African Americans are more than twice as likely to be searched during vehicle stops, but are found in possession of contraband 26% less often than white drivers.