Commission's indecency standard is vague. That standard is essentially the same as the one used in the order that was reviewed in Pacifica,¹¹⁸ and the Supreme Court had no difficulty applying that definition and using it to conclude that the broadcast at issue in that case was indecent. We therefore agree with the D.C. Circuit that "implicit in Pacifica" is an acceptance of the FCC's generic definition of 'indecent' as capable of surviving a vagueness challenge."¹¹⁹

¹¹⁸ See 438 U.S. at 732.

¹¹⁹ See ACT I, 852 F.2d at 1339; accord ACT III, 58 F.3d at 659. ABC also contends that "imposition of forfeitures in this case would be . . . inconsistent with the Commission's past treatment of similar broadcasts and similar material," thus rendering the Commission's indecency enforcement unconstitutionally vague. ABC Response at 39-40. As we explain above, see supra ¶¶ 13 - 18, there is no inconsistency, so this argument necessarily fails.

41. We also believe that ABC’s reliance on Reno is without merit. The Court in Reno expressly distinguished Pacifica, giving three different reasons for doing so.¹²⁰ Thus, far from casting doubt on Pacifica’s vagueness holding, Reno recognizes its continuing vitality.

42. We also reject ABC’s claim that the “contemporary community standards for the broadcast medium” criterion is impermissibly subjective.¹²¹ The “contemporary community standards for the broadcast medium” criterion—which was upheld by the Supreme Court in Pacifica—is that of an average broadcast listener or viewer.¹²² Our approach to discerning community standards parallels that used in obscenity cases, where the ¹²⁰ See Reno v. ACLU, 521 U.S. 844, 867 (1997). First, the Court noted that the Commission is “an agency that [has] been regulating radio stations for decades,” and that the Commission’s regulations simply “designate when—rather than whether—it would be permissible” to air indecent material.” Id. The CDA, in contrast, was not administered by an expert agency, and it contained “broad categorical prohibitions” that were “not limited to particular times.” Id. Second, the CDA was a criminal statute, whereas the Commission has no power to impose criminal sanctions for indecent broadcasts. See id. at 867, 872. Third, unlike the Internet, the broadcast medium has traditionally “received the most limited First Amendment protection.” Id. at 867.

jury is instructed to rely on its own knowledge of community standards in determining whether material is patently offensive.¹²³ Here, however, the Commission has the added advantage of being an expert agency, and as we have explained before, “[w]e rely on our collective experience and knowledge, developed through constant interaction with lawmakers, courts, broadcasters, public interest groups and ordinary citizens, to keep abreast of contemporary community standards for the broadcast medium.”¹²⁴ In applying this standard, the Commission does not apply its own “personal sensibilities,”¹²⁵ but at the same time it is settled that “merit is properly treated as a factor in determining whether material is patently offensive.”¹²⁶

43. The ABC Affiliates contend that the Commission’s application of community standards “is unconstitutionally overbroad because it constitutes a national standard to determine whether broadcast material is patently offensive, rather than local community standards.”¹²⁷ Instead, the ABC Affiliates contend that the Commission must “examine[] the mores of the more than four dozen various geographic communities in which the NYPD Blue episode was viewed and for which the ABC Affiliates are being cited.”¹²⁸

44. This argument is unavailing. Our longstanding indecency test focuses on whether material is patently offensive as measured by contemporary community standards for the “broadcast medium” generally, rather than those of any particular community. That is the standard the Supreme Court affirmed in Pacifica, without any suggestion that the Commission erred by not determining whether broadcast of the Carlin monologue was patently offensive according to the community standards of New York, the only community in which there was a complaint about its broadcast.¹²⁹ If application of a national standard was appropriate in Pacifica, it clearly was in this case, which involves a national broadcast and complaints arising from many parts of the country.

45. For their contrary position, the ABC Affiliates rely principally on criminal obscenity prosecutions, which present distinct concerns not applicable to this non-criminal proceeding involving indecency, not obscenity.¹³⁰ Even in the context of obscenity, however, the Supreme Court has said only that the First Amendment does not require juries to apply nationwide community standards. States therefore have the option of defining obscenity based on more localized community standards, but nothing in the Supreme Court’s obscenity case law requires them to do so.¹³¹ Indeed, a national standard actually facilitates national broadcasting, since it provides more certainty and avoids the necessity of tailoring national programming station-by-station based on the potentially disparate community standards of a nationwide television audience.¹³²

46. ABC also asserts that television viewers today are able to effectively prevent reception of any programming that they consider unsuitable for children through the use of voluntary ratings of programs by the entertainment industry and so-called “V-Chip” technology.¹³³ The existence of a less intrusive solution, according to ABC, thus renders the Commission’s regulatory scheme unconstitutionally overbroad.¹³⁴ Likewise, the ABC Affiliates state that the “V-chip is not itself dispositive of the legal issue in this case” but nonetheless claim that its availability creates “constitutional ramifications” militating against a finding of indecency here.¹³⁵

47. We reject these arguments. While we agree that the V-chip provides some assistance in protecting children from indecent material, it does not eliminate the need for the Commission to enforce its indecency rules. Numerous televisions do not contain a V-chip, and most parents who have a television set with a V-chip are unaware of its existence or do not know how to use it.¹³⁶ In

(for “sexual situations”) since ABC did not include such a descriptor for this program.¹³⁹

48. The ABC Affiliates also argue that a finding of indecency in this case is unconstitutionally overbroad because it amounts to proscription of “all non-sexual nudity on television.”¹⁴⁰ This argument is based on a false premise. As discussed above, our finding that the broadcast included a depiction of sexual or excretory organs—namely a woman’s buttocks—was necessary, but not sufficient, to find the broadcast indecent.¹⁴¹ We find the nudity here indecent because it was patently offensive when considered in light of contemporary community standards for the broadcast medium. In particular, we find that, in context, the material was shocking, pandering, and titillating.¹⁴² This case therefore does not present the question whether a prohibition on broadcast of all “non-sexual nudity” would be constitutionally overbroad.

49. Conflict with Pacifica. The ABC Affiliates also argue that the “*Pacific*a” decision makes it clear that the fleeting nature of the nudity depicted here . . . may not be proscribed.”¹⁴³ We reject this contention. As an initial matter, the ABC Affiliates are wrong factually: the nudity included in this broadcast was not fleeting.¹⁴⁴ Even if it were, however, Pacifica would pose no barrier to a finding of indecency. First, Pacifica involved spoken expletives, not images of nudity. Even if it were true that the Court in Pacifica had drawn the First Amendment line at the twelve minutes it took Carlin to complete his monologue, there is no reason to believe it would require the same amount of repetition in a case of nudity.¹⁴⁵ In any event, contrary to the ABC Affiliates’ contention, Pacifica did not decide that regulation of brief expletives would be unconstitutional but instead expressly reserved the question.¹⁴⁶

¹⁴² See supra ¶ 16.

50. The ABC Affiliates also contend that a forfeiture here would conflict with Pacifica’s recognition that “context is all-important”¹⁴⁷ because of “the fact that the depiction of bare buttocks occurred in a gritty, real-

¹⁴⁹ See supra ¶¶ 12 - 18.

¹⁵⁰ See ACT III, 58 F.3d at 665-66. As the D.C. Circuit explained, ratings data likely under-estimate the number of children in the audience for indecent programming because “[c]hildren will not likely record, in a Nielsen diary or other survey, that they listen to or view programs of which their parents disapprove.” Id. at 665. In addition, the court noted that “changes in the program menu make yesterday’s findings irrelevant today” and “such station-and program-specific data do not take ‘children’s grazing’ into account.” Id. at 665-66.

IV. CONCLUSION

51. Section 503(b) of the Act, 47 U.S.C. § 503(b), and section 1.80(a) of the Commission's rules, 47 C.F.R. § 1.80, both state that any person who willfully or repeatedly fails to comply with the provisions of the Act or the rules shall be liable for a forfeiture penalty. For purposes of section 503(b) of the Act, the term "willful" means that the violator knew it was taking the action in question, irrespective of any intent to violate the Commission's rules.¹⁵¹ Based on our determination that the stations in question willfully broadcast this episode of NYPD Blue and the material before us, we find that the ABC stations willfully violated 18 U.S.C. § 1464 and section 73.3999 of the Commission's rules, by airing indecent programming during the NYPD Blue program on February 25, 2003.

52. The Commission's Forfeiture Policy Statement sets a base forfeiture amount of $7,000 for the transmission of indecent or obscene materials.¹⁵² The Forfeiture

Policy Statement also specifies that the Commission shall adjust a forfeiture based upon consideration of the factors enumerated in section 503(b)(2)(D) of the Act, 47 U.S.C. § 503(b)(2)(D), such as “the nature, circumstances, extent and gravity of the violation, and, with respect to the violator, the degree of culpability, any history of prior offenses, ability to pay, and such other matters as justice may require.” For the following reasons, we find that $27,500, the maximum applicable forfeiture during the time the material was broadcast, is an appropriate proposed forfeiture for the material found to be apparently indecent in this case. The scene depicts a woman’s naked buttocks in a graphic and shocking manner. The material was prerecorded, and ABC or its affiliates could have edited or declined the content prior to broadcast.¹⁵³ Although ABC included a warning, we find that a lower forfeiture is not warranted here in light of all the circumstances surrounding the apparent violation, including the shocking and titillating nature of the scene. On balance and in light of all of the circumstances, we find that a $27,500 forfeiture amount for each station would appropriately punish and deter the apparent violation in this case. Therefore, we find that each licensee listed in the Attachment is apparently liable for a proposed forfeiture of $27,500 for each station that broadcast the February 25, 2003, episode of NYPD Blue prior to 10 p.m.¹⁵⁴

53. Although we are informed that other stations not mentioned in any complaint also broadcast the complained-of episode of NYPD Blue, we propose forfeitures against only those licensees whose broadcasts of the material between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m. were actually the subject of viewer complaints to the Commission. This result is consistent with the approach set forth by the Commission in its most recent indecency orders.¹⁵⁵ As indicated in those orders, our commitment to an appropriately restrained enforcement policy justifies this more limited approach toward the imposition of forfeiture penalties. Accordingly, we propose forfeitures as set forth in the Attachment.

¹⁵⁴ The fact that the stations in question may not have originated the programming is irrelevant to whether there is an indecency violation. See Review of the Commission's Regulations Governing Programming Practices of Broadcast Television Networks and Affiliates, Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, 10 FCC Rcd 11951, 11961, ¶ 20 (1995) (internal quotation omitted) (“We conclude that a licensee is not fulfilling his obligations to operate in the public interest, and is not operating in accordance with the express requirements of the Communications Act, if he agrees to accept programs on any basis other than his own reasonable decision that the programs are satisfactory.”).

54. We have thoroughly considered all of the licensees' arguments as well as the factors listed in section 503(b)(2)(D) of the Act. On balance, we believe that a forfeiture penalty in the base amount of $27,500 against the stations listed in Attachment A is appropriate.

V. ORDERING CLAUSES

55. ACCORDINGLY, IT IS ORDERED, pursuant to section 503(b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, and section 1.80 of the Commission's rules,¹⁵⁶ that each of the ABC stations listed in Attachment A of this Forfeiture Order are liable for a forfeiture in the amount of $27,500 each for broadcasting indecent material, in willful violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1464 and section 73.3999 of the Commission's rules.

56. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the NAL is cancelled as to Northeast Kansas Broadcast Service, Inc., for KTKA-TV; KFBB Corporation, for KFBB-TV; Louisiana Television Broadcasting, LLC, for WBRZ-TV; WXOW-WQOW Television, Inc., for WXOW-TV; KMBC Hearst-Argyle Television, Inc., for KMBC-TV; KHBS Hearst-Argyle Television, Inc., for KHOG-TV; and Forum Communications Company, for WDAY-TV, for the reasons discussed elsewhere in this Order.

57. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, pursuant to section 1.80 of the Commission's rules, that each of the stations listed in Attachment A of this Forfeiture Order SHALL PAY the full amount of its respective forfeiture by the close of business on Thursday, February 21, 2008. Payment of the forfeiture must be made by check or similar instrument, payable to the order of the Federal Communications Commission. The payment must include the NAL/Account number and FRN Number referenced in the Attachment. Payment by check or money order may be mailed to Federal Communications Commission, P.O. Box 979088, St. Louis, MO 63197-9000. Payment by overnight mail may be sent to U.S. Bank—Government Lockbox #979088, SL-MO-C2-GL, 1005 Convention Plaza, St. Louis, MO 63101. Payments by wire transfer may be made to ABA Number 021030004, receiving bank TREAS/NYC, and account number 27000001. For payment by credit card, an FCC Form 159 (Remittance Advice) must be submitted. When completing the FCC Form 159, enter the NAL/Account number in block number 23A (call sign/other ID), and enter the letters "FORF" in box 24A (payment type code). Requests for full payment under an installment plan should be sent to: Chief Financial Officer - Financial Operations, 445 12th Street, S.W., Room 1-A625, Washington, D.C. 20554. Please contact the Financial Operations Group Help Desk at 1-877-480-3201 or Email: ARINQUIRIES@fcc.gov with any questions regarding payment procedures. Any station that pays its forfeiture by close of business on February 21 shall so notify Ben Bartolome, Acting Chief of the Enforcement Bureau's Investigations and Hearings Division, by email (Ben.Bartolome@fcc.gov) by close of business that day. The Commission will ensure that each of the stations listed in Attachment A of the Forfeiture Order is notified immediately upon release by the Commission.

58. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Commission will not consider reducing or canceling a forfeiture in response to a claim of inability to pay unless the respondent submits: (1) federal tax returns for the most recent three-year period; (2) financial statements prepared according to generally accepted accounting practices ("GAAP"); or (3) some other reliable and objective documentation that accurately reflects the respondent's current financial status. Any claim of inability to pay must specifically identify the basis for the claim by reference to the financial documentation submitted.

59. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that a copy of this Forfeiture Order shall be sent, by Certified Mail/Return Receipt Requested, to each of the licensees identified in Attachment A hereto and to their respective counsel and representatives identified in Attachment B hereto.

STATEMENT OF

RE: Complaints Against Various Television Licensees Concerning Their February 25, 2003 Broadcast of the Program "NYPD Blue", Forfeiture Order, File Nos. EB-03-IH-0122 and EB-03-IH-0353

While I agree with the substance of the Commission's decision today, I write separately to note my concerns about a procedural aspect to this proceeding. After the Commission issued its notice of apparent liability for forfeiture, the stations were given only 17 days to file a response—far shorter than the 30 days that is our usual practice. In this instance, the 52 stations, represented by the network and affiliates association, had the resources and wherewithal to prepare a comprehensive and timely response. That may not always be the case. I hope that in future proceedings, we will grant parties a more reasonable opportunity to respond to Commission charges.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20554

File Nos. EB-03-IH-0122 and EB-03-IH-0353¹
IN THE MATTER OF COMPLAINTS AGAINST VARIOUS TELEVISION LICENSEES CONCERNING THEIR FEBRUARY 25, 2003 BROADCAST OF THE PROGRAM "NYPD BLUE"

Adopted: Jan. 25, 2008
Released: Jan. 25, 2008

NOTICE OF APPARENT LIABILITY FOR FORFEITURE

By the Commission: Commissioner Tate issuing a separate statement.

¹ The NAL/Acct. No. and FRN number for each licensee subject to this Notice are enumerated in the Attachment.

I. INTRODUCTION

1. In this Notice of Apparent Liability for Forfeiture (“NAL”), issued pursuant to Section 503(b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended (the “Act”), and Section 1.80 of the Commission’s rules,² we find that the ABC Television Network (“ABC”) affiliated stations and ABC owned-and-operated stations listed in the Attachment to this NAL aired material that apparently violates the federal restrictions regarding the broadcast of indecent material.³ Specifically, during the February 25, 2003 episode of the ABC program “NYPD Blue,” aired at 9:00 p.m. Central Standard Time and Mountain Standard Time, these licensees each broadcast adult female nudity. Based upon our review of the facts and circumstances of this case, we conclude that each licensee listed in the Attachment is apparently liable for a monetary forfeiture in the amount of $27,500 per station for broadcasting indecent material in apparent violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1464 and Section 73.3999 of the Commission’s rules.

II. BACKGROUND

2. Section 1464 of Title 18, United States Code, prohibits the broadcast of obscene, indecent, or profane programming.⁴ The FCC rules implementing that statute, a subsequent statute establishing a “safe harbor” during certain hours, and the Act prohibit radio and television stations from broadcasting obscene material at any time and indecent material between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m.⁵

3. Indecency Analysis. Enforcement of the provisions restricting the broadcast of indecent, obscene, or profane material is an important component of the Commission’s overall responsibility over broadcast radio and television operations. At the same time, however, the Commission must be mindful of the First Amendment to the United States Constitution and Section 326 of the Act, which prohibit the Commission from censoring program material or interfering with broadcasters’ free speech rights.⁶ As such, in making indecency determina-

STATEMENT OF
COMMISSIONER DEBORAH TAYLOR TATE

Our action today should serve as a reminder to all broadcasters that Congress and American families continue to be concerned about protecting children from harmful material and that the FCC will enforce the laws of the land vigilantly. In fact, pursuant to the Broadcast Decency Act of 2005, Congress increased the maximum authorized fines ten-fold. The law is simple. If a broadcaster makes the decision to show indecent programming, it must air between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. This is neither difficult to understand nor burdensome to implement.

1. 18 U.S.C. 1464 provides:

Broadcasting obscene language

Whoever utters any obscene, indecent, or profane language by means of radio communication shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than two years, or both.

2. 47 U.S.C. 312 provides in relevant part:

Administrative sanctions

(a) Revocation of station license or construction permit

The Commission may revoke any station license or construction permit—

- (1) for false statements knowingly made either in the application or in any statement of fact which may be required pursuant to section 308 of this title;
- (2) because of conditions coming to the attention of the Commission which would warrant it in refusing to grant a license or permit on an original application;

(3) for willful or repeated failure to operate substantially as set forth in the license;

(4) for willful or repeated violation of, or willful or repeated failure to observe any provision of this chapter or any rule or regulation of the Commission authorized by this chapter or by a treaty ratified by the United States;

(5) for violation of or failure to observe any final cease and desist order issued by the Commission under this section;

(6) for violation of section 1304, 1343, or 1464 Title 18; or

(7) for willful or repeated failure to allow reasonable access to or to permit purchase of reasonable amounts of time for the use of a broadcasting station, other than a non-commercial educational broadcast station, by a legally qualified candidate for Federal elective office on behalf of his candidacy.

(b) Cease and desist orders

Where any person (1) has failed to operate substantially as set forth in a license, (2) has violated or failed to observe any of the provisions of this chapter, or section 1304, 1343, or 1464 Title 18, or (3) has violated or failed to observe any rule or regulation of the Commission authorized by this chapter or by a treaty ratified by the United States, the Commission may order such person to cease and desist from such action.

* * * * *

3. 47 U.S.C. 503 provides in relevant part:

(b) Activities constituting violations authorizing imposition of forfeiture penalty; amount of penalty; procedures applicable; persons subject to penalty; liability exemption period

(1) Any person who is determined by the Commission, in accordance with paragraph (3) or (4) of this subsection, to have—

(A) willfully or repeatedly failed to comply substantially with the terms and conditions of any license, permit, certificate, or other instrument or authorization issued by the Commission;

(B) willfully or repeatedly failed to comply with any of the provisions of this chapter or of any rule, regulation, or order issued by the Commission under this chapter or under any treaty, convention, or other agreement to which the United States is a party and which is binding upon the United States;

(C) violated any provision of section 317(c) or 509(a) of this title; or

(D) violated any provision of section 1304, 1343, or 1464 of Title 18;

shall be liable to the United States for a forfeiture penalty. A forfeiture penalty under this subsection shall be in addition to any other penalty provided for by this chapter; except that this subsection shall not apply to any conduct which is subject to forfeiture under subchapter II of this chapter, part II or III of subchapter III of this chapter, or section 507 of this title.

4. Public Telecommunications Act of 1992, Pub. L. No. 102-356, § 16(a), 106 Stat. 949, provides:

FCC REGULATIONS.—The Federal Communications Commission shall promulgate regulations to prohibit the broadcasting of indecent programming—

(1) between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m. on any day by any public radio station or public television station that goes off the air at or before 12 midnight; and

(2) between 6 a.m. and 12 midnight on any day for any radio or television broadcasting station not described in paragraph (1).

The regulations required under this subsection shall be promulgated in accordance with section 553 of title 5, United States Code, and shall become final not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

5. 47 C.F.R. 73.3999 provides:

Enforcement of 18 U.S.C. 1464 (restrictions on the transmission of obscene and indecent material).

(a) No licensee of a radio or television broadcast station shall broadcast any material which is obscene.

(b) No licensee of a radio or television broadcast station shall broadcast on any day between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m. any material which is indecent.
