02-0046 -MISC-
 EX PARTE PETITION FOR LEAVE
 TO SERVE JOHN DOE SUMMONS

1 The United States of America, by and through its undersigned attorney, David W.
2 Shapiro, United States Attorney for the Northern District of California, avers as follows:

3 JURISDICTION

5 1. This ex parte proceeding is commenced pursuant to Sections 7402(a), 7609(f),
6 and 7609(h) of the Internal Revenue Code (26 U.S.C.), for leave to serve an Internal Revenue
7 Service "John Doe" summons upon VISA International.

8 2. VISA International is a nonstock membership corporation under the laws of 9 Delaware having its principal place of business at 900 Metro Center Boulevard, Foster City,
10 California. The Court has jurisdiction to hear and determine this proceeding pursuant to 26
11 U.S.C. § 7609(h) because VISA International resides and is found in this district.

12 INTRADISTRICT ASSIGNMENT

13
14 3. This proceeding relates to a "John Doe" summons to be served in the County of 15 San Mateo.

16 ALLEGATIONS

18 4. As explained in the Declaration of Revenue Agent Joseph C. West attached hereto
19 as Exhibit A and incorporated herein by reference, the Internal Revenue Service is conducting an 20 investigation to determine the correct federal income tax liabilities, for the years ended December
21 31, 1999 through 2001, of United States taxpayers who have signature authority over VISA cards
22 issued by, through, or for banks or other financial institutions in Anguilla, Antigua and Barbuda,
23 Aruba, Bahamas, Belize, Bermuda, British Virgin Islands, Cayman Islands, Cook Islands, 24 Cyprus, Dominica, Gibraltar, Guernsey/Sark/Aldeny, Hong Kong, Isle of Man, Jersey, 25 Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Malta, Nauru, Netherlands Antilles, Panama, Samoa, St. Kitts and 26

1 Nevis, St. Lucia, St. Vincent and the Grenadines, Singapore, Switzerland, Turks and Caicos, and 2 Vanuatu.

3 5. In furtherance of this investigation, the Internal Revenue Service has issued, under 4 the authority of Section 7602 of the Internal Revenue Code, an Internal Revenue Service "John
5 Doe" summons to VISA International. A copy of the summons is attached to the Exhibits
6 Appendix to Declaration of Revenue Agent West at Tab 1.

8 6. The "John Doe" summons relates to the investigation of an ascertainable group or 9 class of persons, that is, United States taxpayers who, during the years ended December 31, 1999
10 through 2001, had signature authority over VISA cards issued by, through, or for banks or other 11 financial institutions in the jurisdictions listed above; there is a reasonable basis for believing that 12 such group or class of persons may fail, or may have failed, to comply with one or more
13 provisions of the Internal Revenue laws; and the information sought to be obtained from the 14 examination of the records or testimony (and the identity of the persons with respect to whose tax 15 liabilities the summonses have been issued) is not readily available from other sources.

18 7. In further support of this Petition and incorporated herein by reference, the 19 Petitioner submits the declarations of Revenue Agent West and of Jack A. Blum, attached hereto
20 as Exhibits A and B, respectively, and the Exhibits Appendix to the declaration of Revenue
21 Agent West.
22

23 WHEREFORE, the petitioner respectfully prays:

24 A. That this Court enter an order permitting service of the Internal Revenue Service
25 "John Doe" summons issued to VISA International in substantially the form as attached to the 26 Exhibits Appendix to Declaration of Revenue Agent West at Tab 1; and 27

1 B. That this Court grant such other and further relief as the Court deems proper or 2 justice may require.

DECLARATION OF JOSEPH C. WEST

19 I, Joseph C. West, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. Section 1746, declare and state:

20 I am a Revenue Agent/Analyst with the Large and Mid-Size Business Division of 21 the Internal Revenue Service. I have been a Revenue Agent for 22 years. As a Revenue
22 Agent, I have received training in tax law and audit techniques. In addition, I am a 23 Certified Public Accountant and I have received a Masters of Science Degree in Taxation.
24

25 I have extensive experience with respect to the use of financial accounts in 26 offshore tax haven and financial privacy jurisdictions developed in the course of the 27 following representative activities: (1) attending a United Nations session on financial 28

1 havens, bank secrecy and money laundering; attending, organizing and making
2 presentations at four Pacific Association of Tax Administrators (PATA)/Group of 4
3 meetings on offshore transactions and electronic commerce concerns; participating in a
4 Rand Corporation exercise on electronic commerce and offshore jurisdictions; attending
5 and having conversations with participants at an offshore seminar; (2) conducting 6 interviews of a former Cayman Islands banker, a U.S. private banking employee, an 7 employee of an offshore promoter, an individual who utilized a credit/debit card to access
8 funds illegally diverted to an account in the Cayman Islands, and the publisher of an 9 offshore news periodical; (3) having conversations and consultations with a leading 10 offshore expert and with knowledgeable employees of various governmental and 11 regulatory agencies, including Office of Comptroller of the Currency, Federal Reserve
12 and the State Department; (4) conducting interviews with credit card companies,
13 including American Express, MasterCard International and VISA International, and third 14 party card processors; (5) having discussions with IRS employees throughout the United 15 States concerning their experiences with examinations involving offshore transactions;
16 (6) conducting examinations involving offshore transactions and providing assistance to 17 examiners engaged in the examination of offshore transactions; (7) attending multi-18 agency meetings on the impact of offshore jurisdictions; (8) assisting in the national 19 foreign trust project and participating in the creation of the national foreign trust training;
20 (9) providing assistance to the IRS National Office in an Organization for Economic 21
22

1 Cooperation and Development (OECD) initiative on tax haven countries; (10)
2 participated in the ongoing creation of an Offshore Audit Techniques Guide; (11)
4 providing assistance since 1997 to other revenue agents, around the country, who have 5 been auditing tax haven and offshore issues.

6       The Internal Revenue Service is conducting an investigation to determine the 7 correct federal tax liabilities, for the years ended December 31, 1999, 2000 and 2001, of 8 United States taxpayers who have signature authority over VISA cards issued by, through,
9 or for banks or other financial institutions in Anguilla, Antigua and Barbuda, Aruba,
10 Bahamas, Belize, Bermuda, British Virgin Islands, Cayman Islands, Cook Islands,
11 Cyprus, Dominica, Gibraltar, Guernsey/Sark/Aldeney, Hong Kong, Isle of Man, Jersey, 12 Latvia, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Malta, Nauru, Netherlands Antilles, Panama, Samoa,
13 St. Kitts and Nevis, St. Lucia, St. Vincent and the Grenadines, Singapore, Switzerland, 14 Turks and Caicos, and Vanuatu.

17
18       To facilitate this investigation, the Internal Revenue Service has issued, under the 19 authority of Section 7602 of the Internal Revenue Code (26 U.S.C.), a "John Doe"
20 summons to VISA International, its affiliates and subsidiaries. A copy of this summons is 21 attached to the Exhibits Appendix, submitted contemporaneously with this Declaration, at 22 Tab 1. The records sought by the summons will reveal the identities of and/or disclose 23 transactions by persons who may be liable for federal taxes and will enable the Internal
25
26
27
28

1 Revenue Service to investigate whether those persons have complied with the internal 2 revenue laws.

4 Based upon my experience and information received from other investigations, it
5 is likely that a number of the persons who have signature authority over VISA cards
6 issued by, through, or for banks or other financial institutions in the jurisdictions
7 identified in the "John Doe" summons may have been under-reporting income, evading
8 income taxes, or otherwise violating the internal revenue laws of the United States.

10 The "John Doe" summons to VISA International relates to the investigation of an 11 ascertainable group or class of persons. There is a reasonable basis for believing that this 12 group or class of persons has failed or may have failed to comply with provisions of the 13 internal revenue laws. The information and documents sought to be obtained by these 14 summonses are not already in the possession of the Internal Revenue Service and are not 15 readily available from sources other than VISA International.
16

18 1 INTRODUCTION

19 The Internal Revenue Service has been concerned with the growing problem of 20 United States taxpayers, involved in both lawful and unlawful activities, evading the 21 payment of United States taxes by concealing unreported taxable income or claiming 22 improper deductions as a result of maintaining diverted funds in accounts in offshore tax 23 haven and financial privacy jurisdictions and accessing those funds through the use of 24 payment cards (including credit, charge or debit cards) issued to the taxpayer. The United 25
26
27
28

1 States Congress, the United States Treasury Department, a Presidential Commission, the 2 Internal Revenue Service and numerous journalists have examined and reported on this 3 problem.

5 II OVERVIEW ON THE USE OF OFFSHORE TAX HAVEN AND 6 FINANCIAL PRIVACY JURISDICTIONS

7 A. The Gordon Report

8 On January 12, 1981, the Internal Revenue Service issued a report entitled "Tax 9 Havens and Their Use by United States Taxpayers - An Overview," commonly known as 10 the "Gordon Report" for its author, Richard A. Gordon, Special Counsel for International 11 Taxation. The Gordon Report was based on a review of judicial decisions and published
12 literature in the field of international tax planning, research into internal IRS documents
13 concerning taxpayer activities, interviews with IRS personnel, personnel who dealt with 14 tax haven issues for other federal government agencies, and lawyers and certified public 15 accountants who specialized in international taxation. Additionally, the findings in the 16 Gordon report were based on a statistical analysis of available data concerning 17 international banking, United States direct investment abroad and foreign investment in 18 the United States.
19

20 The Gordon Report states that the available data and interviews with practitioners,
21 IRS personnel, personnel from other agencies and representatives of foreign governments 22 support the view that taxpayers ranging from large multi-national companies to 23 individuals and criminals are making extensive use of tax havens. It describes tax haven
24
25
26
27

1 countries as having at least some of the following characteristics: (1) low rates of tax
2 when compared with the United States; (2) a high level of bank or commercial secrecy
3 that the country refuses to breach even under an international agreement; (3) relative
4 importance of banking and similar financial activities to its economy; (4) the availability
5 of modern communication facilities; (5) lack of currency controls on foreign deposits of 6 foreign currency; and (6) self-promotion as an offshore financial center. The Gordon 7 report concluded that there are:

10 enormous and growing levels of financial activity and accumulation of 11 funds in tax havens [as well as a] large number of transactions involving 12 illegally earned income and legally earned income which is diverted to or 13 passed through havens for purposes of tax evasion.

14 The Gordon Report also found that the "term 'tax haven' may also be defined by a 15 'smell' or reputation test: a country is a tax haven if it looks like one and if it is 16 considered one by those who care. Many publications identify jurisdictions as tax havens, 17 and the same jurisdictions generally appear on all of the lists." The tax havens studied in 18 the Gordon Report include the Bahamas, Bermuda, Cayman Islands, the Channel Islands, 19 Hong Kong, Isle of Man, Luxembourg, Netherlands Antilles, Panama, Singapore, and 20 Switzerland.
21

1 justice system, and thwart the collection of massive amounts of tax
2 revenues.

3 The report includes a quote from Senator William V. Roth, Chairman of the 4 subcommittee regarding the committee's findings on the use of tax havens by American 5 citizens:

7 But equally shocking is the fact that we have also found that offshore
8 havens are no longer used exclusively by criminals. Instead, they are 9 increasingly being used by otherwise law abiding Americans to avoid 10 paying taxes and to shield assets from creditors.

11 The Crime and Secrecy Report estimated that the "underground economy" at that 12 time was hiding between $150 billion and $600 billion apparently unreported income
13 from both legal and illegal business from the Internal Revenue Service. Furthermore, it 14 stated that the underground economy was unquestionably linked to the use of offshore
15 facilities. The Crime and Secrecy Report includes an extensive discussion of "principal 16 havens," including Anguilla, Antigua, Bahamas, Bermuda, Cayman Islands, Hong Kong, 17 Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Nauru, Netherlands Antilles, Panama, St. Vincent and the 18 Grenadines, Singapore, Switzerland, Turks and Caicos Islands, and Vanuatu.
19

21 D. The United Nations Report

22 On May 29, 1998, the United Nations' Office for Drug Control and Crime
23 Prevention, Global Programme Against Money Laundering, released a report entitled 24 "Financial Havens, Banking Secrecy and Money Laundering." The United Nations Report
25 states that offshore financial centers, tax havens and bank secrecy jurisdictions --
26
27

1 attract funds partly because they promise both anonymity and the possibility
2 of tax avoidance or evasion. A high level of bank secrecy is almost 3 invariably used as a selling point by offshore financial centers. Many 4 Internet advertisements for banks emphasize the strictness of the 5 jurisdiction's secrecy and assure the prospective customers that neither the 6 bank nor the government will ever give bank data to another government.
When the advertising is for private banks, it also stresses the protection from tax collectors.

7 United Nations Report, pg. 37.

8 Among the "major financial havens" described in this report are the following
9 jurisdictions: Anguilla, Antigua, Aruba, Bahamas, Belize, Bermuda, British Virgin
10 Islands, Cayman Islands, Cook Islands, Cyprus, Gibraltar, Guernsey, Hong Kong, Isle of 11 Man, Jersey, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Malta, Nauru, Netherlands Antilles, Panama, 12 Samoa, St. Kitts and Nevis, St. Lucia, St. Vincent and the Grenadines, Singapore, 13 Switzerland, Turks and Caicos Islands, and Vanuatu. United Nations Report, pg. 51.

15
16 E. The OECD Report on Harmful Tax Practices

17 In June 2000, the Organisation for Economic Co-Operation and Development
18 (OECD) issued its Report on Progress in Identifying and Eliminating Harmful Tax
19 Practices (at <http://www.oecd.org/pdf/M000014000/M00014130.pdf>) in furtherance of its 20 efforts to establish an "international framework to counter the spread of harmful tax
21 competition." The OECD has described its "starting point for identifying a tax haven as 22 whether the jurisdiction has no or nominal taxation on financial or other service income 23 and offers or is perceived to offer itself as a place where non-residents can escape tax in 24 their country of residence. Other key factors are used to confirm the existence of a tax
25
26
27

1 haven (hereinafter referred to as the 'tax haven criteria') that focus on transparency,
2 exchange of information, and local business activities of foreign enterprises." From an
3 initial identification of forty-seven such jurisdictions, the OECD identified in this Report
4 thirty-five uncooperative jurisdictions meeting its definition of tax haven. Several 5 jurisdictions were not included on the list because they had made public political 6 commitments prior to June 2000 to eliminate their harmful tax practices. Prior to a
7 deadline of February 28, 2002, sixteen other jurisdictions have also announced
8 commitments to the OECD. As set forth in the OECD's 2001 Progress Report (at 9 <http://www.oecd.org/pdf/M00021000/M00021182.pdf>), a jurisdiction will not be 10 considered uncooperative if "it commits to transparency and effective exchange of 11 information." The commitments made by these jurisdictions would not allow the Internal 12 Revenue Service to request the exchange of information with respect to the investigation
13 of U.S. taxpayers for the years ended December 31, 1999 through 2001.

18 III THE USE OF CARDS IN OFFSHORE SCHEMES

19 A. Overview

20 Based upon my involvement with a compliance initiative gathering project on 21 offshore transactions, I have found the use of payment cards (including credit, charge and 22 debit cards), as a means of obtaining access to offshore funds, to be a common practice
23 promoted by offshore professionals and used by persons with offshore accounts. My 24 investigation and research reveals that the following generally occurs. To engage in an 25
26
27

1 offshore scheme, the individual in the United States (hereinafter "U.S. person" or "U.S.
2 taxpayer") will find an offshore professional to assist in the development of an overall
3 offshore plan. The plan will often include the creation of an entity or entities in a financial 4 secrecy jurisdiction. For example, the offshore professional will facilitate the creation of 5 an International Business Corporation ("IBC") in the Bahamas. The IBC will have 6 nominee owners, usually employees of a Bahamian law firm. The nominee owners will
7 execute some type of agreement or declaration stating that they hold the shares of the IBC
8 for the U.S. person, who then is referred to as the beneficial owner of the IBC. Under 9 Bahamian secrecy laws, there can be no disclosure of the U.S. person's beneficial
10 ownership of the IBC. There will be no mention of the U.S. person's ownership interest in 11 any of the corporate documents or corporate filings. Once the offshore structure is 12 created, the next step is devising methods to transfer funds or assets to the IBC. These 13 funds or assets may represent profits the U.S. person seeks to hide from U.S. tax
14 authorities. The last step in the process is using techniques to access funds when desired,
15 either by repatriation or by use abroad. Payment cards are a common and purportedly a 16 non-traceable method of accessing offshore funds in any location where the card is 17 honored. The card account may be in the name of the U.S. person or in the name of the 18 beneficially owned foreign entity. Offshore cards are typically secured by funds equaling 19 anywhere from 100% to 200% of the credit extended. The funds are locked into an 20 account at the bank offering the card. Arrangements can be made for discreet billing and 21
22
23
24
25
26
27

1 discreet card payments such that all such transactions occur away from the scrutiny of 2 U.S. investigators.

4 The United Nations Report, discussing the use of cards as a repatriation device, 5 states that:

6 Funds can be repatriated through a debit or credit card issued by an offshore
7 bank. Withdrawals from ATM machines or expenditures using the card can 8 be settled either by automatic deduction from a foreign bank account or by 9 the card-holder periodically transferring the required funds from one 10 foreign bank account to another. Debit cards are superior from the point of 11 view of automaticity and confidentiality. However, even an ordinary credit 12 card can be turned into a debit card by being secured through the deposit of 13 collateral with the issuing bank. Although secured credit cards were initially 14 intended to give persons who were deemed a bad credit risk the advantages of use of a credit card, something that is increasingly essential for many purposes such as reserving hotel rooms or renting cars, it can be very useful to anyone seeking to lower their financial profile.

15 United Nations Report, pg. 18. The Report also states:

16 Credit and debit cards are the way people who have laundered money draw
17 ready cash without leaving a financial trail. As one advertisement for a bank
18 put it, it is the best way to stay in touch with "your offshore account."

19 United Nations Report, pg. 102.

20 B. Interviews and Conversations

21 Interview with a Cayman Island Banker - I interviewed John Mathewson, the 22 former president and majority owner of Guardian Bank, located in the Cayman Islands.
23 Since his arrest in 1996 and subsequent guilty plea to bank fraud, tax evasion and money
24 laundering charges, Mr. Mathewson has cooperated with the United States in the 25 investigation of individuals who had used Guardian Bank to evade U.S. taxes. Mr.
26
27

1 Mathewson indicated to me that 95 percent of the over 1000 depositors at the bank were
2 U.S. citizens. He indicated that he promoted the creation of an offshore entity to "own"
3 the U.S. person's assets. Mr. Mathewson stated that he recommended numerous
4 techniques to covertly move money from the U.S. to the Cayman Islands. These methods 5 included wire transfer, money orders, check payments to correspondent accounts or 6 dummy corporate accounts, diverting taxable receipts and false invoicing. Mr.
7 Mathewson advised that he promoted the use of credit/debit cards so that his clients could 8 covertly access funds stored in the Cayman Islands. He stated that these techniques were 9 promoted and used to evade U.S. taxation. Mr. Mathewson showed me a credit card with 10 the name of Guardian Bank embossed on the front, which he used for his personal 11 purposes.
12

13
14
15 Interview with Employee of an Offshore Promoter - This person is a confidential
16 informant. The person indicated that the promoter for whom he worked targeted U.S.
17 persons to engage in offshore transactions. He further stated that the clients were advised 18 to access their offshore funds via debit/credit cards.

21 C. Brochures

22 I attended an offshore conference and exposition held in London, England, on 23 December 2-4, 1997. The conference, called Shorex 97, was marketed as "the Premier 24 Offshore Conference." Exhibitors and presenters of information included numerous 25 banks, offshore promoters, accountants, trustees, lawyers, software companies, tax haven
26
27

1 government officials, and other well known businesses interested in profiting from the 2 offshore market. During our attendance at Shorex 97, I had the opportunity to obtain
3 literature and promotional materials regarding offshore products. These are excerpts from 4 a variety of brochures and advertisements:

12       by maintaining an interest bearing deposit equivalent to 150% of the 13       required credit line. It is a US dollar international credit card, honored by 14       every major airline, car rental companies, fine hotels, restaurants and stores
15       around the world. Furthermore, customers can use the VISA or MasterCard
16       to obtain instant cash advances at most financial institutions worldwide
17       through a global network of automatic teller machines. Charges are billed 18       monthly and customers will typically maintain a separate current or savings
19       account for which they will fax instructions to be debited to pay card
20       charges. With our Swiss Americard programme, customers can enjoy
21       unparalleled flexibility and confidentiality in accessing funds
22       internationally, with discrete payment procedures.

1           D.    Internet Sites

2           I have reviewed various offshore/tax haven related Web sites on the Internet. A
4 search of the Internet with any search engine using the key words "offshore" or "tax
5 haven" will produce a very large number of hits. The Internet is becoming an increasingly 6 popular method of obtaining information about any subject matter. As an information and
8 marketing tool, the Internet is being used to market a wide variety of offshore related
9 services. An individual can form an offshore corporation, create an offshore bank
10 account, request offshore credit and/or debit cards, receive advice regarding offshore
11 schemes, attend offshore presentations and do a variety of other offshore related tasks all 12 via the Internet. Offshore services are being offered by a wide variety of individuals and 13 entities. The marketers range from scam artists pushing offshore techniques as means to 14 steal money from the public to major financial institutions. All are promoting the use of 15 some offshore vehicle, either offshore trusts, foreign bank accounts or offshore
16 corporations that are touted as being completely legal and are effective in reducing tax.
17

19           The following is a sampling of Web sites representative of the financial services
20 being marketed:

1 related services for highly confidential business.” The tax considerations behind these 2 services are clearly expressed:

4 At this time, both direct and indirect taxes are accounted of, the 5 Governments of most industrialized nations collect well in excess of 50% of 6 all we earn, yet persistently say that taxes are lower than ever: believe that and you’ll believe anything!

7 That’s why we have a situation where virtually everyone who is either self 8 employed, owns and runs a business or has family money, needs to move
9 offshore to protect both assets and income. In one way our philosophy is 10 very simple - to pay the least tax ourselves and to help others do the same!
It’s not that we’re against all taxes per se, but there are limits to what we’ll take!

7 This is the homepage for a large international bank offering offshore “international 8 banking services from 5 centres in the Caribbean.” The homepage displays a map that 9 highlights the proximity of these Caribbean offshore banking centres to Miami, Florida,
10 and thus their easy access by U.S. persons. From the homepage there is a link to a page
11 setting forth the “Key Benefits of Banking with Barclays in the Turks & Caicos Islands.”
12 The benefits described include: “The jurisdiction is responsive to the needs of 13 international investors, with a tax-free status and no double tax nor exchange of fiscal 14 treaties with other countries.” The links to the benefits of banking in the Bahamas and the 15 British Virgin Islands also highlight their “tax-free status” and the “lack of exchange 16 controls for non-residents.” Available from Barclays is the Gold VISA Barclaycard with 17 availability of cash advances of up to US$5,000 through a worldwide ATM network.

9 The website offers suggestions on how to avoid the reporting requirements of the 10 Internal Revenue Code by setting up an International Business Corporation and a trust:
11

12 One consequence of having an IBC and an account in the name of the IBC,
13 is that Schedule B of the IRS form for US citizens, requires that one answer
14 two pertinent questions. Do you own a bank account offshore? Do you have 15 signature power over an offshore bank account? In general, anyone who has 16 an IBC with one or more bank accounts should answer "Yes!" to both 17 questions.

18 The only exception is when the bank account is in the name of an IBC that 19 is owned by a trust.

20 (<http://www.argonlimited.com/ibcs.htm>)

21 Please note that since the bank account(s) in the name of the Trust is/are 22 owned by the trust, a Grantor or Manager of the bank account can answer
23 on Schedule B that s/he does not own an offshore bank account. If the 24 trustee is the only one who is a signatory, then the Grantor may truthfully
25 answer that s/he does not have signature power over an offshore bank
26 account. However, if s/he is made a Manager over such an account, s/he 27 should answer that s/he has signature power over an offshore bank account.

7 consideration, “tax savings”: “We are based offshore so we can provide a tax-efficient
8 home for your finances. This is but one of the many reasons customers bank with us. All 9 interest on our account is paid without the deduction of tax.” A bank account can be

- 19 ➤ Maritime International Ltd.
<http://www.milonline.com/index.html>
- 20

21 Maritime International offers "tax free companies, LLCs and offshore asset
22 protection trusts" in a number of jurisdictions including Antigua, Bahamas, Belize, 23 Dominica, Panama, St. Vincent, St. Kitts, and Samoa. It also arranges for the "opening of 24 tax free offshore personal or corporate bank and brokerage accounts" in the Caribbean, 25 South Pacific and Switzerland. This website explains the distinction between onshore and 26
27

1 offshore banking: Onshore banking "is subject to the tax rules, foreign exchange and 2 charges of whatever country the account is in. . . . Offshore banking on the other hand is 3 tax free, there are no foreign exchange regulations attached to the account and all account
4 information is confidential." Offshore VISA credit cards with debit facilities are also 5 made available.

8 Maritime International extensively promotes several jurisdictions as having the 9 "best offshore legislation, asset protection and privacy available." All recommendations
10 emphasize the tax and secrecy considerations of forming offshore entities. For example:
11

12 PANAMA:

13 Although Panama has fairly high rates of tax internally, its status as a tax
14 haven depends upon the principle that income received by a Panamanian
15 corporation from sources outside Panama is exempt from tax.

16 Panama has full confidentiality and privacy embedded in the law, with civil 17 and criminal penalties for disclosure. There is no requirement for the 18 disclosure of beneficial ownership to the Panama authorities and no
19 requirement for audited reports or financial statements. There are no double 20 taxation agreements and no tax exchange agreements with other countries.

21 SAMOA:

22 Total exemption from taxes is granted to "International Companies"
23 incorporated under the 1987 Act as well as to "International Trusts"
24 registered under the International Trusts Act, 1987. . .

25 In our opinion, Western Samoa has the best legislation regarding offshore
26 companies, tax liabilities and asset protection that is currently available.
27 Western Samoa is not party to any mutual assistance, gateway, or 28 information agreements unlike some of the British Dependent Territories. . .

1 The International Companies Act expressly denies any right to disclose
2 information that "will, or is likely to, result in the payment of any tax, other
3 penalty or any fine by the company" (section 227(4)(c) of the Act). . .

4 (Copies of these Web pages are attached to Exhibits Appendix at Tab 14).

5 ➤ Corporate and Trust Services Caribbean Limited
6 <http://www.caribcats.com>

7 This website offers offshore financial services in Antigua, Nevis and Dominica. It
8 highlights the "benefits of going offshore" as including:

10 Tax avoidance - considerable tax savings in onshore territory. Although 11 there is in the United States the legal requirement to report holdings in 12 offshore companies to the local tax authorities, no matter how restrictive 13 these rules may be a greater tax savings may be achieved by the use of an 14 offshore company rather than a company incorporated in one's country of 15 residence (Emphasis in original).

16 This website promotes the benefits of Dominica as an "offshore haven" that offers
17 "a twenty year tax exempt, confidential, treaty-free jurisdiction." Additionally, it answers
18 the questions "Why go offshore?" and "Why use Nevis?" by emphasizing financial 19 privacy and tax considerations including that Nevis has "No tax information treaty with 20 the United States." (Copies of these Web pages are attached to Exhibits Appendix at Tab 21 15).

22 This company offers banking services including call accounts, current accounts, 23 savings accounts, certificates of deposits, and money market accounts "provided with 24 respect to internationally accepted credit card applications. Note that credit cards must be 25 secured by up to one and a half times the spending limit."
26
27

1           Offered is a "VISA® Gold SwissAmericard® Corporate Card." The application for 2 this VISA card, available online, notes that it "enables you to get instant cash at over
3 100,000 institutions worldwide and at Plus® System ATMs." [Plus is VISA's global ATM
4 mark. <http://corporate.visa.com/mc/facts/visaplus.shtml>]. The application also touts the 5 "Confidentiality and Flexibility" of this VISA card: "With SwissAmericard you enjoy
6 unparalleled confidentiality. Transactions and record of cards issued by Swiss American 7 Bank Ltd. are protected by Antigua's Offshore Banking Secrecy Act."

10           IV     COURT CASES AND INVESTIGATIONS INVOLVING OFFSHORE
11                    CARDS

12           Several recent court cases and pending Internal Revenue Service investigations
13 reflect that offshore cards have been used by U.S. taxpayers as part of their failure to 14 comply with provisions of the internal revenue laws:

16           A.     Court Cases

17           ➤     United States v. Michael J. Hogan, Case No. 98cr45-1 (S.D. Ohio)

18           Michael J. Hogan was indicted by a grand jury in the United States District Court
19 for the Southern District of Ohio on April 15, 1998, on various tax charges. He was 20 arrested in Florida where his pre-trial detention hearing took place. The evidence 21 presented at the pre-trial hearing reflects that at the time of his arrest Mr. Hogan had in 22 his possession a VISA card (with his name and the name of a corporation on it) issued by 23 Swiss American Bank in Antigua. After finding that Mr. Hogan had at least $1,000,000
24 offshore, United States Magistrate Judge Karla R. Spaulding ordered Mr. Hogan to post a 25
26
27

1 bond in the amount of $1,000,000. Mr. Hogan was sentenced on November 21, 2000, to 2 serve thirty-six months imprisonment, to be served concurrently, on one count pursuant to
3 18 U.S.C. § 371 (conspiracy to defraud the United States) and one count pursuant to 26
4 U.S.C. § 7201 (attempt to evade or defeat tax).

6       ➤     United States v. David L. Bamford, Case No. 98cr712 (D. N.J.)

8       David L. Bamford pled guilty to a one count Information charging him with 9 attempting to evade or defeat taxes in violation of 26 U.S.C. § 7201. In a personal 10 interview, Mr. Bamford told me that he had funds which he had illegally diverted to 11 Guardian Bank in the Cayman Islands. Mr. Bamford stated that he obtained a credit/debit
12 card to access the funds and used that credit/debit card to purchase personal items. Mr.
13 Bamford stated that he did not receive bills from the credit card company. Rather, upon 14 issuance of the credit/debit card, funds were removed from his account and placed in a
15 reserve account and the reserve account was tapped by Guardian to pay the credit card
16 bills. According to the face of the statements, the bills were addressed to Mr. Bamford at 17 Guardian Bank's post office box. Mr. Bamford stated that the credit/debit card was 18 suggested to him by John Mathewson as a covert means of accessing Mr. Bamford's 19 offshore funds and that Mr. Bamford used the credit/debit card to make purchases in and 20 out of the United States.

1           ➤     United States v. Vernon E. Barton, 99cr82 (D. Idaho)

2           The defendant is a medical doctor in Idaho who pled guilty to a charge of
4     subscribing to a false tax return for the 1995 year in violation of 26 U.S.C. § 7206(1). In
5     the Plea Agreement signed by Dr. Barton on April 21, 1999, a copy of which is attached
6     to the Exhibits Appendix at Tab 16, he agreed that in 1994 he began diverting partnership
8     profits to a series of trusts as part of tax evasion scheme. The Plea Agreement (at pg. 5) 9     states:

10           These sums would be paid as "management fees" rather than taken by Dr.
11           Barton as income. Income in 1995 was deposited in local bank accounts
12           opened in order to transfer said income to bank accounts in the Turk and 13           Caicos Islands which were controlled by Paul Harris. Mr. Harris would then 14           disburse sums to Dr. Barton by transfers or deposits to bank accounts Dr.
15           Carroll maintained in the Turks and Caicos Islands and/or in the Channel
16           Islands. Dr. Carroll would then disburse sums to Dr. Barton by transfer or 17           deposits to a bank account Dr. Barton controlled in the Channel Islands. Dr.
18           Barton would then access these funds with debit cards, which funds
19           were used for ordinary living or "personal inurement." (Emphasis 20           added).

21           ➤     United States v. Richard L. Kirk, Case No. 00cr72 (N.D. Okl.)
22                   United States v. Samuel R. Kirk, Case No. 00cr73 (N.D. Okl.)
23                   United States v. Robert Mark Kirk, Case No. 00cr75 (N.D. Okl.)

24           The three defendants pled guilty to charges under 26 U.S.C. § 7206(1). The 25           charges included references to the use of credit cards issued by a bank in the Cayman
26           Islands. In his Plea Agreement he signed on May 26, 2000, a copy of which is attached to 27           the Exhibits Appendix at Tab 17, Robert Mark Kirk admitted (at pg. 4) the following:

28           I, ROBERT MARK KIRK, admit that I, on or about April 15, 1994, in the 29           Northern District of Oklahoma, did knowingly and willfully make and

1 subscribe, under penalties of perjury, and did file with the Internal Revenue
2 Service, a false U.S. Individual Income Tax Return (Form 1040) for the 3 year 1993 that materially under reported my total income, my taxable
4 income, and the total tax due and owing to the Internal Revenue Service, in 5 that I signed in, and presented to the Internal Revenue Service from,
6 Owasso and Tulsa, Oklahoma, a false 1993 income tax return containing a 7 written declaration that the return was made under penalties of perjury, in 8 which I falsely omitted a substantial portion of the income I received from 9 Datalink Electronics Corporation (Datalink) during 1993. The omitted
10 income was deposited by Datalink to a bank account in my name in Grand
11 Cayman Island, British West Indies, and repatriated to the United States 12 through cash withdrawals/advances and personal expenses charged on 13 a credit card issued in my name. (Emphasis added).

14 ► United States v. Joseph Roper et al., Case No. 99cr00227-1 (D. S.C.)

15 The defendants were convicted of criminal charges involving conspiracy to 16 commit mail fraud, mail fraud, conspiracy to commit money laundering and domestic and 17 international money laundering. While this was not a case under the tax laws, the Press
18 Notice issued by the United States Attorney on August 9, 2000, upon the sentencing of 19 the defendants, a copy of which is attached to the Exhibits Appendix at Tab 18, discloses
20 the offering of offshore cards to help people evade taxes. The Press Notice states, in 21 relevant part:

22 Testimony was presented at the trial establishing that from April of 1996 to 23 May of 1999, Roper and Davis and others promoted Offshore Financial 24 Services (OFS) and other entities in Jamaica and Phoenix, Arizona. They 25 promoted programs of OFS by claiming that persons joining and selling
26 OFS programs would receive commissions for their sales and commissions
27 for individuals brought into OFS with a double your money back guarantee.
28 The programs were supposed to help people evade taxes, and included offshore bank accounts, credit cards, mailing services, telephone answering services. (Emphasis added).

1 Next, the corporation opened a bank account in St. Helier, on the 2 Channel Island of Jersey off Great Britain. The client was the only signatory
3 on the account, but there was no paperwork available to U.S. authorities
4 linking the taxpayer to the corporation and its account.

5 * * *

6 The orthodontist would go to a "consulting seminar" in the Bahamas,
7 where he would attend a half-dozen 45-minute classes devoted to such 8 subjects as "internal cost controls," "accounts receivable factoring," and 9 "estate and inheritance management."

10 The Bahamian corporation would bill the professional corporation
11 $300,000 in consulting fees and the money would be deposited in the Jersey
12 bank account. The fees would be deducted as a business expense at a rate of 13 34 percent, and the orthodontist's professional corporation would realize a 14 reduction in taxes of $100,000.

15 The $300,000 would then come back to the orthodontist either
16 through a credit card issued on a foreign bank or as a bogus loan.

17 The credit card bills would be paid by a Brown-controlled entity in 18 Dublin, Ireland, which would be reimbursed with funds transferred from the 19 Jersey bank account. There would be no paper trail to the orthodontist, who 20 would be the actual user of the card.

23 B. Articles and Books

24 On November 14, 1999, the Washington Post published an article by Sharon
25 Walsh titled "A Case Study in the Elusiveness of Offshore Banks" in which the activities
26 of a Melvin J. Ford were highlighted. According to the article, a copy of which is attached
27 to the Exhibits Appendix at Tab 20, Mr. Ford and his associates were being investigated

1 by the Internal Revenue Service, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the U.S.
2 Attorney's office in Maryland, the U.S. Customs Service and U.S. postal inspectors. The 3 article explains Mr. Ford's activities:

5 In addition to insulating himself by depositing his investor's money
6 in accounts in offshore jurisdictions that are difficult to trace, Ford also has 7 protected himself by preaching the gospel of fear to his clients, according to 8 investigators and former clients.

9 Many of the investors he has lured to offshore seminars affiliated 10 with The Forum have been part of militant anti-government groups and 11 already have a natural distrust of government agencies. Ford has added to 12 that concern by telling them the IRS would only want to take away their 13 investment returns, so even those who have lost tens of thousands of dollars
14 have not reported those losses to authorities.

15 Another aspect of Mr. Ford's activities include the use of offshore cards. The Washington
16 Post writes:

17 U.S. banks must keep records of all inbound and outbound wire
18 transfers, although once the money is deposited in an offshore bank, the 19 account names may be changed, making it impossible to trace it further. In 20 addition, many offshore banks issue credit cards that can be used as debit
21 cards. So if you wanted to buy a $50,000 car in the United States, you could 22 simply use your Antigua bank's Visa card rather than writing a check or 23 wiring the money back to the United States. This is how Melvin Ford paid 24 his living expenses, according to investigators.

25 There are several books promoting the benefits of offshore banking. One of these 26 books, THE COMPLETE GUIDE TO OFFSHORE MONEY HAVENS: HOW TO MAKE MILLIONS,
27 PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY, AND LEGALLY AVOID TAXES (Prima Publishing) by Jerome
28 Schneider, has been updated and revised in several editions. Chapter 6 of the 3rd Edition, published in 1999, is titled "Say Goodbye to the IRS" and ends with the following

1 paragraph: "Right now, offshore banks and some foreign companies let you legally move
2 assets outside the United States and beyond the reach of Uncle Sam. While the special tax
3 breaks they provide may not last forever, for the moment there are fortunes to be made
4 abroad." Chapter 6 of the 4th Edition, published in December 2001, is titled "Trying to 5 Say Goodbye to the IRS." The last paragraph of this chapter now reads: "Right now, 6 offshore banks and some foreign companies let you legally move assets outside the 7 United States and benefit from this move. All you have to do is reap your profits and pay
8 your taxes. There are still fortunes to be made abroad." However, this book continues to 9 recommend offshore havens, especially (at pg. 219): "Overall, I can tell you that my 10 favorite offshore money havens are the British Virgin Islands and my three Ns: Nauru, 11 Nevis, and the Netherlands Antilles. These four locations have ironclad secrecy rules and 12 a reputation for making it difficult for U.S. authorities to access private information."

15
16
17 In United States v. Premises Known as: 712 Harkness Street, Manhattan Beach, 18 California, Docket No. 01-0387M (C.D. Cal.), the court issued a search warrant in 19 connection with the following investigation described in paragraph 5 of the affidavit in 20 support of the search warrant affidavit:
21

22 Since January 1997, I have been investigating Jerome Schneider, 23 Eric Witmeyer, and others regarding their involvement in the promotion of 24 offshore banks, offshore trusts, and offshore corporations as a way to evade
25 taxes and/or hide one's liability from the Internal Revenue Service. Based 26 on this investigation, there is probable cause to believe that Jerome
27 Schneider, Eric Witmeyer, and others have devised and agreed to market an 28 offshore nominee ownership structure involving offshore banks, offshore trusts, and offshore corporations, concealing the customer's ownership and

1 control of the seemingly offshore banks, trusts and corporations. Although 2 this offshore structure uses such terms as independent foreign owners
3 (IFO's), shareholding purpose trusts (SPT's), trust enforcers, Rabbi Trusts,
4 etc., to appear somewhat complicated, your affiant believes it is no more 5 than a simple scheme designed to conceal income that should properly be 6 reported by U.S. citizens on U.S. tax returns.

8 In his book THE COMPLETE GUIDE TO OFFSHORE MONEY HAVENS (3rd Edition), 9 Jerome Schneider writes (at pg. 85): "A U.S. nest egg is as vulnerable as a real egg, and 10 that's not much use to you if ever you should fall on hard times. Not so for the offshore
11 nest egg. It remains safely and legally hidden from the prying eye of the government, or 12 anyone else that wants to get their hands on your capital." Mr. Schneider then describes 13 (at pg. 86) "two emergency tools in my wallet": one is a plastic key to his car, "The other
14 is a credit card which I've had set up so it's connected to my offshore nest egg. If ever I
15 should find myself in need, I can use this card to quickly tap in to my emergency capital. I
16 think of it as my 'get out of trouble free' card—just like in the board game Monopoly."

20 In THE OFFSHORE MONEY BOOK: HOW TO MOVE ASSETS OFFSHORE FOR PRIVACY,
21 PROTECTION, AND TAX ADVANTAGE (Contemporary Books 2000), Arnold L. Cornez, 22 J.D., writes:
23

24 If you truly crave privacy, avoid using your onshore credit cards.
25 They provide an ongoing permanent electronic diary of where you go, what 26 you buy, how much you spend, where you shop, whom you telephone, what 27 telephone companies you use, where you entertain and vacation, which

1 travel agents and airlines you use, and on and on. Charge your discreet
2 expenses offshore!

3 Likewise, in Terry Neal's THE OFFSHORE ADVANTAGE: PRIVACY, ASSET
4 PROTECTION, TAX SHELTERS, OFFSHORE BANKING & INVESTING (MasterMedia
5 Publishing Corp. 1998) (at pg. 156), the author promotes the benefits of offshore credit
6 cards:

8 You get further protection with an offshore account because you are 9 entitled to a credit card issued on that bank. That means you can charge to 10 your heart's content, anywhere you want, and the information stops at your 11 offshore bank. If you charge on a domestic domiciled bank however, the 12 information could become part of a database that is sold to whoever is willing to pay the price.

13 C. "John Doe" summons to MasterCard

14 Based on the petition and supporting materials filed in the United States District
15 Court for the Southern District of Florida in Case No. 00-3919 CIV-JORDAN, the court
16 on October 30, 2000, issued an order approving the service of a "John Doe" summons
17 upon MasterCard International, Inc. ("MasterCard"). Copies of the Court's Order and of 18 the "John Doe" summons are attached to the Exhibits Attachment at Tabs 21 and 22, 19 respectively. Through the "John Doe" summons issued to MasterCard, the Internal 20 Revenue Service sought information regarding holders of MasterCard credit and debit
21 cards issued by or through banks or other financial institutions in Antigua and Barbuda,
22 the Bahamas and the Cayman Islands. MasterCard complied with the "John Doe"
23 summons by producing electronic database records with transactions for cards issued by 24
25
26
27

1 authorized issuers of MasterCard cards in the three jurisdictions. This file contains over 2 1.7 million transactional records, involving over 230,000 different accounts.

4 Since production of the transactional records by MasterCard, I and other Revenue
5 Agents under my direction have been analyzing the data and comparing it to Internal 6 Revenue Service records and information available from other public sources in an effort
7 to identify U.S. persons. Our efforts have resulted thus far in the identification of certain 8 taxpayers, and additional analysis and other procedures will lead to the identification of 9 numerous other U.S. persons. Individuals already identified include executives of publicly
10 held companies, business owners, doctors, lawyers, investment professionals, promoters 11 of tax shelters and/or the use of tax haven jurisdictions (including an author of several 12 books) and wealthy individuals who are using the offshore cards to pay for living 13 expenses (at such places as grocery stores, restaurants, gas stations, department stores,
14 online services and merchants, cell-phone services, satellite TV services and mail order
15 merchants), travel related transactions (such as airline tickets, resorts, casinos, cruise line
16 expenses, hotels and car rentals), and to purchase large-dollar items (such as jewelry,
17 country club expenses, art <sup>dealerships</sup>, tuition for colleges and universities and motor
18 vehicles) in the United States. From this data, we have identified U.S. persons who failed
19 to check on their tax returns, as required by law, that they had an interest in or signature
20 or other authority over a financial account in a foreign country. We have also identified
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

1 U.S. persons who have not filed federal income tax returns. This information is being
2 used in civil examinations and criminal investigations under the internal revenue laws.

4 The Internal Revenue Service's continuing analysis of the MasterCard data
5 supports my belief that the ascertainable class of individuals using credit or debit cards
6 issued by or through banks or other financial institutions in tax haven jurisdictions have 7 failed to comply with the provisions of the internal revenue laws.

9 V THE IDENTIFIED COUNTRIES

10 Based on the results of the continuing analysis of information obtained from 11 MasterCard, the Internal Revenue Service has expanded the scope of the investigation to 12 include the determination of the correct federal tax liabilities, for the years ended
13 December 31, 1999, 2000 and 2001, of United States taxpayers who have signature
14 authority over VISA cards issued by, through, or for banks or other financial institutions
15 in major offshore tax haven and financial privacy jurisdictions throughout the Caribbean, 16 European and Asian/Pacific markets. Like Antigua and Barbuda, the Bahamas and the 17 Cayman Islands, all of the jurisdictions listed on the "John Doe" summons to VISA
18 International are widely known as places where, because of strict bank secrecy laws and 19 devices such as International Business Corporations, trusts and other subterfuges, persons
20 can shield their wealth from taxation in their home countries. The jurisdictions listed on 21 the "John Doe" summons to VISA International are all recognized as principal offshore 22 tax haven and financial privacy jurisdictions by industry analysts and are actively 23
24
25
26
27

1 marketed as such by promoters of offshore schemes. The jurisdictions listed on the "John
2 Doe" summons to VISA International were selected on the reasonable belief that U.S.
3 taxpayers have failed or may have failed to comply with provisions of the internal 4 revenue laws through the use of VISA cards issued by, through, or on behalf of banks and 5 other financial institutions in those jurisdictions.

8 VI SUMMONED PARTY AND RECORDS

9 Like MasterCard, VISA International does not issue cards directly; it licenses its 10 members to issue VISA cards. VISA International (including its subsidiaries) is 11 responsible for the processing of transactions from its initial authorization when a
12 cardholder tenders the VISA card to a merchant through the final clearing and settlement
13 of the transactions between issuing banks (the VISA International members issuing VISA
14 cards to persons) and acquiring banks (the VISA International members contracting with 15 merchants that accept VISA cards).
16

18 The "John Doe" summons issued requires VISA International to provide the 19 names, addresses, social security numbers (or such other identifying information as driver 20 license, passport or employer identification numbers) and telephone numbers of 21 cardholders or card users of VISA cards issued by the banks and financial institutions in 22 the subject jurisdictions where a U.S. citizen or U.S. resident had signature authority over 23 the VISA card or account during the years ended December 31, 1999 through 2001. To 24 the extent VISA International does not have such information, the "John Doe" summons
25
26
27

1 requires VISA International to provide all documents related to card transactions, charges
2 and purchases during the period January 1, 1999, through the date of compliance with the 3 summons, including computer records of transactions processed through VISA's
4 authorizations system and VISA's clearing and settlement system, for all VISA cards
5 issued by the banks and financial institutions in the subject jurisdictions in which such
6 card or account had at least two (2) transactions, charges or purchases in the United States
7 in each of six (6) different months during any twelve (12) month period between January
8 1, 1999 and December 31, 2001. The "John Doe" summons is narrowly crafted in an 9 attempt to retrieve from VISA International records leading to the identification of U.S.
10 persons.
12
13

14           Based on my experience with the MasterCard summons, I know that data obtained 15 from the processing of credit and debit card authorization and clearing transactions is 16 maintained by credit card processors such as VISA International (including its 17 subsidiaries) in standard file layouts searchable by many different fields of information, 18 including fields containing information on the financial institutions who issued the cards.
19 I have learned that it is a simple matter for VISA International to extract from its database
20 all information pertaining to cards issued by issuers with particular Bank Identifier
21 Numbers (BINs) and copy that data to a computer tape or tapes. Thus, VISA International 22 has readily accessible data which may be relevant to the determination of the correct
23 federal tax liabilities, for the years ended December 31, 1999, 2000 and 2001, of United 24
25
26
27
28

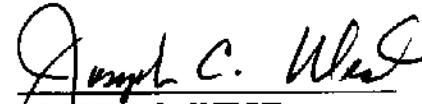

1 States taxpayers who have signature authority over VISA cards issued by, through, or for 2 banks or other financial institutions in the subject offshore tax haven and financial
3 privacy jurisdictions. A VISA International spokesperson, commenting on the "John Doe"
4 summonses issued to American Express and MasterCard has stated: "We urge our 5 cardholders not to use Visa cards for illegal purposes. We are not a law enforcement 6 agency, but we will cooperate to the fullest extent possible with investigators, should the 7 need arise." Crooks launder money via cards, Cards International, September 12, 2001, 8 available at 2001 WL 13276228.

11 VIII CONCLUSION

12
13 Based upon the foregoing, I have concluded that there is a reasonable basis for 14 believing that the information sought in the "John Doe" summons issued to VISA
15 International will identify United States taxpayers who may have diverted unreported 16 income offshore or received unreported income from undisclosed offshore sources or 17 have taken improper deductions or credits or have failed to withhold tax on certain
18 payments made offshore and will enable the Internal Revenue Service to locate taxpayers
19 who have failed to pay taxes owing under the Internal Revenue laws during the years
20 ended December 31, 1999 through 2001.

DECLARATION OF JACK A. BLUM

19 I, Jack A. Blum, Esq., pursuant to 28 U.S.C. Section 1746, declare and state:

20 I am a member of the District of Columbia Bar and a partner in the law firm of 21 Lobel, Novins & Lamont. I have served as Associate Counsel and Special Counsel to the 22 United States Senate Foreign Relations Committee and in that capacity investigated
23 money laundering issues and the problems created by the existence of "offshore" bank
24 secrecy jurisdictions. I am generally recognized as an expert on offshore bank secrecy,
25 tax haven and money laundering issues. I was retained by the United Nations Drug
26 Control Programme as one of four experts to prepare a report on the problem of money
27
28

1 laundering for the General Assembly session in June, 1998. A copy of my curriculum
2 vitae is attached hereto.

4 The use of offshore bank accounts and offshore entities to facilitate tax evasion is 5 a massive problem for the United States. At a minimum, I estimate the annual losses to 6 the U.S. Treasury through offshore evasion by individual taxpayers at $70 billion dollars
7 a year. According to the best available estimates more than five trillion dollars in assets
8 are held offshore. Three trillion dollars is in the form of deposits in tax haven banks. The 9 Cayman Islands, one of the largest "offshore" centers, claims to have in excess of $600
10 billion in bank deposits. These deposits are in the more than 580 banks licensed to do
11 business there. The balance is in the form of securities held by International Business
12 Corporations and trusts.

14 Although much of the money on deposit comes from banks "booking" their 15 transactions to tax haven branches and affiliates to minimize their cost of funds, each of 16 the havens boasts specialty banks which cater to the needs of wealthy individuals who 17 want to escape income, estate and gift tax. These banks offer extensive private banking 18 services which include the management of trusts, the creation and management of 19 international business corporations which are vehicles for holding assets and the 20 structuring of arrangements for hiding funds from tax collectors.

22 There are more than 360,000 International Business Corporations registered in the 23 British Virgin Islands alone. The numbers grow by the day. Ten thousand new 24

1 International Business Corporations were formed on the island of Nevis between January
2 1998 and March 1999. World wide, according to statistics gathered by the Department of 3 State the total number of offshore International Business Corporations is approximately 4 1.6 million. In my opinion the State Department numbers are conservative. The IBC's are 5 not required to file annual reports and may have nominee officers and directors. Forty one
6 jurisdictions have been identified by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and 7 Development (OECD) as tax haven jurisdictions. These jurisdictions have corporation
8 laws which allow the owners of the corporation to hide the identity of both the owners
9 and the managers. Although some of these jurisdictions under pressure from the OECD 10 have recently agreed to track beneficial ownership of corporations and to cooperate in 11 certain tax matters, in most cases final tax agreements have not been ratified. Issues of 12 compliance with the new requirements have not been addressed.

15
16
17 The International Business Corporations in tax haven jurisdictions are used to 18 hold bank and securities accounts and to function as the operating arm of grantor trusts.
19 People trying to hide assets use corporations from one jurisdiction to open bank accounts
20 in another, thus adding additional layers of complexity to the financial trail.

21
22 For many years the growth in the use of offshore havens for tax evasion was 23 limited by a single factor -- a person with money hidden offshore faced major problems
24 and major expense in getting access to it. Moreover, the access left a paper trail in the 25 form of checks, telephone and telex communications and other records. Tax evaders
26
27

1 were reluctant to pay their bills with checks drawn on foreign banks because of the fees
2 associated with international clearing operations. Many companies refused foreign 3 checks for routine payments because of the fees charged by American banks for 4 processing the checks and the long delays before the depositor had access to the funds.

6 The widespread use of credit and debit cards has enabled offshore bankers to offer
7 easy and instantaneous access to offshore accounts without an apparent paper trail and 8 without the associated fees. By issuing a bank sponsored credit or debit card and 9 associating it with the offshore account, offshore bankers can and do tell their customers
10 that they can make most purchases, pay for travel, and get cash using the money in the 11 offshore account without arousing suspicion and without leaving a paper trail in the form
12 of communications and correspondence.
13

15 In 1994, I covertly taped an interview with John Mathewson, the chairman of a 16 Cayman Islands bank, Guardian Bank and Trust. In that interview, he was trying to sell 17 me on the idea of "going offshore." I asked him about getting access to my money. He 18 offered a gold credit/debit card. He told me it could be issued in my name, the name of 19 his bank, the name of an offshore corporation, or no name at all. By using an associated 20 personal identification number the card would be good for up to $1 million a month,
21 provided I had that much on account at his bank. He assured me that his records were 22 protected by Cayman bank secrecy laws and those laws protected against inquiries from 23 the Internal Revenue Service. It was obvious to me then that he was marketing the bank's
24
25
26
27
28

1 services in assisting tax evasion to American citizens. Since that time I have been
2 involved in a number of matters that demonstrated to me how common the credit
3 card/access option has become.

5 In a series of advertisements for bank credit and debit cards that ran in the 6 Financial Times of London in the mid- 1990's, the Standard Chartered Bank, a large
7 British bank with offshore operations, used the tag line "keep in touch with your offshore
8 money." The ad made the same points that Mr. Mathewson made – instant access to 9 funds in the remote location with complete secrecy.
10

11 In my opinion, the John Doe summons request by the Internal Revenue Service is 12 an appropriate way of identifying foreign bank account holders. As a general rule, 13 offshore banks will not issue bank related credit cards unless the recipient of the card has 14 an associated bank account. Thus, the identification of United States persons who are card 15 holders and who have cards issued by banks in the offshore tax haven and financial 16 privacy jurisdictions listed in the John Doe summons will identify a group which has 17 offshore bank accounts. The lists provided by the credit card firms will enable the 18 Service to determine whether taxpayers have reported the existence of an offshore bank
19 account they control and whether they have reported the related income.
20
22

23 In my opinion, because the summons is limited to account information related to 24 countries whose banks are known to market their secrecy as protection from tax 25 authorities, there will be a high likelihood that most of the names generated will be those 26
27

1 of individuals who failed to report their foreign bank accounts and the related income.
2 All of the jurisdictions for which data is requested have bank secrecy laws. Until now
3 they have refused to cooperate with the United States on tax matters. In each jurisdiction
4 bankers use secrecy and non-cooperation with United States tax authorities as a selling 5 point.

8 Banks in these jurisdictions regularly market their services in the United States to 9 United States residents, their legal advisers, and accountants. The marketing is done by 10 the Internet, by personal sales calls, by advertising in airline magazines and in magazines
11 aimed at wealthy individuals and their professional advisers. Marketing is done at trade 12 shows and seminars. Marketing is done by having senior officials of the banks travel to 13 the United States to sell their services to lawyers, accountants, and private clients.
14

16 I have been involved in cases in which banks and shell companies in Antigua, the 17 Bahamas, Bermuda, the Cayman Islands, the Cook Islands, Gibraltar, Jersey,
18 Liechtenstein, the Isle of Man, Nauru, Panama, Singapore, Switzerland, and Vanuatu, 19 were used by American citizens seeking to avoid the payment of taxes. Although I have 20 not been involved in case in all of the jurisdictions covered by this summons request, 21 based on information and belief I can say that their financial institutions have all been 22 used by Americans seeking to avoid taxes.
23

25 In the course of preparing this Declaration, I reviewed the statistics on the number 26 of foreign bank account reports (FBARs) received by the Treasury Department for the 27

1 years 1994, 1995, and 1996 for financial accounts in Antigua, the Bahamas and the 2 Cayman Islands. The law requires that a Report of Foreign Bank and Financial Accounts
3 form be filed with the Treasury Department to report each financial account over which a
4 United States person has control. Control is defined as the ability to direct the movement
5 of funds in the account whether or not the person has signature authority or a power of 6 attorney.

9 In my opinion, the number of accounts reported and the number of persons filing
10 FBARs for all three jurisdictions are far below the numbers that I would expect if there
11 were full compliance with the reporting requirements. I base my opinion on the number 12 of financial institutions in each location, the volume of advertising and promotion they 13 engage in, the number of International Business Corporations in each jurisdiction and the 14 very substantial trust activity in each jurisdiction.
15

17 Bankers, lawyers and regulators in the jurisdictions and in the United States have 18 expressed the view that about half of the offshore financial business is done for United 19 States persons. If the filings were in fact complete, the numbers suggest there would not 20 be enough bank business to support a single institution.
21

22 Similarly, the number of foreign trust returns made to the Internal Revenue Service
23 based on Cayman trusts is completely inconsistent with the movement of bank officers
24 and lawyers to and from the United States and the number of banks offering trust services
25 to United States persons, from the Cayman Islands.
26
27

1 Further, it is my view that it will not be difficult or costly for the credit card
2 processors to provide the information. It should be readily available in machine readable 3 format.

CURRICULUM VITAE

Jack A. Blum

Mr. Blum is a partner in Lobel, Novins & Lamont, a Washington, D.C. law firm. As a Senate attorney he was involved in a number of well know investigations, including BCCI, General Noriega's drug trafficking, and Lockheed Aircraft's overseas bribes. He is an expert on controlling government corruption, international financial crime, money laundering, international tax havens and drug trafficking. In his law practice he negotiated numerous international business transactions, and has assisted clients who have been the victims of complex fraud. He works as an expert witness and consultant to various government agencies and private clients. He has been a consultant to the United Nations Centre on Transnational Corporations, the United Nations Office of Drug Control and Crime Prevention.

At the present time Mr. Blum serves as the chair of the experts group on international asset recovery which was convened by the United Nations Centre for Drug Control and Crime Prevention.

Mr. Blum has also been involved in a wide range of civic and charitable activities. He served for five years as the President of the National Consumers League, for four years as a Trustee of Bard College, and for two years as the Treasurer of the International Center, a Washington, D.C. foreign policy organization. He is presently on the Boards of the Violence Policy Center, The Fund for Constitutional Government and the International Labor Rights Fund.
