Greeting from U.S. Attorney Billy J. Williams

We at the U.S. Attorney's Office District of Oregon have had a busy summer.

In late August I attended the Attorney General’s Advisory Subcommittee on Native American Issues (NAIS) meeting in Santa Ana Pueblo, New Mexico, with Tribal Liaison AUSA Tim Simmons, a member of the NAIS Tribal Liaison Council. The annual meeting is an opportunity to learn from tribal leaders and the 52 other U.S. Attorneys serving in districts that include Indian Country or one or more federally recognized tribes, and to make policy recommendations to the Attorney General. We had an impressive agenda with a number of national speakers who addressed a variety of public safety and law enforcement issues important to our work in Indian Country. We spent time within the Pueblo of Santa Ana, as well as the Pueblo of Acoma, which is the oldest continually inhabited community in North America. Together with tribal leaders, we discussed strategies to address Missing and Murdered Indigenous People (MMIP), drug trafficking, needed law enforcement resources, safeguarding children from sexual abuse in Indian Country, the Indian Arts and Crafts Act, and preserving Native American cultural patrimony. I moderated two panels: Drug Trafficking Strategies & Updates in Indian Country and Marijuana & Hemp Issues in Indian Country. More details on this important meeting can be found here and here.

At the meeting, the NAIS joined with Department of Justice officials for the official announcement of the fifth expansion of the Tribal Access Program for National Crime Information in Indian Country (TAP). TAP provides federally recognized tribes with the training, technology, and access to enter and retrieve data to and from NCIC and FBI Criminal Justice Information Services (CJIS), National Sex Offender Registry (NSOR), and Tribe and Territory Sex Offender Registry System (TTSORS). Currently in Oregon, Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation participates in TAP and utilizes its technology. Tribal leaders from CTUIR and nationwide who utilize TAP have repeatedly expressed the numerous benefits of the program, especially as a tool in collaborating on MMIP cases. By the end of 2019, TAP will be deployed to more than 70 tribes with over 300 Tribal agencies participating. Our office is willing to support Oregon tribes applying for this program; the deadline to apply is October 31, 2019.

In July, we heard from Attorney General William Barr regarding the Federal Execution Protocol, allowing the federal government to resume capital punishment. Our office contacted Oregon’s three non-PL-280 tribes to confirm their status regarding the "Opt-In" clause of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994, which included provisions that gave tribal governments a significant voice in the decision to apply certain sections of the Act to federal felony offenses committed within Indian Country. The Act created a provision, 18 U.S.C. § 3598, that makes the death penalty inapplicable to any person subject to the criminal jurisdiction of an Indian tribal government convicted of an offense pursuant to Federal jurisdiction, which is predicated solely on Indian Country (as defined in 18 U.S.C. § 1151) unless “the governing body of the tribe has elected that this chapter have effect over land and persons subject to its criminal jurisdiction.” If a tribe opts in, the United States Attorney can prosecute a murder case as a death penalty case under 18 U.S.C. § 1153. If no action is taken, the maximum sentence for such a case would be life in prison.

On September 5, our office hosted its second Marijuana Summit in Portland’s Mark O. Hatfield Federal Courthouse Jury Assembly room. We combined the annual meeting of the Attorney General’s Advisory Committee Marijuana Working Group which I chair, and a summit with invited local and national presenters and local stakeholder participants. The goal of the summit was to share diverse perspectives on the current state of marijuana nationally and locally. We hosted over 160 attendees including many tribal leaders and U.S. Attorneys and their senior leadership teams from around the country. We shared our work over the last two years developing and implementing the District Marijuana Enforcement Strategy; it has been a model for the U.S. Attorney community. We heard from expert speakers on hemp and CBD; teen-use research, data, and impacts; law enforcement perspective on current marijuana trends and threats; and economic and justice considerations. It was an important learning and networking event for all attendees where we set goals for the coming year, established lines of communication, and discussed strategies.

As always, we are open to hearing from you about the needs you see in your area and for your tribal members. We welcome feedback, communication, and opportunities to connect.

Sincerely,

Billy J. Williams
U.S. Attorney

Spotlight on 2019 Region 1 Archaeological Crime Investigation Training for Law Enforcement
On September 10, 2019, the United States Attorney’s Office and the Bureau of Land Management conducted the 2019 Region 1 Archaeological Crime Investigation Training for Law Enforcement in Klamath Falls, Oregon. The training was attended by 46 participants, consisting of federal, state, and local law enforcement and archaeologists, as well as tribal representatives from the Klamath Tribes, the Burns Paiute Tribe, and the Confederated Tribes of the Warm Springs Reservation. The full day training included: law enforcement case studies by the Oregon State Police and BLM Law Enforcement; discussion of Cultural Resources in Region 1 by tribal, federal and state archaeologists; a summary of State and Federal laws related to cultural resources; identification of law enforcement related issues connected to prosecutions of cultural resource violations; and a Site visit. For the purposes of law enforcement training, the State of Oregon was divided into 6 different regions. The United States Attorney’s Office intends to conduct similar trainings in the other 5 regions next year. If you are interested in further information regarding the Region 1 Training or participating in the trainings to be conducted next year, please contact AUSA Tim Simmons.

POWER Act 2020

In 2018, Congress passed the POWER Act, which mandates that each judicial district shall host an annual event to promote pro bono legal services to empower survivors of domestic, dating, sexual, and stalking violence. The Act specifies that, in alternating years, for judicial districts with Indian Tribes, the event must focus on increasing access to such services specifically to Native victims. The United States District Court for the District of Oregon hosted its first event on September 4, 2019, a non-Indian-focused event at the Mark O. Hatfield Federal Courthouse Jury Assembly room in Portland. The Court is in its planning stages for its next event, which will focus on serving Native victims of domestic, dating, sexual, and stalking violence. The Court plans to work with the tribal community to plan the next event. If you have ideas for this event, would like to participate in the planning of the event, or have recommendations for locales to host the event, please contact Gosia Fonberg, Law Clerk for Chief Judge Michael W. Mosman.

Recent Prosecution Highlights from the USAO District of Oregon

U.S. v. Robert Glenn Warner Sr.- AUSA Natalie Wight prosecuted this Warm Springs case where defendant pleaded guilty to Abusive Sexual Contact with a Child. The defendant was sentenced on July 3, 2019, to 300 months prison followed by 10 years’ supervision, including orders to undergo sex offender and mental health treatment; register as a sex offender; not to have any contact with any minors including the crime victim and their family; and pay restitution of $1039.36 to the crime victim. The crime victim and guardian gave verbal victim impact statements at the sentencing hearing. USAO Press release: Warm Springs Man Sentenced to 25 Years in Federal Prison for the Repeated Sexual Abuse of a Child

U.S. v. Jared Case- AUSA Jennifer Martin prosecuted this case out of CTUIR where defendant pleaded guilty to Assault by Strangling on July 9, 2019. The victim was consulted and gave input regarding the plea. Sentencing has been scheduled for October 8, 2019, at 11am, before Chief Judge Michael W. Mosman. The defendant was previously prosecuted in Umatilla County by DDA Monte Ludington, where he pleaded guilty and was sentenced for the crime of Assault in the Fourth Degree for domestic violence abuse. In the State case, the defendant was sentenced on September 21, 2018, to 5 years’ probation, including orders to undergo substance abuse, mental health, and batterers’ intervention treatment, and not to have contact with the crime victim except an approved apology note submitted via the DA’s Office. The crimes charged by the State were perpetrated one month prior to the crimes charged in the federal case.

U.S. v. Jasper Eneas Switzler Sr.- AUSA Paul Maloney prosecuted this Warm Springs case where defendant pleaded guilty to Theft from an Indian Tribal Organization. The defendant was sentenced on September 10, 2019, to 5 years’ probation where he must undergo substance abuse treatment, have no contact with Warm Springs Department of Natural Resources, and pay restitution in an amount to be determined.

Funding Opportunities

Remember to check out our new IC Grant Opportunities website, a compilation of even more grant opportunities. We update the site every other week. Some highlights are below.

First Nations’ Native Agriculture and Food Systems Scholarship - First Nations is accepting applications for its Native Agriculture and Food Systems Scholarship Program that aims to encourage more Native American college students to enter these fields so that they can better assist their communities with these efforts. We'll award 20 to 25 scholarships of $1,000 to $1,500 each to Native American college students majoring in agriculture and agriculture-related fields. Application deadline is September 30, 2019.

NIWRC’s On-Site Technical Assistance to tribal domestic violence programs and shelters - In FY 2020, NIWRC has funding to provide up to three days of direct on-site technical assistance in four (4) tribal locations. The primary goal of NIWRC’s On-site Technical Assistance is to facilitate individual or agency change in some systematic manner by providing expertise to solve a problem. Training can be part of this process if it is necessary to assure effective capacity building, development and/or implementation of policies, procedures and/or response. NIWRC staff will collaborate with each selected On-Site TA recipient to create an agenda specific to their program and tribal community. Application deadline is September 30, 2019.

Tribal Access Program for National Crime Information (TAP) - The Department of Justice is pleased to announce the fifth expansion of the Tribal Access Program, a program providing federally recognized tribes with enhanced ability to access and exchange data with the national crime information databases for both criminal justice and non-criminal justice purposes. TAP provides federally recognized tribes the ability to access and exchange data with national crime information databases for both civil and criminal purposes and provides training as well as software and biometric/biographic kiosk workstations to process finger and palm prints. TAP also gives Tribes the ability to take mugshots and submit information to FBI CJIS. By the end of 2019, TAP will be deployed to more than 70 tribes with over 300 Tribal agencies participating. Application deadline is October 31, 2019.

What We're Watching and Reading

Mental Health News Radio Network (MHNR) is a network of podcasts focused on mental health and how it affects all aspects of our lives. There are over 50 channels targeting many facets of mental health! It is designed to advocate for mental health and to normalize mental illness. We’re particularly enjoying Rescue the Rescuer, Take Your Power Back, The Trauma Impact, and First Responder Mental Health Network.

An American Sunrise, a poem by poet, writer and musician Joy Harjo, a member of the Muscogee Creek Nation, speaks to the persistence and resilience of Native people. This summer, she was announced as the First Native American U.S. Poet Laureate.

Multiple Victim Homicides, Mass Murders, and Homicide-Suicides as Domestic Violence Events by April M. Zeoli, PhD, MPH, is paper published via The Battered Women’s Justice Project. It explores the link between mass fatality events and domestic violence. This concept is also explored in Business Insider’s The men behind the US’s deadliest mass shootings have domestic violence- not mental illness- in common.

We know that racism and hate-based violence compound trauma and affect emotional well-being. The Impact of Racism on Child and Adolescent Health published by The American Academy of Pediatrics examines the impact of racism in child and adolescent physiological development and health outcomes. Moreover, the International Society for Traumatic Stress Studies further examines the nexus of emotional and physiological health impacts in their Briefing Paper: Global Perspectives on the Trauma of Hate-Based Violence.

On a vast reservation, female Navajo officers patrol with bulletproof vests and protective amulets from the LA Times investigates the role of female officers policing in isolation in Navajo Nation.

Netflix just released Unbelievable, a limited television series about a rape survivor prosecuted for filing a false report despite compelling physical evidence of her assault by a stranger. Her perpetrator was later arrested in another state after being linked to sexually assaulting multiple other stranger victims. If you haven’t read the Pulitzer Prize-winning article An Unbelievable Story of Rape, which was later developed into a book called A False Report: A True Story of Rape in America, we strongly recommend both. The survivor’s story is also featured in the podcast This American Life in an episode called Anatomy of Doubt.

No Visible Bruises: What We Don’t Know About Domestic Abuse Can Kill Us is a book by Rachel Louise Snyder that details the often unseen abuse perpetrated by domestic violence batterers. Snyder helped develop Domestic Violence High Risk Teams now used in many jurisdictions, which are multidisciplinary teams aimed at promoting victim safety through criminal justice system communication and information sharing.

CVR turned me on to Impact of Violence and Relationship Abuse on Grades of American Indian/Alaska Native Undergraduate College Students from the Journal of Interpersonal Violence by David A. Patterson Silver Wolf, Jacob Perkins, Carol Van Zile-Tamsen, and Sheretta Butler-Barnes. The research backs the common knowledge that Native students who experience abuse perform worse in college than those who have not been victimized. The article validates the existing research that students who identify as Native report markedly higher rates of all types of violence and victimization than other students.

Strong Families Respect Each Other: What Native Youth Need to Know About the Connection Between Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence

The Center for Victim Research published an annotated bibliography gathering research on culturally relevant programs for survivors of violence. This bibliography, put together by CVR summer intern Joan Dominguez, includes systematic literature reviews, journal articles, and program evaluations on topics like intimate partner violence, sexual assault, gender-based violence, adverse childhood experiences, and elder abuse.
NPAIHB's Healthy Native Youth has launched two new culturally-relevant health curricula on their website: Respecting the Circle of Life is an evidence-based STD/HIV and pregnancy prevention program for Native American youth between ages 11 and 19 and their parents or other trusted adults. Ogitchidag Gikinooamaagad Peer Education is a youth development program for American Indian teens ages 12 to 18 that teaches youth about preventing pregnancies during adolescence and sexually transmitted diseases. They also have a Curricula Comparison Tool, which allows educators to view and filter culturally relevant health education programs to compare them by age group, delivery setting, duration, cost, class size, and evidence of effectiveness.

National Suicide Prevention Week was September 8-14. NIWRC created a toolkit filled with inspiration, guidance, social media sharables a calendar of events, and more.

The Center for Court Innovation helps courts and communities respond creatively and effectively to domestic violence, sexual assault, stalking, and dating violence. Their free Training and Technical Assistance is designed to help jurisdictions interested in enhancing their current approaches to domestic violence offender accountability and engagement.

The Friendship Line from the Institute on Aging (1-800-971-0016) is a great resource shared with me by Warm Springs PD Detective and FBI Task Force Officer Sam Williams. It is the only accredited warmline/hotline in the country for people aged 60 years and older and adults living with disabilities. It is staffed 24/7 and can both receive and make calls; the Friendship Line also makes ongoing outreach calls to lonely older/disabled adults.

OJD and OJJDP updated the Fact Sheet on AMBER Alert in Indian Country. The fact sheet highlights the Ashlynnne Mike AMBER Alert in Indian Country Act of 2018, which coordinates and integrates access between tribes and state AMBER Alert plans. The fact sheet also highlights the AMBER Alert in Indian Country Website, efforts in combatting child sex trafficking in IC, and training opportunities for Tribal child protection partners, law enforcement, and communities. Thanks to my colleague FBI IC Victim Specialist Erin Kevin for sending this along.

We R Native is recruiting Native teens and young adults (15-24 years old) to participate in a nationwide study. The goal is to evaluate the impact of text messaging BRAVE messages (designed to improve mental health, help-seeking skills, and promote cultural pride and resilience) or STEM messages (designed to elevate and re-affirm Native voices in science, technology, engineering, and math). Participants will receive a $10.00 Amazon gift code for completing 4 surveys (totaling $40) over 9 months.

Robin Reimer from ODOJ’s CVSSD sent me the Southern Regional Children’s Advocacy Center’s article Listen and Learn: A Process for Initiating Collaboration between Tribal Communities and Children’s Advocacy Centers co-authored by SRCAC Regional Training Specialist Jerri Sites, MA and Gina South, JD, with contribution from Kathryn England-Aytes, EdD and Paul Steele, PhD. The article outlines the disparity in services available to Native American children and families involved in cases of child abuse, despite experiencing the highest rate of child abuse in the country. Child Advocacy Centers (CACs) and Multi-Disciplinary Teams (MDTs) have not been widely adopted in Indian Country, and yet, when appropriately acculturated, can be an effective medical and social intervention to child abuse in Indian Country. Native American Children’s Alliance (NACA) and your Regional Child Advocacy Center can help facilitate a Listen and Learn in your community; details for requesting assistance are at the end of the article.

A Note About Our Language

"Indian Country" is the legal term used to describe reservations and other lands set aside for Indian use, such as Indian allotments and lands held in trust for Indians or Indian tribes, and is defined under 18 U.S.C. § 1151. We use the term Indian Country versus the term Native American or some other term because it describes the statutory jurisdiction of the U.S. Attorney’s Office.
