Tom

Petters: Hello?

Deanna

Coleman: Hi, Tom.

Petters: Hi.

Coleman: Have you been talking to him?

Petters: Yeah, I just hung up.

Coleman: Okay.

Petters: I'll get a call in when you call.

Coleman: No, it's. You know, actually for once Bob did an okay job.

Petters: Huh?

Coleman: Let me shut the door.

Petters: (UI)?

Coleman: Ah, he's not here.

Petters: Did he do a good job on it?

Coleman: He did a good job. He's not here.

Petters: He's not there?

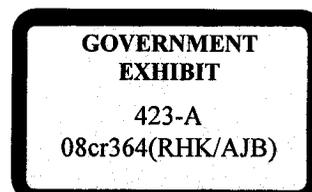

Coleman: No, he's not but he actually did for once. Usually I don't like him on the phone calls cuz he usually makes things 10 times worse.

Petters: Am I on speaker?

Coleman: You are. Do you want me to take you off? I just, it's easier cuz I'm just doing some...

Petters: You're the only one there?

Coleman: Yeah.

Petters: Well, well the one thing is. You know I was trying to get across before in a gentle, nice way is it would be the wildest dream of mine if you can help do what I do sometimes because I just can't do it all. I just. I mean I just got three nuclear bombs detonating this whole thing. That I can't even. I haven't even told anybody about your bomb. You know what I mean? They're like these agreements that they blow up.

Coleman: Right.

Petters: And if we don't get 'em we'll have auditors coming in, we'll have this coming in, we'll have Greg's fund blowing up, we'll have that fund blowing up. So I keep going back to. You know I keep. I'm so glad to hear that. So the call went actually okay?

Coleman: Yeah they. Actually it went, it went just fine. Um, so I was just like I said it was the first time in a long time Bob's done a half way decent job.

Petters: Well you know what? I think he's finally starting to care too and understand. I really appreciate this because, I tell you what, I'm not trying to be an asshole either here. I'm, I'm just telling ya. It's (UI) forget about all the pressure and the fear, and all of a sudden they become even escalated higher when the multitude of people they thought that you don't want to talk to are the ones that you know you have to talk to, you can't talk to. Cuz you don't have enough time to make something happen.

Coleman: Right.

Petters: And if I, if I get land locked where you can't make anything happen, when we can no longer go out and try. If you sat on a basketball court somewhere and somebody held you in the corner with a basketball and you're blocking the defense person you'd never get to the hoop to make up a score on the board so you're never gonna get anything on the game and it's over with and what, what frustrates me the most is there's so many lawyers and fucking deals and David Baer is just about ready to blow his head off about an hour ago and we had it all done with Thane and then Greg said no, you wanted to protect us against this, and Greg was right and (UI) Thane went ballistic and oh Deanna I can't tell you, I gotta fucking headache that is like...

Coleman: No, I'm sure.

Petters: You know what I mean (UI) important (UI) believe me only this is the stuff that's so not fun and none of it is.

Coleman: Right.

Petters: Ah, we just gotta get. We just gotta get one of these fucking deals done, if I could have. If you wanna listen on the calls today at 4 o'clock on Circuit City you're welcome to dial in. If you don't wanna, you don't have to, but I tell you what I can make us a couple hundred million dollars in that one call with Circuit City and one on Value Vision.

Coleman: I would love to.

Petters: And then we have a roll up call. When we roll up all three companies into each other Saturday on that and I'll tell you tomorrow. So I don't know. (UI) But you know what? I wish I didn't have to go to a fucking San Francisco with Ramy and Polaroid but I'm gotta go see this guy specifically but I'm just like making sure Henry gets the thing to Palm Beach before he leaves. The only.

Coleman: Well, can't like Mary deal, I mean.

Petters: (UI) all these people making sure they connect so nothing blows up.

Coleman: Isn't um San Francisco and Polaroid, can't Mary do that herself?

Petters: No.

Coleman: Why?

Petters: They want to talk to...I'm the one who knows them and now that (UI) and introduce the CEO of the company and her team and listen to the pitch of the company and we went through yesterday and Ramy is the guy who was here?

Coleman: Ah yeah.

Petters: He wouldn't (UI) with me if I don't go so, like, that's what's so frustrating and maddening to me. I am just so sick of being the guy. I wish I had my name was erased off the board or see if anyone, I don't know, the companies would be better you know. I can't.

Coleman: Well we should.

Petters: But, you know, that media marketing team, it took three hours putting together and these guys have a chance to make like five million bucks a score and I don't even show up at all or call.

Coleman: We do?

Petters: (UI).

Coleman: Well they've lost a lot of money in the past, haven't they?

Petters: What?

Coleman: They've lost a lot of money in the past.

Petters: Yeah, but they turn it around.

Coleman: Oh.

Petters: That's why I wanna go to the meetings today, to help. Do you know what I mean?

Coleman: Right.

Petters: I don't wanna. They've lost money in the past and they weren't cash flowing. Now they're close to cash flowing. There's only $600,000 difference between what they sell this year and, and what they net of being profitable. So I have a bunch of ideas that I wanted to tell them about but I can't really. You know. I had Bill Dunlap tell them, hopefully Bill will.

Coleman: I'm sure Bill did.

Petters: You know what I mean it's just like, fuck. I have such a bad headache, physical bad headache, and I can't even think. I think I've got a brain tumor or somethin'.

Coleman: Now is that from the alcohol last night or is that from all the people calling you?

Petters: Can I tell you what?

Coleman: I'm kidding, Tom.

Petters: No, you know what it is, I got home and then I get a call from Girard at 2:30 in the morning, half in the bag, and then I gotta sober up. And then I don't get to sleep 'till 4:30 and then somebody, Tom Hay called me this morning. Fuck. You know, having him do, you know he's kinda acting, helping going around and reorganizing all the Petters Group shit and cutting people out and doing all the stuff we did in Florida and he calls me at 6:15.

Coleman: Wow.

Petters: Ah I think I forgot what (UI) like you know you go to bed at 9:30, 10 and wakes up at 9, and then wakes up 4:30 or 5.

Coleman: Yeah.

Petters: Then he gets out on the golf course at 6 or 6:30, or calls you. I'm like fuck, I'm tired.

Coleman: I hear ya.

Petters: Really tired.

Coleman: Hm-ma. You know I need a couple signatures. Are you gonna be in today at all?

Petters: Just come on over and hop in bed with me.

Coleman: Yeah.

Petters: Take a little nap with me.

Coleman: There you go. Um, but no I. Are you gonna be in today at all?

Petters: I wasn't planning on it.

Coleman: Okay.

Petters: But I would, if you need a signature I'll do it. You can't use a stamp, huh?

Coleman: Ah, it's for a Palm Beach on those notes that we rolled.

Petters: Yeah.

Coleman: Yeah I, I was supposed to get it yesterday and I just kinda spaced it out.

Petters: Alright so, ah, is David there?

Coleman: David Margolis?

Petters: Yeah.

Coleman: Um, I'm not sure.

Petters: Cuz I think he is.

Coleman: I can run, I can run out to your house, Tom, that's fine.

Petters: Yeah, I'm naked in bed though.

Coleman: Yeah. Then I guess I won't.

Petters: (UI).

Coleman: Okay.

Petters: But you can (UI) come up.

Coleman: Okay.

Petters: Oh Deanna, I'm a sick man. Fuck. I tell you what.

Coleman: We'll get through it, Tom.

Petters: I know we will.

Coleman: Is Girard coming through with any money for Monday?

Petters: Ah, Deanna, you wouldn't believe it, he's called five times. I haven't been able to answer his call. That's my level of frustration.

Coleman: Yeah.

Petters: So I hope. I gotta call him back.

Coleman: Okay.

Petters: Okay? And he's seven hours time difference too, so.

Coleman: Oh that makes. Only seven hours later, right?

Petters: Yeah.

Coleman: So it's about eight o'clock there right now?

Petters: I gotta call him.

Coleman: Okay, well I'll get off the phone, give him a call. Um, let me know about 4 o'clock Circuit City cuz I'll, I'll love to join you on that call.

Petters: Okay. You got it, baby. When do you want me to sign these notes?

Coleman: Um, do you want me to run 'em out?

Petters: (UI).

Coleman: No, I'm not leaving yet. I have to run out and get signatures and then I have to get 'em Fed-EXed to Frank, um.

Petters: Frank? Okay.

Coleman: I don't even know. Debbie's not here and I don't even know if I Fed-EX it to his house or to his office. Does he have an office in Florida? I don't even know where to Fed-Ex it.

Petters: He was just at my house.

Coleman: He's what?

Petters: He was at my house this morning.

Coleman: Oh but it'd have to go to Florida, Frank um, Denley needs to take care of it.

Petters: Denley.

Coleman: Yeah.

Petters: We're gonna get Jennifer involved in some of this stuff.

Coleman: Involved in what?

Petters: What?

Coleman: Why would you get Jennifer involved in some of this stuff?

Petters: Cuz I need some help.

Coleman: You need what?

Petters: I need some help, somebody I can trust. Yesterday they gave me a, a (UI) some of the stuff I can do, and I don't know. Maybe I won't. And some of the things I'm doing I'm, I'm positive she can do.

Coleman: Okay.

Petters: And I don't have enough time or people to help.

Coleman: Right.

Petters: The people I can give stuff to is so stupid. She finds, she's like you, kinda finds more hairs than common sense, you know.

Coleman: Right.

Petters: Makes you think why are we doing this or why are we doing that. (UI) gotta talk about companies so when she's talking about just get a life, you know.

Coleman: Yep.

Petters: I don't know. Greg Bell is. Everybody will calm down if we can get some money.

Coleman: No, that's true.

Petters: That's what's, we're losing our common sense now, no money.

Coleman: Right.

Petters: So we gotta focus on that, okay? Alright. I'll, I'm gonna try calling DeAnne and set up that 4 o'clock call, okay?

Coleman: Okay.

Petters: Okay hon.

Coleman: Thanks.

Petters: Thank you.

Coleman: Bye.

Petters: Bye.
